The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills,—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth, 2/-, post free 2/3; in parts 1/-, post free 1/1, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing, and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

Country Rambles

YORK C.B.S.

Annual country ramble held May 28. Strensall Common was the place chosen. It is an ideal place in which to see bird life. Mr. Zimmermann (chairman) knows practically every inch of the common, and a very enjoyable day was spent. Nests were seen in abundance containing both eggs and young, some of which were rung with the Aberdeen University rings, including Linnets, Blackbirds, Thrushes, Yellowhammers, Whitethroats, Twite, Water Hen, Wild Duck, and numerous others. A Curlew was also seen, but the party were unable to find the nest. After a little refreshment on the common, the party returned to York about 3 o'c.—H. Thompson, Sec.

PENDLETON & SALFORD O.S.

It was very pleasant to see so many members and friends turn up for the outing. We left the train at Dinting, where our guide was waiting for us. We went through Dinting and on through Broadbottom; then we came to Charlesworth, where we had dinner and a half-hour's rest. Then on again over the hills till we came to "The Grouse," where we had to meet the gamekeeper, Mr. S. Hill-Wood, M.P., having generously allowed him to take us over his grounds. We had a merry march up hill and down dale, over hedges and ditches, over stone walls and through woods, till we came to the Hall, where the gamekeeper passed us on to the head gardener. Through the kindness of Mrs. Hill-Wood he was allowed to take us through the greenhouses. Our guide told us they are reputed to be the finest in the country, and I should think they are. We went through about six, and then came to one containing very rare plants; he told us they paid £300 for one orchid. One hothouse was full of fruit trees (and some of the houses were "'ot"). Here we saw almost every kind of fruit growing, orange, fig, and banana trees. Through the aquarium into the grounds, round the Hall, we made our way on to Glossop, where a good tea was waiting for us. We had a look round Glossop, and then entrained. We arrived home about 9.30, after one of the best outings we have ever had. All hoped that Mr. Metcalfe, the assist. sec., who had made all arrangements, would get another ramble up soon, which he promised to do in about a month's time.—J. Critchley.

HULL C.B.S.

Annual ramble May 27th, Barton-on-Humber, and the district round about being the chosen venue. Twenty nine members embarked for New Holland by the 1.30 boat. New Holland was soon reached, when we had a wait of about ha'f hour for the Barton train; the time was passed pleasantly watching the antics of a Wagtail in search of provender on the opposite side of the platform. On arriving at Barton we were met by those two good Barton fanciers, Messrs. Dunn and Pettit, who first guided our steps to the Red Lion Hotel, and made final arrangements for tea. This being settled the business of the day commenced, and after a short walk down the road we turned into a wood, where bird life seemed plentiful. We came across several Thrushes' and Blackbirds' nests containing young. But oh! the weather, it was really too hot to put much exertion into the business we were out for, and the probabilities are we missed more than we found. We next wended our way through some chalk pits, and one enthusiastic member, spying a Wood Pigeon's nest, climbed the tree to find his labours rewarded with one egg. About here the Cuckoos were heard and seen in good numbers. We now made our way where we expected to see Linnets in goodly numbers, but on arrival not a solitary nest could he found, this being accounted for by a lot of shooting being recently carried on around these bushes. After a pleasant rest under trees laden with laburnum, the "inner man" calling, a start was made back to Barton by the high road. On Barton being reached we all proceeded to one of the two photographers the village boasts, and there posed. Tea being mentioned seemed to put new life into us, and it was a very hungry and tired crowd that crawled into the Red Lion Hotel, where full justice was done to the good things the landlady provided for us. After tea a committee meeting was held. It was decided to apply to the Open Norwich Plainhead Club for their patronage at our forthcoming open show. Some of the members now made their way to the station, the remainder staying and having an impromptu concert, at which a hearty vote of thanks was returned to the host and hostess and to the two Barton fanciers for their kindness in acting as guides to: Messrs. G. W. Oliver, E. R. Ridley, G. Harland, W. T. Pepper, D. D. Longhorn, F. F. Potter, Jackson, W. Fox, Butlers, Frith, Mason, R. Clayton, A. Clayton, B. Stones, W. H. Stamford, Watson, Emmott, D. McKay, Richardson, Sutton, Hinson, Kemp, Cross, W. H. Riley, Calvard, Parkes, Rapsey, Carter, F. Calvard, and Masters Brockelhurst, Stamford, and Fox. The ramble proved one of the most pleasant it has fallen to my lot to participate in.—Ernest R. Ridley, Hon. Sec.

BRIGHTON C.B.A.

Members held their first ramble on May 21st, when they had a glorious outing in fine weather. Leaving Brighton at 8.35, they took train to Newick, being joined at Lewes station by Mr. O. Plummer, who kindly acted as guide. Walking from Newick, we were soon off the beaten track, and via Cockful Lane, where we found plenty to interest students of nature, we reached Littleworth, and from thence to Chailey, where we had lunch. Retracing our steps a little we were soon on Marstakes Common, where abundance of wood and undergrowth formed excellent cover for all sorts of birds. Mr. W. Swaysland, one of the members of the club, gave us the benefit of his knowledge of bird lore, pointing out and explaining many things of interest, which the members greatly appreciated. After an all too short ramble over this enclosure we got on the Chailey road again, and walked in to Lewes through Cooksbridge and Offam, catching the 5.30 train to Brighton. Over fifty nests were located, many with young; but mostly only eggs not set, including Chaffinch, Linnet, Blackbird, Thrush, Robin, Yellow Bunting, Wren, Bullfinch, Tree Pipit, Longtail Tit, Hedge Sparrow, Whitethroat, Woodpecker, Willow Wren (7 eggs), Wood Pigeon, etc. We also saw Pheasants and Partridges, a pair of Blue Tits, also Night Hawks, while the song of the Nightingale was a continual melody intermixed by the call of the Cuckoo. The country was in splendid condition, apple and fruit trees being in full blossom, also the holly and May trees. It is hoped other rambles will follow this one.—Will H. Gibb, Hon. Sec.

DULWICH & PECKHAM C.B.S.

Twenty-five members met on 21st May for the ramble fixed up by secretary Hodson, with Mr. Botting's kindly assistance. Holmwood, or, rather, its justly famous and magnificent common, was our hunting ground, and to say we were a merry troop as we turned out of the train were a poor compliment. Among those present were Messrs. Tringham, Richardson, Richardson, jun., Cole, Tomsett, Lea, Brown, Warley, Warley, jun., Botting, Allen, Austin, Austin, jun., Nicholls, Smith, Reeks, Johnson, Johnson, jun., Cornish, Dressler, and last, but certainly not least, our secretary with his camera. We were met at the station by Mr. Allen, of Holmwood, our guide—a fancier to the core, and the right person for the job. We quickly left the road and turned on the common, but not before we had heard the Skylark carrolling forth, as he seemed almost to pierce the cloud, and, turning into the wood, we had our photos. taken. Now the search commenced, and it was not long before Reeks found a sitting Blackbird. Aye! she was a picture—distinctly afraid, yet sitting tight until we nearly all had seen her; and then came Brown, and what could you expect? Off she went, much to our regret. I suppose, thinking enough mischief had been done, no one looked to see what was in her nest. Our attention was then called to a Woodpecker on the wing, and the Chiffchaff, as he called his curious notename. Thrushes' nests in all stages were found, but Blackbirds seemed more scarce. I think I am right in saying that a full clutch of Blackbirds' eggs was not found all day. The Yellowhammer was next located in the bottom of a bush, and it was a pretty picture with its four streaked eggs, while the cock bird sat on a telegraph wire singing for all he was worth. Linnets' nests were found with both full and incomplete clutches and young of all ages. In one case the hen let us have a good look at her. Our next find was a dead young Thrush, and the scattered feathers told of a cruel fight with a stoat or weasel, and we wondered if the bird would not have been happier in our cage or aviary, where it would have been treated more kindly. We were next reminded of an old friend, the Greenfinch, with his "churr-churr," and the Chaffinch with his "pink-pink." Hedge Sparrows' (as they are wrongly called) nests were found, and several of the Whitethroats' with eggs. These latter were lined with horse hair, which made the Canary fanciers tremble for the fate of the youngsters. Time now getting on, we directed our steps to our old friend Darmen, at the Temperance Hotel, Dorking, where a good wash and cold lunch awaited us. Soon after we sallied forth again to renew our search, this time under the guidance of Mr Botting. Nests were found in plenty, and as it was a little brighter the song of the birds was stronger and more connected. The Nightingale was heard at his best—truly a marvellous melody, and our secretary had the pleasure of finding the nest with two eggs. The Cuckoo was heard several times, but not seen. During the day the following birds were heard or seen: Skylark, Cuckoo, Nightingale, Chaffinch, Linnet, Yellowhammer, Hedge Sparrow, Thrush, Blackbird, Turtle Dove, Whitethroat, Greenfinch, Chiff-Chaff, Woodpecker, and Plover.—F. Cole.

ASHINGTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held Mr. Rowley's, May 20th, Mr. Miles in chair. Decided to have F.F. Show, to be held Portland Hotel, August 5th, and to select judges and classification next meeting, June 3rd, 6.30. All members please attend, owing to special business in connection with annual show.—Wm. Hall, Sec.

CITY & COUNTY OF PERTH, O.S.

Special meeting held City Cafe, May 29th, Mr. D. Brown (president) in chair. The classification for club show was considered and agreed to as follows: Classes for Scotch Fancies to be deleted; Nor. P.H., young birds, yell, ck., do. hen, buff ck., do. hen, non-fed ck., do. hen; old birds, ck. any col., hen do.; Crest ck., do. hen, C.B. cock, do. hen (young birds), Crest ck., do. hen, C.B. ck., do. hen (old birds); Bord. Fcy., young ck., do. hen, old ck., do. hen. Mr. Allan Chalmers (Kirkintilloch) to judge these classes. British, Mules, and Foreign, Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Linnet, Siskin, Redpoll, Greenfinch, any species Brit. (not larger than a Thrush), Mules, A.V. bred 1911 For. Bird (small), do. large—Mr. John Goodfellow (Edinburgh) to judge this section. Owing to the City Cafe having been let for other purposes, it was agreed to meet in future in Laidlaw's Temperance Hotel, Leonard-street. Next meeting to be held second Monday in June, as first Monday is a holiday in Perth. A good muster of members is requested to consider first feather show.—J. Kerr, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Meeting held May 18th, well attended. Mr. Whitton, our worthy chairman, presided. After electing the Judge, Mr. T. L. Castree (Mountain Ash) to officiate at our Young Bird Show, a few remarks were passed by the secretary on the return to our ranks of our old friends, Messrs. Sivill and E. J. Davies, who were welcomed back again. Mr. Sivell responded in a most fancier-like spirit. Mr. James moved that we add to our list of classes two open Norwich and two open Yorkshire classes for non-members. This was adopted. I hope to enrol Mr. Squires at our next meeting; this will be nine members for this year. If any other fancier would like particulars and rules I shall be pleased to send same on to him. After the business, the chairman called on Mr. Dummett for his paper on the Norwich Plainhead. This proved interesting, and a very pleasant evening was spent, there being several interesting questions which were answered to the best of his ability. Next meeting June 15th, when questions on British Birds will be dealt with.—J. W. Dummett, Sec.

PAISLEY O.A.

An interesting event took place in Hutton's Hall, Moss Street, Paisley, on May 19, when the members of the above society honoured Messrs. J. Laidler, A. M. Baird, and J. Potter, who have just retired from official positions, with complimentary dinners. Covers were laid for 50 gentlemen. After dinner the toast of the Paisley O.A. was proposed by the chairman, Mr. J. Taylor, of Johnstone, and replied to by Mr. A. Baird (Paisley). The next toast was "The Guests of the Evening," proposed by ex-Bailie McNair, of Paisley, and suitably replied to by the three guests. "Kindred Societies" was proposed by Mr. J. Paton (Paisley), and replied to by Mr. R. Crawford (Barrhead). A very pleasant evening was spent in harmony afterwards. The following gentlemen rendered songs and recitations: Messrs. J. Pottie, A. Graham, T. McNair, A. M. Baird, N. Odonnell, J. Kennedy, sen., M. Graham, T. Potts, J. Andrews, J. Paton, T. Gardiner, with Mr. J. Williamson at the piano. We have appointed the following well-known gentlemen to act as judges at our show on January 1 and 2, viz.: for Scotch Fancy, Messrs. Black (Govan), A. M. Baird (Paisley), D. Caldwell (Bailliesto'n), and G. Fulton (Partick); for Norwich and Crests, Mr. A. Roberts (Rutherglen); for Yorkshires, Mr. R. B. Gibb (Ibrox); for Borders, Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso); and for British and foreign, Mr. R. V. Raine (Cathcart).—Wm. Lambie, Sec.

YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

Annual general meeting held May 27th, Market Tavern, Godwin-street, Bradford. There was a very good attendance. Mr. Sunderland occupied the chair. The balance-sheet was adopted, showing a balance in hand of £4 14s. 11½d.—a result most favourably commented on by the chairman. The voting for officers in 1911-12 was declared as follows:—President, Mr. D. Sunderland; vice-president, Mr. R. Halliday; secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. Greaves; assistant-secretary, Mr. W. Crabtree; auditors, Messrs. R. W. Alderson and T. Clegg; scrutineers, Messrs. F. Hammond and T. Ogden; committee (inside Yorkshire), Messrs. H. H. Towers, J. Bailey, W. H. Shackleton, T. Armstrong, S. Dean, H. W. Battye, T. Ogden, W. Cruise, A. Cooper, H. J. Chittenden, F. Hammond, R. Sutcliffe, W. A. Cowgill, H. Hill, E. Clegg (Dewsbury), A. Brown (Guiseley), P. Drake, W. B. Atkinson, F. Townsend (Halifax), and R. Garnett; (outside Yorkshire), Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, A. Hirst, T. C. Crawhall, W. G. Cuthbertson, and A. Ambler. Total number of voting papers returned 74. Three papers were rejected on account of bearing more than the required number of votes. A hearty votes of thanks was accorded the retiring officers, also the subscribers and donors of special prizes. Considerable discussion here took place as to whether in future the election of officers be by ballot or at the general meeting by open vote; eventually it was decided to adhere to the system of election by ballot. On a motion by Mr. F. Armstrong, the secretary is instructed to record the attendances at all committee meetings. Decided that the words, "from districts outside Bradford," be struck out of bye-law 8; also that the club's pre-competitions be continued for next season. The resignations of Messrs. M. Broadley and Son and E. B. Denton were accepted with regret. The following were admitted to membership: Messrs. G. Snead, T. Tidswell, Wilkinson Bros., C. E. Walker, W. Kershaw, E. North, M. Shackleton, A. Craven, W. Mandell, H. Simonett, F. Allen, J. W. Hudson, and W. Stables. A very pleasant meeting was brought to a close with the presentation to the hon. sec. of a very handsome honorarium subscribed by the members, and a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Crabtree for his valuable work as assistant sec. A committee meeting will be held for the arrangements of the competitions and allotting the club's patronage on July 1st. Any society desiring the club's patronage, who have not already applied, please do so (giving date of show and judge) before the above date. John Greaves, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held Fawcett-street Cafe, May 27th, Mr. J. Farrer presiding over a good attendance. The proposed excursion to Corbridge on Whit Monday will not take place, as there is not an excursion running on that day, but it is expected that a good number will take a trip to Croft on Whit Tuesday, leaving about 12.30 p.m. We shall be glad to see as many as can come on that day. The first of the series of F.F. shows will be held on June 10th, when Mr. M. Dixon (Houghton-le-Spring) will judge. I hope members will make as many entries as possible, especially the younger members. Classes will be provided for all varieties. Birds to be on table by 6.30 p.m.—J. Jeffrey, Hon. Sec.

EAST HAM C.B.S.

A splendid lecture by Mr. G. E. Weston (of CAGE BIRDS) was given on Thursday, May 25, to the members of the East Ham Cage Bird Society, on "Colour Feeding and Colour Foods." His demonstrations of various kinds of pepper in test glasses, pointing out their qualities, etc., was quite an eye-opener, even to the old fanciers. Abundance of questions rained on Mr. Weston, and were readily answered, and should prove a great help to the members. We were further pleased to have his promise to give a lecture later. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Weston, and every member was sorry when his lecture came to a close. The general business of the society concluded one of the most interestiug and instructive evenings of the year. There was an excellent attendance.—Fredk. Fox, Hon. Sec.

CINNAMON-MARKED Y.C.C.

Adjourned annual meeting held May 26th, Market Tavern, Bradford, and a good number of members were present. The balance-sheet was submitted and passed. Agreed, that Ramsden special prizes for novice and junior novice competition be as last year; that is, points to count at shows only where the club patronage is given. (Will novices please note this?) Also agreed, that the competition prizes and value of same be left with the committee. Applications for the club patronage close on June 24th, and committee meeting will be held same day to consider and decide on same. Also decided, with regard to all members still in arrears, and not paying same within three months from date that their names be sent to all specialist clubs and the Yorkshire Union (as per Rule 19).—Grayshon and Allen, Hon Sec., Wormald Street, Heckmondwike.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Adjourned annual general meeting held May 23rd, Duncan's Rooms, 71, London-street, Glasgow, the president (Mr. T. Penman) in chair. Secretary reported he had already received applications for patronage from seven open shows. Samples of show cages from three different makers were submitted; it was decided that we adopt Mr. J. A. Reece's cage as standard. The secretary was instructed to find out from the members how many cages each would require, so that we could, if possible, get the whole season's supply in one lot, and so save carriage. Members will therefore greatly oblige by letting me know their requirements as soon as possible. The annual picnic was then discussed, and although there was a strong tendency to go back to Lochwinnoch again, it was ultimately decided to go to Campsie Glen on the last Saturday of June. Particulars later.—R. B. Gibb, Hon. Sec.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARY NATIONAL DERBY O.A.

Membership for 1911 continued:—J. Struthers (Paisley), J. Hannay (Maxwelltown), M. Frew (Neilston), J. Bowman (Duntocher), J. Wilson (Radnor Park), P. Craig, J. J. McIlwain (Glasgow), W. Holden (Muirkirk), W. Wilson (Glasgow), W. Muirhead (Bonnybridge), J. Phillips (Glasgow), J. Fulton, A. Livingstone, H. Siddons, J. Slater, and N. O. Donnell (Paisley), W Hunter (Wishaw), J. Black (New Lanark), A. Orr (Glasgow), Mr. Leiper (Ibrox), J Allison (Paisley), and J. Wilson (Clydebank). Members are reminded that the half-yearly business meeting will be held in Grand National Halls, Main Street, Gorbals, Glasgow, at 8 p.m., for the election of judges and other business. It is to be hoped those in the vicinity will attend and take their share of this important duty. At this date the return of the tickets is rather over last year's, but the Executive would like to see the Coronation year crowned with a record membership. Everything has to be accomplished between this and 12th June.—Thomas Smith, Sec and Treas., 10, Lochside Street, Crossmyloof, Glasgow.

NATIONAL GREEN-MARKED Y.C.C

Annual general meeting held May 23rd, Market Tavern, Godwin-street, Bradford, Mr. W. H. Shackleton (president) in the chair. A fairly well attended meeting was recorded, especially considering the delightful weather. The following business was transacted. Minutes of last annual meeting passed. The resignations of the following members were accepted with regret. Messrs. B. Cowell, Chew and Stokoe, W. Blakey, and E. B. Denton. To counterbalance this, the following gentlemen were enrolled as members: Messrs. W. T. Furniss (Sheffield), H. Ramsden (Leeds), G. Snead (Gt. Horton), T. Cowill (Barrow-in-Furness), and J. Smith (Bradford). Balance-sheet for 1910 presented by the treasurer; it showed the club to be in a sound financial condition, there being a balance of £1 14s 10d. Same will no doubt be increased by the receipt of other subscriptions not yet received. Secretary's report and balance-sheet were both enthusiastically received and unanimously passed. A hearty vote of thanks to the auditors, Messrs. S. Dean and F. Hammond (both gentlemen being unanimously re-elected for 1911. The hon. scrutineers presented the result of the ballot for election of officers for 1911:—President, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, unopposed; vice-president, Mr. T Ogden 27, Mr. R. B. Wright 17; hon. auditors, Messrs. S. Dean and F. Hammond (unopposed); hon. scrutineers, Messrs. F. Townsend and H. W. Walsh (unopposed); hon. sec. and treasurer, Mr F. Armstrong 28, Mr. J. Crowther 5 (Mr Crowther withdrew too late for information to be conveyed to the members). Committee (inside Yorkshire), 10 required: Messrs. F. Hammond 32, J. Bailey and H. Hill tied 30 each, H. H. Towers 29, H. W. Walsh 27, W. Crabtree 26, S. Dean 25, R. Halliday 24, W. A. Cowgill 21, E. Clegg and H. J. Chittenden tied 18. As a result of casting lots Mr Clegg was declared elected. Unsuccessful candidates: Messrs. J. Greaves, H. W. Battye, F. Townsend and R. Sutcliffe tied 17 each, Messrs. L. Dykes, P. Drake, T. Ogden and J. Thomas tied 12 each, Messrs. L. Ogden and J. Robertshaw tied 9 each, Messrs. J. Wilcock 8, J. Thornton 7, J. Crowther 7, C. Pickup 4, and A. Sutcliffe 3. Committee (outside Yorkshire), 5 required: Messrs. A. Hirst 45, J. W. Ramsden 44, R. B. Wright 39, T. C. Crawhall 38, A. Ambler 33, J. Currie 27. The following gentlemen were appointed district representatives on the committee with full powers: Messrs. J. Currie (Barrow-in-Furness), A. Brown (Bingley), H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), J. W. Middleton (Keighley), and H. Ramsden (Leeds). The scrutineers were cordially thanked for their work, and again unanimously re-elected. Also unanimously resolved that all competitions (with the exception of CAGE BIRDS) be as last year, a breeder competition being added. Following additions and alterations to rules and bye-laws were passed: (a) In classification Green-marked to be inserted; (b) that the following be printed in bold type on top of front of outside cover: "Subscriptions now due, which must be paid to hon. treasurer before points can be counted; (c) all societies accepting club's patronage must supply the secretary with a marked catalogue first post after judging; (d) That we combine with the other specialist clubs in their action re defaulting members; that all societies desiring club's patronage must apply for same on or before first post July 1st, so that the same can be allotted that day. Unanimously decided to present the secretary an honorarium of £2 2s. for his efficient services to the club. The following gentlemen, in addition to our president, have generously promised valuable specials for next season: Messrs. R. B. Wright, F. Armstrong, A. Brown, E. Clegg, L. Briggs, J. W. Ramsden, and R. Sutcliffe and Son, two of these being additional specials for the junior novice competition. We are still desirous of further increasing these. Now, novices, remember this club leads the way in specially catering for you. Show your appreciation of our efforts by enrolling in large numbers, and make this competition a bumping success.—F. Armstrong, Hon. Sec. 28, Victoria Buildings, King Cross, Halifax.

MIDLAND COUNTIES Y.C.C.

Annual general meeting held Crown Hotel, Birmingham, May 25th. The balance sheet was submitted showing a balance in hand of £4 18s. 2d. Secretaries were instructed to submit prices and designs of challenge cups to next meeting. Patronage was held over until next meeting. Will secretaries please send on their applications at once? We are sorry to see the donors to the cup fund are confined to a few of the more enthusiastic members.—Beck and Andrews, Secs., School House, Rookery-road, Handsworth, Staffs.

CHOPWELL F.S.

Meeting held May 27, Mr. W. Carr in the chair. Decided, to hold our young stock show July 22 this year. Also decided to ask Mr. G. Barkas to judge the Canary section, and Mr. W. Curry the British birds. Moved and seconded that the schedule stand as drawn up with ten classes for Canaries and 8 for British birds, with one for foreign birds. Our open show is fixed for October 7, with Mr. T. Dixon as judge of Canaries and Mr. J. R. Slack of the British and foreign birds. Decided, to pay prize money on the sliding scale at this year's show, when I hope we will have a good entry. Joe Brown, Sec.

The Shows.

NORTHERN B.B., M. & F.B.C.

Meeting held, May 24th, Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle. A very successful table show was held.

BRIT. A.S.: 1, 2, Shepherd; 3, Irving. FOR. A.S.: 1, Young; 2, Petterson. Judge, Mr. Geo. Taylor. Mr. Tom Robson has promised to give his experiences with British Softbills at our next meeting, so I hope we will have a good turn-up. All fanciers welcome.—Geo. Taylor, Secretary.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Second evening show, all sections, held headquarters, May 25. Entries totalled 124 in all. Quality was of a high order. Mr. G. Gardner judged the cage birds, and his awards were well received. Mr. J. Reed was awarded the certificate for best bird—a really splendid specimen of a glossy Starling, which was much admired.

CAN., A.V.: 1, 2, 3, r, Reed. BRIT.: 1, 2, 3, r, Reed. MULES: 1, 2, 3, r, Reed. FOR.: 1, 2, cert. best bird, Reed. W. Maxey, Hon. Sec.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Meeting held Slatters Rooms, May 25, 26 members being present. A record entry for a table show of 62 birds was staged. Judges, Messrs. G. Harland (Hull) and W. H. Moore, ean.

The best wishes were given to W. H. Moore, jun., who sailed for Canada on May 26, the society losing a good man.—Towl Bros., Hon. Secs.

WESTERN COUNTIES O.S.

The first nest feather show of the season was held on May 17, when 80 birds were staged. Considering some of the biggest breeders in the district are somewhat behind with their stock, the numbers were well up to the average. Yorkshires were a failure, only one exhibitor putting in an appearance. Norwich were well represented, as were Cresta and Crest-breds. The British bird section was the best the society has had for some years. Mr. Wills' team was a grand lot. Mr. Large judged Yorkshires, Mr. Lugg Norwich, Mr. Hoar Crests, and Mr. F. G. Snell A.O.V., Mules, and British.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES CLUB.

Meeting held Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram Street. Mr. W. Connelly (President) occupied the chair. After the usual routine of business, the following new members were proposed: Mrs. J. Edwards, Messrs W. Hamilton, J. Young. Three classes arranged for 25th June show, viz., A.V. Brit., (not already shown during monthly shows), A.V. Dark Mule, and A.V. Light Mule or Hybrid. Also arranged to hold another judging competition at next show. Mr. Marlin has kindly offered a medal to the winner. Members are requested to remember date of ramble to Dalry, 17th June, at 2.25 p.m., from St. Enoch Station. A good turn-out is expected, weather permitting. Next business was the judging competition, which proved a very keen and interesting event, all members present taking part. Four tied with 32 points out of a possible 36. To decide the tie, it was agreed that Mr. Pettigrew judge the Blackhead Buntings, which again proved a very keen contest. The winner (Mr. W. Connelly) placed the birds correctly, and gained the special which makes his third successful win, 2nd, John Liddle, 1 point behind; 3rd, W. Shears. This being all the business, the table show of British birds was gone on with. The following members placed the birds: Messrs. Macfarlane, Thomson, Liddle; and their awards were well received.

CHAFFINCH (10): 1, Pettigrew; 2, Connelly; 3, Marlin; 4, Renfrew; 5, Shearer; 6, Calder; 7, Brown. BRAMBLEFINCH (7): 1, Pettigrew; 2, Adams; 3, Marlin; 4, Connelly; 5, Renfrew; 6, Morrison; 7, Campbell. BUNTING (9): 1, spl, Marlin; 2, spl, Renfrew; 3, spl, Shearer; 4, Calder; 5, Connelly; 6, Cuthbert; 7, McNeill.

Singing Contests.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Linnet singing contest for quality held Prince Albert Hotel, May 28th, when 28 birds competed for three good prizes. Result: 1st, Hayes; 2nd, Chippendale; 3rd, Wood. Judges, Messrs. H Allen and C. Lorriman.—J. Smith, Hon. Sec.

YORK.

Weekly Linnet singing contest held St. Lawrence's Working Men's Club, Lawrence-street, when 17 birds competed, and some very good singing was heard. Result: 1st and 4th, W. Weaver; 2nd and 3rd, J. Walker; 5th, A. Kirby. Mr. Jackson officiated as judge, and Mr. Kirby as timekeeper. J. W. Smith, Sec.

LEIGH.

Globe Inn Linnet Club held an open to all England Linnet contest, headquarters, May 21st, when we had an entry of some 65 birds, which, I am pleased to say, has broken all records for Linnet contests; and not only that, but it was our first venture at giving prizes instead of money, and every competitor was surprised at their quality. I intend to give better still if fanciers will give me the same support later. We gave the usual eight prizes (four for quality, and four for time), and in both classes the singing was good. Birds were put out that could win nine times out of ten at other contests. Winners: Quality: T. Stathen, 1st and 2nd; W. H. Topping, 3rd; R. Howcroft, 4th; for time: J. McAllister, 140, 1st; J. Harrison, 135, 2nd; J. Ellison, 130, 3rd; J. Whittaker, 93, 4th. The judges were: Messrs J. W. Jones, T. Gibbins, and J. Holmes, for quality, for time, Messrs. J. Poole and W. Wood; timekeeper, Mr. J. Yates; birdman, Mr. J. Hardman. Will all fanciers note we have cancelled our contest at the Union Arms, Tyldesley, from June 3rd to June 17th, on account of there being a contest at Blackburn and Wigan, and to run three contests on one day would be ruinous to all parties concerned. So I hope to see old faces again at Tyldesley on June 17th, where we shall try and break another record. J. McAllister, Sec.

SALFORD.

Open contest will be held The Boathouse Hotel, Oldfield road, on June 3rd, for time only; entrance fee, 6d. a bird; at 2.30. And a meeting will be held after the contest. It is hoped all intending members will come, as there are a lot of the novices coming with birds, and we can then elect the officers and decide the future contest.—B. Wharton.

BOLDON COLLIERY.

Linnet contest held May 27th, when 26 entries were entered at Black Horse Inn—the best contest held at the Colliery since the start. We had some splendid singing and music after the contest. Result: 1st and 2nd, F. Furlong; 3rd, B. Bailey; 4th, S. Wilson.

DURHAM.

Linnet sing held Black Horse, Elvet, May 27th, when 60 birds were entered, and most of the best birds in the county sang. Result: 1st and 3rd, Bell; 2nd, McQuirk; 4th, Montgomery. Judge, Mr. G. Reed (Brandon).—D. Trotter, Sec.

ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

We had a very pleasant evening on May 28th. The prize was a fine leg of mutton, which was won by Mr Brown. Several other prizes were taken by other members of the Seymour Arms, Seymour-street.—Pony Moore, Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Weekly Linnet singing contest held headquarters, Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Attercliffe Common, May 27th, when 18 birds entered for 3 special prizes given by Mr. J Grundy. 1st, Bisby, 113sec.; 2nd, Thompson, 105sec., 3rd, Lee, 55sec.; Lee, 47sec.; Bisby, 46sec.; Worrall, 43sec. On May 28th 18 birds entered for special prizes given by Mr. J. Grundy. 1st, Thompson, 63sec.; 2nd and 3rd, Thorpe, 64sec., 58sec.; Cole, 57sec.; Wadd, 49sec.; Thompson, 47sec.; Worrall, 53sec., 45sec.; Driver, 42sec. Linnet contest every week-end. Big Whitsuntide contest takes place June 5th, when all visitors will be made welcome.—A. Brown, Sec.

PONTEFRACT.

We have started a Linnet Singing Club at the Wood Man Inn Linnet Club, Pontefract. Contest held May 27, before a large company for three good prizes, when the following won prizes: 1st Piper, 2nd Chatterton, 3rd Dickinson. Contest May 28, for three good prizes, before a good company, when some fine singing was heard: 1st Piper, 2nd Chatterton, 3rd Piper. We have a special sing for Whitweek, hoping we shall have a large attendance.—H. Chatterton, Sec.

IVESTON.

Linnet contest held May 27, when 22 birds entered. After a very interesting competition, the following were the awards: Puller 1st and 3rd, Bentick 2nd. Next competition Sportsman's Arms, Leadgate, where 10s. will be added to all entrances of 6d.—Thomas Cartmell, Sec.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly Linnet contest held headquarters, George and Dragon Hotel, before a fair good company. We had 51 birds to sing for three good prizes. After some good singing, the winners were: 1st B. Nelson, 2nd and 3rd A. Towler, 4th J. Kirk. On Whit Tuesday we have the return open sing with the Leeds Club, and we give all Linnet fanciers a hearty invitation to come and sing for some good prizes.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

GLASSHOUGHTON.

Usual Linnet Contest held Rock Inn, May 28th, when J. Kirk was 1st, 58sec.; Rollinson 2nd, 45sec.; B. Nelson 3rd, 37sec. We are having an open sing on White week-end, first birds to be up at 1 o'clock. Also on Whit Monday members' sing for the cup and prizes. We should like all our members to be at the Rock on Monday by 12.30.—R. Taylor, Sec.

DARLINGTON.

Darlington Linnet Club. Meeting held May 25, Rising Star Inn, there being a good attendance. Proposed and seconded, that this club be confined to Darlington, and that the next singing contest be June 3rd, 2.30. I hope all intending members will attend this contest. Three prizes will be given.—H. Todd, Sec.

LEEDS.

Contest held Skinners Arms May 21, when 17 birds were entered, 1st, J. Green; 2nd and 3rd, A Grainger. Judge, Mr. C. Biss; timekeeper, Mr. J. Simmonds. Weekly contest, Skinners Arms, Bustlethorpe Lane, May 28, when 14 birds were entered. The room was packed with members, and visitors came from Selby. 1st, C. Ward; 2nd and 3rd shared between C. Ward and J. Green. Judge, Mr. C. Biss; timekeeper, Mr. J. Simmonds.

Leeds Linnet F.A. quality singing contest held King's Head, Shannon Street, May 27, when 27 birds entered for 4 good prizes. 1 and 4, J. Sellers; 2 and 3, shared by J. Green and W. Farrow. Judges Messrs. S. Hardcastle, W. Naylor, and T. Johnson. Also on May 28, when 32 birds faced the judges, Messrs. T. Johnson, W. Naylor, S. Hardcastle. 1 and 2, T. Stead; 3, D. Clegg; 4, J. Bland. Our Whit Monday contest has closed with a record entry of 42 birds.—Wm. Simsone, Hon Sec

GREAT HOUGHTON.

Great Houghton and Dist. Linnet Assn. held a grand contest at the Old Hull Inn on May 21, when a good number of birds sang. Winners: Halpine 1st, 2nd, and 3rd. Also on May 28, when some good birds were present. J. Halpine 1st and 2nd, B. Midgley 3rd. We had an excellent gathering of fanciers. Mr. B. Midgley pointed out to us what had transpired at the Castleford Club the week previous, he having been instructed by our members to pay them a visit and point out the views held by our club in purchasing of cups, etc. Don't forget our open-to-all England sing Whitweek for Linnets, first singing 12.45 prompt, for special prize, and entry fee of 1s. per bird.—Jas Halpine, Sec.

Will the members of the Ashton-under-Lyne and Dis. O.S. who have not yet had the group photo of the members please get same next meeting night, June 6, writes Mr. J. R. Colville, the secretary, so that the presentation fund may be balanced up?

Clapham and District C.B.A.'s ramble to Ashted is on Sunday, June 11, writes Mr. A. L. Priest, the hon. sec. The train leaves Balham at 9.26; lunch at Epsom (about 2s.). Members and friends wishing to join us must let me know by June 6 at latest.

Will all societies desirous of having the patronage of the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire C.C. for the coming season kindly apply as soon as possible? write Messrs. Grayshon and Allen, the hon. secs. Applications close on Saturday (morning's post), June 24.

Mr. W. Collinge has resigned the secretaryship of the Heptonstall and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. Harry Taylor, and I have been elected in his stead. All communications, therefore, intended for the society should in future be addressed to me at White Lion Inn, Heptonstall.

The committee have decided that the meeting which should be held on Monday next (Whit Monday) shall be postponed till June 12, when we hope to have a good show of young birds (bred 1911), and a judging competition, with Mr. H. E. Tringham as final judge, writes Mr. H. Smith, the sec. of the Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S.

Will members kindly note that our next meeting will be held on Tuesday, June 13, instead of June 5, the latter date being Whit Tuesday? writes Mr. J. E. Wood, sec. of the Leicester and Leicestershire Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. On June 13 a lecture on Colour Feeding will be given by Mr. Hulse, and I hope every member will make an effort to attend. The schedule and other business connected with the Nest Feather Show, which is fixed for July 8, will be submitted at this meeting.

Our next meeting will, writes Mr. J. Irlam, hon. sec. of the Sale Open Society, be held on Tuesday instead of Monday, owing to the latter's being Bank Holiday. I hope every member will turn up to help select a judge for our open show.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to the Whitsuntide Holidays the offices of CAGE BIRDS will be closed from Saturday to Monday next inclusive.

Will Advertisers and Correspondents generally kindly oblige by posting early all matter intended for next week's issue, to reach us on Tuesday, June 6th.

To obtain the best results from colour feeding you must use Ramsden's Pure Peppers. Birds thrive when being colour-fed on Ramsden's Peppers. There are no deaths, no food left over to waste, for, being a pure, palatable food, the birds eat it readily. These points considered, Ramsden's Peppers are the cheapest for use.—Advt.

Members of the Stratford and East London F.S. are requested to attend the meeting on June 8, as it is the only meeting before the show on July 13, for which arrangements must be made at the meeting, writes Mr. W. The Leith O.S., writes Mr. Geo. Brown, the sec., have engaged the following gentlemen to judge at their annual show on November 11:—For Scotch Fancies, Messrs. W. Rodgers (Colinton) and J. Carson (Easthouses); for Norwich, Mr. G. Scaife (Fauldhouse); for Border Fancies, Mr. J. Craig (Brechin); and for British birds and Mules, Mr. A. Cochrane (Edinburgh).

An evening drive in connection with the Green Canary Association, writes Mr. Geo. Green, the hon. sec., will take place on Thursday evening, June 29; route via Knowsley, Robey, and Huyton. Tickets are 1s. 6d. each, application for which must be made on or before June 23 to Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, 68, Brunswick Road, Liverpool. Fanciers are invited. We meet at Islington Square, Shaw Street, at 6.45 p.m.

The First Feather Show of the Brighton C.B.A. will be held on June 7 at Headquarters, 2, Cheapside, Mr. W. Swaysland being judge, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, the sec. Among numerous specials offered are: Silver-plated teapot, presented by Mr. C. Pearson, to be won by member gaining most points in June and July F.F. Shows, with two nominated birds at each; also silver cup on stand, presented by Mr. E. Cadman (open to novices only), member to show four birds at each F.F. show and nominate two birds at each, winner of most points to win cup.

Kindly note that Mr. Patterson, sen. (Chirnside) judges the Scotch Fancy and Border classes and Mr. Mackie (Edinburgh) the Norwich, British, Mules, Hybrids, etc., at our show on October 21, writes Mr. James McHolme, hon. sec. of the East Lothian C.B.S.

The Cardiff C.B.S. Young Bird Show will be held on July 5, with Mr. T. L. Castree as judge, writes Mr. J. W. Dummett, the sec. We have added two open Norwich and two open Yorkshire classes this year for non-members. Schedules will be sent on application to any address in Wales.

I beg to notify fanciers in general and secretaries of societies that I have tendered my resignation as hon. sec. of the Green Canary Association, writes Mr. Geo. Green, 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool. Pending the appointment of a successor, I shall be pleased to deal with any correspondence that comes to hand.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. FINNICK (Dunfermline).

I am sorry to have to report the death, writes Mr. Andrew Buchanan (Dunfermline), of Mr. Joseph Finnick, joiner, of Grantsbank Street, Dunfermline. Mr. Finnick had cycled to Saline in the afternoon. A cyclist who was walking up the hill observed the accident. Mr. Finnick, he thought, applied his brake too sharply, with the result that he was thrown over the handle bars. Further than what appeared to be a slight wound on the forehead he sustained no injury, and, sitting down by the roadside, he expressed the opinion that he would soon be all right. But, to the alarm of the man who had witnessed the mishap Finnick became unconscious. Dr. Tuke ordered his removal to the Dunfermline and West Fife Hospital, where he passed away on Saturday morning. Deceased, who was 38 years of age, leaves a widow and daughter. Deceased was a well-known Crest breeder of no mean repute, winning several prizes at the local shows. He was also an active member of the Dunfermline and West of Fife O.S., being on the committee for a number of years past.

Messrs. Bishop and Colton, the hon. secs. of the Sheffield O.S., write: We have been successful in obtaining the Foresters' Hall for our Nest Feather Show on July 22. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) will judge. The next monthly meeting will be held on June 13, instead of the first Tuesday, owing to Whitsuntide, when the chief event will be a table show of foreign birds, with 18s. prize money, no entry fees. Another important function we have taking place is a ramble in the Dukeries on June 18, the train leaving at noon (fare and tea, 3s. 2d.). All names must be given in at next meeting.

Mr. T. Sandiford, the noted vendor of colour food, of Preston, reports that his sales for the 1911 season have been a record up to date, the wholesale orders alone received last week amounting to nearly half a ton. The many testimonials received by Mr. Sandiford from celebrated breeders and exhibitors clearly establish the efficacy of his peppers in producing that red-hot colour so necessary to the attainment of the highest honours on the show bench. The samples of Sandiford's "Royal Red" and hot Natal which have been sent us this week are very fine indeed, the "Royal Red" (tasteless) being a marvel of intensity and brightness of colour, while the hot Natal is one of the richest we have ever examined. That they will turn out brilliant coloured birds cannot be doubted. A sample will be sent to those who apply to Mr. Sandiford (296 and 298, North Road, Preston) and mention CAGE BIRDS on their postcard or letter.

Canary breeders now widely recognise the importance of marking their young birds before turning them into the flight cages, to enable them to identify without trouble, and without any chance of mistake, the pedigree of any bird they may have bred. The Canary marking rings supplied by Mr. G. B. Leclair (24, Lambton Road, Hornsey Rise, London, N.) have been so long on the market, and have received the approval of so many leading fanciers, that it would seem superfluous to say anything more in their favour. To repeat what we have already said, they are one of the neatest samples we have seen, being very light and beautifully made, with no rough edges, and the figures are very distinct. Two kinds of marking rings are supplied, namely, with and without flanges, but his flange pattern, we understand, has become exceedingly popular, on account of the ease with which the ring can be adjusted on, and removed from, the bird's leg.

Green Canary Association.

Societies are requested to make application for the Green Canary Association's patronage without delay. Full particulars can be had by applying to Mr. Geo. Green, hon. sec., 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool.

Northern Yorkshire C.C.

Will societies wishing to take up the patronage of the Northern Yorkshire Canary Club please apply at once to me at 14, Afleck Street, Gateshead? Will members of the above society requiring Ramsden's Colour Food state quantities they require to Mr. Crawhall as soon as possible?—R. Tindale.

Queen Mary's Thanks.

Her Majesty Much Pleased with Her Birthday Canary.

The fanciers of Norwich are to be heartily complimented on the successful carrying through of their most happy notion of presenting Queen Mary with a Canary as a birthday gift from the bird breeders and keepers of the East Anglian cathedral city. Her Majesty has expressed her great pleasure at the receipt of a "unique and interesting present," as she graciously terms it.

In our last issue we dealt with the selection of the bird and cage, etc., and are now able to put before our readers some particulars of the actual presentation. We learn that the president of the Norwich Alliance C.B.A., Mr. Lambert, was at the last moment prevented from making the journey, owing to his son's ordination at Ampleforth College being fixed for the same day. The deputation therefore comprised Messrs. W. W. Freestone (chairman), F. Cullington (treasurer), and R. Roll (secretary).

At Buckingham Palace.

The bird was brought to London in a special mahogany travelling cage, the brass cage ornamented with the royal and city arms making a separate parcel. Each member of the deputation sported one of the Queen's favourite flowers (a carnation) in his button-hole, and a taxicab was taken from Liverpool Street to Buckingham Palace, where a pleasant reception was accorded them. They were received by Mr. Wallington, Her Majesty's private secretary, who thanked them cordially on behalf of the Queen, whose engagements did not permit of her being present. The Canary was put into its beautiful special cage, and was much admired. Lord Chesterfield was one of the interested spectators. The bird and cage were then taken up to the Queen's sitting room.

Mr. Wallington stated that he knew the Queen would be very pleased with her birthday gift, and that it had been the subject of much conversation in the Palace. He thought it very nice, and sure to be much admired.

Her Majesty Expresses Her Pleasure.

Buckingham Palace,
25th May, 1911.

Dear Sir,—I have received the Queen's commands to ask you to be good enough to convey to the President and the Chairman Her Majesty's most grateful thanks for the Canary which you brought to Buckingham Palace this morning.

The Queen is much pleased with the fine specimen of bird selected, and with the cage, and hopes that the President will take the earliest opportunity of thanking all the members of the Association for the kind thought which prompted them to send her such a unique and interesting present.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
(signed) E. W. Wallington.

R. Roll, Esq.,
Norwich.

The above letter, conveying the gracious thanks of Queen Mary, was received by Mr. Roll the morning following the visit of the deputation to the Palace. The kindly terms in which it is couched will be a source of gratification to bird-keepers the world over, as well as those fanciers of Norwich to whose credit must be placed the successful carrying out of so happy a method of marking the natal day of our beloved Queen.

No. 6.—My Shamahs.

Experience is said to be a good school, in which the fees are high. My experiences on the present occasion were most varied and instructive, so, though the fees were high in the way of misadventure, I certainly got my money's worth.

During the winter I eat out my soul; I study books on birds and avicultural guides. Autumn and winter bring their pleasant occupations; friends come and stay. Any morning the postman may bring an invitation to tea, to say nothing of dinner. And thon there is the pleasant time of Christmas to look forward to. I am simple enough to like the preparations for good cheer, though a tendency to gout warns me to be abstemious The annual choir supper, and the wonderful gusto with which choir boys can put away plum pudding and mince pies without number is to me a never failing source of wonder and interest. In the long winter evenings by the fire I love to sit and dream, to build castles in the air; to think of birds that will suddenly turn up unbeknownst, like Antonio's Argosies. But when we have turned Christmas, and "it is so delightful to think that the days are getting longer," then I become tainted with all the vague restlessness, which in man is called spring running, but in nature the rising of the sap. Then the ideas that have eaten their way into my being from the study of birds take shape and form, and I feel that unless I set to work in a very definite way Satan will certainly

Find some mischief still
For idle hands to do.

Some ten years ago this horrible feeling came over me, and so I repaired to London, for it is in London, as in Rome of old, that all the bird nations meet and congregate. Somebody told me of a bird shop I had never heard of before down Islington way, and thither I directed my steps. In vain I tried to find the spot. I asked passer-by after passer-by to direct me to the place, but nobody seemed even to have heard of it. My state was like that of a Lieutenant Brazenose in Burmah, when he asked: "Where the devil is the town of Lung-tung-pen?" though, of course, I did not use such naughty words.

Wanted: A Wife!

After long and weary tramping through various most unsavoury streets, which seemed largely given up to costermongers' barrows, I at last quite by chance lighted on the place I sought. It was quite a little shop, and has long since passed away. It was kept by a German, who was asthmatical, and who accordingly kept the place at a most unholy temperature. As the space was perhaps 12ft. square, and was crowded on all sides with cages and a window that would not open, and a large slow-combustion stove, the smell can be better imagined than described; but it was that thick it could be cut with a knife.

Before entering I stood and had a good look at the contents of the window, as little boys stand with their noses glued to the front of a sweet shop. To my intense joy I saw in one cage a cock Shamah. He was in excellent form and plumage, and after a little diplomatic talk he passed into my possession. The next task was to find a hen. I asked the owner if he had any, but he told me that hen Shamahs hardly ever came over, and that when they did they were worth their weight in gold. This was distinctly discouraging to an impecunious person like myself.

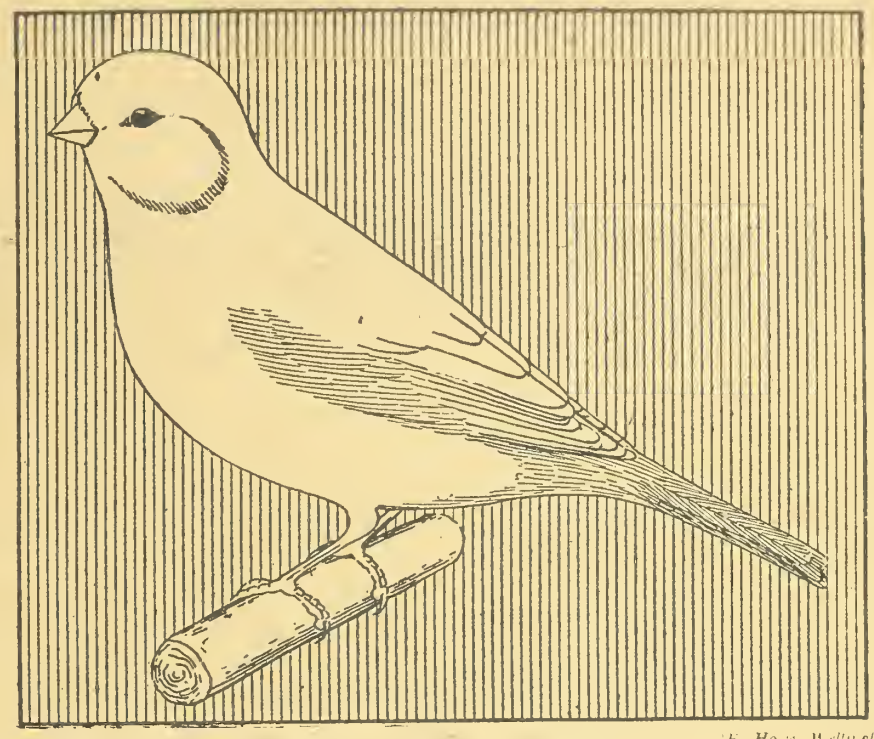
After leaving the shop I got myself some lunch, and then took the Shamah to the G.N.R. and despatched him to Yorkshire, as I could not very well take him to the house where I was stopping. This done, I jumped on the Regent's Park 'bus and made for the Zoo. As soon as I got there I made a bee line to the Western Aviaries, and soon got into touch with Mr. Sutton, the head keeper. He asked me, as we were old acquaintances to come behind the scenes and see some rare birds he had got in cages. Of course, I was only too glad to accept his kind offer, and we were soon talking our heads off over birdy matters. Coming to one of the last of the inner houses, my eyes almost dropped out of my head, for there, right before me, was a lovely hen Shamah in a cage. Of course, I concluded that she belonged to the Society, and said nothing about buying her. But as I was saying good-bye, I happened to ask Mr. Sutton if he had any birds for sale. Imagine my joy when he offered me the hen Shamah, which, he said, was his private property, for £2.

There is no need to tell what my answer was. I popped her into a small travelling cage, and left immediately, lest he should repent of his offer. I was so pleased with myself that I felt I had earned a cup of tea, and accordingly I sought a tea-shop.

A Narrow Squeak.

As soon as I had rested, I made a start for home. I may say I had several parcels by me. I picked up, as I thought, all my belongings and jumped on a 'bus. After I had ridden about 100 yards I went cold all over, for I missed the Shamah. I had left it behind! I remembered then that I had put it on the seat beside me, and in leaving I had quite overlooked it. I won't repeat what names I called myself, but the way I came down that 'bus evidently gave the conductor the impression that I was mad. I didn't care what he thought, my one anxiety was to get back to the tea-shop before somebody annexed my precious Shamah. I rushed in—and my readers will realize my joy when I discovered the Shamah just where I had left here. I've always found it an easy matter to contemplate other people's troubles. It makes a difference whether a disaster occurs to oneself or to somebody else. It has often made me smile to see a chap trip up over a brewer's rope laid across the pavement, but I can't remember ever laughing very heartily when I've done it myself. I know there was not a smile left in me that day, and the way I hugged that parcel the rest of the journey home it must have made people wonder whatever I had got under my arm.

I next made my way to a place in Covent Garden Market, there to get some soft food and mealworms, for, of course, I had no food suitable for a lady Shamah about me. The manager was deeply interested in my new purchase, and warmly congratulated me on my bargain; but he did not congratulate me half as much as I did myself.



It was June when I got my Shamahs, too late, of course, to do any good in the breeding line that year; so I did not bother much. On arriving home I put my precious charges in a big indoor bird-room, there I determined they should winter in safety. But I had reckoned without my Shamahs. Shamahs are the most quarrelsome brutes imaginable out of the breeding season, indeed, most softbills are, and I soon discovered that the cock would be the death of the hen unless I separated them. I accordingly left the hen in the aviary to get all the health and strength she could during the winter, and cage Master Shamah up in a big roomy cage. Here they passed the winter, and in late spring, when that beastly month had passed which Chaucer calls, for some unknown reason "swete May," I put them both out into a very large garden aviary and awaited results. I placed a number of cigar boxes in nice sequestered places, with a hole in the side, such as I had found my Blue Robins greatly favoured, as I thought that, Shamahs being of the Robin tribe, would probably take to the same.

Starting House-keeping.

It was not very long before Mrs. Shamah began house hunting, and very soon I saw that she had found a box to her liking. This she began to busily fill with all sorts of small roots and grasses, and finally I saw her therein, with her big tail sticking out of the hole.

I may say here in passing, that I do not consider the Shamah the wonderful vocalist that he is often spoken of. For my taste his performance is what musical people would call "too choppy." He is not to be compared with our English Blackbird or Thrush, for example; but he is a most wonderful mimic. I had at the time a pen of prize Black Rosecomb Bantams living near the Shamahs, and I have often heard the cock Shamah give a most perfect imitation of one of the Bantam hens announcing that she had had a safe accouche ment. I saw him doing it often, so there was no mistake; but had I not done so, I should have sworn it was the Bantam herself, so perfect was the imitation.

"PRIDE OF THE WEST."

A noted Yellow Norwich hen, bred by Mr. J. McMeachan (New Cathcart, Glasgow), winner of 1st and cup Queen's Park, 1st Kirkcaldy, 1st Bo'ness, etc., and sold for £12 to Mr. W. H. Howe (Wellingboro').

The hen sat perfectly, and on the twelfth day I saw her flying about excitedly with something in her beak. Alas! that something was a newly hatched little Shamah; and on four succeeding mornings she did likewise. Why, I could not imagine, as she had any amount of good live food to go at. I expect it was excitement over her first nest. I know I was fairly mad; but what's the good of being mad in such a case? It doesn't bring the dead to life. My next effort was more successful; for the Shamahs soon went to nest again, and this time the hen probably realised, like young mothers, that other people had had children before, and that there was nothing very wonderful in hatching out a brood. At any rate, the parents behaved in the most exemplary way and fed young morn and night. Of course, I ought to have gone poking about the nest to see how things were going on.

A Matter of Policy.

There are some who insist on placing the foot on the tail of a sleeping cat; others who make a little detour and so avoid a scratch. I am one of the latter sort. Instead of touching nests I carefully watch if the parents are feeding all right. If so, I know that all is well. When the youngsters are sickly and moribund, then the feeding slackens off. I forget not that a chicken in the pot is worth more than a goose on the wing. The young Shamahs, three in number, in due course left the nest, nearly as big as their parents, but of a slaty bluish colour much more like the hen than the cock.

After a few weeks I advertised them for sale and was literally inundated with replies. I selected what I considered would be the best home for my babies and received the very nice sum of £7 for them. I was very sorry to part with them, but what can one do? These partings must come to all of us. Last winter an old woman I knew was dangerously ill with internal gout, but all expressions of condolence were always met with the rather curious reply, "Well, you see, sir, we must have something to bring us to our end." Want of room brought my young Shamahs to an end. It would never do to keep a nest of young cock Shamahs together; there would be battles, and murder, and sudden death. It reminds me of a story I once read.

Coming out of Glasgow one evening two Irishmen waylaid a Scotsman for the sake of plunder. He was nearly enough for both of them, but numbers prevailed, and when they had mastered him, after searching his pockets, they only found three-halfpence. Said one Irishmen to the other, "Glory to the Saints, Mick, what a fight he made for three-halfpence." "Oh," replied the other, "it was the ruling of the Lord he had not tuppence or he would have killed the pair of us!"

The Cuckoo in Egypt.

Influence of Soil on Plumage.

The Crested Lark, a bird frequenting the edges of the desert, differs in plumage according to the tone of the locality which it inhabits, those on the light sandy soil being much paler in plumage than those which have their homes where the soil is dark.

Wild-Bird Life.

The Wild Birds' Home.

Now we are in the midst of the wild birds breeding season we have ample opportunities of studying the nesting arrangements of the many species making their homes in our woods and hedgerows. First of all we must thoroughly understand that it is imposible to study the nests and eggs of a bird away from the bird itself. The two are inseparable. The habits and haunts of the bird, if thoroughly understood, enable us first to locate the nest, to note the material of which it is formed, how and where collected, and the size, colouration and markings of the eggs. Wild birds take a high place in the scale of beauty of wild life, and some of them are so beautiful in plumage that they compare favourably with the fairest and richest of wild flowers. Therefore we need not express any surprise that the nests and eggs are the beautiful objects that some of them undoubtedly are. Of course, we all know that in the majority of cases the plumage of the female is far less brilliant than that of the male bird, but as she does the major portion of the work attached to the incubating, and feeding of the young, her more homely dress is not so likely to attract attention as is that of her mate. In nest building wild birds follow a particular pattern set them by their ancestors; so much so that even a particular species has its peculiarity, and the well-informed naturalist is in most cases able to name the species by a sight of the nest, even although the eggs are not yet deposited. Birds form their homes by means of beak and feet, and even the clumsy bill and feet of the Magpie or the Jay can smooth and round off the sides and interior of their nests as nicely as the Whitethroat or Robin. How wild birds acquire this power to form homes upon given plans is still a mystery. Is it instinct or memory? Some well-known naturalists contend that the mental powers of young birds are so quickly matured that while in the nest they have ample opportunities of which they avail themselves of noting the shape of the nest, the position, materials of which it is formed, and the general architecture peculiar to the species; and being gifted with amazing powers of memory and observation, they in due season return to the place of their birth and proceed to construct a similar home for themselves.

Non-division of Labour.

When Sparrows nest the burden of the nest-building falls mostly upon the hen bird, who is occasionally assisted by her mate; but to judge by his actions during this period, when he sits contentedly upon the water spout, one can imagine that his talents lay more in the direction of giving advice than in rendering valuable assistance.

A Novel Sight.

In one of his books upon Central Africa Sir Samuel Baker describes the habits of several birds, among others that of the Storks. He says he saw a company marching through the desert searching for insects. Upon the back of each Stork was perched a Red-breasted Flycatcher, which darted into the air to catch the winged insects disturbed by the larger birds. The Flycatchers returned to the backs of the Storks in the same manner as our common Flycatcher returns to his post in our hedgerows.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Good Start.

Mrs. K. F.—Very glad to hear of your success in breeding, after the first abortive effort to purchase a cock. It is quite possible for even an experienced person to honestly make such a mistake in certain cases, especially when the hen, as in your case, is a "decent singer." The dealer also was doubtless quiet earnest in calling the bird a "pie," or a "pied," as I suspect was the word used, as this term is frequently used to denote either a foul green, or a foul cinnamon. I suspect your bird is of the latter description, in which case if there is no cinnamon blood in the hen, all the young that have any cinnamon-coloured feathers like his will be hens to a certainty. The way to join a society, if you do not know anyone who is already a member of some society, who would propose your name for membership, is to write the secretary of the society you wish to join, expressing your wish to do so, and asking him to nominate you at the next meeting. He will doubtless invite you to attend, and will make all the rest clear to you. There are several societies in the S.W. district—the L.C.B.A., with headquarters in Westminster; Metropolitan C.B.A., headquarters in Battersea Park Road; S.W.L.C.B.S., headquarters Clapham Junction, besides others. Get CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, and you will find a full list, together with secretaries' addresses, and subscription fees. Glad to help you in any way.

Nesting Difficulties.

Down-hearted.—I'm afraid you have very seriously injured your prospects for the season by having these birds sent on a journey to a totally strange place and surroundings when so near laying. You should either have had them sooner or waited until the first brood had been got safely off. The green hen is not egg-bound. The normal cycle of production has been checked, and you will be lucky if she does any good now this season. Give her a diet of plain Canary as a staple. Every second day give (for the pair) a small teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of two parts each hemp and millet, one part each inga, linseed, and teazle, and a half-part each sesame, gold of pleasure, and yellow mustard. Twice a week give a small piece of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar. In the drinking water dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day for a week, and afterwards give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid in the water for two or three days. Give the Cinnamon hen a crystal of sulphate of soda as above for two or three days, and put this pair on the same diet as above for a fortnight. That will be sufficient. Remove nest box for a day or two, if you have not already done so. Perhaps you did not keep a dummy egg in this hen's nest when removing her eggs, which would also largely account for her refusal to sit. The breeds you have gone in for are not usually trained for singing, but if you wish to invest in a tutor get a good Roller by all means.

Birds Dying.

A. T. S.—I am afraid it is something more serious than bronchitis that is at the root of your trouble. If another dies, send it at once to our Mr. Yates, with full particulars of its symptoms, for post-mortem, and meantime get the nutshell booklet on "Disinfection," and thoroughly disinfect any cage in which bird or birds have died. Also attend strictly to all sanitary and hygienic conditions of all your stock. See that all your seeds are sound and sweet; reduce egg food to a minimum, and see that it is always absolutely pure and fresh, and not too moist and sloppy—keep it rather on the dry side. Let the staple diet be a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape. For birds that are not rearing young you may well omit egg food altogether, and give instead a little crushed dry plain biscuit or sponge cake about twice a week, and occasionally a little maw or a few grains of hemp, and a supply of green food daily. In addition to this give any that are feeding young a little egg food freshly prepared three times a day—early morning, noon, and towards evening—and give only as much as will be cleared up before next supply is due. Keep cages as clean and sweet as possible, and see that the water supply is always pure and fresh. Wash out all food and water vessels each time they are refilled. Allow frequent bathing. Lastly give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in the water every second day for a week. Report result of this treatment in, say, a fortnight, referring to this reply.

Failure to Success (Sandy).—Thanks for letter. Glad to hear you are now doing well again after going back to the old tried and trusty servant, and making your own egg food. The moral you draw to "never leave a good beaten track," is generally a sound one. There's nothing like a practical experience of this kind to carry conviction. Keep egg food pure and fresh always: that's the point.

Canary Rearing Finches (Youngster).—Yes, if the hen is a good feeder she will rear the young on the ordinary egg food and treatment given to Canaries. It would, however, be an advantage to add a little scalded dog biscuit, or to add a little game meal and rather less biscuit to the egg food, and, if the hen will eat them, to supply a few small mealworms, or caterpillars, aphides, or even to mix a few scaked and strained nuts' eggs with the egg food. Also keep a good supply of green food in variety, especially seedy chickweed and green plantain stalks.

A Small Clutch (Mack).—It is very probable the hen is a very young (late-hatched) one. Such hens often lay a very small clutch, such as this, at the beginning of the season. She will probably lay a normal clutch next time. You will be well-advised, however, to limit her breeding this season to two nests, and thus reserve her strength for next season, when she may do very well. In this case you should have given her the single egg to sit, as it is quite likely for it to be fertile, and then if you had other hens hatching off about the same time she would have come in very useful as a foster if any of the others had been bad feeders or deserters. When a number of hens are breeding, especially if well-bred ones, it is always prudent to keep a hen of this kind sitting her full time to fall back upon in case of need. If there are no others sitting remove the nest pan for a few days, give a crystal of sulphate of soda in the water for two days, when she will most likely begin nesting again in about a fortnight.

Young Ill (Claregate Taylor).—You are not feeding them correctly, which is probably the cause of their illness. Give a staple of plain Canary only, ad lib. Every second day give a little summer rape (about half a teaspoonful per bird), and twice a week on the alternating days give a similar quantity of hemp and on two other days allow a small teaspoonful per bird of egg-food sprinkled with maw. You may, if you like, give egg food once and an equivalent quantity of bread and milk sprinkled with maw once each week, instead of giving egg food twice a week. Give a little seedy chickweed, green plantain stalks, or flower heads of groundsel four or five times a week. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand, allow birds to bathe regularly, and add four drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea to the drinking water for two days. See that water supply, and all foods and seeds, are fresh, pure, and sound.

Pairing Two Yellows (J. B. S.).—This is usually termed double-yellowing, and it should never be practised indiscriminately, nor without a definite object in doing so; nor, as a rule, by anyone not knowing how the birds so mated are bred, or who does not understand the effect it may have on the young. The chief objections are that double-yellowing is very apt to decrease the size and substance generally, and materially decreases the quantity and substance of feather, bringing about a tendency to thin, hairy feather, and a stilty, scraggy appearance generally. Two clear birds should not be persistently mated together, or the colour will lose tone, and become more or less washed out. You should get the parts of "Our Canaries" already issued, which explain all these minor details very fully. By the way, I expect you know the difference between yellow and buff. Your letter leaves me in some doubt whether you do, and if not, you will find the matter fully explained in the above work.

Bird Frightened (F. Holme).—Sorry I did not reply to this part of your last query. It was an oversight. The bird has doubtless become anæmic from the continued moulting, and this has affected the nervous system. It is simply nervousness that makes him act as you say, and you can do nothing beyond dealing with him gently and patiently, and trying to regain his confidence by kind and judicious treatment. I doubt the wisdom of turning him in an outdoor aviary to cure this trouble. He might just as likely as not die almost instantaneously when turned loose, indeed, there is imminent danger of him dying suddenly whenever an attack comes on. But if he did get over the shock of being turned loose a few weeks in the aviary would probably do much good in bracing him up, and enabling him to pull himself together, so you must decide yourself whether you try the experiment. In all probability as he gets stronger after the moulting is stopped much, if not all, of this nervousness will disappear. It may, therefore, be worth while giving him a chance to gather a little strength in the cage before putting him in the aviary.

Feather Plucking (Tailless).—It is simply a mischievous habit, or vice, one might say, and you can do nothing to cure it whilst the birds remain together. Seeing that the hens have gone to nest again, I should imagine these young are now able to do for themselves, and could be quite safely placed in a cage, or a roomy flight, by themselves. If this is not the case, your only plan is to put them in a nursery and block up some part of the front so that the cocks cannot easily get at the tail feathers of the young. When you move them you must also watch them closely for a day or two to see whether they pluck each other's tails or not, as many young birds are addicted to the habit, and, in your case, the young birds, having seen the habit started, are all the more likely to keep it up. In this case remove those whose tails are damaged and cage them separately until the tails have recovered their normal condition.

Dead Bird (V. O., Ascot).—Sorry, but I do not make post-mortems. The body should have been sent direct to Mr. Yates as per rules given under heading "Post-mortems." I would have sent the body on, but it would have been useless by the time it reached him. If any more die send one on to him direct at once, and if you will send me a description of your treatment, and the symptoms of the illness, I will do my best to help you. Meantime give the birds a daily supply of green food, and add a crystal of sulphate of soda to the drinking water for two or three days.

Not Laying and Hemp (G.B.F.).—See reply to "W.H.T.," and treat the hen that has built a nest and got no farther as therein advised. As regards the giving of hemp to feeding hens, I have not at the moment a copy of the book at hand to refer to, but I fancy you will find that it is recommended to begin it about the third or fourth day, when the hen seems flagging or a whimsical feeder, and at about a week, or from that to ten days, for ordinary normal cases. This you may also have seen in different replies referring to particular cases in this column. The only objection to beginning to give hemp very early when a hen is feeding freely without it is that in certain hens it is very apt to force them into breeding condition again too early, and indirectly cause them to neglect and perhaps pluck the young.

Lump at Vent (Beginner).—I cannot say definitely what the substance is without seeing it, but I strongly suspect it is a slight protrusion of the cloaca due to egg-laying, and will probably rectify itself after the breeding season is over. As it does not seriously affect the bird, I would not advise you to interfere with it whilst the hen is nesting. Keep the bowels regular, preferably by the judicious use of green food, neither allowing them to become too free nor constipated. If green food does not suffice for this, add a crystal of sulphate of soda to the drinking water now and again. If the hen is neither laying nor sitting, you might bathe the part for a few minutes with cold strong tea, dry gently, and smear part with a little nut-gall ointment, at the same time gently trying to work it back to its normal size. But it would be better to avoid this treatment if she is still laying or sitting.

Not Laying (W. H. T.).—The hen is clearly a so-called squatter, and you should read the article on this subject given in "Our Canaries." Feed her for a week on plain canary seed, and an unlimited supply of chickweed only. In the drinking water during this time give a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day. After this add a fourth part of summer rape to the staple seed diet. Give a small teaspoonful of egg-food with a third of a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame, mixed in it every second day. Two or three mealworms, minced and mixed in the egg-food each time would be an improvement. On the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, millet, and teazle. Continue a liberal supply of chickweed and dandelion daily. Then try her after another week or so with a hasty, hard singing young cock. Allow ample opportunities for bathing. If she does not go to nest and lay in a reasonable time after this, separate her and turn her into a large flight until next spring. Shall be glad to hear report of her breeding performances at end of season, with a reference to this reply.

Aviary (N.K.J.).—You cannot improve upon the position for the aviary. As regards the construction of it, personally, unless the room is exceptionally high ceiled, I should omit the proposed top on the aviary and carry the front and end up to the ceiling. It would, in my opinion, give the whole a better appearance, but this, of course, is quite a matter of taste. If this were done you could also put a second floor midway between top and bottom, and thus make two very serviceable large flights. If you leave it at the height you suggest, then make the top fairly solid and substantial, so that you may safely stand an ornamental pot plant or two upon it and thereby break its plain rigidity of outline. The fillet at foot of skirting will not keep out mice. If they wished to get in that way they would come over the top when checked by the fillet. As you are not troubled with them, I don't think there is any need to interfere with the structure of the floor. Merely local hindrances are of little use. The best of the kind likely to meet your case would be to lay a sheet of thin zinc under the lino. Put an inch in depth of sawdust, or a mixture of half sawdust and half dry sand, on the floor; pass it through a seive once in every fortnight or so, according to the number of birds in aviary, and renew it altogether about every month or six weeks. If a handful of sanitary sawdust is mixed in each fresh lot put down it will form as good a floor covering as anything else. Give grit in a separate vessel.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Budgerigars and Parrots.

Inquisitive.—(1) They certainly should settle down and breed soon, but not, I expect, while they are dropping feathers, etc.—your diet is about right—there is, however, a good deal of individualism in respective pairs, some settle to nesting at once, others appear to take a year to consider the matter; in cages this feature is more pronounced than in the aviary. When in breeding condition the cere of the male is bright blue, that of the female ruddy-brown. (2) It is a Ring-necked Parrakeet, and the food and treatment advised in our reply to "J.T." in this issue will suffice for this species. (3) I should say yes, but you must repeat this query to our Canary specialist next week, as I cannot trespass on his preserves.

A Young Parrot.

J. T.—It is not possible at this stage to exactly define the species, but it is one of the Ring-necked Parrakeets. Diet: Seed mixture—3 parts each Canary and white millet seeds and one part each hemp, crushed oats, paddy rice, and sunflower seeds; well mix, and keep a supply in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, green food, few nuts (shelled walnuts are best) and plain biscuit. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage, and keep cage tray covered with gritty sand. At first it must have water offered three of four times a day, but when it has become accustomed to it, a regular supply can be left in the cage. Once a week supply for drinking purposes one table-spoonful of water to which add a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia; on other days it would be well to colour the water with Parrish's Chemical Food. You must have it fairly tame before you can teach it to talk, then, at such times as it is quiet and restful repeat to it such words and short sentences as you wish it to learn; also keep it where it will hear plenty of talk, etc., and if you fuss with it generally and make a pet of it, it should soon prove responsive, but some individuals take much more teaching than others.

Orange-cheeked, etc., Waxbills.

Thankful.—Orange-cheeks have not, so far, proved free breeders in captivity, but they do breed occasionally, and there is no reason why they should not do so with you in a roomy cage, though results are more probable in a roomy natural aviary. Golden-breasted Waxbills are very ready, as a rule, to go to nest in a natural aviary, and usually rear their young, mostly on seed (spray millet), though out of doors they capture a lot of flies for their progeny. They should nest with you in your cage, but the best nest-receptacles for Waxbills are bottle-shaped rush nests and cocoanut-shell nests. I should suggest one of each at opposite ends of the cage, with the entrance partially screened with a spray of heather or something similar.

A Sick Blue Front.

M. B. S.—I really cannot say whether it will end fatally or not: it must do, if the attacks cannot be checked, which they should be, as worse cases than your bird have yielded to the treatment prescribed for your bird. You must continue the treatment already advised, but suspend the bromide of potassium for a few days (four to seven), when if necessary it may be resumed under the conditions already given, but after, say, half a dozen doses, it would be best to leave an interval of three days before giving more. Keep a cover over the top of the cage, this will possibly have a slightly deterrent effect on its excitement, and if necessary only leave one side of the cage open—it must have as much rest and quiet as can be given it for a time. On receipt of this reply give three drops of tasteless oil direct to the beak, and if this does not take effect in due course repeat the dose; and after the effect has passed away resume the magnesia as already advised. The "standard" biscuits are all right, by all means let him have one, or even two, daily, if it will take them. Report progress again a fortnight hence.

What Parrot? (A Bird Lover).—It is either an Alexandrine or Ring-necked Parrakeet, impossible to say which till it has been through the next moult, when, if you re-describe its plumage, I shall be pleased to name it for you. The diet given in our last reply will fully meet the requirements of either species. Keep the bird under observation, and at the first sign of constipation give a laxative (Dinneford's Magnesia is best), and if it appears at all weak give byno-hypophosphates in the drinking water.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

The Goldfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid.

Llanelly.—The Goldfinch-Bullfinch is, of all Hybrids, my favourite. Both species should have plenty of young dandelion leaves, likewise the flowering and seeding heads of dandelion and groundsel, shepherd's purse, and chickweed. Give feeds of wild seeds, niger and maw seeds, to both birds daily, and do not stint the Goldie of hemp nor the Bullie of sunflower, while the latter may have a taste of egg food every day if she shows any liking for it. Most fanciers believe in transferring the eggs to hen Canaries; some prefer to give the hen Britishers a chance to hatch them and rear the young. When the couples are in cages, the former invariably proves the most certain method, especially with hen Bullies, whom I have never found any too reliable. In small aviaries they may behave all right. Should you get any young, offer all of the above-mentioned seeding green foods freely, egg food (or rich insectivorous food, if the hen Bullie likes it), small mealworms, and sprays off rose or fruit bushes which are infested with smother fly (aphides), if you can get them, likewise live ants' eggs in season.

A Mixture.

T. W. H.—1: Try any of our advertisers who offer waterfowl, pheasants, etc. They sometimes have Ruffs, or can obtain them to order. 2: This is a favourite query; have had it sent to me hundreds of times (almost). The "Nutshell" booklet on the Thrush (post free 2½d.), you will find, gives very detailed information on hand-rearing. Briefly, this is the procedure: Take the young when about ten days old—nest and all, if possible—and keep them cosy, say inside a wicker basket and on a bed of hay. At night throw a piece of flannel over the basket; keep it on during the day if cold. Feed every hour at first; about every two hours later on. For food, crush two Osborne biscuits and beat a hard-boiled egg up very finely, in a teacup, with a fork. Then mix the biscuit with the egg, and make it of a rather sloppy consistency with new milk. This is best fed just slightly warmed. Always be perfectly sure it is fresh and sweet; it should be prepared fresh twice daily, if possible. A small, flat piece of wood with a suitably shaped blunt end can be used to feed with; or a large, blunted toothpick. As the youngsters get older, cut small mealworms in halves, dip them in milk, and pop them into their mouths; also any flies you can capture. It is quite a simple task to hand-rear Thrushes. The chief thing is to feed very often, and give only a very little at a time. Keep the nestlings and their surroundings scrupulously clean, or they will not thrive. When they grow, give a little finely chopped raw beef or mutton; or a few cut-up small garden worms. 3: It all depends upon what birds you want to catch—Linnets for Linnets, Goldies for Goldies, etc. (or Mules singing the pure song are very good). 4: Yes; it would. 5: The Lesser Spotted Woodpecker is seldom in the market. The price varies from 10s. to 20s., when well on food. It is far from common. You might advertise for one.

Linnet-Canary Mules.

Brownlow.—Sorry to hear that work is so scarce with you; better luck to you in the near future. All Canary Mules reared by Canary hens are brought up in very much the same manner as young Canaries—that is, on similar food and treatment generally. When they are commencing to feed themselves offer (in addition to soft food) maw seed, lightly cracked Canary and hemp seeds, groats, or coarse oatmeal, shelled and broken up sunflower seed; also seedling heads of chickweed, shepherd's purse, and groundsel; and thistles in season. Don't at the same time, forget grit and cuttlefish, likewise old, crushed mortar. Steep some summer rape seed in cold water, which thoroughly change every day. It will soon begin to germinate (burst), and is then ready for use, dabbing it as dry as possible in a towel before offering it to the birds. This is very good, especially where anyone experiences difficulty in getting green food regularly, for which it is to a certain extent a substitute. All crushed seed should be prepared fresh daily. I should wean them off egg food as soon as possible, substituting for it home-made egg cake, moistened, if necessary, with a spot or two of milk or of water, or a little stale sponge cake, or crushed sweet biscuit (maizena wafer, tea or Osborne), also moistened with milk. Egg cake made and baked at home, however, really does not need damping. Don't make the mistake, when dropping egg, of leaving off soft food entirely. During incubation give the old birds the usual seed-mixture, but not the egg-food and other special items of diet, giving these only two or three times during the period the hen is sitting.

A Hen Not Nesting.

Cymro.—Well, you haven't had the birds together for very long, so there is still hope. It is not easy for me to say why your hen has not yet showed signs of nesting. It may be one of several possible causes. Young (late-hatched) hens of the previous year are often late in starting; so are old, almost worn-out, hens; or hens which have been weakened by over-laying or too late breeding the previous season; or which had a bad, lingering moult; or hens which for some other cause (such as recent illness) are in a low way and cannot be "screwed up to concert pitch." Likewise hens bought late in the spring are often upset by the change of quarters. Hen Canaries in high breeding condition simply insist upon going to nest. Have you got hold of an old hen. As I have said, not being able to see and examine the birds, I don't find it easy to advise you. If you could obtain a young loud-singing cock Canary and put with the hen for a week or so this might result in her getting to business. Your feeding is good enough for anything.

The Goldfinch (Stultus).—It is seldom that a Goldfinch will help to feed young Mules. Most of them will feed the hen, and they take no notice of (do not interfere with) the progeny. Some, on the contrary, are the reverse, and will pitch into the Mules immediately they commence to scramble out of the nest. "Know thy Finches" is a good motto.

Hen Plucking Mules, etc. (Brett).—Your hen was evidently in a very forward state and anxious to go to nest again. It is unusual for them to pluck the young before they are on the perches, but I have known it happen. You will be well advised to either keep the Linnet out of sight next time the hen is feeding, or to let him run with her right through, providing he is not mischievous towards nest and eggs or spiteful towards the young. Most Linnets behave well. Sand (grit) on the cage floor is not harmful to young Mules, but quite the contrary. You cannot do anything with the Goldfinch. Some absolutely will not fertilise the eggs of a Canary hen even when in fit condition to do so. Don't keep changing him about with different hens; if you feel inclined to give him a further trial, put him with a hen with whom he is friendly and leave the couple together "for better or for worse."

Identity of Egg (A. F. Neals).—The egg is that of the Red-backed Shrike which, while not exactly a common bird, is yet one of our well-known summer migrants. I have seen them regularly myself in Leicestershire, quite close to where you live. Am glad to hear you have so high an opinion of CAGE BIRDS.

Dandelion Seed (Bostonian).—An easy and good method is to drop the dandelion heads into a capacious brown paper bag and give them a good shaking up, when the seeds will fall to the bottom and the "fluff" can be burned. The heads should be gathered just as they burst (i.e., form "clocks").

Cock Bullfinch Once Again (Jas. Wilson).—I have a great number of times stated that the cock Bullie has always proved unreliable as a fertiliser of eggs in captivity when mated with hens of another species. I am speaking more particularly of breeding in cages (large or small). I have no personal knowledge of a hybrid having been bred from a cock Bullfinch. Cases have been put on record, but their authenticity is not, I fancy, beyond question. It seems hard to understand, however, why the cock Bullie should not father a hybrid.

Respecting a Goldfinch (Anxious).—I should have to be a wizard to state the manner of your Goldfinch losing some of its tail feathers. He must have caught them somewhere and pulled them out; or knocked them out as the result of a severe fright. Could a cat possibly get at his cage? They will grow again in a few weeks. I cannot guess, either, the cause of the non-singing (unless it be the result of a fright, as just mentioned). Does the bird look dull and drowsy? Is it tight in plumage, or otherwise? Is its excrement normal; or is it constipated, or the reverse? Even "experts" must have some particulars given them before being able to give advice, as I am sure you will realise when you think the matter over. If it is possible that the bird was frightened, then time will bring its own cure.

The Greater Redpoll (T. Wood).—You call it "Redpole," but this is inaccurate. I have not Bechstein's book by me as I write, but I expect he used the term "greater" Redpoll to distinguish the Mealy from the Lesser—i.e., the large form of Redpoll from the small form. All of the former would be "greater" to Bechstein, no doubt, but they are now divided into several kinds (read Mr. Teschemaker's remarks on Redpolls in a recent issue under "Recent Arrivals from Abroad"). It is not incorrect, even now, to speak of the Greater Redpoll; it would be understood as a reference to the Mealy Redpoll (which is, broadly speaking, more than twice the size of the Lesser Redpoll). At the same time, it is not a "true" name, (as you put it).

About a Thrush (Arklow Manager).—Give your bird water in a glass or earthenware vessel and add a little Condy's Fluid to it, sufficient to turn it the colour of port wine (about 6 drops in 3 tablespoonfuls). Change this three or four times a day and keep it up for several days, when I think the conditions will have improved. You are not feeding the bird at all well; bread and crushed hemp is wretched fare. Read the "Nutshell" booklet on the Thrush, and put the menu to rights. Thoroughly scrub the perches with a solution of the Condy's Fluid and keep the cage very clean.

A Greenfinch-Bullfinch Couple (Bunny).—It is not possible to go into full details of Hybrid breeding in this column. I have not sufficient space allowed me. You should follow the advice given in the articles (a very valuable one by Mr. Collins ran through recent issues) or get a book dealing with the subject. Pleased to advise you on any particular point upon which you are in doubt. This is the stock mixture to give Canary and teazle three parts each, summer rape, charlock, and sunflower one part each. In addition, give in a separate dish (vary them) wild seeds, hemp, and niger. Plenty of early young dandelion leaves, seedy heads, and flowers) is essential: other good and easily obtainable green foods are seedy ground-el, chickweed, and shepherd's purse. A little soft food (egg food or an insectile mixture) is often relished.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Mrs. H. J. Holmes.—Death arose from the action of poisons or ptomaines.

Mrs. Tatton (Sunningdale).—Acute inflammation of the bowels, producing what is known as nesting diarrhoea. Hot weather, sedentary period, over stimulating food, ptomaines, etc., are responsible.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Press Cuttings (J. Crossley, G. H. Burdett, G. Harris, and others).—We are very much obliged for the newspaper cuttings you send us.

Avicultural Magazine (Aviculture).—The "Avicultural Magazine" is published by Messrs. West, Newman and Co., 54, Hatton Garden, London, E.C.

An Address (J. T. Weaire).—Sorry we omitted this particular. Our correspondent resides near Dawlish, Devon.

A Point About Exhibiting (Wiganer).—At all open shows entries are accepted from anyone who chooses to exhibit; it makes no difference whether you are or are not a member of a cage bird society. Many open shows provide special Canary classes for Novices; consult the advertisements and the schedules.

LONDON FEDERATION OF C.B.S

A meeting of the Council was held on May 26th, at the "Feathers" Hotel, Westminster, S.W. Mr. F. Boxall (chairman) presided. Others present: Messrs. H. W. Cook, J. Tyson, W. H. Mugford, P. Adamthwaite, H. E. Tringham, F. W. Thorpe, J. Dewhurst, J. C. Birch, J. Wyatt (Poplar C.B.S.), H. W. Tomsett (Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.), R. L. Crisp and J. Turner (West London F.A.), R. P. Harper and W. C. Penton (North London C.B.A.), J. Carson and F. W. Owen (Wimbledon C.B.S.), W. Clark and H. J. Rogers (Queen's Park C.B.A.), T. Goymer (Battersea C.B.A.), and Jas. Bray, jun. (secretary).

Mr. Thorpe and the Fancy.

The minutes of the last general meeting and of the special meeting held April 28th, having been passed, the election of a treasurer was proceeded with in accordance with a rule of the Federation. Mr. Crisp proposed, and Mr. Penton seconded, the re-election of Mr. F. W. Thorpe, who, however, rose to decline the office on account of his having left the public Fancy.

Mr. Crisp said he did not see that because Mr. Thorpe was severing himself from the outside Fancy this need debar that gentleman from accepting the office of Treasurer. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Thorpe had served the Federation so well that they could ill-afford to lose him. (Applause.)

But Mr. Thorpe was adamant. What I have said, he replied, I have said. I am what you would call "tired." I am leaving the Fancy a sadder, but a wiser man. My connection with it is severed, especially after some remarks I heard at our last meeting.

Mr. Thorpe concluded quite a dramatic episode by declaring that the Fancy was either very pure or else very rotten; and just as the Council was left wondering and apparently awe-struck, the clock in the Council chamber chimed out a very doleful note, as if from a funeral dirge.

On the motion of Mr. Penton, seconded by Mr. Clark, Mr. H. E. Tringham was elected Treasurer.

The Federation as Judge.

Correspondence was then read by the Sec. The S.W. London Society were accepted as members of the Federation, and Mr. Bray (the sec.) was thanked for his offices in getting them to join.

A letter from the North London C.B.A. was read, asking for the opinion of the Council with regard to the status of a certain member of theirs who, having always shown Canaries conjointly with his father in the champion section, now wished to exhibit Mules, which he claimed he had a right to enter in the novice section, notwithstanding it was the custom of the Association to class Mules as Canaries for the purposes of the cup competitions. A rule of the Association provided that all members of one family residing in the same house must exhibit in the same section as highest exhibitor residing in that house, providing they exhibit in the same variety; but if different varieties, then each shall exhibit in their respective sections. After a long discussion the Council decided, on the motion of Mr. Tringham, seconded by Mr. Adamthwaite, "that our interpretation of the rule in question is that the Canary exhibitor should show as a novice (in the Mule Section)—this without prejudice to the Society's rules."

Insurance Matters.

The Secretary said he had two points to submit to the Council with regard to the Insurance Scheme. The first was in reference to the premiums. Just about now the premiums became due for the current year; and he wanted to know on what amount he was to pay the premium? He understood from the late Secretary that 65 books of coupons were sent out during 1910. After a full discussion it was decided, on the motion of Mr. Tringham, seconded by Mr. Crisp, that the Council apply for £100 each on the railway transit, etc., and fire insurance policies.

The other point to which the Secretary wished to refer was in regard to the printing of circulars anent the Scheme. He had, he said, received three estimates for this, and three also for the printing of the rules as arranged in Council. The question arose as to which firm should have the order. A considerable discussion ensued on the policy of accepting the lowest tender, and on one member suggesting that they should support a Trade Union house, it was generally agreed that politics should be left out of the Council's considerations. It was ultimately agreed to give the order for the printing of both the circulars and the rules to the firm who had printed the insurance books.

The Railway Petition.

The matter of the presentation of the railway petition was, on the motion of Mr. Adamthwaite, seconded by Mr. W. H. Mugford, referred to the sub-committee appointed to deal with the matter in the first instance.

The Rules to be Revised.

Mr. Adamthwaite moved: "That the Council appoint a sub-committee to consider the advisability of revising the rules and regulations of the Federation, and in due course to submit same to the affiliated societies for approval or otherwise."

Mr. Rogers seconded the motion. Mr. Tringham asked if the mover would particularise in what respect a revision was necessary, and was told in reply that for one thing the Federation had no rule with reference to the calling of the annual general meeting.

At this point in the proceedings the meeting lapsed into a discussion as to the status on the Council of the gentlemen who were co-opted as members at a previous meeting. The Chairman, however, having called the meeting to order, the motion was put and carried unanimously. It was further decided that Messrs. Crisp, Cook, and Tringham be added to the sub-committee appointed to consider the matter of the railway petitions—these in place of Mr. Thorpe, who was resigning.

A Federation Show.

Mr. Harper, on behalf of the North London C.B.A., moved: "That the Federation of C.B. Societies ask all affiliated societies if they are in favour of holding a Federation show; if so, what sum would they be prepared to guarantee in the event of a loss on the show. Also, should a Federation show be held, prize money to be paid on sliding scale."

Mr. Penton seconded the motion. Mr. Tyson submitted an alternative scheme, for which he was thanked. After a long and somewhat stormy discussion, the motion was lost. The Council afterwards decided, on the proposal of Mr. Adamthwaite, seconded by Mr. Tyson, "that schemes be submitted for the Council's consideration," which concluded the business.

SOWERBY BRIDGE & DIS. C.B.S.

Mr. A. Sutcliffe (Halifax) gave us a splendid paper on cage and rack making on May 25th, at headquarters, Wharfe Hotel. Some new and interesting ideas were put forward, illustrated by photos and some beautifully made half sized models. He also told us the cost of breeding and stock cages and complete racks to hold same, along with the length and breadth of each piece of wood used. An interesting discussion followed, when Mr. Sutcliffe answered many questions. A vote of thanks concluded a very good meeting. Sutcliffe and Walker.

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held May 27th, College Inn Mr. W. Ducker in chair. We made another new member in Mr. G. Strafford. Decided to have a nest feather show third Saturday in July. After other business the chairman called upon Mr. Browning for his lecture. But Mr. Browning started by saying that he had not come to lecture to those present, as he thought they all knew as much as he. It was the novices he wanted, but as there were only two there he had thought of a better plan. As we were to have a nest feather show, he would put his lecture off and offer his services as judge for the same, and give a lecture the same night, not only to members, but to visitors also. We decided to accept Mr. Browning's offer. Mr. J. Webster has promised to give a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead at our next meeting, June 24th. Mr Browning to be there also; so we are expecting a good discussion. I hope all members and friends will be there, as classes for nest feather show will be fixed. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr Browning, which brought the meeting to a close.—R. Bailey, Sec.

Correspondence.

A Chopwell Fancier's Sad Loss.

Sir,—It is with regret that I have to report the sad loss sustained by our show Manager, Mr. J. Flint, who has lost the whole of his stock through his building taking fire. The loss is about £30 worth of Canaries and British birds, and as Mr. Flint is still willing to stick to the Fancy, I will be pleased to hear from anyone who would like to help him to renew his stock. Any donation towards same will be thankfully received by me.

Jos. Brown.

Sec. to the Chopwell Fanciers' Society.

A Singing Bullfinch.

Sir,—Referring to recent correspondence, every young, cage-moulted, healthy Bullfinch cock properly fed and treated should sing, and, at this season of the year, should be singing almost incessantly. I have just now a lovely specimen of the British Bullfinch, and he sings practically all day. I had him in an outdoor aviary all last year, and over the winter, where he was most docile until the warm weather set in; he then developed a great affection for a fine cock Goldfinch (!) the father of four mules last summer. The Bullfinch used to feed him and carry grasses, stray feathers, etc., to him, and do everything in his power to make the Goldie set up house with him. On one occasion, when he was feeding the Goldfinch, he gave his sweetheart an extra nice bit of sunflower seed, and when he saw it passing into the Goldie's beak he repented and snatched it back again! However, the Bullfinch got so jealous of other birds, I had to take him out of the aviary—he nearly killed a cock Goldfinch-mule in his passion. This Bullfinch also sings a song very much like a Linnet's, with much enthusiasm and "gurglings" and "churrings," introducing very frequently the well-known piping note that sounds so suggestive of sadness in the birdy heart. The song is not, of course, either very musical or loud, but is very pleasing indeed, and there is quite a variety of notes.

Proposed Union for Lancashire and Cheshire.

Sir,—In your columns of a few weeks back appeared a most interesting announcement of a proposed union of Cage Bird Societies for Lancashire and Cheshire, and I have been eagerly hoping to see the question taken up by fanciers and given the healthy discussion which it certainly merits and deserves. Can it be that everyone is too busy in the breeding room? I hope so; for that is a good sign But the show season will be upon us all too soon, and I think we should do well to start some consideration of a project which might be the beginning of a power in the lands of Lancashire and Cheshire. I know we are under a handicap in comparison with the Yorkshire Union by reason of the many and different varieties which are bred, and which I might almost say have their strongholds amongst us. Everywhere we find Norwich; we have the Liverpool Greens, the Lancashires of Rochdale, the Lizards of Oldham, the Cinnamons of Rishton, the Borders of Altrincham, and the North of Lancashire, the Britishers of Blackburn, with Yorkshires in evidence in many districts. But what of that? Let the idea of a union be either taken up or stamped down. Let us have some friendly opinions on its worth, for such a lack of interest as it seems to have met is not for the advancement of the Fancy. It is in the hope of promoting some show of controversy that I have penned this note.

Richard Anderton.

The Sad Experience of a Leigh Fancier.

Sir,—I am sending you a few lines on what I call "bad luck." Last year I started to breed exhibition Yorkshires, winning at our Nest Feather Show 1st, 2nd, 3rd, vhc, hc, in the Yellow class, and 1st and 2nd in the Buff class; also I was 1st in each of the three Yorkshire classes at our old bird show with young birds. When I finished breeding I had 45 Yorkshires all well and hearty. Then I bought three young birds off a fellow who was giving up, making the total to 48. The three I bought died within a week, and I am sorry to say that mine kept dying until I had to exchange a mailcart, through Cage Birds, for two Yorkshire hens from Huddersfield. Then I got two German hens off a fellow, because I hadn't a hen in the place left, and now I have nothing left except one of the German hens, making a total loss of 51 birds. I have only worked very poor time since last summer, and I have been at home ten weeks owing to an accident. So I couldn't even pay for a post-mortem, and I am not able to buy any more birds yet as I am only drawing 14s. 7d. compensation, which only just keeps me out of low water. I don't know what to attribute my loss to, whether it was the three birds or whether it was the sand. I use the best of seed, getting it from the same place as our other members. But I owe my thanks to our Treasurer, Mr. W. Ordish, who has told me to go down, when he will give me two young ones for another start. I hope that neither I nor anybody else will ever experience the same luck.

A Linnet Fancier's Difficulty.

Sir,—I was much interested in the article on the Linnet by Mr. Nicholson in last week's issue, and considering his large experience with this species, I should be obliged to him if he will tell us his method of dealing with red mites; also how he treats his Linnets when they "go thick," as I very often lose a valuable Linnet through this cause. Only a fortnight ago I lost a champion bird. I have lost them from time to time. I might say I feed my birds on equal parts of best Spanish canary, flax, rape and inga seeds.

W. James.

Another Case of a Mule which Breeds.

Sir,—Being a constant reader of Cage Birds since the first issue, I have read a lot about breeding Mules, and that a Mule would never breed again. Well, Sir, I am a breeder in a pretty large way, and am breeding with 52 pairs this year, Yorkshires, Norwich, Borders and Crests. I have about 40 young on the sticks. I bred over a 100 last year with 20 pairs. I have always been told that Mules would not breed. Well, I put two pairs up, a Goldfinch Mule cock and a Border hen in one cage, and another Goldfinch Mule cock and Border hen in another. The first pair had four eggs, all clear, but the second pair had three eggs, which were due to hatch last Saturday, May 27th. I have one bird hatched out, and another hatching, and one clear egg. So you see, Sir, Mules will breed. I am hoping to hatch out more yet, as the other pair is busy again. I have seven or eight witnesses to prove my words. I wish Cage Birds the best of luck, and I am joining your League this week.

A Word with Advertisers.

Can the Charge be True?

Sir,—As a business man who has recently taken up bird keeping as a hobby, I have been absolutely astonished at the lax way in which advertisers conduct their business. An order is seldom (or never) acknowledged, delays in delivery are very frequent, and of long duration, and no notice whatever is taken of the most urgent appeals to them. If these men were in any other business I do not know what would become of them. I have been a subscriber to Cage Birds for some considerable time now, and I have frequently remarked on the contrast between the smart way in which the paper is conducted, and the effete methods employed by the advertisers therein. It is not by any means the small men only who are indifferent, but the larger firms also, firms from whom one would expect better treatment. I am confident that a man who would infuse thorough business methods into his trading would be overwhelmed with success, with profit to himself and pleasure to his customers.

Disgusted.

[The above letter reaches us from a gentleman whose bona fides are beyond question, and though we do not for one moment think that his strictures apply to all advertisers, we hope those guilty of laxity in the manner indicated will profit by our correspondent's well-intentioned remarks.—Editor.]

Feeding and Preparing Birds for the Show Bench.

Sir,—Partly in reply to lecture by Mr. J. Nicholson (Skipton), reported in Cage Birds on May 27, may I say I do not believe in or agree with colour feeding or faking in any shape or form whatever in birds, etc., either for showing or otherwise. My idea is to get close to Nature, and adopt a method of judicious feeding by the different seeds, etc., which it is known the birds feed on. These must be given in their proper season; in which matter I think there is very much to be learnt, as undoubtedly there are still many weeds, seeds, etc., which the birds get in their wild state and feed on, quite unknown to us. By means of their natural food, we should try to bring the birds up to the highest pitch of perfection possible, and not introduce colouring matter. I know there are some birds fed on such lines as would well repay one for his trouble, and make up into such specimens as to be a joy and pleasure to their owners. But there are others, possibly their equals, to look at, but which with all feeding, etc., under some circumstances will never make up as good birds. Speaking of the "Lemon" Breasted Brown Linnet, I have had catchers tell me they now and then catch them (viz., with Canary-coloured feathers on the breast), but I have never seen one, nor do I remember seeing any advertised, although I should very much like to do so, or better still, to possess one, and I think only a very few know what a "Lemon" Breasted Linnet is like, or have ever heard of them, by far the greatest majority of the birds being "stono" or "red" breasted. I consider faking and dyeing the birds is nothing more than the obtaining of prizes, etc., by fraud or false pretences, and it should be treated as such if prizes are won by such birds and afterwards proved to have been faked or dyed. Neither is it fair to the honest exhibitor who tries all he knows how to get birds up to the highest pitch of perfection in a perfectly honest and straightforward way, and then has to take a back seat by birds that are dishonestly got up by faking, etc. I think it a pity they do not expend such energy in other directions, as, for instance, the drawing on page 475 of Cage Birds—the "poor, dear little bird" looks happy enough in his cage. I fail to see where the cruelty comes in. You may take 99 out of every 100 fanciers, or those keeping birds for a hobby or pleasure, and their greatest ambition is to prolong the life of the birds to the very farthest extent. Neither time nor trouble nor expense is too much to bestow on them to gain that end, and to bring them out the finest specimens it is possible to do. The woman in the sketch overlooks or forgets the cruelty caused to bird life, and the great slaughter constantly going on to provide birds and feathers to decorate ladies' hats, trimmings, etc. That is the other side of the question. Again, regarding the action of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, there are plenty of far more successful cases they could take up in other directions among the "upper ten," or gentry, that would come under the head of excessive cruelty, but which is called "Sport"—viz., the shooting of game before the close of the season. I was a witness of such so-called "sport." Being out for a walk in the country through fields, I came by a wood where the gentry were indulging in this "sport." There were about one dozen men (beaters) coming up in extended form through the wood driving and scaring the Pheasants before them. Some of the gentlemen were sitting on walking-stick seats; others were standing out some distance away from the wood in a field adjoining. All had got guns loaded, with men beside them to load other guns ready for them as soon as Pheasants, etc., come out into the open. Up flew a sovereign then, and bang went a penny, and down dropped half-a-crown. Some of the Pheasants were killed, some cleared away, and some were left crippled or maimed to crawl away to hide, and to suffer a lingering and cruel death by starvation and wounds. Yet this sort of thing is passed unnoticed, and if a bird-catcher tries to catch a few birds from bountiful and increasing nature, oftentimes to enable him to provide food for home and family, being possibly out of employment, he is pounced on by the society, all his effects and stock confiscated, and, if found guilty, often heavily fined, payment for which he very seldom has, and in lieu of which he is sent to prison. You might, again, take nearly 99 out of every 100 of these men, and you would find they are as fond of their birds, and think as much of them as the gentleman does of his race horse or hunter. Why should he be cruel to the birds he catches? The more he can catch and save, the better it is for him, for by disposing of them he is able to obtain cash, which he requires in order to buy food, etc. The injured, or dead, he gets nothing for, and it would therefore be trouble and time spent for nothing to keep them. I grant that now and then a case of cruelty is met with, chiefly with beginners or persons not understanding the art. Cases of wanton cruelty should carry punishment with them—but do not make the majority suffer for the few. Look at the enormous number and increasing number of fanciers who keep birds for a hobby and for a living, besides the seed merchants, cage makers, shows, etc., and the numbers employed in this industry. I cannot see where cruelty comes in when the birds are kept in health, etc. I would ask any faddist or members of the R.S.P.C.A. to visit any of the shows held at the Crystal Palace, etc., and I challenge them to produce any corresponding number of Goldies, Linnets, Bullies, etc., in the wild state, and compare them with what are seen there. I think they would find the caged specimens by far the best.

Twin Canaries.

Sir,—I thought it might be of interest to your readers to know that I had hatched, on May 11, three young Norwich Canaries out of two eggs. All three are alive, and doing well. They are just leaving the nest. I should like to know if this has happened before, as I don't remember seeing anything about it in Cage Birds.

S. Tomlinson.

Sir,—I am writing to ask you if it is a remarkable occurrence to hatch and rear two Canaries from one egg? This has happened with me. I have one pair of Canaries—a half-bred Yorkshire and Norwich cock and a variegated hen. They began to nest in an ordinary breeding cage about the middle of April, and she laid her first egg on the 20th April, which was taken away the next morning and a "nest" egg" put in its place. She continued laying an egg each day; and the eggs were taken away, until the evening of the 23rd, when the three eggs were replaced in the nest and the nest egg removed. She laid one more egg, which made four altogether, and commenced to sit on the 24th. On Monday evening, May 8th (the day the eggs were due to hatch) I looked in the nest and found two little chicks, one broken egg shell and three unhatched eggs. I carefully examined the nest and the cage, but could find no traces of another broken egg shell, and so came to the conclusion that they were "twins." On the following morning one more chick was hatched, and as no more hatching took place the other two eggs were removed from the nest on the morning of the 10th. One of these proved to be unfertile, and the other contained a dead chick. The chicks are now a fortnight old, and are quite healthy and very strong. The twins are slightly smaller than the other, but quite perfect in every way. One is like the hen, and the other is like the cock bird.

Kathleen Clayton.

[Cases of birdy "twins" have been recorded in our columns almost every breeding season; but they are far from common occurrences, of course.—Editor.]

A Canary Hatches Two Broods in a Month.

SIR,—I have one little hen who hatched on April 15th, sat again a fortnight later, and hatched a second brood of five on May 16th—two broods in a month. Is this a record? They are all strong and healthy. The cock is a ticked one, but not one of the five has a dark feather. E. BULLOCK.

The Fancy in Ireland.

Sir,—I see by a letter from the corresponding secretary of the Belfast N.C. and Y.C.C. that this society cannot deal with the principal allegations made by writers of letters to CAGE BIRDS respecting the Yorkie that won the cup. A recent letter, signed "Ligoniel," gave readers to understand it was the owner of the runner-up who objected to the cup winner. Is this correct? I am informed the next meeting is down for June 3, and members who have written to CAGE BIRDS and exposed the officials and their action are to be expelled the society. Might I ask under what rule the apostle of free speech and honesty intends to bring forward his grievance? Will a new rule be framed to lift him out of the mire? Why did Mr. South not answer the questions asked by "One in the Know" re the society's rules? In the next issue of CAGE BIRDS I expect to see a full report of this meeting and the names of the expelled members, so letting the Fancy have a little of the truth, as Mr. South's letter was for nothing more than to gloss over the society and its rules. A NOVICE.

The City of Glasgow O.A.

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Black's letter in your issue of May 27, I fail to see what good will be effected by the deputing of the case to a committee consisting of Scotch Fancy Canary members. They will not be in a position to compel evidence, and it is well known that voluntary evidence will be very hard to get in a case of this kind. Further, should evidence be collected, the committee will have to come back to a general meeting and report, and then there may be a difficulty to control the vote in the proper direction. It is a pity the vote was not taken at the half-yearly meeting, if the statement made by the party involved was considered sufficient. I do not wish it to be thought that I am against an inquiry; on the other hand, I favour nothing short of expulsion, if the case be proved. The punishment should be devised in such a way that the birds will not be exhibited by another party, as was done in a previous case. I am at one with the President that the Society should be purged of everything that is antagonistic to purity, and he may rest assured that the permanent members will support him. When it comes to a vote, only those who have been members for five years should have a voice.

A QUALIFIED MEMBER.

SIR,—As a member of the City of Glasgow Ornithological Association who was present at the meeting on May 20, when such disgraceful allegations were made in connection with the Norwich section of last year's show, allow me to make the suggestion to such of my fellow members as are not yet in the grip of that octopus clique whose headquarters are the "Western Counties" Club, that we hold a meeting to consider the advisability of taking legal advice on the following points: 1st, The legality of the chairman's ruling declaring Mr. McFarlane's motion in order, when same was clearly a question for the annual general meeting, in spite of all precedent. 2nd. The legality of allowing new members (most of whom were specially imported for the occasion) to vote at all on any matter connected with last year's working. 3rd. The desirability of laying the whole facts of the case before another tribunal, with a view to having proceedings instituted against the principal parties in this affair. I hope to see this matter threshed out to the bitter end; it will be to the everlasting shame of the Glasgow Fancy if it is allowed to remain where it is.

R. B. GIBB.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

SIR,—In reply to Messrs. Bishop and Woodall, after reading their letters, I fail to see where "out of the ordinary" comes in. We have four societies in Sheffield; two pay prize money on the sliding scale, and two pay fixed prize money. Where is it out of the ordinary when two adopt one system and two the other? Of course, if our friends include in the Sheffield district such places as Rotherham, Doncaster, Barnsley, etc., then it may come in, as I don't know how these societies are conducted. In sending my first letter I merely wished to point out the fact that the Walkley C.B.S. paid fixed prize money as well as the S.O.S. As I read it, their report seems to me to infer they (the S.O.S.) were the only society that did so. Mr. Bishop has been very good to give your readers a little of the history of the Walkley C.B.S. (not forgetting his own part in it), but not all. I might say that it has grown since Mr. Bishop first knew it. It is known as the Walkley C.B.S., and is open to a radius of twenty miles. It now makes a schedule like other societies, pays prize money on all classes with five entries, has a catalogue and gate money, has been founded four years (not two or three, as reported by Mr. Bishop), and has a membership of 39, so it is not the little society anyone would gather from Mr. Bishop's account. Mr. Bishop asks, "Where does the sore hurt? Why not out with it, and not hide under the cloak of the Walkley C.B.S.?" Now, really, Mr. Bishop, don't you see how foolish you have made yourself look? Even your own members are laughing at you. You would make it appear as if I was jealous of the S.O.S., when I can assure you I am not in the least. There is every credit due to you for the way you have baited your hook and landed your fish. There will be more credit if you keep them. It would appear from your letter that you have been itching to have a go at the Sheffield C.B.S., and have snatched at the first chance. Now, Mr. Bishop, take it easy. The Sheffield C.B.S. is in its 33rd year (not fifth month), and it has nothing to do with this correspondence, and does not desire any free advertisements. Your letter is a mean attack on a society which has not entered the arena. I have written as a member of the Walkley C.B.S., and not as the assistant secretary of the Sheffield C.B.S. If I have any communication to make from them I shall sign myself as such. I thank you for your invitation to join the society that gives fixed prize money; I already belong to one, viz., Walkley C.B.S., and that is quite sufficient at present. If you have any more replies to make, kindly reply to me as a member of the Walkley C.B.S., and not as an assistant secretary of the Sheffield C.B.S. I wish the S.O.S. every success.

J. WOOLHOUSE.

P.S.—I also beg to say, for Mr. Woodall's benefit, that the Sheffield C.B.S. does not keep 1d. out of each entry, but the society adds £4 to these pennies, and returns the whole in special prize money to be won at the members' shows.

SIR,—I notice you have made a mistake in my letter of last week. The sentence referred to is: "and are going to pay equal prize money, 7s. per class." This should read: "To pay equal prize money, viz., 7s. per class, they will have to get an average entry of 17 birds per class." JOHN A. T. WOODALL.

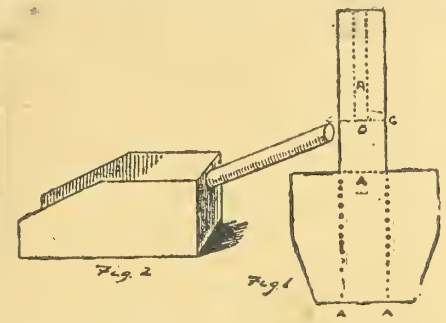
My Favourite of British Birds, the Goldfinch.

Sir,—With the exception of the Canary, no cage bird is so universal a favourite as the handsome Goldfinch, and in my opinion none is more deservedly so. The cleanness and smoothness of its pretty coloured body plumage, its square red blaze admirably set off with its white and black, its tail and wings being black and tipped with white, and the broad band of golden yellow which crosses the wings, render it one of our handsomest birds. In manners it is most docile, being easily taught to draw its own food and water, by means of a little bucket being attached to a piece of string, then lowered into a small reservoir, and then hoisted up. With one foot he holds the string while he satisfies his thirst. The song of the Goldfinch is most cheerful and pleasing, though it lacks the depth of tone, and rich variety of modulation which mark that of our Thrushes and Warblers. In the wild state the Goldfinch may be seen flitting hither and thither among the common thistles, this being its chief diet, and it is very fond of it when confined to cage life. Groundsel is also a great favourite of his, and if when you are out walking you should come across this weed, you cannot do better than pluck a handful and take it home to Goldie. It can also be purchased from hawkers in the street at a penny or a halfpenny per bunch. No British bird equals the Goldfinch in the way it builds its nest. It is often built on a fruit tree in the orchard, on some small and weak branch. The outer part is composed of fine moss, blades of grass, fine twigs and roots, wool, cotton, etc.—all most beautifully woven together and rounded almost as smooth as a tennis ball cut in half. It is lined with down of the thistle, or of willow which is obtained from the catkins (what we at school termed willow cotton pods), feathers, and hair. The Goldfinch raises one brood in the season. The eggs are four or five in number, of a pale bluish hue, marked with red spots and freckles, mingled with streaks and dashes of purplish-brown, often forming a rude crown round the larger end. The Goldfinch is very largely used by most of our bird breeders for Mule breeding, being crossed chiefly with the Canary, Bullfinch and Redpoll. Doubtless we shall see a few more crosses with this beautiful bird. Its chief diet when in captivity is Canary, teazle, summer rape, charlock, lin, and thistle seeds, with green food and tit-bits when procurable. GEO. BATES.

BREEDING RESULTS OF THE 1911 SEASON.

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

I have been a bird fancier for over 20 years, and this year I have had some good luck with my Canaries, all youngsters doing well. This is through taking advice given in your paper. I must say that CAGE BIRDS is a good paper for any fancier, not only for advice but for advertisements as well.—J. H. Silvester (Highgate).



I have disposed of the whole of my stock, and wish to thank all who have inquired for same, it being impossible to reply to all. I wish "CAGE BIRDS" success.—T. Crimes (Coppenhall).

I have received an order from Trinidad for a few small nest-boxes and triple-wired husks, from my advt. in "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL."—H. Lewis (Birmingham).

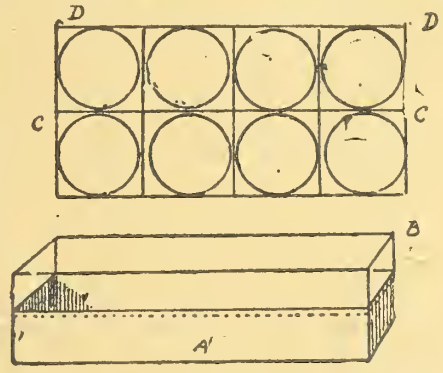
An Easily-made Seed Scoop.
Sent by Mr. A. B. Church, 8, Park Road, Henley-on-Thames.



To make this seed scoop, get a piece of tin which cut and bend as in Fig. 1 in sketch. Cut through the dotted lines each side at C, and bend the tin round a pencil so as to make a handle. Bend up at AA and down at A. A touch of solder will make the handle and scoop quite firm. When finished, the scoop will look like Fig. 2.—A. B. Church.

A Tin Drinking Dish.
Sent by Mr. A. Hewitt, 56, Hamilton Street, Govan, Glasgow.

Here is a sketch of a tin for a drinking dish, which will be found invaluable for anyone who has no water supply in his bird-room. A is a shallow tin about 1¼in. deep, 7¼ long, 3½ broad. B is a wire rail, running round it, raised up 1in., and fastened by tin, being overlapped on it at side. C is the upper part and is fastened on to B by DD (two hooks). The dotted lines indicate the overlapped wire. The wire rings are 1§ circumference.—Alex. Hewitt.

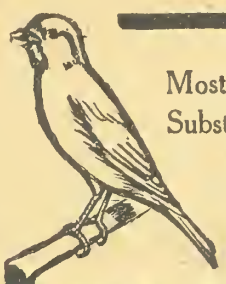
Under the White Rose.



FIRST meeting of the Cinderella Club Show Committee in its newly inaugurated form took place last Wednesday at the Market Tavern, Bradford. A large attendance was expected, and the promoters were in no way disappointed, although all the societies that had been invited to join had not had a meeting in the intervening time. A large amount of work was got through. Mr. Towers, the chairman, and Mr. Hill, the secretary, were kept very busy for the whole time, and the two representatives of the Bradford Cinderella Fund, although they did not understand the trend of the conversation, could not but be struck by the enthusiasm that prevailed. The financial aspect is, of course, the main one, and a show with this object in view could not very well work without some guarantee or some means of raising the "necessary" to run the preliminary expense; and to meet this a subscription list, and also a guarantee list, was opened, and these met with very encouraging results, the subscription list within very little time standing at £8 10s., and the guarantee list nearly £20—not bad at all for the first few hours. The last event of this kind took place some years ago, and, compared with the present venture, was on a very small scale, but they were so successful that they handed over no less than £15 to the Cinderella Fund, which fund, I may mention to those that do not know of it, is to take care of the poor children of Bradford, see to their feeding and clothing, give them trips to the country and the seaside, and, in fact, look after them generally—morally and bodily. One of the principal things that will go to the success of the show is the room, and investigations are being made. A large and central room is what is to be aimed at, but the best room in the town for the purpose is rather prohibitive in price, at least so it is thought, though other large shows we hear have to pay much more and still get through; but, of course, Bradfordians must admit that in the matter of large and representative shows they are much behind. This time, however, a great lift from this state is being made, and the cause will be of great help in its attainment.

NATIONAL GREEN-MARKED Y.C.C. held their annual general meeting at headquarters last Saturday afternoon, and was fairly well attended. The business was got through in fine style, and the balance-sheet showed a little cash on the right side. But more than this, the progress made by the bird gives the greatest satisfaction to the officials. The entries throughout the last season came up well, and the birds staged are a distinct advance on previous years, adding greatly to the attractions of a show. At the close votes of thanks were passed to retiring officers, most of whom are re-elected, and under their guidance the sub-variety ought, and no doubt will, make further progress. It is as yet nowhere near the height of its prosperity.

THE old-established Y.C.C. also held their meeting last Saturday, commencing at 6 p.m. Here also things are in a very flourishing condition. The balance-sheet is the best that has ever been brought forward, the society having a nice balance in hand. The membership is the largest on record, and, taking everything into consideration, it is the most successful year since its inauguration, for which the very best thanks are due to the secretary and his assistant, Messrs. Greave and Crabtree. The former, by the way, was one of the founders, and has been in office of some kind ever since. He ought therefore, to know the requirements of the club, and from results he does. Near the close of the meeting the chairman had a pleasing little duty to perform, i.e., to present to the secretary, Mr. Greaves, a purse of gold, as a token of respect and esteem, subscribed for by the members and friends of the club. It was very ably presented by Mr. Sunderland, along with a few encouraging and eulogising remarks as to the good work performed by Mr. Greaves, which was fully substantiated by the following speakers, after which the possibility of the merging of the three Yorkshire Canary Clubs into one was debated upon. Some really good views were propounded, and some progress was made by a proposed meeting of several officers from each to see if a working scheme to suit all could be brought forward. We shall see what we shall see.

THE country in the North here is now at its best, bird life in the open is in full swing, and all who are admirers and students of Nature are in high glee at the spell of fine weather that has prevailed during the last few weeks. Now is the time for rambles.

A. J. A. MARLEY
(Leyton).

A paper read before the North London C.B.A. on May 17.

After the usual business the chairman, Mr. Mortlock, addressed a very large attendance. He said that the majority were acquainted with the fact that Mr. Marley had promised to give them his treatment of British birds, and his methods of moulting and preparing the birds for exhibition. He was pleased to see that Mr. Marley had also brought some birds with him for practical explanation. Most of the birds seemed to be fresh-caught ones of great promise. Mr. Marley had won many premier honours in England, Scotland, and Wales, where he had been very successful. He (the chairman) was sure Mr. Marley had shown himself a thorough sportsman by his very generous contribution of several special prizes at the Young Stock Show, and by giving half the proceeds derived from this paper, to the staging fund. (Applause.)

Mr. Marley, on rising, was greeted with loud applause. He begged the indulgence of his audience on the grounds, firstly, that as a result of a bad cold he was very hoarse, while his vocation (that of a gymnastic and drill instructor) did not tend to alleviate matters; and, secondly, that several of his best birds, including some he intended as competitors at the Young Stock Show, had not yet arrived, owing to some unforescen hitch. He then read his paper, as follows:

The Value of Mutual Help.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—When your worthy and esteemed secretary wrote me asking me to oblige my fellow-members with a lecture on British birds, I must admit I was somewhat astonished, and rather lost to know how to start, owing to the numerous books, papers, lectures, etc., on British birds recently published by the Fancy Press. Also, I feel I am only a raw recruit in the Fancy, and am fully convinced that there are many fanciers who are more competent and practical, and have a much wider experience than mine, who could do this subject more justice. But as your secretary pressed the point, that it was the unanimous wish of your excellent committee I should deliver this lecture, I thought the very least I could do was to try and do my best. In addition, I consider it behoves all true fanciers to help one another, regardless of their status in the Fancy. I shall try and impart to you as clearly as I possibly can, therefore, the knowledge and experience I have gained during my ten pleasant years in the Fancy.

In order to enable me to illustrate a few technical points of the various species of British Finches, I have availed myself of the opportunity of bringing a few of this season's-caught birds with me. I shall thereby be enabled to give you a more practical demonstration as I approach the different birds. I shall deal with a few of the British Finches, which are the most suitable, the cheapest, and the most easy for the ordinary working man to keep with a reasonable chance of success on the show bench.

Money not Everything.

A man can win without having to dive deeply into his pockets if the birds are properly managed, and it is far better to head the list of awards with a bird that you have bought "in the rough" for a few pence than to win with a bird that probably ran you into a fancy price of so many pounds. Besides, I look on these wins as empty ones; there is no satisfaction or honour in them. Neither do they do a person credit; further, "money does not always count." I have known many noted winners claimed at shows, or sold privately, which have been utterly ruined for show purposes after they have been in the hands of their new owners for a few weeks, solely through inexperience. Mark you, I do not condemn the man who goes about shows and sees value for money, and can perhaps "make a bit" by claiming a bird or two, but my advice is principally for beginners (I cannot use the word novice, as there is no such individual in the British bird section; Britishers are not bred like Canaries, and it is well within reach of all to obtain them; so that, in my opinion, everyone is on an equal footing). You must pardon me mentioning this, friends, but I like to let a few of these grandfather novices—or shall I say envious malcontents?—know what my ideas are. And, as I have said before, my advice to beginners is that they should not start dashing and flashing their money too freely, claiming winners, like many I have known, who have had the fever terribly bad, but have eventually drifted out of the Fancy as quickly as they came into it. Far better is it to gain a little experience in the management and treatment of a few rough ones first; then, if you think you see a speculative bargain, claim it, by all means. But, still, friends, I am not in love with the practice of purchasing ready-made winners.

I am not going to physic you with the usual old medicine which you generally have at these lectures, such as, "I am not here to offer advice and instructions to the 'old hands,' but simply to the recruits." I am here, friends, to speak to you all, and I maintain this, that no matter how long or varied the experience an "old hand" may have had, even though he has been forty years in the Fancy, he is always capable of learning something from these very pleasant and instructive lectures, even if it is only from a raw recruit; and I must honestly admit that I also have learnt many a valuable hint and wrinkle from them, and also from the different clubs having these lectures repeated through the Fancy Press.

Selecting Exhibition Goldfinches.

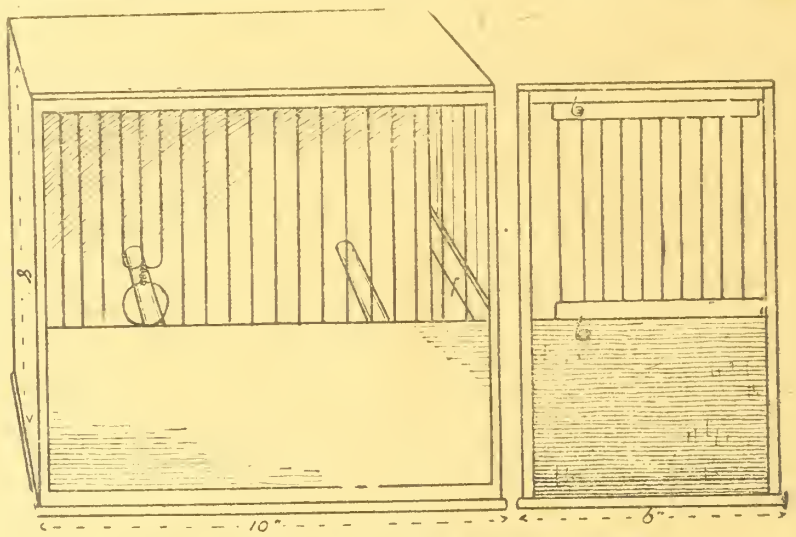
Now, after tiring you with my somewhat wandering introductory remarks, I shall start my subject with the selection problem, and shall head the list with the Goldfinch. Although I have not distinguished myself to any great extent recently with Goldfinches, I may mention here that I had two very handsome Finches at the beginning of the last show season. They would certainly have made a reputation for themselves, but I parted with them for a good figure to two well-known exhibitors in Scotland and Ireland. I only mention this to show you that when the tempting offers come along, you cannot always refuse. Hence go your winning records. But I am drifting from the point.

In selecting the Goldie, if ever you have the opportunity to run over a store cage, go for the biggest Finch you can find, with a large, well-rounded skull and blaze or flush, as some call it. In fact, some faddists will look at nothing but a square face. But, personally, I am not so particular, as either will do for me, providing there is a wealth of it, and well-spread top and bottom, of deep bright pure scarlet, minus breaks or gutterings; also the less black there is between the eyes the better. I may mention here that it is not always the square-faced birds that win, for, no matter how square-blazed you may get a bird, he is almost sure to have some other little defect, such as a pinched head, or a lacking in size, or a poorness in tanning; so you see that the blaze is not all. After the blaze comes colour. I prefer the jonque, or yellow birds, as some call them, the tanning to be of a very rich dense chestnut, both on back, chest, and flanks, and in the latter case as much of it, and as far down, as possible, the wings to be distinctly buttoned, and perfectly carried.

The Choice of Type.

Last, but not least, in case I may forget, is the type, which I should really make my first study. In all my British species I prefer the Norwich type, the reason being that it looks more bold and majestic to the eye. Besides, Goldies show plenty of the Yorkshire style and swagger when in good trim, without having it in type.

So much for the selection. The bill of fare comes next. I feed my Finches on half teazle one quarter canary, eighth hemp and eighth flax, with just a sprinkliug of rape. But, generally speaking, the Goldie does not take to rape. As regards tit-bits, I give them a little thistle, cornflower, niger, maw, and finely-chopped walnuts, about twice a week. As regards this menu, please let me warn you not to dip too freely into this mixture; use it sparingly, for you have heard the old saying that you can always kill with kindness; and unless your Finches have plenty of flight room, and baths (as mine have), to exercise it off, you are sure to encounter trouble, in the shape of surfeit and other ailments.



Now is the time to give your Goldies young dandelion and early first-crop groundsel, which will be highly relished, and thoroughly appreciated; and it will obviate a lot of trouble later on. So much for the Goldie.

The Next Most Popular Finch.

I shall deal now with what I think is our next most popular Finch, that is the Linnet. I love the Linnet just as much as I love the Goldfinch, if only for his sweet mellow note, charming ways, and perfect manners—he is a perfect gentleman all over. His market value is only a few coppers, but, with all due respect to Mr. Goldie, if I were judging for song, I should place the Linnet first against any British Finch living. I cannot but admire his sweetly charming note and meek disposition. I wonder if the composer of that favourite London song a few years back, "It's only a simple Linnet, and for years he has been my pal,' ever kept a Linnet, or even was a fancier? If so, I can well understand and appreciate his words of praise of this beautiful and fascinating bird. Still, I shall not ramble too far away, friends, on flattering it, but, as you know, irrespective of the future, he has been a good pal to me in the past.

In selecting a show Linnet, go in for the four essential points, previously mentioned in regard to the Goldfinch, namely, size, type, colour, and markings. I like to see a Linnet of a rich nutty brown colour both back and front, and well down the waist, with a good stout cobby body, and big, well-rounded skull. In fact, you cannot have this colour too far down. Many linnets have that very undesirable smoky-white break up the centre of the breast, which detracts from the perfection of so many show specimens. To obviate this you want to try and obtain birds that are what we term "well filled in" in the breast. I frankly admit that these birds are few and far between; still, I have had them, and they are obtainable, if one will only hunt for them.

Mr. MARLEY'S SCHOOLING CAGE.

Bird Organs:

Hints concerning their mechanism, etc.

By T. ROUTLEDGE (Stockport).

A lecture given on May 27 before the Provincial Roller C.C.

Meeting of the Provincial Roller C.C. held May 27 at the Swan Hotel, Manchester, Mr. A. Foulds in the chair. A special show cage front was exhibited by Mr. Pattison, of Kent. This was eagerly discussed by the members, and they came to the unanimous decision that, as far as they had seen, it was a decided improvement on the present show cage fronts, preventing the birds washing, etc., and keeping the cage clean. After the business was over, Mr. J. Routledge was called upon to give his lecture. There were five mechanical bird organs in the room, one was an example of the first of Queck's make, and alongside that was an up-to-date Queck, also two Buhls, etc. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Routledge for his lecture. We had a splendid attendance of members.

In dealing with the subject of organs, I know I am trespassing on peculiar ground, for this is a subject which, as far as I can gather, has never been touched upon before. In pointing out to you the different parts of the various organs, if I should not make my meaning clear enough, I shall only be too pleased to answer any questions I am able to do. I should like it to be understood that I am dealing with this matter from a novice's point of view. I am one who has an organ, and I know the difficulty of repairing the same, and the time you have to wait for it being repaired, probably just at the time you are most requiring it, so it may be of some little use to you to know what trivial things they are that generally get out of order. These organs are supposed to be the nearest approach we have to the Roller song, and when you come to understand the simplicity of the working of the different kinds, then you will agree with me that the man who first invented the organ must have been a very clever man, and must have spent a great amount of time in studying and perfecting the various parts so that he could get them to work automatically.

The Buhl Organ.

I will first take the latest Buhl organ and try to illustrate it to you in detail. In the first part you have a cylinder; this is as simple as it is ingenious. You unscrew the cap and lift the inside half up; doing this causes the air to be sucked up into the inner chamber. I heard of one gentleman who tried to lift the inner chamber without having unscrewed the cap. He got into a terrible state, and called upon his wife to help him. Between the two they succeeded in screwing in the bottom of the outer cover, thereby breaking the air cylinder at once. Always see that the cap is off. After lifting up the inner chamber, screw up the cap that keeps the air in, so that there is no other way for it to get out except by doing its duty in passing through the works of the organ. It is then liberated through the tube into the organ, in the front place, into the compressed air chamber, after which it passes through a small hole, and by its own force works a beautiful little arrangement which I will call the vibrator. This beats up the air and causes it to tremble or vibrate. Without this small vibrator, your organ would be no use.

From the vibrating chamber the air passes into the valve chamber. These valves are under each note, so that when you press one down, the air, still vibrating, rushes into the note. This sounds the beautifnl trembling vibrating note which you hear. As each note is required in rotation, so does the barrel work down with the cam (or eccentric), which presses the rod down on the valve, thereby releasing the air and sounding the note. You will notice that the flute and the bass do not reqnire the vibrating chamber, but are coupled direct to the compressed-air chamber, acting quite differently to the other notes. The flute is a clear sharp note. To produce this you have a relief valve to take away the air as soon as there is sufficient to work the note. Next is the bass; this is a very simple and ingenious piece of work. In blowing it, you work the vibration like a hammer of an electric bell, equally as quickly, and the hammer beating on the drum causes the note to be sonnded. This note you will agree is very like the bass roll. I think in the above remarks you get the nearest explanation it is possible to give you concerning the Buhl Bird Organ.

The Queck Organ.

The Queck Organ I think was one of the first to be placed on the market. It is a well-made organ, every part being put together in a workmanlike manner. The method of working is almost the same as in the case of the Buhl Organ, that is, as regards the receiving chamber and vibrating chamber, also the valves. The only difference is in directing the passage of the air, which passes vertically down to the notes instead of horizontally, as in the Buhl. There is a great difference in the working of the valve levers, which are actuated in a horizontal position from the barrel. Special notice may be called to the hollow bent schockel, as you will notice that to get the rising and falling effect, there is a relief valve at the end of the note, which is actuated by a special switchback arrangement of a guide cam. The bass and flute are similar to those of the Buhl Organ.

I will now call your attention to a machine which I have made since the last meeting night. This machine is to be placed on a table and is blown with the mouth. It is not a set one, as I think you will agree with me that different birds have different ways of singing. By using this machine you can get any desired roll at once, or any set of rolls, to suit you and your bird's song. If you want to start with the bass you simply press the lever; and so on. If your birds are short in flute, you work up the flute (or hollow roll or hollow bell) to suit your birds. You can let it play its ordinary tours in rotation, or to suit yourself, so that you can help any bird that is short in any particular song. I do not believe in giving a lecture without being at the same time able to make a machine myself.

I will now bring my address to a close. I have at least tried to instruct you in the beautiful mechanism of the Roller organs.

CAGE-BIRDS LEAGUE

Unscrupulous Attack Upon Our Hobby.

Canary Keeping and Breeding Condemned.

Shameless Misrepresentations.

Hinc ille avium concentus.

Notes by the Secretary.

I referred last week to a pamphlet published by the Humanitarian League in furtherance of the campaign against bird-keeping, and now purpose to make a few comments upon the farrago of absolute piffle contained between its covers. This precious document is a verbatim copy of a penny pamphlet published some time ago by the same people. The addition of a preface, by Mr. W. H. Hudson. and of an illustrated cover. bring the price of the present edition up to fourpence.

Preposterous Pictures.

It is difficult indeed to keep within the bounds of moderate language in criticising such absurd exaggerations as are presented in this extraordinary production. The absurdities commence with the outside cover. The birds shown flying are Ravens, or nothing, and no one wants to keep Ravens in cages; while in the corner is depicted a brass cage of the well-known all-wire pattern, of the same type, by-the-by, although not so ornamental, as the one accepted by our gracious Queen as a birthday gift from the Canary fanciers of Norwich.

The bird shown in the cage, evidently intended to represent a "sick" Canary, would measure on the same scale as the cage some twelve inches in length and a foot or more around the body! Of course, this is to fill the cage with a picture of "miserable dejection," but it shows the kind of artifices to which the faddists resort in the endeavour to appeal to the feelings of those who know even less of the subject than does the author of the pamphlet in question.

The text, too, is embellished by illustrations, most of which are gross and studied misrepresentations. One of these is entitled "starved to death," and depicts a nest of young birds apparently left orphans. Probably the author well knows that of twenty such nests of starved youngsters nineteen would have been due to stoats and other "natural enemies." But it wouldn't do to say this. Much better for his purpose to allow his readers to infer that it is the bird-catcher who has been the culprit, and, through him. the bird-keeper—although it is common knowledge that when nestling birds are about, the bird-catching season is over!

A Fanatic's Fallacies.

Nothing is so mischievous and so difficult of refutation as a lie that is a half-truth, and the wholesale condemnation of bird-keeping is based upon the half-truth that cruelty is prevalent among a certain section of bird-catchers and bird-dealers, and on the suggestion that this cruelty is inseparable from the pursuit of bird-keeping.

The preface to this pamphlet is by Mr. W. H. Hudson, whose knowledge of birds in nature none can dispute, but whose ignorance, assumed or real, of the conditions under which they are kept in captivity is displayed by the hysterical exaggerations contained in his every paragraph.

Bird-caging of any kind Mr. Hudson calls "an acted blasphemy!" and this is the key-note of his preface. I wonder who told him, if anyone did, that "until yesterday the bird-buyer who loves a bird in a cage enjoyed the right to blind his little captives by thrusting red-hot needles in their eyes." Was ever such mischievous and mendacious ruhbish committed to paper? Possibly one bird-dealer in a hundred thousand may have subjected a Chaffinch to this ahominable cruelty, but to say that he or the bird-buyer "enjoyed the right" is to give utterance to a downright and ignorant lie. "Enjoyed the right" forsooth! The law was always strong enough to deal with such an inhuman monster, and there are few bird-fanciers who would not "enjoy the right" of dealing with him without the intervention of the law. And it is upon such grounds as these that you and I, reader, are to bo prevented from keeping "any bird, large or small, in a cage."

As a matter of fact, the belief that the song of a Chaffinch is improved by the barbarous method referred to above belongs to that long-ago time when it was held by a few of the most ignorant that the slitting of the tongue of a Starling or Magpie improved its powers of mimicry. The blinding of Chaffinches (one recent case notwithstanding) has long ceased to be practised: further, it was at no time practised by more than a very few of the most degraded bird-dealers. No one believes now that the birds sing better for being subjected to such brutality, just as no one believes now that cutting the tongue of a Starling will enable it to talk.

Mr. Hudson next tackles my own statement, quoting from my article published some weeks ago in Cage Birds, that a bird kept with proper attention in a cage or an aviary will prefer the protection of its owner rather than a return to its former freedom. He characterises this as "a monstrous perversion of the truth." His disputing the fact exhibits a monstrous ignorance. In the very article from which he quotes I gave him several instances from my own experience in illustration of my statement. I could furnish him with a thousand others, and there is scarcely a bird-keeper in the land who could not give him still more.

Contemptible Controversial Chicanery.

The next point made in this amazing preface is that a writer on Goldfinches once said that eighty per cent. of those taken in this country perish within a few days.

"What of the others," goes on Mr. Hudson, "the 80 per cent. of birds taken, that pine in captivity and perish miserably! It is shocking, not only to the bird-lover, to those who have a sense of kinship with the lower animals, but to anyone capable of a thought of compassion and justice, that such things should be done with impunity."

Now, this is controversial chicanery of the most contemptible description. Neither eighty per cent. nor twenty per cent. of the total number of fresh-caught Goldfinches die in a few days. The mortality amongst fresh-caught Greypates (young Goldfinches), however, is admittedly very large, if they are caught too early, and every bird-keeper who knows his subject dwells upon this fact to point out that, the Goldfinch being a very late breeder, the catching of Goldfinches should be prohibited until October. There is not a bird-keeper in this country who would not welcome a by-law protecting these birds from being caught before the end of September. And, as an actual fact, the writer of the paragraph quoted (?) by Mr. Hudson drew attention to this deplorable mortality amongst Greypates to clench his appeal for extended protection to be afforded the Goldfinch. Mr. Hudson, of course, conveniently "overlooks" this. Such contemptible controversial devices surely are unworthy of even a fanatic.

Mr. Hudson's concluding paragraph is a diatribe against bird-shops, which he characterises, without exception or qualification, as "filthy and fetid, swarming with vermin and the germs of every disease to which caged birds are subject." This, if it is anything, is an indictment against the R.S.P.C.A., and that Society is left to answer it. If the help of Cage Birds League is of any assistance to the R.S.P.C.A., that assistance will be freely given with a view of preventing cruelty of any kind, or punishing it where practised.

A Campaign of Calumny.

Of the sixteen pages contained in the body of the pamphlet five are devoted to specially selected accounts of ill-managed bird-shops, and seven to bird-catching and its cruelty, as disclosed by a list of convictions which are quoted as typical instances." They are copied bodily from the previously published pamphlet, and are served up again as of recent date, the months being given without the year. As bird-keepers we have never disputed the fact that cruelty is inflicted by some bird-catchers and some bird-dealers upon birds. We deplore this to the full. At the same time we say that the guilty comprise a very, very small minority of those engaged in the bird-trade. Further, it is remediable, and the R.S.P.C.A. could remedy it without interfering with the rights of humane bird-keepers. To put the case as it is put in this pamphlet, and to insinuate that the cases quoted are fair instances of universal application, is to perpetuate a gross libel upon a trade which in the vast majority of cases is carried on in humane conditions by traders who welcome intelligent supervision and inspection at all times.

There remain for consideration only the four pages dealing directly with bird-keeping itself. These begin with the aphorism, "the receiver is held liable as well as the thief." "receiving" here meaning bird-keeper, and "thief" equalling the bird-catcher and bird-dealer combined. "If there were no customers there would be no bird-dealers or catchers," says the pamphlet. This is true, if not strikingly original, and these ultra-sentimentalists would prevent the keeping of a Canary—"any birds, whether large or small," are the exact words- in their ostensible endeavour to starve out a few miscreants who resort to cruelty, and, with them, the immense majority of bird-dealers and bird-catchers who treat their birds humanely.

I have used the word "ostensible" advisedly, for I do not believe this is their endeavour at all. Their object is to do away with the keeping of birds in cages, and they are seizing upon the small amount of entirely preventible cruelty which undoubtedly is practised in a few individual cases, and which we deprecate as much as do they as an excuse for their crusade against bird-keeping as bird-keeping, and as a peg upon which to hang their sermon.

Here is another extract: "For every bird one sees in a cage in a private house, scores have been caught and have succumbed to ill-treatment and unnatural conditions." Later on the "scores" are amplified into "hundreds." Probably ninety-nine birds out of every hundred that one sees in cages in private houses are Canaries, and to say that "scores" or "hundreds" of birds have been caught and have succumbed for every one of these is nothing but hysterical shrieking.

Canary-keeping Condemned.

I know that many people who keep Canaries as a hobby, or as pets, or who breed them for sale or exhibition, are consoling themselves in the belief that the efforts of these so-called humanitarians are directed only against the keeping of British birds, and that they themselves are in no danger of interference. In order to dispel this illusion once and for all, I make a final verbatim quotation. "As long as some people keep Canaries, others will see no harm in keeping Goldfinches and Linnets. The healthy appreciation of bird life will not encourage or tolerate the stunted life of any caged bird."

Is there any mistaking this? If Canary breeders, or even the keepers of a single Canary, choose to continue living in a Fool's Paradise they will have only themselves to thank when they find that their hobby is a prohibited one. It will then be too late to remedy matters. Before this happens we must present such a front to the enemy that they will realise that further attack will be futile.

"Union is Strength"

A means presents itself in Cage Birds League, and an organised stand in defence of our hobby must be made now or never. We have given you a loud, and for a shilling a year (a farthing a week) you may ensure yourselves against the attacks of these fanatics, for if each of you who read these lines will determine to become at once a member of Cage Birds League, our enemies will find a better use for the money contributed by their kind-hearted but mistaken subscribers, and will devote their energies to legitimate ends instead of inveighing against the instructive and innocent hobby of bird-keeping with statements deliberately strained to suit their own purpose, and even calculated untruths.

I have occupied so much space with my own notes that I have none left for replies to correspondents or for extracts from the many appreciative letters received during the week. I hope that those who have been "crowded out" will excuse the non-insertion of their letters in view of the importance of the matter which has filled the space.

FOR ALL BIRD-KEEPERS

Charles Houlton's Famous Work.

"CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS"

Is the finest and most handsomely illustrated treatise ever offered to Mule Breeders.

SUCCESS MUST FOLLOW

If you proceed on the lines laid down in this work, which leads you from the beginning of this fascinating hobby by detailed stages to a successful issue. There is a preface by that well-known expert G. E. Weston. Thirty-three chapters, in which cages, aviaries, nests and nesting material, foods—natural and artificial, the selection of stock; breeding light, dark and every known variety of Mule are fully described, with 16 glorious coloured Plates, and numerous Art Plates. 7s. 6d., carriage paid; or 2s. 6d. down and three monthly payments of 2s.

THE HANDY REFERENCE BOOK FOR MULE BREEDERS IS

"The Secrets of Hybrid Breeding."

All the breeders who have met with success in this hobby have combined to set the beginner on the high road to profit. The Articles are a collection of reprints from "Cage Birds," and when they appeared there they met with universal approval.

For correct methods and the correct way to employ them, "The Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" is the Book.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must he borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous Issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

It is the person that gives you utmost value for Money, and not a case of what the article required is. Here is another fact to demonstrate this:—

"25, Enbrook Street, Queens Park, London, W.—I received the cage and seeds all right, with thanks. I am very pleased with the cage, and the workmanship is very good. I consider the cage very cheap for the money, and I shall be sending another order for some more. Thanking you for same.—J. L. Fletcher to W. Rudd."

If you are using single breeding cages, for each pair of birds you require two; or, better still, a Nursery Cage, price only 2/6. This is undoubtedly the best of its kind ever put on the market. Single breeding 2/6, double 3/6 and 5/-; latter strongly recommended. Remember, all these cages are fitted complete with every detail for immediate use; no extras to purchase. If room and other circumstances permit, you should see my Patent "Perfection" Breeding Cage. This and every imaginable requisite can be seen in my Free Money-Saving Catalogue. A comparison proves this. Send a postcard and it will at once be sent you.

SUPERIOR ALUMINIUM RINGS

METHODICAL BREEDERS aiming at success, must proceed on scientific lines by marking their birds with these first-grade rings, to enable them to identify the pedigree of all birds bred. Adopted and highly recommended by leading fanciers for years. CAGE BIRDS says:—"One of the best samples we have seen. Very light and beautifully made, with no rough edges." 100 for 2/9, 75 for 2/3, 50 for 1/6, 25 for 10d., post free. Consecutively numbered with or without year. Supplied with or without flanges.

Remember, these rings enjoy a reputation of many years' standing. They are the lightest, compatible with strength, and obsolutely the neatest on the market. Plain numbers, which do not fill with dirt.

SANDIFORD'S COLOUR FEEDS, ETC.

THE ONLY REAL COLOUR FOOD ON EARTH.

Read below for Proof.

Send your orders at once. Sure to run short, and can't get any more this season. There's a great scarcity in new crop. Mr. J. E. Davies, Stockport, May, 1911.—"Sir, I have much pleasure in saying that your colour food has during the past year given me every satisfaction, having secured over 50 firsts, also seconds, etc., besides N.P.C. Challenge Cup. This is second year in succession. Two firsts, fourth, and champion diploma Crystal Palace, 1911, and my birds were as bright a colour at Crystal Palace after being washed eleven times as they were at commencement of season. At Crystal Palace six out of the eight champion first prize Norwich." Never saw any colour food, only my Royal Red. Every winner in champion Cinnamon section bar one third. Never saw any but my colour food. Another big winner in Yorkshires, who won two firsts, seconds, etc. Mr. Ambler, Morecambe, writes: "April, 1911.—Sir, I can say I got a better colour from your feed than any I have ever tried." Scotland's greatest winner this last season. Mr. G. Mitchell, Brechin, writes: April, 1911.—"I have used your colour feed for years, and have found it to be all that you claim." Wales' greatest winner, Mr. D. H. Tedstone, Brecon: "Sir, I am pleased to inform you that I not only won the Welsh Cage Bird Cup. I won the solid silver Norwich Cup, the Leach Challenge Cup scores of firsts and specials, etc." I could fill this paper with testimonials like above; which should prove you need not try any other. Prices: Royal Red, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/6, 5 lbs. 7/6, 14 lbs. 17/-; Hot Natal, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/8. Honey-made egg crumbs, in use by scores of Crystal Palace champions, 8d. lb., 7 lbs. 5/6. Grand for rearing youngsters and using to mix with my colour feeds. Send for samples and directions. Established 1879.

The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills.—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth, 2/-, post free 2/3; in parts 1/-, post free 1/1, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

"As Fit as My Own,"

after nearly a

Seven Thousand Miles Journey.

"Bloemfontein, May 5th, 1911.—Many thanks for birds, which arrived here safely on the 30th ult., in the pink of condition. In fact, they are quite as fit as my own birds, if not more so, which is, to say the very least, most wonderful after travelling nearly 7,000 miles. Both my friend and myself are more than pleased with the purchase.—H. W. to W. Rudd."

Facts worth Knowing.

"June 6th, 1911.—I am writing to tell you how much I admire the birds which you sell. Lately I have foolishly purchased one or two from other quarters, and I don't hesitate to tell you that each time I have been "done in." It matters not where I go; I cannot see such birds at the price as what you send. I am only too pleased to be able to return to you. Will you please be good enough to send me on Tuesday three Yorkshire hens for breeding.—Mr. W—— to W. Rudd." (Original can be inspected.—W.R.)

LEEDS C.B.S.

First Feather Show, held 3rd June, St. George's Schools. Entries came up very poor, for some unaccountable reason, but what was lacking in numbers was made up by the quality of exhibits, some real good specimens being on view. Leaders of points for the section gold medals are as follows: Yorks., A. Rhodes, 28 points; G. W. Dews, 25 points; Hy. Smith, 20 points. Nor.: D. McMillan, jun., 27 points; W. A. Wilson, 17 points; W. Johnson, 12 points; British, F. Flint, 29 points; J. Owen, 26 points; E. Middleton, 19 points. Mr. R. Halliday judged, and his awards gave entire satisfaction.

CARNARVON.

North Wales C.B.S., which was only formed in February last, is making rapid strides to become one of the most forward in the country. It has so less than ninety-four members already, and by the way the officials are working, we can predict a happy future for these energetic Welshmen. And a more hard-working lot of fanciers you could not come across. The first members' show was held on June 5. This being their first, they meant to make it a success, and right royally they did it. To have a first feather show so early is almost courting disaster as regards numbers, but to make an extra attraction they put in classes for adult birds, which filled beyond the expectation of the officials. The exhibition was held in the Institute, Carnarvon. The room is an ideal one, lighted all round, and is entirely free from draught. The entry totalled 154—quite a respectable number for an old society, much more a new one. Yorkshires turned up well, this type being favoured more than the other varieties; some toppers were put down in rare style Britishers were a warm lot; to get 54 in three classes is not bad for a start. Goldies were out for a holiday. These Welshmen know what a Goldie is, and how to stage him. There was a splendid attendance all day, and we trust the Society will make a profit on their first venture. The Secretary, Mr. J. W. Jones, is the right man to have at the head of any society. Always obliging, he had everything in ship-shape order, and a welcome smile for every visitor. He has grand henchmen in the chairman, Mr. R. E. Griffiths, and Hon. Treasurer, Mr. E. Jones, and vice-chairman, Mr. D. Roberts, well backed up by the committee: Messrs. R. Angell, O. Davies, H. Ellis, J. Parry, W. R. Roberts, W. Roberts, and J. Sweeney whose one idea was to make the show a sneeess. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool) placed the awards, and gave entire satisfaction.

The Critique.

NOR. A.V. (5): 1, Jones, splendid head and neck, grand substance for a Yell.; 2, Williams, rare good Buff, fine feather, beaten in head only by winner; 3, Williams, head and wing-marked, red hot; res., vhc, Jones. YORK., YELL. (16): A topping class. 1, Owen Jones, on its own, stands like a guardsman, round head, well braced up, "hot 'un"; 2, Pritchard, another good one, excellent type and quality, shows just a wee bit too much Belgian; 3, Owen, well up, stands on a good pair of legs, feather like boxwood; res., Nolan, put down in topping order again good quality; vhc, J. Williams; hc, Griffiths; c, Walford. BUFF (10): 1, res, vhc, Nolan, out-and-out Yorkie, straight as a rush, wonderful legs for a Buff; 2, Owens, real good bird round as a bottle, would have run above closer with a wash; 2, T. Owens, rare quality, good pins, well braced wings; hc, Williams; c, Roberts. BORD. FCY. (5): 1, 2, 3, vhc, D. Roberts, good team, put down like an old hand, first, Buff, feathered to perfection, 2nd, Cl. Yell., nice head, well cut away, 3rd, beaten only in head properties; res, hc, Williams. CAN., A.V., NAT. COL. (13): 1, J. Williams, Yorks., in its first feather, good bird, some thought should not be allowed to compete against the older birds in this class, which should be framed for adult birds only; 2, R. Griffiths, Green Yorks., real grass green, splendid pencilling; 3, O. Davies, even mkd. Nor., well marked, splendid feather; res, W. Williams, Crest, showed a bit of scurvy, or would have gone up one; vhc, W. Roberts; hc, D. Roberts; c, W. Jones. NOR., FIRST FEATHER (13): 1, G. Jones, big, bouncing Buff, rare feather for a big one, should make a good stock bird; 2, Parry, cobby bird all through, worth a good moult; 3 vhc, E. Jones, rare quality, good head, nice wing carriage, well cut away behind; res, J. Williams; hc, c, Aitken; 53, Griffiths, absent. YORKS. (1): Extraordinary class. 1, J. Jones, well drawn Yell., plenty behind leg, wonderful position, steady as an "old 'un"; 2, W. Williams, rare quality Buff, round as a pencil, nicely tapered away; 3, hc, c, J. O. Williams, fine youngster, wants a bit more training; res, vhc, O. Owens. MULE OR HYBRID (12): 1, Parry, dark Yell. Goldie Mule, red hot, nice size, put down in faultless form; 2, 3, Jackson, variegs., light Linnet Mule, fair size, good feather, 3rd, dark Linnet Mule, topper for size and markings, pity it was not a Yell., shown to perfection; res, Pritchard; vhc, hc, Parry and Angel; c, J. Roberts. GOLDFINCH (14): 1, hc, Evans and Roberts, wonderful blaze, nicely mooned, rare tanning, put down in fine style; 2, W. Roberts, big square c[illegible]mson blaze, well huttoned, shone like satin; 3, res, vhc, E. Jones, old champion, now in its fifth year, wears well, best face of the lot, but not in its best form; hc, O. Owens. GREY PATE, 1910 (20): A hot lot, hardly a bad one amongst them. 1, N. R. Roberts, wonder for size, col. and tanning, will want some stopping with a good moult, wins easily; 2, N. Roberts, richly tanned, beautifully mooned and buttoned; 3, Evans and Roberts, real topper, but a bit soft when taking notes; res, O. Davies, champion blaze, running well back, shines like glass; vhc, E. Jones; hc, Miss Griffiths; c, J. Hughes. BRIT. A.O.S. (20): 1, 3, J. Williams, real good Bullie, grand cap, topping col., 3rd a good Linnet if he was a bit steadier; 2, O. Jones, Yell. Greenie, splendid big, broad head, very fearless; res, Miss Griffiths, good Chaffinch, head shone like a mirror, nice whites; vhc, Huxley; hc, O. Davies; c, Hughes. SELL, 7s. 6d. (8): 1, W. Williams; 2, J. Williams; 3, Miss Griffiths; res, Evans and Roberts; vhc, O. Davies; hc, G. Jones; 140, absent, Griffith. GIFT CL.: 1, R. Griffitbs; 2, O. Davies; 3, W. Aitkin.

HARPENDEN.

Cage birds did not come up as well as usual at this enjoyable Whit Monday fixture. The Canary classes were cancelled, as was that for Linnets and Redpolls. Some very nice exhibits were staged in the classes which did fill, and competition was keen. Owing to the fact that no small cage labels were sent out, some confusion was caused, and several exhibits were wrongly staged, and this led to a regrettable incident in the Foreign class, where Mr. Davies' King Parrakeet, No. 203, according to the catalogue, was benched as 264, whilst a couple of Budgerigars, No. 264, shown by Mr. Bennett, were benched as 263. In making his awards, Mr. House, the judge, gave the King Parrakeet 2nd, and the Budgerigars vhc. The stewards placed the 2nd card on the Budgerigars, and the vhc on the King Parrakeet. Mr. House was asked by an exhibitor if the cards were on the right birds, and at once said "No, the King is 2nd." The correction was made, whereupon Mr. Bennett accused the judge and stewards of dishonesty, and lodged a protest against the awards. The matter will come before the committee in due course. The rule governing the matter read:—"A judge's decision shall be final, except in case of fraud or misrepresentation, or where a mistake has been made bona-fide by the judge." Had numbered labels been attached to the cages no mistake could have occurred. The King is a magnificent specimen, whilst the Budgerigars were not even a pair, being two cocks. The stewards, Messrs. Willis, Woollatt, and Pilbeam attended well to the exhibits, and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson made a most obliging and hard-working secretary. Mr. C. A. House judged.

MULES (10): 1, Davies, large, well feathered, slightly tkd. Linnet-Canary; 2, vhc, hc, Andrews, capital Goldie-Bullie, plenty of size, nice feather and marking; 3, r, Lees, very nicely balanced four-pointed Buff Goldie, and a capital light Linnet-Canary, but rough in feather; No. 237, Davies, arrived at the show dead. BRIT. GOLD (6): 1, spl, cup best Hardbill; 2, vhc, Andrews, grand rich coloured, deep cut blaze, nice collar and cheeks, capital back and bars, in grand trim; 2nd, well cut blaze, not so deep in col., good back and chest; r, hc, Harris. A.O.V. (8): 1, sp, Hawkes, grandly marked, rich coloured Yellow Bunting, in beautiful condition; 2, r, Harris, large, well marked Hawfinch, very steady, not in such nice feather; 3, hc, Andrews, grand shaped Bullie, lovely cap, hack, and breast; vhc, Pilbeam; hc, Beechcroft. FOR. (4): 1, r, Timaens, magnificent Scarlet Tanager, lovely col. and feather, and a most charming Green Glossy Starling; 2, Davies, very rich coloured King Parrakeet, in rare feather, a fine large bird; vhc, Bennett, two cock Budgerigars, nicely marked and good col.

CODNOR Pk. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

First Nest Feather Show of the season, held Club Room adjoining the Three Tuns, Eastwood, June 3rd. The birds were staged on a five-tier staging, enabling everyone to see the exhibits without handling. Entries turned up well considering the bad breeding season the majority had had. Some grand Norwich were put down. The British birds were a grand lot, many noted winners putting in an appearance. We were favoured with grand weather, and a good "gate" was the result. Mr. J. Adnitt placed the awards, which gave great satisfaction.

NOR. CL. YELL.: 1, Simpson and Vertigan, little gem for quality and type; 2, Faux and Winterbottom, nice type, grand quality and col; 3, Simpson and Vertigan, little larger, but not quite the type of leader. BUFF: 1, Faux and Winterbottom, lovely col.; 2, Simpson and Vertigan, nice type and col., not quite the size of winner; 3, Cliffe, on small side, nice type. LIGHTLY MKD. YELL.: 1, 2, Simpson and Vertigan, leader very nice bird, well worth place; 2, grand quality, not quite the substance of winner; 3, Faux and Winterbottom, bonny bird, a wee bit soft. BUFF: 1, 2, Simpson and Vertigan, leader very bonny, wins; 2, good quality; 3, Faux and Winterbottom, lovely head and neck, hard to part for second honours. GREEN, ETC.: 1, 3, Faux and Winterbottom, 1st heavy mkd. Buff, good all round bird; 2, Simpson and Vertigan, another Buff, good head. NOVICE (confined to members): 1, Parson Bros., big, bouncing Yell., good all round, some thought best bird in show; 2, Wagstaff, Cl. Buff, good body, fails only in head; 3, Dodman, good Buff mkd., a grand class. YORKS., CL. STANHOPE.

Ninth annual show of the Stanhope F.S. held Whit Monday in the beautiful grounds adjoining Stanhope Castle. The cage bird section formed an interesting feature. Considering the season of the year, the entries were good, and the quality was equal to that of many of the larger autumn fixtures. Mr. T. C. Crawhall (Newcastle) judged.

NOR. YELL.: 1, 2, Wilson, leader cl., good size, nice head, short cobby body, 2nd marked head, neck and wings, better col., not quite the size or substance of leader; 3, Musgrove, a wee bit on small side. BUFF: 1, 2, 3, Wilson, nice trio, leader grand cobby cl., splendid chest and head, short wings, good carriage, 2nd shade smaller, 3rd bigger, but a little rough in feather, good stock bird; 4, Barkas and Partners, small, neat feathered bird; vhc, Musgrove. YORKS. YELL.: 1, Dix, Gateshead winner, marked eyes, wings, and under beak, by far the biggest in class, grand position, long, well carried wings, rather inclined to be unsteady; 2, Tindale, grizzle head, grand length and position, well filled in neck, nice head; 3, Thos. Nattrass, grand quality and position; 4, vhc, hc, J. J. Bright, trio of good birds, but met their superiors to-day. BUFF: 1, Tindale, grizzle head, grand bird, long, well drawn, good head, well braced wings, spoilt in neck by wash; 2, c, J. J. Bright, good feathered, nice position, good head, a little barrelled in body; 3, Wearmouth, ticked neck, equal to 1st and 2nd, but wants a wash; 4, Nattrass, marked eyes, wings, and one side of tail, good feather, but wild; vhc, Dix; hc, Moses. BRIT. GOLDFINCH, ETC.: 1, 2, Maddison, first stormer, one of the best Goldies seen for some time, grand big bird, well cut blaze, splendid tan, 2nd famous winner, but gives way to his stable companion to-day; 3, W. Currey, fine large Bullie, house-moulted, good cap, fails only in col., a trifle; 4, J. Forster, nice big Goldie, large blaze, and good colour, handicapped by a stiff claw; vhc, Barkas and Partners, Bullie smaller than 3rd; hc, c, Rutherford and Bright, Goldies. BRIT., SMALL.: 1, 2, vhc, J. Forster, fine Bramble leading, good size and col., steady as a rock, 2nd nice Wheatear, also very steady; 3, Musgrove, fine Siskin; 4, Rutherford and Bright, large, good coloured Greenie, in nice trim; hc, Barkas and Partners, Bramblefinch; c, Wilson, Chaffinch. A.O.S.: 1, vhc, Wilcock, leader good Hawfinch, in excellent trim, not quite so large as some, vhc variegs. Goldie-Mule; 2, 4, Maddison, cl. Goldie-Mule, hard lines to take second place to a Britisher, but condition decided against it to-day, 4th light Linnet-Mule, looking soft when judged; 3, Raine, Indian Parrakeet, in grand feather; hc, Rutherford and Bright, Hawfinch; c, Wearmouth, variegs. Goldie-Mule. Special for best bird belonging to Stanhope Workmen's Club, J. J. Bright.

WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

On May 28th. this Society made Little Hay their chosen district to view bird life. We started from headquarters at 9.30 a.m., and seventeen members turned up. The majority went by char-a-banc, and a small party by "bike," arriving at our destination about 12 a.m. (the cycling party having arrived earlier). After having lunch, a start was made. The first nest was found when only a few yards had been covered. This was a Blackie's, with two eggs. Others followed in quick succession—Thrush, Blackbird, Greenfinch, Linnet, Yellowhammer—all with eggs or young. A nest which caused some comment among some of our members was found. It was built of hay, lined with wool and cow hair, and contained three eggs about the size of Thrushes'; but when compared with some Thrushes' eggs, there was a difference in colouring and size. The conclusion come to was that it was a Wheatear's. Just after this there was a beautiful sight—a young Thrush standing in a bower of gorse which was in full bloom, making a sight that would gladden the hearts of all bird lovers. One of our members thought to catch it but when he thought success was his, his surprise was great to find he had nearly caught a young rabbit instead, the Thrush having popped into the rabbit's hole. Of course, the usual banter followed, but taken in good part. It was getting very hot, and as we had covered thus far about four miles, a turn was made for our stopping place, taking us through more lovely country. Here again nests were in abundance. A Dove's nest (with hen sitting) close to the roadside, and low down in the hedge, the eggs being clearly visible from the roadside after the hen left the nest, proved most interesting. Birds seen on the wing comprised Thrush, Skylark, Hawk, Linnet, Chaffinch, Plover, Woodpigeon, Rooks in numbers, and many others. The inner man was refreshed by a good ham and egg tea, provided by our host of the Holly Bush Inn, the youngsters coming in for their share; and can't they eat! Ask Mr. ——. After a rest a start was made for home, which was reached about 10 p.m., everyone agreeing it was one of the most enjoyable rambles they had taken part in.—W. Andrews.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything.

EDINBURGH SOUTHERN O.S.

Meeting held Buchanan's Hotel, High Street, May 10th. We have decided to hold our annual show on 21st October, in Buccleuch Parish Hall, Buccleuch Street, and the following gentlemen have kindly consented to act as judges: For Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodgers; for Norwich, etc., Mr. J. Holmes.—S. Hewitt, Sec.

TUNSTALL AND DIST. C.B.S.

We had an excellent meeting on May 24th, when Mr. E. Tams (Longton), the British bird and Mule expert, gave us a splendid lecture on the management of Britishers for exhibition, and some excellent advice on Mule and Hybrid breeding, which was enjoyed by all members and fanciers present. Several questions were asked, and were ably and well answered by Mr. Tams. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Tams.—Evans and Brough, Secs.

WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

Meeting held May 23, when a good muster of members were present. After general business, Mr. Jones, our chairman, gave us the benefit of his experiences in colour feeding. His remarks were very instructive, as, owing to his having years of practice, he was listened to with every respect; no doubt many members will benefit through them as they with their many questions brought out many little points. Mr. Jones makes an ideal chairman, and is always willing to help anyone with his knowledge. The society should still forge ahead, which it has been doing since its inauguration; and the members are all sterling fanciers, willing to help the society with that zeal which is the backbone of any society.—W. G. Andrews, Hon. Sec.

UDDINGSTON & DISTRICT O.S.

Meeting held June 3rd, Reading Rooms, Mr. W. Campbell in chair. Agreed, to put off monthly class till after Young Bird show, when breeding season would be over. Classification for Young Bird show was as follows: Scotch Fancy 1, Yorks. 1, Crest and C.B. 1, Nor. P.H. 4, Bord. 4, Common and Gift Class 1, Mules and Hybrids 1, British Birds 11. Mr. Geo. Smart (Carmyle) has kindly consented to judge same. A motion was proposed to ask poultry fanciers to attend next meeting, failing same, to let this section drop. Two new members were proposed and admitted. Each member present received one of Mr. Spratt's little books on "The Common Sense of Canary and Hybrid Culture," along with sample of seed kindly sent by that firm, which was much appreciated. Members' subs. are due next meeting, first Saturday in July. All are doing well in the breeding line.—Jno. Kilpatrick, Sec.

ADMIRAL DUNCAN O.S.

A very sociable and interesting meeting was held May 27th, Mr. R. Holmes in chair. There was a good muster of fanciers. A friendly and interesting conversation on birdy matters was indulged in. The whole of the officers and committee are now elected as follows:—President, Mr. R. Holmes; vice-president, Mr. J. Wood; treasurer, Mr. H. Cowpertwait; committee, Messrs. T. Whyler, G. Hill, J. Bunn, R. Statham, T. Harrison, H. Handley, H. Mais, W. Stopper, and J. Goode. They are all fanciers at heart. We hold our 32nd annual F.F. Show July 15th. There will be 18 classes—7 for Crests and Crest-breds, 5 for Norwich, 5 for British, and 1 for any other variety. We have been fortunate in securing the services of that well-known breeder and exhibitor, Mr. J. Adnitt, to judge. So fanciers can rest assured of getting a "good run" for their money. We have received a substantial cheque from Capt. J. A. Morrison (M.P. for the Eastern Division of Nottingham) for the special prize fund. Our worthy president also subscribed handsomely. Messrs. J. Hood and H. Cowpertwait contributed substantial sums to the Crest section. We have numerous other promises of assistance from friends. This looks like resuscitating this old-established society. Fanciers desirous of joining should attend our next meeting, June 10th; annual subscription, 3s. per year.—J. Cowpertwait, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Meeting held Oldham Hall, May 25th. Mr. J. Abbott in chair. Mr. R. Avery (Fulbrook) was elected a member. Arrangements were made for holding the Nest Feather Show July 22nd, at Oldham Hall. Entries close July 19th, entrance fee 1s. Classification: Yorks. 8; Nor. 8, Bor. 5, A.O.V., A.V. Mule or Hy., sell., 10s. 6d., Brit. 6. A discussion arose regarding the allotting of the show specials; eventually decided that the general body arrange this. Result: 20s. voted; to be divided equally between champions and novices, i.e., 4s., 3s., 2s., 1s. in each section. Members are requested to remit their annual subs. (viz., 5s.) as soon as possible, as it is impossible to allot specials when there is nothing to do it out of, and the patronage shows' specials, are governed by the amount received from members up to the time special cards are made up. The amount has only to be paid once; then why delay until the last moment? Don't forget the evening drive on June 29th. Meet at Islington Square, 6.45 p.m., 1s. 6d. each (including refreshments). Local fanciers are invited. Owing to the Coronation falling on the June meeting night, there will be no meeting this month. Make a note that July 27th is the night for allotting patronage. All members are requested to be present.—Geo. Green, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.A.

Meeting held Buchanan's Hotel, Edinburgh, May 27th, Mr. C. R. Drysdale, hon. president, occupied the chair. Before proceeding with business, the Chairman spoke of the deaths of the late Captain Philp (Edinburgh), and Mr. A. Melrose (Galashiels). Both were excellent supporters of our Association. It was the unanimous wish that the secretary write both Mrs. Philp and Mrs. Melrose, conveying their heartfelt sympathy with them. (This has been done.) Correspondence was read stating that handsome donations had been received from the following gentlemen: C. E. Price, Esq., M.P. (Edinburgh), J. D. Brown, Esq. (East Kilbride), and J. Greig, Esq. (Aberdeen). The appointment of auditors was proceeded with. The following were elected, and each accepted office: Messrs. W. Whitefield, J. McLennan and A. Stavert. It was agreed to purchase prize cards from the Leith Publishing firm. They are not so costly as those we have hitherto used, but are very finely got up. No charge is made for these at competition. The election of judges took place, acceptances to be made known at a later date. The appointment of an official to be in charge of hall door on show day was left in the hands of the committee. Decided, that this door official be paid 5s. Vote of thanks to the chairman brought meeting to a close.—J. R. Meikle, Sec

HALIFAX O.S.

Meeting held June 3rd, Griffen Hotel, Mr. F. Lee presiding. Judges for series of shows were settled upon. The application of specialist clubs was freely discussed, and it was finally decided to apply for the Y.C.C., the N.G.M.Y.C.C., the G.C.A., and the O.N.P.C. patronage. Having enrolled four new members, a pleasant meeting was brought to a close.—F. Burdekin, Assist. Sec.

ST. CRISPIN WORKING MEN'S C.B.S. (Northampton).

Meeting of this newly-formed society held May 30th, clubhouse, Forestere' Arms, Willingboro' Road. The chair was occupied for the first time by the new Chairman, Mr. J. Fisher. The rules and regulations were drawn up and finally passed as suggested. The question of holding a nest feather show was discussed, and finally the last Saturday in July was chosen. The enthusiasm shown by the members augurs well for the future of the society.—J. Nason, Hon. Sec.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C. B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, May 25th, when the members spent a most enjoyable evening listening to Mr. G. Crabb, who gave a lecture on "Birds I have met." Mr. Crabb dealt with Tits, Wagtails, and Finches, adding short stories about the species on which he was speaking, making it most interesting and enjoyable. Mr. Crabb fully explained where the different birds might be found quite near London, and the way to get there, so that any member might spend a day amongst the birds who wished. Several questions were asked and were answered by the lecturer. The Chairman (Mr. Dann) in passing a vote of thanks to Mr. Crabb, said he must apologise for the small number present, and he hoped those who had heard Mr Crabb would make a point of "wigging" those who were absent. The Secretary said he wished all the members would make a point of reading the notices of meetings in CAGE BIRDS.—C. W. Law.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Meeting held June 1st. Our late Chairman again occupied the chair as Mr. Hutchinson was unable to be present, and our vice-chairman was also absent. Chairman remarked on the good attendance on such a beautiful evening, which, he said, spoke well for the interest of our members in the Society and the annual show. Letters were read from Specialist Clubs re patronage, and also re advertising the N.F. Show, which we arranged to do the week previous to show. The pic-nic arrangements were made. We go to Plessy by the 1.30 train, and then through the lovely woods to Hartford Hall, and have tea in the woods. We are to have a good tea in the woods through the kindness of Mr. Gills, who has helped us out of a difficulty in the way of getting tea. The nest Feather Show is now all in order, and several members have promised to turn up early on the 24th to help arrange the hall and bench the birds. Any who care to help will be welcomed. We have tickets issued at 3d. each, and I should like to see a few more members helping to sell these instead of leaving it to the usual few who generally do their share of selling. The members on the whole seem to be having a fairly good year, so entries should be good. The annual show classification was decided, but before this was done a proposition was carried that we pay half prize-money in all classes of five or under. We have very few under five, but still we must have some protection, and it has not seemed right to several members to pay full prize-money with small competition. We get some very big novice classes each year, and we added one Linnet, two Norwich, and two Border classes for novices and split the small foreign class into two, practically making a novice class for the foreign fanciers. These cheap foreign birds are very easy to keep, and several members, including Messrs. Mackenzie, Pettersen, Gills and Young are working very hard for their varieties, so we should have some good classes and specials. The above-named gentlemen will be only too pleased to help any starters in this branch. We dropped one class and amalgamated two in two cases, thus dropping three classes and adding six good filling classes; also giving the novice in each variety a good chance. This concluded a splendid meeting, got through in fine time. Will members please remember their annual subs., and also come up strong on June 24th—our Coronation Nest Feather Show? J. Atkinson, Sec.

MUSSELBURGH O.S.

Question Night By Mr. Steel (Dalkeith).

Fanciers and friends were treated to something new in the way of lectures on May 27th. Owing to the time taken up with business it was decided to abandon the lecture and have a "question night" on British birds instead. This is rather a novelty to the folks of the "Honest Toon," and Mr. Steel acquitted himself in an able and pleasing manner. The ball was set rolling by the president (Mr. J. Pearson) with a Linnet question, viz.: How to feed for breeding, competition and singing? The lecturer gave a description of Linnet, and recommended for feeding, canary two parts, teazle two parts, rape two parts, together with whiteheads (dandelion), mouse-ear, and the various grasses to be found growing along the country roads; use plenty of water for bathing purposes. Groundsel, he considered, was of little value for either purpose. Referring to the singing, Mr. Steel had heard Linnets sing, or try to sing, in Scotland, but to hear Linnets sing one should hear them across the Borders, specially contest birds; it was simply marvellous how they could be trained to perform so well. Question 2: Why is there such a demand for Scotch Linnets in England? Mr. Steel: The size and hardier nature of the bird as it gets further North accounts for this. This also applied to Bullfinches, Goldies, etc. Taking the British birds, and comparing them with the Siberian or Russian, they were seen to be very much larger than the English birds; the rigour of the cold North had something to do with it. Question 3: How would you proceed to breed hen Bullie and cock Goldie?—The best method was plenty of room, and having one cock to one hen. Mr. Steel related how a Fife fancier tried to breed hybrids, which caused some mirth and brought smiles from the audience. The best idea the lecturer saw was while at Kirrlemuir, also known as "Thrums"—where a square turf was used for nesting. The turf was hollowed out with a hammer. Wild seeds were recommended, especially nettle seed, which was also freely eaten by Goldies, Redpolls, etc. Question 4: Is shepherd's purse good for getting colour, and for bringing birds into breeding condition?—Yes, it is, if procurable during the breeding season. It is good for colouring, but for choice, hardheads are better than shepherd's purse. Question 5: Has the male bird any influence in Canary Hybrid breeding?—Yes, and no. Mr. Steel explained the different methods used in pairing up, and advised the use of 3lb.-bred birds if procurable, although clear Mules had been bred from the ordinary bred Canaries. Foreign Goldies and Bullie hens were recommended. Mr. Steel was warmly thanked for his plain and direct answers, and a most profitable evening was brought to a close. A first feather show will be held in July—"Glasgow Fair Holidays' Week." The date, time and place will be duly announced in CAGE BIRDS. The classes provided are, viz., Norwich 4, Borders 4, Scots Fancy 1, Mules and Hybrids 2. Mr. A. Moffat was elected treasurer in place of Mr. Fleming resigned.—Wm. Nisbet, Hon. Sec.

WARRINGTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held 1st June, Mr. Knowles in chair. There was a good muster of members to elect judge for open show in November. The choice eventually fell on Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot). Also decided to hold a Nest Feather Show, June 17, Mr. Hampson kindly judging. Nor. 2, Yorks. 2, A.O.V. 1, Mules 2, Brit. 5. Mr. Leech promised 2s. 6d. for best Norwich, provided there are twelve entries. Mr. Hardy 2s. 6d. for the best Yorkshire on same conditions. Mr. T. P. Baxter (Runcorn) was elected a member. Mr. Collins and secretary were deputed to see about getting a room for Open Show. This brought a very enjoyable and businesslike meeting to a close.—G. M. Nelson, Hon. Sec.

EASTFIELD SIDE C.B.S.

A good meeting was held headquarters, June 3rd, to hear Mr. W. Vardy (Huthwaite) deliver a lecture on moulting and colour-feeding. Mr. Vardy said he was giving it from his own experience. There being many novices present it was most interesting, for he had come to speak to them. But if the "old hands" could find anything from it, he said, well all the better. He started with the old birds; then went on to the young; then on to colour-feeding, when and how to use it; the benefit of clean cages and baths; how to finish off, and how and when to train young birds. When he had done he said he would be only too pleased to answer any question put. The members took advantage of this and plied him with questions, which he answered. He also gave some different experiences on the subject. I am sure there was not one but knew more when he went than when he came. Mr. C. Connal proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Vardy. Mr. R. Nuttall seconded. Mr. Vardy suitably replied. It was decided that each member should have a special according to the points he had won throughout the season.—R. Nuttall.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting held June 1st, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. A. Bradshaw in chair. Several items of correspondence were dealt with. Our Hon. President, H. Barber, Esq., has promised specials to the value of £1 for our Nest Feather Show. The committee will allocate special prizes previous to the taking of entries. The Secretaries will sit on July 3rd, from 8 to 9 p.m., at the Wentworth Cafe, to receive entries. The latest time for receiving entries is first post Tuesday, July 4th. All exhibits to be staged by 2 on day of show, instead of 1 o'clock, as printed on schedule. Messrs. Dunford and Webster volunteered to act as stewards. Decided, that all tickets sold before show he 2d. each, instead of the usual price, viz., 3d. Prizes will be given to the two members selling most tickets. The Assist. Sec. will be pleased to supply members with more tickets if they sell out. Also decided, that we engage a man to post bills in the Hillsborough district. All members and friends who are going for the ramble to Cordwell Valley on June 17th, are requested to meet at Dore and Totley Station, 2.30 p.m. Trains leave Sheffield (Midland Station) at three minutes past 2 o'clock, and 2.20 for Dore and Totley. We trust as many as possible will go. Arrangements for refreshments are being made. The talk on breeding-room difficulties and questions by ballot proved very interesting, many points being touched upon that were instructive. Next meeting, discussion on colour food; talk on Crests, introduced by Mr. J. W. Crookes. Messrs. Pickering and Sampson were elected new members.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Council Meeting.

Council meeting held Market Tavern, Bradford, June 3rd, Mr. H. H. Towers (president) in chair. Mr. F. Hammond gave a report of how the deputation had fared in their visit to Spen Valley, and this was much appreciated, especially when it was announced they had reconsidered their resignation, and decided to continue membership with the Union. The deputation was thanked. Dewsbury, Batley and Dis. and Keighley and Dis. tendered their resignation. The first two were accepted with deep regret. In the case of Keighley, who have already taken part in the year's work, it was decided to appoint a deputation to visit that Society, and explain matters to them, in the hope of inducing them to reconsider their decision. These resignations are very regrettable, and it is to be hoped those societies affected by the new rules will just look at the case in a broader-minded spirit. The two rules which have resulted in these resignations are trifling in the extreme when considered in their true light, and contrary to the conclusions arrived at by the affected societies, will not tend to weaken the Union, but to strengthen it. The societies affiliated will see that their interests in being members is to support and strengthen each other, and not merely look for the benefits which are going to be reaped individually by being members of this or that society. No union of cage bird fanciers has tried to uphold these principles more than the Yorkshire Union. Mr. S. B. Grayshon applied to be reinstated as a novice, on the plea that in ignorance of the rules he had exhibited and won a first prize at a Spen Valley Fanciers' Show, although there were only two entries in the class, and prizes paid on the sliding scale. The Council decided to reinstate him as a novice, and to favourably consider any other applications of a similar nature. The sub-committee was empowered to deal with any further applicants between now and next Council meeting. Messrs. A. Price and A. Huddleston were appointed to officiate on the Cinderella Club Show Committee as representatives of the Union. The above committee also applied for the Union patronage to be granted the above Show, and it was ultimately decided to grant this, and, in addition, to state that all points gained at this particular show shall count towards the Union trophies, and also the novice medals, irrespective of the sealed handicap governing the latter competition. Decided, to close advertisements, etc., in the Union hand-book on July 8th. All desiring to advertise are invited to send in same to the secretary at once. Mr. F. Armstrong (vice-president) took the opportunity of thanking the Council for their confidence in electing him to this important position. The Council unanimously agreed that the new rule re judges' fees should come into operation this ensuing year. This concluded the business.—H. Hill, Secretary.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Meeting held June 8rd, the President (Mr. P. Thorn) in the chair. Agreed, to hold F.F. Show July 1st. Mr. J. Young was appointed to judge same. Mr. J. Christer was admitted as new member. An interesting discussion took place on various matters connected with the breeding season. A vote of thanks to the Chairman terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchison, Sec.

ILFORD AND DIST. F. AND F.S.

Meeting held White Horse Hotel, 30th May, Mr. J. Smith in chair. Mr. C. Watson was elected to judge all sections at Young Stock and Annual Shows (except cage birds and pigeons at young stock show, which sections will be taken by Mr. W. L. Rae.) Special prizes were kindly offered by Messrs. J. Smith, Gollnitz, and Priestman for competition at second monthly show. New member, Mr. J. Sykes (Canning Town).—J. H. Priestman, Hon. Sec.

Notes From Erin.

FANCIERS will be sorry to learn that yet another of our well-known exhibitors is retiring from the "family circle," and one whom the Irish Fancy can ill spare. I refer to Mr. J. McQuade, of Enniskillen. Mr. McQuade is a well-known Yorkie enthusiast, and for a great number of years has bred and exhibited many winners able to hold their own in the keenest of competition. All who have had the pleasure of meeting Mr. McQuade personally know him to be a genuine sportsman, ever willing to assist and further the interests of the Fancy, and many novices—and old hands, too—received his advice on selection and pairing, etc., to their advantage. Mr. McQuade, I understand, sails for Canada at an early date, and I feel sure all wish him and Mrs. McQuade and family every success in this far-away land.

THERE seems to be some trouble brewing re the clashing of show dates. There seems no reason why such a thing should be, and matters of this kind will, I fear, not assist the progress of the Fancy. Last season the show dates were well arranged, and it is hardly fair for societies to alter their fixtures, especially so when it interferes with some other club's arrangements. The majority of societies try and hold their shows year after year on the same dates. When another society comes forward and claims a new date without notifying the society they are clashing with, it causes much unpleasantness, unnecessary trouble, and inconvenience.

WE all look for the patronage of the specialist clubs, and we are generally anxious to compete for the many valuable specials, etc., offered by those clubs, so would it not be well for us to let those clubs be a governing body, and before we decide on altering show dates, apply for their patronage, and then consult them re dates, etc.? I think if this was done early each season it would prevent all the trouble caused by shows clashing. Needless to say, when two or more shows are held on the same date, we cannot hope to see them all come out a financial success, as exhibitors cannot possibly support all such fixtures.

THERE is no doubt that up to the present the Irish Fancy has been forging ahead. And why should it not? I feel confident we are all anxious to work for its success, and thus for our own amusement and benefit. And the grand secret is "unity." By working in unison one with another our hobby is bound to go ahead.

I AM pleased to say that up to the present this is proving one of the best breeding seasons we have had for a long time. Everywhere I have gone I have received a good report as to numbers of young, etc. Dundalk and Dublin fanciers are doing exceptionally well.

WE have another new society on our list this year, Newtownards, and it is to be hoped that their show will be a success, and thus encourage others to enter our circle.

I WOULD suggest that all societies should have their shows at an early date put in the proper place, which is CAGE BIRDS "Show Dates Fixed" column. By this means we exhibitors will have time to arrange as to the number of exhibits, etc., we intend sending out.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

I have removed from St. Andrew Street to Botany Cottage, Galashiels, writes Mr. C. Lugton, sec. of the Galashiels O.S. Judges for our show on Nov. 18 are:—For Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodger (Colinton); for Border Fancies, Mr. J. Thomson (Newtongrange); for Norwich, British, etc., Mr. J. W. Nicholson (Carlisle).

I have been an enthusiastic fanciers for the past two years, writes Sergt.-Major C. J. Williams (Bulford Camp, near Salisbury). I have at present twelve birds and five eggs (which I expect to hatch out in a few days). Of the twelve birds all are Canaries (five are this year's), with the exception of a Greenie and a Bullie, from which I hope for great things in the Hybrid line. In any case, my endeavours —and I may say my hopes—are backed up by such invaluable publications as "Cage Bird Hybrids," "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding," the "Nutshell" Series, "The Yorkshire Canary," by Mr. H. W. Battye, and last, but not least, the weekly CAGE BIRDS.

FIRST FEATHER SHOWS.

Important Offer: Secretaries, Note!

We have decided again this year to accept advertisements of First Feather (young bird) shows at the reduced charge of 3s. 6d. per single column inch (2s. the half inch). And we will present a special prize of a framed coloured plate to all societies spending not less than 10s. 6d. in advertising their Young Bird Show in our columns.

Secretaries taking advantage of this offer should state very clearly in their advertisements the date, time, and place of the show. These particulars put before our readers will, without doubt, result in a much greater attendance at these early fixtures, and the making of new members, while the "gate-money" (where a charge is made) will benefit, and the sale of catalogues, too. This special cheap rate, of course, only applies to First Feather shows.

Secretaries should note that we can print at very favourable rates, show schedules, posters in colours, and ornamental prize-cards. Send for samples and prices.

Twitterings.

Our 19th annual show is fixed for Dec. 26, writes Mr. D. Griffiths, sec. of the Llanelly and Dis. P. P., etc., Society.

Insist on having Ramsden's Peppers; shun substitutes; Ramsden's Peppers are pure and wholesome, and the cheapest in use.—Advt.

I have now removed, and my address is 239, Low-waters, Hamilton, writes Mr. Dan Hamilton. Will secretaries and others take note?

Our first Nest Feather Show is fixed for June 28, and our second one for July 26, writes Mr. James Sloan, hon. sec. of the Ayr C.B.C.

We are holding our First Feather Show on July 1, with Mr. A. Hirst as judge, writes Mr. H. Boothman, sec. of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S.

We have decided to have a ramble to Broadbottom on Sunday, June 11, when fanciers and other friends are invited to join us, writes Mr. Jas. Cope, sec. of the Oldham and Dis. C.B.S.

We have secured the services of Mr. J. Admitt (South Normanton) to judge our open First Feather Show on June 24, writes Mr. Thos. Smith, hon. sec. of the Ilkeston and Dis. C.B.S.

The meeting of the Lancaster and Dis. C.B.S. fixed for June 3 stands postponed until to-day (Saturday, June 10), at 7.30, at the usual place, writes Mr. C. J. Cafferty, the hon. secretary.

Pendleton and Salford O.S. First Feather Show will be held on June 24, when Mr. Lythgoe will judge the Norwich and British and Mr. Turner the Yorkshires, writes Mr. J. Critchley, the sec.

Kindly note we are holding our First Feather Show on July 8, with Mr. T. Harrison (Altrincham) as judge, when an exhibition of cages by Mr. E. Massey will also be given, writes Mr. Fred Washbourne, hon. sec.

The Shipley O.S. are this season holding two First Feather Shows, and four Old Bird Shows. Particulars of these, together with the classification for each, are given in a list which may be had from the sec., Mr. A. Tillotson, 24, Commercial Street, Shipley.

At our last meeting, writes Mr. A. A. Gordon McLucas, sec. of the Pontypridd and Dis. F. and F.S., the date of our open show was fixed for November 8. Several new members were elected, and all fanciers are invited to attend our next meeting on June 10.

Take good advice and use only Sandiford's Royal Red; guaranteed absolutely pure; ground from our special blend of pods, which has taken thirty years' experience to find; look at advertisement columns; I could fill CAGE BIRDS with testimonials from nearly every successful exhibitor in the world.—Advt.

We note that the Metropolitan C.B.A., like the progressive society it is, is offering three silver-plated cups (for the champion, novice, and mule, hybrid, and British bird sections), to be won outright at the three shows to be held June 24, July 22, and Nov. 11. The hon. sec. is Mr. G. Harwood, 9, Frere Street, Battersea Park Road, S.W.

The Newburgh and Dis. Society (confined to the parishes of Newburgh, Abdie, Dunbog, Flisk, and Abernethy) are holding their annual exhibition in the East Shore Park on July 22. There will be ten classes for cage birds. It is expected there will be a large attendance at this popular fixture, which will be opened to the public at twelve o'clock noon.

In the "Avicultural Magazine" for June Mr. D. Seth-Smith, F.Z.S., writes on the Cinnamon Teal, which is very beautifully illustrated in colours by Mr. H. Goodchild. Mr. Goodchild contributes some notes on the series of water-colour studies of bird-life by Mr. G. E. Lodge, now being exhibited at the Vigo Street Rembrandt Gallery. There are other interesting articles and many illustrations.

We have engaged the following well-known judges to officiate at our Club Show, to be held in the Public Hall on October 28, writes Mr. Geo. Harper, sec. of the Bonnyrigg and Dis. C.B.S.:—For Scotch Fancies, Mr. D. Brown (Leith); for Border Fancies, Mr. J. Boag (Broxburn); and for Norwich and British, Mr. A. Thomson (Edinburgh). Will secretaries please note that I have removed to No. 6, Camp View, Bonnyrigg?

Metropolitan C.B.A. has again silver cups for champions, novices, British classes, and ladies, to be won outright this year, as customary. First show, June 24. Fanciers joining Saturday will be eligible. Subscription, 2s. 6d. yearly. The first five applications opened by Secretary Harwood, 9, Frere Street, Battersea, at Saturday's meeting will have their entrance fee paid. Envelopes to be marked "Membership," and contain the subscription fee. Golden opportunity.—Advt.

We hear that Mr. J. Kershaw (Llanrwst) is judging the cage birds at Llanbedr (Merioneth) show on August 12 next.

A very interesting meeting was held on May 31, writes Mr. Ed. Churchill, the hon. sec. of the Six Bells and Dist. F.S., when it was decided to hold our fourth annual open show on Oct. 18.

The Stratford and East London F.S. has issued its year-book for the season 1911-12. It contains the rules of the society, a list of the fixtures, the names and addresses of the members, etc. The sec. is Mr. W. Maxey, 16, James Place, Lower North Street, Poplar, E., who will be glad to communicate particulars to any intending members.

A copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners" has been sent to us by the Dead Letter Office. It was posted in Sheffield on May 15, addressed to a Mr. Milne, Cross House Grove, Loxley, and the envelope is marked by the postal authorities "Not to be Found." This book was not sent from this office, and we shall be pleased to return it to the person who posted it in Sheffield if he will communicate with us.

The Norwich Plainhead Canary Club's handbook for 1911 (a copy of which has been sent us by the sec., Mr. J. Hopkins, 126, Bury New Road, Bolton), contains the secretary's annual report for 1910; the 1910 balance sheet (showing £3 13s. 8d. cash in hand); the principal prize-winners in 1910; the rules of the Club; and the members' names and addresses. Applications for membership should be made to Mr. Hopkins.

IMPORTANT OFFER TO BIRD-KEEPERS.

Are Your Young Canaries Dying? Is Your Hemp Seed Good?

Note Mr. St. John's article on page 509.

A very serious matter for all keepers of birds, and especially those who go in for the breeding of Canaries or other birds, is broached by Mr. St. John in his article entitled "The Problem of Young Canaries Dying," which appears on page 509 this week. Mr. St. John gives it as his opinion that there is an unusual mortality amongst young Canaries this season, and that this is due to a supply of bad hemp seed (a seed largely used for rearing purposes) having come upon the market. We ourselves met with this bad hemp several months ago, but we had no idea that it had passed into such general use until Mr. St. John's article reached us. We have made further enquiries, and learn that towards the end of last year there was a scarcity of hemp in the market, and that this resulted in some consignments of very doubtful quality—a few, indeed, very bad kiln-dried seed—reaching this country.

We have no doubt but that much of this bad hemp seed has been sold by seed-dealers, etc., in complete ignorance of its true nature. But the result would seem to have been serious from the point of view of the bird-keeper. That bad seed quickly ends the existence of birds—ptomaine poisoning being one of the deadly resulting ills—cannot be questioned. Bird-keepers should make themselves acquainted with the appearance of good seed of every kind by consulting a practical hand-book on the subject (such as "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants for Cage Birds," published at these offices), and reject all with which they are not fully satisfied.

To get back to the matter of the hemp seed: we have managed to secure a quantity of the aforesaid bad hemp and also a quantity of hemp of first-rate quality. We will send a small sample of each (crushed, to show the kernel) to any interested reader who has doubts as to the quality of the hemp at present being used by him (or her), and who carefully complies with the following simple rules:—

1. Address your application to the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and write "Hemp Seed" on the top left-hand corner of the envelope.

2. Enclose with your application an envelope addressed to yourself (the applicant) and bearing a penny stamp, and also another penny stamp loose, the latter being to defray the cost of the samples and the boxes used in packing them.

We have only a limited supply of hemp seed available, and our offer, of course, is only open while this lasts, so send at once if you desire to take advantage of it. Don't forget to enclose the loose penny stamp and the stamped addressed (to yourself) envelope.

CORONATION HOLIDAYS — IMPORTANT NOTICE!

The public holidays in connection with the Coronation Festivities necessarily entail some alteration in the publication of CAGE BIRDS. Will readers and correspondents therefore please note that our issue dated June 24 will be on sale on Wednesday, June 21, and that all matter intended for inclusion in this issue must reach us on Monday, June 19, at latest.

Advertisers will greatly oblige us next week by also sending their announcements for the issue of the following week—that is, the 24th— at the same time.

As the Coronation week will be a difficult and trying period for printers and publishers, to say nothing of our own staff, we confidently look to our readers' kindly help (in the direction indicated above) in coping with the situation.

Thrush Nests in London Backyard.

We hear that Mr. G. Bailey, of The Vine, Broad Street, Stepney, has a Thrush which has built a nest in his backyard aviary, and is now sitting on eggs.

A Record Songster.

In the early summer months there is no more incessant songster than the gay Chaffinch. A reader heard one sing his little song twenty times in five minutes, which is over two hundred times in the hour. Even allowing intervals for refreshments, this would give many thousand times per day.

OBITUARY.

Just as we go to press we are grieved to learn of the loss sustained by Mr. W. H. Mugford, the popular hon. secretary of the London C.B.A., his father having passed away after a long and trying illness.

Mr. J. COULSON (Manchester).

I deeply regret having to inform you, writes Mr. J. Spencer, hon. sec. of the Ardwick and Dis. C.B.S., of the death of our worthy President, Mr. J. Coulson. The society has lost in him one of its most esteemed members, he being one of the founders of the society. He was widely known as an exhibitor of the Norwich Canary, also as the founder of the Ardwick Topper strain. His long past experience with the Fancy commanded attention, and his advice was always listened to with the utmost respect. He leaves a widow and three little children to mourn his loss. I am sure all fanciers will join us in sympathy with them in their sad bereavement.

Mr. W. WALLACE (Hamilton).

I am very sorry to inform you, writes Mr. S. Williams, secretary of the Burnbank and Hamilton West C.B.S., of the death of one of our old fanciers, namely, Mr. William Wallace, who passed away on June 2. The deceased was a well-known Border Fancy breeder, and had lately taken to Mule and Hybrid breeding; and at the time of his death he had two very nice variegated Linnet Mules in the nest and some very promising young Borders on the sticks. Deceased was always proud to talk of birds, and he was always delighted to take a walk for miles around to fanciers' rooms. He was a member of the Hamilton C.B.S. as well, and he will be missed from amongst them also. He was a widower, and leaves a daughter of eighteen and a son of seven years old to mourn his loss; to these all the members of the clubs tender their sympathy.

Tomtits in a Pump.

A Tomtit and his diminutive lady have built their nest inside the iron pillar of a pump in the Leazes Park, Newcastle, says the "Newcastle Daily Journal." The tiny folks gain entrance to their "wee bit hoose" by way of the handle. Fortunately for the safety of the household, the pump is but rarely used. As a precautionary measure against possible disaster, however, the handle has been tied down by one of the gardeners.

Will all societies desiring the National Green Marked Y.C.C.'s patronage kindly oblige by making early application, as we desire to proceed to allotment to facilitate societies' arrangements for winter shows?—F. Armstrong, hon. sec., 28, Victoria Buildings, King Cross, Halifax.

N.B.B. and M.C. Outing.

The photographs taken at the National British Bird and Mule Club's ramble on May 27 have come out splendidly, write Messrs. Plumbridge and Carr, the hon. secs., and anyone who would like a copy should send 2s. 6d. to Mr. Trower, 442, Caledonian Road, London, N.

Rearing Canaries.

Some Topical Hints for Beginners.

By J. OVENSTONE (Grangemouth).

At the outset let me state that what I write here is chiefly for the benefit of those starting Canary breeding, and although all the methods of procedure which I advise may not find favour with everybody, yet my success justifies me in my opinion that I am not far wrong.

I will commence at the time when the hen has laid her third egg, and is being "set." Return the eggs to the nest just before dusk, when the birds are settling down for the night, and the hen will very likely commence to sit straight away. I find that this is the best time to set eggs. If the cock is of a quiet disposition he should be left with the hen while she is sitting. If, on the other hand, he is constantly driving the hen off the nest, and otherwise tormenting her, he must be removed, and the hen allowed to hatch and rear the young by herself.

Testing the Eggs.

At the end of a week the eggs can be tested to see if they are fertile. If, when held up to the light between the forefinger and thumb they appear quite dark, they are fertile; if they appear clear they are unfertile. If they should prove unfertile it is just as well to let the het sit the full time, and then take them away. Separate the birds for a few days, and feed pretty liberally; then give them another chance. If the eggs prove to be fertile disturb the hen as little as possible. Here let me say that no bird should be moved off its eggs for the owner to look at them; a chance for this should be taken when the hen is off feeding.

The young make their appearance by about the thirteenth day. A sharp look-out must be kept at this time, as when the young are first hatched they are often lifted out of the nest when the hen comes off to feed. If this should happen, don't throw the youngster away because it may look dead; take it in your hand, and either breathe on it, or hold it before the fire, and if there is any life in it, it will very soon revive. Then put it back under the hen as quickly as possible.

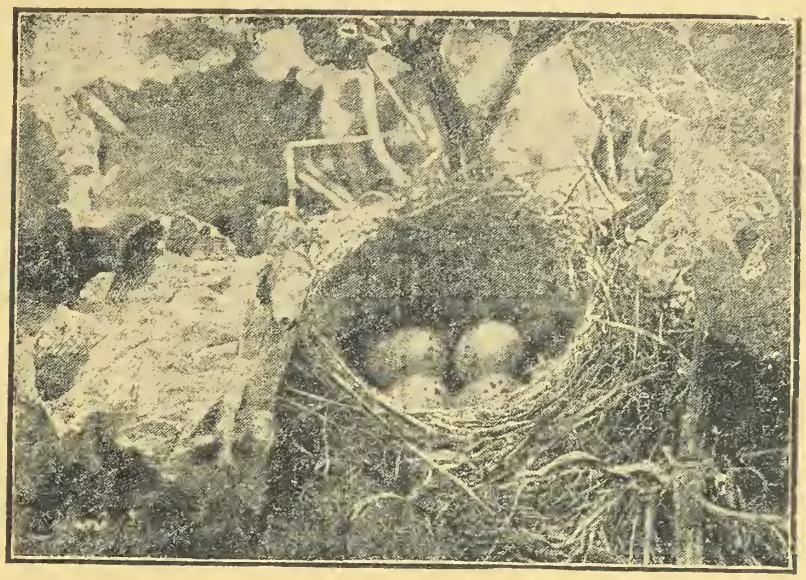
The Question of Food.

The food should now consist of egg-food (which should be supplied daily, and as often every day as possible), and soaked rape seed. The latter is prepared by putting a small quantity of rape seed into a jug, or similar vessel, covering with cold water; let it soak for twenty-four hours; then take it out and put into a sieve, and wash well with clean water; leave out the quantity required, and dry as well as possible by rubbing it on a towel, the rest to be put back into the jug and filled up with clean water again. I may say that for the first round I use this in place of green food, as at this time about the only available food is the dandelion, which, although I believe it to be a grand "conditioner" for all kinds of birds, I am forced to admit is not suitable as a green food for feeding young birds. Tender young lettuce I give, if procurable. Watercress is advised by some, but as I have had no great experience with this, I will say nothing about it but this: if it is used, it should be well washed so as to get rid of all impurities; then dabbed till nearly dry. Hemp seed should now be given liberally, with, of course, canary seed.

When the young are hatched the parents should be disturbed as little as possible, as, although some birds do not resent this, others are so nervous that the least thing upsets them. Many birds are blamed for being bad feeders, whereas, in my opinion, the fault does not lie with the birds, but with the breeders themselves. It stands to reason that a parent bird's natural instinct is to feed and protect its young, but, owing to the way some breeders are constantly meddling with their birds, disaster often follows. One can easily tell if the young are being properly attended to. When their skin is nice and glossy, and they appear like little balls of wool, they are all right. If the young should die both parents rearing them, for the next round remove the cock birds, as some hens feed best when left to themselves.

When the young are about three weeks old they will be beginning to hop about. A sharp look-out must now be kept on the hen in the event of her showing signs of going to nest again, as she is liable to start plucking the young. If this should happen they must be removed along with the cock, when she has laid her complement of eggs, or else be placed in a nursery cage to be fed through the wires till able to feed themselves.

Menu for the Youngsters.



At the end of four weeks the young will begin to feed themselves. Food should then be as follows: Egg food, soaked rape, and crushed hemp seed. Don't give any green food, or trouble will ensue. Wean the youngsters gradually on to the hard seed, but, even when they are cracking the seed, don't stop the egg food all at once, but gradually. A piece of bread soaked in scalded milk is an excellent substitute. When once they are fairly on to hard seed they should be put into a large flight, as nothing is better for them than plenty of exercise.

If the variety of bird kept requires colour feeding this must be commenced when the young are about nine weeks old for the first nest, and a little earlier for the succeeding nests. Give the colour-feed according to the directions of the vendors. Begin supplying it very weak, gradually bringing it up to full strength. When the young are about to drop into the moult, should any appear a little thick, a small piece of bread soaked in scalded milk should be given, sprinkled with sugar. This, if given for two or three days, will generally put matters right.

Sorting out the Show Birds.

About halfway through the moult any which show signs of developing into show birds should be placed in single cages to steady down and finish the moult. A sharp look-out again should be kept for any signs of plucking where a few birds are kept together, as when once this is started the birds generally completely spoil one another. Try and spot the culprit, and remove it at once. A supply of ripe mouse-ears, shepherd's purse, or plantain stalks will help to keep them amused, and at the same time be beneficial to their health.

The bath should be given on all suitable days, that is when the weather is mild and clear. It should be given as early in the day as possible so as to make sure that the birds are dry before roosting time. The cages should be covered by very thin muslin; this keeps the strong rays of the sun off the birds, as well as keeping them clean, thereby doing away with the necessity of hand-washing, for the first show or two. Should you decide to exhibit procure show cages of the standard make. See that the birds are thoroughly clean, and in good condition. Visit the show yourself, if possible, and by comparing your birds with the winners see where yours fail or excel. Anyone entering the Fancy should join a society in the district, and, if it is an up-to-date one, much valuable information will be obtained.

The Problem of Young Canaries Dying.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

So far during the present season there seems to be such an abnormal number of cases of young birds dying in the nest at about a week old, whilst receiving every attention from their parents, who were feeding well up to the last, or as long as the young could be persuaded to take food, dying, too, in cases where there was no apparent fault on the part of the owner in the matter of feeding and management, that I have, after very careful consideration, come to the conclusion that only one thing needs very careful watching to prevent such losses. I am, therefore, giving the matter this prominent notice in order that it may come under the eye of all sufferers, who may, by taking the necessary steps to cut off the cause, be enabled to save at least a portion of the last broods.

The Suggested Cause.

In my own mind I am quite convinced that the vast majority of these losses are due to a stale and rancid quality of hemp being unwittingly employed in the feeding of the young. This probability was first suggested to my mind by the apparently strict consistency with which the deaths begin to appear coincident with the time when hemp is, or should be, added more liberally to the dietary of the parents; and week after week this probability has been strengthened until, with me, it amounts to a practical certainty, and prompts me to give this note of warning in the hope that many hitherto disappointed breeders may take the necessary steps before it is quite too late to retrieve their ill-luck this season.

Two and Two Together.

Of course, this suggestion carries with it another: Is the quality of hemp seed on the market so generally bad as to warrant the charge against it being made? In reply to such a question I would reply unhesitatingly: Yes. For many months past I have had sent to me scores of samples of hemp for examination from all parts of the country, and with almost unfailing consistency the seeds have been in a condition of rancidity which rendered them totally unfit for adult birds to eat. What then must be the effect upon the delicate frames of young Canaries a few days old?

My knowledge of these samples presents the very strongest circumstantial evidence that the suggestion made as to its baneful effect upon the results of the breeding season are not only warranted, but called for. It would really appear to be the case that a tolerably good quality of hemp seed is something of a rarity on the market, and has been so for some time past. Whatever the cause may be it is nothing short of a disgraceful imposition upon the public to supply them with hemp seed for feeding purposes like many of the samples I have examined.

A Case in Point.

To give only one case in point, which is illustrative of many others; a fancier sent me a sample to examine some months ago, saying that his birds had been dying rapidly since he began using the seed from a certain stock of his dealer, and that he had complained of it to the dealer, who assured him that the seed had been analysed and was certified to be good. Not being satisfied, and the birds not improving, he sent me a sample. It was quite one of the worst samples that have been through my hands. At least 75 per cent. of the kernels when the seeds were opened were absolutely rotten, and in many cases the decay had gone so far that the husk contained nothing but a little brown ball of dust in place of what was once the kernel. So much for a dealer's mere assertion on the point.

Good Hemp and Bad.

It should be a very easy matter for any fancier to assure himself of the quality of the hemp he is buying. It may look all right and appear sound externally, but it feels rather "light" when handled. But the real test should be to break open a number of the kernels. If good and sound the kernel will be covered with a greenish film, and the kernel itself will be of a nice milky white colour, full of oil, when smashed between the thumb nails, and having no disagreeable taste at all when chewed in the mouth. If it appears to be lacking in oil, and the white kernel is of a dull, somewhat mealy appearance, it is stale and past its prime as feeding stuff. From this point it gradually assumes a light brown appearance in place of the milky-white, and goes through all shades until it is a dirty dark brown "pasty" mass, and later on dries to a powdery substance.

The only safe rule is to reject it as soon as it assumes the dull mealy white appearance. If the real sound stuff, with a bright milky-white kernel, cannot be obtained, then it will be far better to reject hemp entirely, and use some such substitute as plain dry biscuit powder, soaked rape (taking care this does not become sour), bread and milk, or soaked dog biscuit; or even rely upon the egg-food alone. By this means I am convinced much loss will be avoided in the late broods.

An important announcement on this subject will be found on page 508 this week—Editor.

Swallows in the Isle of Man.

The rocks near Port Soderick, in the Isle of Man, afford a refuge for innumerable Swallows. Their nests on these rocks are inaccessible by the ordinary tourist. Occasionally a stone thrown may reach a nest, but on the whole the Swallows are safe in these inaccessible rocks. The birds fly over to Douglas and other island towns in search of food, and in the River Douglas (says a writer in the "Manchester Courier") they may be seen in the company of the Seagulls, the former picking up the carrion from the shallow bed of the river, and the smaller bird catching gnats just overhead.

The Young Naturalist.

*The Brave Wrens.

In our garden we have a summer house, in which some Wrens have built a nest. One windy day we found the nest lying on the ground, looking like a ball of dry grass. We replaced it. The next day I saw the little builders busy with their work. Then a little Owl came and pulled it down. I put it back again, and even this did not daunt the builders, for after this some eggs were laid, and now they are sitting in peace.—Beatrice Garner, age 12, Bannold, Waterbeach, Cambs.

*Attacked by Rooks.

At 6.30 a.m. on Saturday, May 6th, a large bird passed over our house, followed by two Rooks, who were continually attacking it as it flew. One of them appeared to be especially vicious towards it. First it turned one way, then another, trying to escape from its tormentors, but they were still after it until out of sight. My dada told me the bird was a Crane, which had no doubt passed over the rookery at the bottom of our street, and the Rooks had attacked it to drive it from their nests. There were several nests there, and the Rook which appeared to be the most vicious was no doubt the male bird.—Sent by D. Badcock, age 12, 66, Lessingham Avenue, Upper Tooting, S.W.

The Greedy Jackdaw.

An aunt of mine who lives at Preston, Lancs., has a Jackdaw who is very greedy by nature. One afternoon my aunt went out, and on returning found that it had eaten two cakes, and the crumbs were left on the floor. The Jackdaw must have opened his cage door, and, seeing the window open, he must also have flown out. Aunt was in an awful "stew." But to her surprise next morning he was in his cage, with four worms, which he had, I expect, gone to get.—F. J. Bravery, age 15, 15, Clermont Terrace, Preston Park, nr. Brighton.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9).—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES.

Roller Losing Feathers.

E. H. S.—Examine the cage well for red mite, and if any are discovered eradicate them as advised to another correspondent this week. Also catch the bird and examine it well for the presence of grey lice. If these are troubling the bird, which is not unlikely, you will soon become aware of the fact upon holding the bird in the hand for a minute or two, as the insects will soon be running about your hand. In this case dust the bird liberally all over with some good insect powder, dusting it well under the feathers. Then roll the bird up in a small handkerchief, leaving only just the beak free for breathing, and lay the bird in this condition in some safe place—inside an old cage is best—whilst you well wash its cage with a solution of Jeyes'. Then release the bird, and let it shake and preen itself before returning to its own cage. Afterwards add a few drops of quassia extract to its bath three times a week for a time. Anoint the bare places twice a week with sulphur ointment. You are not feeding the bird correctly. Give a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Three times a week for the next fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. Give green food daily. After the first fortnight give the bread and milk, without sulphur, once a week, or an equivalent quantity of crushed sponge cake, or egg food, and a pinch of mixed seed once a week, in addition to the staple diet.

Ragged Plumage.

A. J.—It is undoubtedly due to red mite attacks—minute parasite insects which trouble birds a good deal, and are often unsuspected. Examine cage well and if you find any places, especially around a joint, crack, or crevice of any kind, covered with a white powdery-looking substance, you may be sure there is a colony of mite harbouring close by. Carefully rake out with a pin on to a piece of white paper any hole, crack, or joint, pivot of door, and under ends of perches, and you will doubtless find plenty of sport going in killing the runners. After doing this thoroughly inside and out—you will, of course, have removed the bird to a temporary cage—flush all the harbouring places with paraffin—or petrol if you have such a thing handy, which you must apply in the open air—and allow the cage to dry in the sun, which will complete the work of destruction. Then wash out with soapsuds or a weak solution of some carbolic disinfectant, and when dry the bird may be returned. Do not forget to pay attention to the wall and nail or hook where the cage has been hanging. Add a few drops of quassia extract to the bathing water two or three times a week for a few weeks. No other treatment is necessary. But if bird appears weakened by the pests, a scrap of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week for a week or two, and 20 drops Chemical Food in the water every second day for a week, will do good. The plumage may not show much improvement until the bird moults, but will come all right then.

Hen Sneezing (A.B.W.).—Have you been keeping the bird in a warmer temperature than it was accustomed to before you had it. This would partly account for such symptoms, as also would frequent fluctuations, such as occur when a bird is kept where it feels the heat from a fire during the day which is extinguished at night. Aim at keeping it in a regular temperature; that is, now, in a room where no fire at all is kept, and in a bright and well ventilated place. Give it a small piece of bread and milk, with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with maw seed three times a week for a fortnight, and on the alternating days in the first week add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the drinking water. If this is not quite effectual wait until the young are on their own hook, and then give her 20 drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and three of eucalyptus oil in the water, well shaken together, every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary.

Report (Miss V. O.).—Thanks for letter. Glad to hear birds are all right now. To keep the young thriving, pay strict attention to the quality of the seeds supplied, especially hemp, and to the egg food, as previously suggested, keeping it rather on the dry side, and as soon as the birds are doing for themselves, discontinue it and substitute dry crushed biscuit, bread, and milk, or a little scalded dog biscuit made into a crumbly mass, two or three times a week.

Hoarseness (H. Tite).—The voice will in all probability gradually get clear again as the bird regains its former strength and condition. See that it is not exposed to any draughts, but keep it in a bright, airy, and healthy place. Add 20 drops of whisky, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and half as much chlorate of potash to its drinking water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. After this do not give soft food more than once a week. You seem to be feeding too highly for a single bird. Give a little green food daily.

Trouble at Laying Time (Stultus).—This trouble may be partly due to the hen being a young (late hatched) one, but as you say she is extra well fed, is probably chiefly the result of over-feeding. If she goes to nest again try to limit her to a rather spare diet with a fair amount of green food for a week or so before she is expected to commence laying, and give a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea in the drinking water every second day for a week. You should strictly avoid dandelion as green food for this hen. Chickweed will be quite the best, but watercress or lettuce will do very well. For a week or so before laying get a little old mortar; smash it up and strew it on the sand on the floor of the cage, and also add 20 drops of Chemical Food to the water every second day.

Standing on One Leg (Nimrod).—Take careful note of the condition of the bird's claws. I suspect they are much overgrown and hamper the free use of the foot. If this is the case, cut them back with a sharp pair of nail scissors as described in a reply a fortnight ago. Do not cut close up to the vein to cause bleeding. Before doing this bathe the foot for a few minutes, until quite clean, in a strong solution of boracic acid; dry gently, and anoint sparingly with zinc ointment. Do the bathing and anointing in any case, and repeat it once or twice at intervals of one day.

Two Queries (R.T.B.).—(1) How did the bruising occur? If, as I suspect, the bird accidentally stepped upon, or something of that kind, the structure of the foot must have been seriously injured, and will require some little time to recover after the outer skin is healed, even if it does quite recover. Your best course is to keep the bird quite quiet in a moderate sized cage, and leave the repair of the injury to Nature. If a valuable bird, you might try bathing once a day with a solution of the extract of wych hazel of the strength advised on bottle, or paint it instead with a feather dipped in the neat extract. But the risk of further injuring the foot in catching the bird may make this scarcely worth while attempting. (2) It is impossible for me to say how many hens, or rounds, any given cock may be allowed to fertilise without injury. It depends solely upon the strength, age, and vigour of the individual. But any strong healthy cock, in his prime, should quite safely manage two hens, three rounds each, or three hens two rounds each, in one season without assisting in bringing up any of the young.

Various (Numskull).—Hand feeding is your only remedy when both parents totally refuse to feed if you have no other pair to which you could transfer them to be fed and reared. The usual egg food, one part egg to two parts bread crumb or crushed biscuit (or one part of egg, bread, and biscuit may be used), is the best food. Make it into a rather moist paste just solid enough to pick up comfortably on the end of a bit of wood trimmed to a spatula shape, and of a convenient size for introducing the food into the gaping beaks. A sprinkling of maw seed may be added to the food, and when the young are 10 or 12 days old you may add a little soaked rape, but be careful it does not become sour. I do not care about adding rape earlier than this, on account of the quantity of husks which find their way into the crop. I think it might have been kindest to put the one with broken leg out of its misery. I expect Nature will have stepped in and done so by the time this appears. It is impossible to tell whether, if the bird survives, the leg will recover its normal functions. That depends solely upon the position and character of the fracture.

The intervention of the Whitsun holidays makes it impossible for us to get all the Queries received answered in time for publication in this issue. They will be dealt with, however, next week.—EDITOR.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Crow Nearly Bare (H. Mallmann).—I hope the bird is not being pestered by parasites. This often happens without owners suspecting their presence. Spray the bird well (especially the affected parts) on three or four successive days, with the following: One dram of sulphuretted potash in a pint of warm water. Or gently wash the affected parts with this.

Sexing Nestling Starlings (S. Glasgow).—There is no means of accurately telling the sex of nestling Starlings; cock and hen are alike in the young of practically all species. If there should be a youngster which looks better developed and more forward than the others, choose this, and you stand a fair chance of having a cock.

Thrushes Feeding Young in a Cage (W. Welton).—The old birds will feed the young until the latter can pick up for themselves. You want to protect the babies from sun and storms, and when they begin to get about, put food and water inside their cage. I have found a few mealworms and large caterpillars (not the hairy kind), and well-scoured gentles first-rate for inducing them to "pick up"—mix these things amongst a little good quality insectile food prepared in the usual way. Consult the "Nutshell" handbook on the Thrush (post free 2½d.), or Mr. Norman's book on "Softbills" (post free, 1s. 1d.) for full details of feeding and management when adult.

The Case of a Linnet (T. Keating).—Why your bird should be continuously casting its feathers is a puzzle to me. You say it is the second or third time this year that it has gone partially bare. This is extraordinary, and I have never met such a case before. Your feeding is not at fault. I suppose you would know if the bird's cage is infested with red mite or bird lice? I may say that a "warm corner in a kitchen" is not a good spot for any British Finch; and these more than ordinarily hot quarters often make them "soft in feather," as fanciers term it. I should find another spot for the bird, and give a course of the tonic recommended J. C. Hoyle this week. The cage, of course, must be quite clean—parasites will bring on feather troubles.

Redstart Under a Canary (Redstart).—The Redstart is not a particularly valuable cage-bird, so far as monetary value goes, that is, four or five shillings when recently caught and about double after getting steady and used to cage life; a really first-class moulted exhibition specimen will fetch about £2. Six pounds were paid for one last show season, but this was an extraordinary price, and buyers at such a figure are as scarce as black diamonds. The Redstart is an insectivorous bird—entirely so as regards the feeding of the young—and I don't suppose for a moment that your hen-Canary will rear the youngsters she has hatched. I have never known one to rear an insectivorous bird. Probably they will be dead ere you read this. If not, well mix a good proportion of live ants' eggs amongst the egg-food, and give very little seed of any kind.

Rape Seed (W. E. C.).—The rape seed does not strike me as a particularly good sample, but I should hesitate to say that it caused the illness of your birds—I could not discover reason for thinking so. I should not overdo the dandelion, but vary it with seeding shepherd's purse and chickweed, which are better for regular use (in my own opinion, that is). Give the bird which is still queer a teaspoonful of syrup of buckthorn in three tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Leave this on the cage for 24 hours. Then give two half-teaspoonful doses on alternate days (plain water in between). Stop the linseed and hemp for a time, giving Canary, rape, and teazle only, with a little of a mixture of maw, plantain, gold of pleasure, and white lettuce (equal parts) frequently.

Willow Wrens and a Linnet (J. C. Hoyle).—Willow Warblers (or "Wrens," as you term them), are sometimes kept in captivity, but they are delicate little things, and should be attempted only by a skilled fancier who is in a position to provide proper food. I notice you say you are "quite a beginner." Well, Willow Warblers ought not to be beginners' birds. They can be hand-reared on equal parts live ants' eggs and finely mashed hard-boiled yolk of egg, made into a creamy consistency by the addition of milk when about to feed. The Linnet you should spray now and again (bird sprays are sold at most bird shops). Give it the green-foods and "tit-bit" mixture mentioned in the "Nutshell" booklet. For medicine, get from a chemist one ounce of compound syrup of hypophosphates B.P. (Fellow's syrup), and stir 8 to 10 drops into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, giving this in a glass or earthenware vessel only. Give for three days (fresh daily, of course), then every second day (plain water in between) for a period of 10 to 14 days. If merely, as you say, a case of "out of condition," this tonic will pull him together.

A Warm Room Problem (E. E. S.).—I am afraid I am not in a very good position to advise, for I have never had occasion to keep my British seed-eaters in a warm living room as a regular thing. I expect your birds have to be content with small cages, too, and so get no opportunity of exercise. These two things naturally predispose to a fat condition. Your own experience, in fact, confirms this. Excess of rape I have always found has a tendency to make a bird's droppings copious and unpleasant—especially English rape. You might try the recipe you mention, but I should not give flax at all, under the circumstances. Substitute for this a half-part of good ripe teazle. For the Goldies, try teazle two parts, canary one part, and linseed half-part. A dessert-spoonful of cracked sunflower seed at week-ends (say Sunday) and a large teaspoonful of hemp in the middle of the week (say on Wednesdays). They will thrive quite well on this menu.

Testing Eggs, etc. (Algol).—To test eggs for fertility is a very easy matter. After they have been sat upon for six or seven days, hold them 'twixt finger and thumb up to a strong light (a well-lighted window, or a gas jet, etc). If the light shows through them, they are unfertile; if quite dark (opaque) they are fertile. If "clear," the yolk can plainly be seen floating inside the shell as the egg is turned around. If the interior is not opaque, but is of a light brownish tint, then the egg is addled (or the development of the chick has for some reason or other stopped at an early stage). Sometimes there is a dark area at one end, and a light one at the other, which means that the contents have dried up (often as the result of a fracture of the shell, or a tiny hole in it). An experienced fancier can successfully test for fertility after the egg has been incubated two or three days; but to make absolutely certain, the testing is better left until about the sixth day. With regard to your Greenfinch, probably it has wrenched its leg accidentally by getting a claw fast somewhere or other, in which case interference on your part is not called for—Dame Nature will effect a cure in due course. I take it there is no sore place or wound on the foot, or damaged or pulled out nail (you do not mention anything of this nature). Put the perches low down and food and water in easily accessible positions.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Purchasing a Parrot.

F. M. Hall.—Purchasing a Grey Parrot is very much of a lottery, unless one gives a good figure for an acclimatised bird. Nevertheless, the bird offered you is certainly a true Grey Parrot, and with the warranty and period of approval you should be fairly secure from disappointment, and with care the bird should do well, and getting it at this time of year everything is in its favour. The vendor will, of course, give you details of treatment, which you must follow, at any rate, for a time. You would afterwards find our Nutshell Booklet, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free from our manager, a great help in establishing the bird. My opinion is that both sexes speak equally well, but there is a good deal of individualism among Parrots, and some are much more teachable than others. The bird will already be speaking a word or two, though it may stop for a bit in a strange place, as soon as it settles down and becomes tame; keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation. Also teach it, by constant repetition, words and short phrases, and it should soon increase its vocabulary. For a time you must be quiet and steady when in its vicinity and attending to its wants, but as soon as it knows you, and has become fairly tame, then you can commence to train it. Do not keep it in a stuffy corner, but you must not subject it to draught. If in doubt on any point, write me again.

Parrot Laying Eggs.

Caird.—While not exactly common, such instances are certainly not unique. Of course, there is a risk of egg-binding at these periods under the conditions of cage life. You do not give me any idea how you've been treating the bird, so how can I tell you if you are keeping it too warm? Certainly, it must not be subjected to draughts at all, when by dropping wings, listlessness and apparent ill-health, it indicates that it is about to lay again. A dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful) in the drinking water would help, to be followed by a course of chemical food—you had better adopt this treatment now. It would be wise to keep a piece of cuttlebone, also a lump of old mortar rubbish hanging in the cage. Under the conditions of cage life, and at such long intervals, egg laying is quite an ordeal; but once this is safely accomplished the bird usually soon picks up again. Anointing the vent with sweet oil should assist, but do not use sufficient to make the plumage really greasy. You should find our Nutshell Booklet, "The Grey Parrot," very helpful, 2½d. post free from our manager. If you find it necessary to repeat query, please supply full details as to feeding and treatment.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

James Hughes.—Inflammation of the bowels, complicated with pneumonia, accounted for death of hen Canary, due to an organism which gains access by the digestive system. Death is due to the production of ptomaines or poisons generated by these organisms, hens whilst nesting being specially predisposed.

W. H. Ashton.—Meningitis, or inflammation of the coverings of the brain. The loss of feathers was due to irritation from nervous causes. I cannot suggest the cause, but such lesions may result from injury at some time; possibly it may have originated in this way.

W. Lear.—A most advanced case of septic fever. Medicinal treatment would be quite futile. Preventive measures are most important, such as isolation of apparently healthy stock, young birds particularly. It is extraordinary that a bird so badly affected should only have shown signs of illness a few hours prior to death, for the disease must have existed at least a month.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Club Notices (James Cope; C. J. Cafferty).—Your notices of society meetings arrived too late (on Thursday) for insertion in our last issue. We go to press on Wednesday during the summer months, and all club notices, reports, etc., should reach us on Tuesday to be certain of publication in our issue of the same week. Will secretaries and other officials kindly remember this?

The Squirrel (P. T. Harvey).—Your question will be found answered this week in the correspondence columns.

A Gift (Bullfinch Lover).—Glad to bear the news, and you have our best wishes for success, if you decide to pair one of the hen Canaries with the cock Bullfinch.

A Blind Canary (J. H. Murray).—The bird with the white speck (cataract) in its eye is beyond cure; nothing can possibly be done. It is interesting (in one sense) to hear that the male parent of this hen went blind in the same way, for cataract has been held by many Crest breeders to be hereditary.

Mixing Whitening (W. J. W.).—Have duly inserted your letter in the correspondence columns, and no doubt it will bring you the desired information.

Some Suggestions (J. Kay).—We much appreciate your well-intentioned suggestions, and assure you that they will receive every consideration, and be carried into effect if it is found possible to do so.

BREEDING RESULTS OF THE 1911 SEASON.

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

Border Fancies in Newcastle.

The Border Fancy Canary in this district has a few staunch supporters, who are doing their best for the "wee gems." Chief among these is Mr. T. Chapman, who has ten pairs up. He has only had a fair season so far. He has fifteen on the sticks, sixteen doing well in the nest, and five hens are sitting, due to hatch in a few days. One very nice buff was put aside for nest feather show. Unfortunately his favourites, the Scotch Fancy, have not done well, and from the first round he has only managed to get two on the sticks—one a very nice yellow, which he thinks will do well if it gets through the moult. Mr. R. Young is also a red-hot Border Fancier, and has little else in his room excepting a few pairs of Cinnamons. He has done fairly well. He has twenty on the sticks, twelve in the nests, and six or seven hens still sitting. He has bred some very nice Greens, as good as any he has had; and he has a few good Cinnamon Borders. Mr. Johnson, every one knows, is hot on the Green ones. He has thirty on the sticks (including a few Cinnamons), twenty in the nest, and four hens sitting. He has a few clinkers which will be heard of later on. Mr. Montgomery has twelve pairs up, fifteen on the sticks, fifteen in nests, and about thirty eggs due to hatch. He is doing fairly well. He has a yellow cock shaping to be as good as his last year's one. A buff self-green we saw we liked very much; also a clear buff, which was promising very well indeed; it had grand quality, and was well tapered away. Mr. MacDonald has six pairs, twenty-one on sticks, and three hens sitting; he has also a few Greens promising very well. Mr. Usher has four pairs. We were sorry to find he has had bad luck, the result of his being from home so much. We hope his luck will turn during the next round. Mr. Peel has, we understand, six pairs, and about nine on the sticks doing well. Mr. Potts has seven hens up with five cocks, and has seven on the sticks, nine in the nest, and five hens sitting. He has lost a lot of young ones, having lost about seventeen due to hens not feeding; but the same hens are doing as they ought to now. Mr. Harvey is a Scotch Fancy enthusiast pure and simple, and everything else is sacrificed in their interests. He has done well this year, both in numbers and in quality. He has five on the sticks, and three of these are good ones. One, a rare buff, is a rasper, and when through the moult it ought to knock a few out. We wondered, if it was shown at the nest feather show, whether it would have stood a chance for the Cup. He has two hens down again, seven Borders on the sticks, and two in the nest. It was strange to find in this fancier's room two Crests. Some unlucky fancier has found a Good Samaritan, as the Crests had been well attended to indeed, and were thriving well. They showed every sign of being good ones as well. Mr. Little has been very unfortunate with his Scotch Fancy, but has ten hatched out this week; and these were doing well when we saw him. We wish him better luck this round. Mr. Little is a fancier as well, having twelve Borders in the nest and four on the sticks, and these are only a few among others. Mr. Reed has done first rate, and has twenty-seven on the sticks. Mr. Coutts has become enamoured with the Green Borders, and well he may, as it would be hard to find a bird to beat a Green Border; and there is much to say in their favour for the fancier who lives in Coaly Tyne District. He has three pairs up—two pairs Green and one pair Clear. He has seven on the sticks, four in the nest, and some sitting. One very nice buff self Green we liked very much. He has also some nice Crests and Crest-breds doing well. Mr. Currah has had the bad fortune to have to shift his home, with the usual result. But things are now in clock-work order, and the birds are doing well. Having eight pairs up, he should get a few before the close of the season. He has only three on the sticks. Mr. Smith had a houseful when we saw it, with a dozen cocks and fifteen hens. He has thirty-one on the sticks and thirty-three in the nest. Three hens are sitting and some building again. Two nice buffs and a yellow are set aside for nest feather show. Someone will have to look out. Mr. Smith has the bird fever badly. Mr. Shepherd has two pairs of Green Borders up, but has had the misfortune to lose one of his hens—his best one, as is usual in such a case. He had only four Borders hatched out the morning we called. The writer had good luck during first round—fourteen on sticks out of fifteen hatched; but he lost two good hens. The second round his bad luck has returned, hens not feeding this time—for a change.—J. N. F. Scott (Newcastle).

PLUMSTEAD & WOOLWICH C.B.S

Lecture by Mr. G. Gardner on "Canary Heads and Tails."

The society had the pleasure on May 18th of listening to Mr. Gardner's lecture on "Canaries' Heads, and Canaries' Tails." After the ordinary business had been dealt with, Mr. Gardner was called upon to deliver his lecture, which has been looked forward to for some time. The subject I have chosen for my lecture, he said, is "Canaries' Heads, and Canaries' Tails," and I hope all present will appreciate it. To begin with, I should like to point out that one of the greatest bugbears with which the judges all over England have had to deal is the terrible failing in the head of the Plainhead. Fanciers, as it were, do not try to get what is known as the happy medium, and the result is they breed bad birds from good parents through not knowing how to pair them up. They put a pair of birds together thinking they know what they are doing, but the majority of them don't. The body may be all right, but when one comes to look at the head it is all wrong. There is an old saying "Comparisons are odious." The head is out of all comparison with the body. The fact is that while fanciers are trying to get a body with a good stout chest, etc., they have forgotten all about the "top." A good body with a head like a marble on a truss of hay, and with a stick for the neck, doesn't look very nice. What one must get is a neat head, short in feather, I mean, not browy, and clean from the beak, and, don't forget, in comparison with the body. A Norwich with a good body and a bad head is, in my opinion, absolutely spoilt. Matters, I am glad to say, are improving at present, and I hope they will keep on improving so that we shall have some really typical birds to look at in future on our show benches.

Breed for a head not too small, but in proportion with the other parts of the body, and if you breed for a short tail also, you will find that you have bred two of the most conspicuous points in the Plainhead variety. Long flights, also, are not what they ought to be. If you struggle for short flights, you will not get a long tail. When a bird has long flights, in nine cases out of ten it will have a long tail. The only way to prevent breeding this kind of bird is to refrain from pairing birds up which have long flights and long tails. Take, for instance, a long-barrelled, flat-headed, Yellow Norwich. This kind of bird would invariably breed youngsters having long flights and long tail, and the best thing to do is to get rid of them as soon as you possibly can if you want to make success. If you want short wings and short tails you cannot do better than use a thick-set buff green hen. I say buff green, because I have proved it is far more satisfactory than the yellow. For one reason, good yellow greens are few and far between.

Now for the tail. A good headed bird, with a good body, is to a marked degree spoilt if it possesses a long tail. What you fanciers want to do is, before you pair your birds up for breeding have a thorough good look round your birdroom and use a little discretion before you pair the birds up. Don't catch hold of the first pair you come to, and, because they are cock and hen, say they will do. It won't do. If one bird possesses weak points, find another to counterbalance them. Look after the heads and wings and the tails will look after themselves.

Just a few words about the Yorkshire. In this bird you have to breed for just the opposite to that in the case of the Norwich. Where the Norwich has to have a short tail, the Yorkshire is to have a long one. So, when I tell you always to breed for short tails, don't think I mean in all classes of birds. The same remark applies to the wings. Where a Norwich would look absurd with long wings and tail, so would a Yorkshire with short wings and tail. To breed birds to perfection requires patience and great attention. Don't try to go too fast, because if you do, you will very soon find yourselves falling over.

There is another bird I should like to mention—the Cinnamon. In my opinion it is one of the most charming birds we have. What better bird is there exhibited than a Cinnamon with feathers shining like the face of a Goldfinch Mule? The wings should be short and the tail short, with a fine bold face and eyes. There is not a bird for softness and depth of colour can beat a Cinnamon—but without a good head, wings, and tail it is nothing at all.

There is another point in regard to heads that I must speak about—that is, the Crest characteristic. The Crest wants a good wide skull. That is not all. You must have the feather as well. The body also must be generally thick, wings closely folded, and tail short. And the beak in this case must also be looked after. In a Crest, if the beak is short, wouldn't the crest look longer? You cannot manufacture short beaks, but with discretion and carefully watching your stock birds you can breed them.

In conclusion, I hope I have made my lecture quite clear to you, and that when next breeding season comes round you will think of what I have told you; if you do, we shall have the pleasure of knowing that the Plumstead and Woolwich fanciers at least know how to breed rattling good birds. A vote of thanks to Mr. Gardner was moved by Mr. Pawley, and seconded by Mr. MacLellan. Mr. Gardner replied, thanking the members for their attention. Meades and Woolgar, Hon. Joint Secs.

How to Mix Whitening.

Sir,—How do you mix whitening so that it will stick to the cage? All mine comes off and makes the birds look quite dusty and white. I have been told to try tallow or salt, but they are no good. Shall be glad if one of your readers will tell me the right way.

A Linnet Fancier's Difficulty.

Sir,—If your correspondent, Mr. W. James, will kindly communicate with me, enclosing stamp, I shall be pleased to give him such information as will, I think, relieve him of the "Linnet fancier's difficulty" he is troubled with, as I scarcely ever lose a bird of that species only from pneumonia, caused by excessive bathing. More Twin Canaries.

Sir,—I have been keeping Canaries for over twenty years, and have recently experienced what I have neither seen nor heard of before. A Norwich hen recently laid a very large egg, which I left in the nest with the chicks that hatched. She tossed it out on the fifth day, when I found it broken on the cage bottom. Upon examination I found it contained two perfectly formed birds, which appeared healthy, but why they did not hatch is beyond me.

A Simple Remedy for Red-mite.

Sir,—It is with pleasure I look forward to reading your valuable paper, Cage Birds, and to deriving the good there is to be got from its pages week after week. Sometimes I see queries as to how to kill that dreadful pest, red mite. I think all who keep birds of any kind in cages know that the weather we are having and the breeding season combined are just the time for red mite to multiply into millions. Well, if you think this simple recipe worthy of the publishing, I am pleased to give it. Take a 1lb. empty jam pot; fill it three parts full of paraffin lamp oil, and add one handful of salt. Mix these well together and apply with a paint brush round the joints of the cages. It has never failed me yet. To prove the effect of it, get one or two mites on the back of the hand, and touch them with the brush after dipping in the mixture. In conclusion, I have had pretty fair luck both in Canary breeding and in muling, this year being my second in the Fancy.

The Story of a Pet Bullfinch.

Sir,—I think your readers will be interested in the following charming account of a pet Bullfinch, which I read in the columns of "Country Life," to which journal it was sent by Miss Pamela Tennant. She writes: Chuffey touches a wide gamut of qualities, from envy, hatred and malice to the most canoodling endearments of love. Chuffey hates magnificently. The children know peace has fled from the room directly Chuffey assumes his hate-face. It changes his outline from a bunchy, well-groomed appearance to a lean line of malignant attack. The four-year old child stands with both plump hands shielding his eyes, demanding protection, or he pelts headlong from the room. The eight-year old child, insufferably teased by Chuffey will remain in the room, but wears the waste-paper basket inverted over his head as a protection; only thus can he shield his eyes from the repeated attacks of this pinch of life in feathers. Chuffey dominates the room. Sometimes the drawing-room door is opened cautiously and a child's voice asks, "Is Chuffey out?" Chuffey himself gives answer. In a swift curve of flight he alights on a picture, swearing. He bends down towards the opening and makes his hate-face. The door closes hurriedly. Alone in the room with his mistress, however, a hundred little endearing ways are manifested. He likes to rob her of her needle if she is sewing, and he often contrives to get it, and then how pleased he is! He holds his head high, and manages the needle as an acrobat holds a balancing-pole. He often alights close beneath his mistress's chin and stands on tip-toe to reach her lips. Sometimes he gives a little upward jab at her nose. That is a joke; and it always comes before a swift, joyous flight. He perches on her shoulder and stands on tip-toe to sip her glittering ear-ring. A queer drop of water that. He alights on the back of her chair and begins stealing a hair-pin. He is proud when he really gets one out, but it is invariably too heavy for him. It falls tinkling on to the floor; then down he dives after it, and there follows an immense amount of walking about, perforce tip-toe, with the hairpin as a kind of nose walking-stick. His mistress's hair stirs nest-building instincts. He will sometimes get hold of one long hair and go jumping gradually backwards with it along the sofa-top, with a dithering foolish expression of face, all the while giving queer little creedling noises. He gathers bunches of fluff off the carpet and wears them, like whiskers, on each side of his bill. But his chief claim to notice is his talking. He has three words that he says unmistakebly. They are "Come along, Chuffey," and they are said in a confidential and throaty tone of voice. He is very proud of this speaking, and interpolates the pretty tune he has been taught to pipe with this repeated self-encouragement. He swings his glossy tail, laterally, as he says it, and dances his bright body up and down. He bows his ebon cap on one side, fluffs out his fine feathers, crosses his small, pointed wings tightly below his pearl grey back, and pipes and talks repeatedly. If anyone looks at him after he has gone to bed, he makes a face at them. He likes the brass tags on people's shoelaces, and so strong is his bill that he once broke a bit out of a horn button. He takes a bath with surprising energy, and when he feels he has been out long enough he hops into his own cage to eat something. He will follow his mistress from room to room, and she loves him dearly; but she dreads the many dangers that are always round him, through the very freedom that he so enjoys, and she tries to forestall them. The passing foot, the swiftly rolled back chair, the closed window-pane that he does not account for, the looking-glass that he thinks is more room to be flown through, and the door about to be closed and he on the top of it—all these are Chuffey's dangers, and they surround him hourly. How long shall we keep you, Chuffey, with your dear and wicked ways?

What is an "Antiseptic Saline"?

Sir,—On reading Mr. Robert J. Elleby's notes on the "Beginner in the Canary Fancy," in Cage Birds of May 27, I notice he says he always uses an antiseptic saline. I write to ask him exactly what he means by this, and how to use it? I am only a novice in the Fancy, and I lost nearly all my young birds last season when they were moulting. I have twenty young birds now, and I would not like to lose them. A Novice.

A Remedy for Beetles Wanted.

Sir,—Could any of your readers help me? I removed into a fresh house three months ago, and found it was infested with beetles. I was advised to get a tortoise, which I did, but it has not had any effect. Is there any animal that can be kept in the house which will either kill or scare them? I should be very grateful to any reader for advice. Harold Taylor.

Keeping Birds in Cages.

Sir,—The successful starting of your admirable Cage Birds League (which should have the support of every bird-keeper) and its object of checking faddists who profess to see evil in bird-keeping, reminds me of a correspondence which took place some time ago in the "Birmingham Daily Mail." As this most likely did not come to your notice. I append copies of three letters which appeared in answer to a communication from a Miss Edith Green in which this lady deplored the caging of birds, etc. They voice my own opinions exactly, and relate some interesting experiences.

A Bournville Reader.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Edith Green" in to-night's "Mail" says: "Caged-up birds do not sing out of gladness of heart, but from very desperation at their inability to break the bars," etc. That birds in captivity will not sing from desperation every fancier knows quite well. It is a fact that, given proper treatment, many wild-caught birds will sing much better than their fellows under natural conditions. To refute the statement that it is cruelty to cage birds, it has been stated by eminent ornithologists that the average life of birds in captivity is some years longer than of those that are free. There are also hundreds of cases on record in which birds that have been caged have, after being liberated, returned time after time to confinement. To give one instance of this: Some time ago a friend of mine kept a number of wild birds in an otherwise unused room. The window of this room was always open, and although the birds flew about the buildings they always returned to the room to roost. Two of them have repeatedly "homed" from Birmingham Town Hall to my friend's house at Smethwick. It is also well known that birds breed quite freely in captivity. Surely Edith Green would not put that down to desperation also? Regarding blinded decoy birds, I may say that my business brings me into touch with practically every catcher in Birmingham, and also many others in various parts, but I have never seen a blinded decoy bird. As a matter of fact, the decoy bird, to be at its best, must not only hear but also see those to be trapped. Experience has taught me that as a class the bird-catcher is a humane man, his first thought always being for his captives. W. Gore.

Sir,—Though I do not go in for cage birds, I have seen a number of cage birds leading ideally happy lives, and I believe, having got over the first shock, they very soon settle down to, and really enjoy, their lives in spite of the altered state of things. Is it not a fact that cage birds in some instances have been offered their liberty and refused to take it? Many years ago the writer's mother possessed a Thrush which she had reared from the nest, a remarkable songster, which on a still day could he distinctly heard an eighth of a mile away, and if a light were turned on at midnight he would start singing with great vigour. Nothing but contentment with its lot could have accounted for his splendid song and beautiful plumage. Some years ago I saw a Blackbird which had been obtained through an advertisement, undoubtedly freshly caught and very wild; but after a day or two it settled down and became a splendid songster. I know an instance at present of a Thrush that was picked up and taken care of, and has grown into a magnificent bird. It is fed principally on bread and milk, and I never saw a bird in its wild state with better or cleaner plumage. I do not think the individual bird would care to go back to its wild life. Some years ago the writer of this letter had four Brown Owls. Two of them were reared in the same manner as kittens would be, and became great pets while they were young, and would perch on children's shoulders and call out to be fed. I kept four of these birds for several years, when I unfortunately lost them. They showed every sign of being contended with their lot, and were undoubtedly better supplied with natural food than when in the wild state. C. Harris.

Sir,—The above subject having come under discussion in your paper, I note we have the usual flow of twaddle condemning one of the most commendable and pleasure-giving hobbies to the town dweller of humble means. I would commend the keeping of a few birds to any man seeking a healthy and instructive diversion as a change from the toil in a factory. The Creator has provided birds enough and to spare, and instances of species becoming rare are due to destruction wrought by the gun, an instrument that catchers never employ. I contend that it is more humane to brighten the lives of people living in towns by allowing those so disposed to keep a few feathered pets, and so bring a little thought of the country to their minds by bird music. Queen Alexandra is, I believe, a keeper of caged birds, and surely if this noble lady can derive pleasure from them it is all the more reason why poor people should do so. No doubt your correspondents are well meaning in the interests of our feathered friends, but they are misguided when they condemn wholesale the keeping of birds in cages, as most are kept by those who love them. As regards the blinding of decoy birds, I do not believe it, and if it ever was practised generally, which I doubt, it is now as rare as a cock-fighting match. We cannot in these practical and progressive days give attention to all the ideas emanating from cranky people who are always attacking, from one point or another, our cherished liberties, without having more than a superficial knowledge of the matter they write about. My advice to them, if they have such a great amount of Christian fervour, is to direct their attention to the unenviable lives of thousands of town children who are daily insufficiently fed. This will afford them plenty of opportunity of doing real good to their fellow-creatures. Bird Lover and Keeper.

My Opinion of the Canary.

Sir,—Here is my opinion of the Canary, which may be taken for what it is worth. We have fanciers or breeders in almost every town and hamlet in the British Isles. These breeders, of course, have matters almost entirely to themselves. In February and March one could find all fanciers busy pairing their birds. In the course of two months they have young Canaries hatched which are brought up by their parents. And it is wonderful to see how the fanciers keep a watchful eye on these young Canaries, which get every bit as much attention as any infant from its fond mother. These young Canaries have given them whatever luxuries the fancier can think of; in fact, the birds are so dear to him that if they could speak and tell him what they want, he would give it them almost in a twinkling. They are watched from the moment they come out of the shell to the time of their leaving the mother; they become bosom friends of the owner. Then when the season is over (say about September) it is time for the owner to make his selections from his stock of young. The best birds are sorted out, and then colour-fed (with a patent tasteless cayenne) to give them a deep orange colour. By the time October is closing these little pets are sent out to shows both near and far. Sometimes they get very long railway trips, probably 100 miles, to these shows, where they are placed on benches in file, to compete with hundreds of others. If they return from their trip with a card of honour (say a 3rd, 2nd, or even a 1st prize), my word! how the owner whistles, shouts, and almost breaks every pot in the house, feeling he could clasp the birds in his arms, and squeeze the life out of them almost. Probably another man in the same town has got his birds back with no cards, no prize, "no nothing." What does this man do? Does he bang the birds on the floor or give them away? No. He gently places them in their snug cages upstairs, and still looks upon them with his usual kind thought and attention. Then, in course of another week, they are off again on a trip. But this time they return (from another town) bringing with them on their cages 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes. Remember, "There's corn in Egypt yet"; never despair. We will now leave the fancier or breeder. I should like to see a great many more of our cottagers fit up in their living rooms or sitting rooms a cage of one of these pets. It should be a nice roomy cage, not a small one. I think that where there is a Canary, and it is a good healthy male bird, there can be nothing nicer than to listen to his grand song. If he is warbling when you are in a nasty temper, it will assist you to "cool down"; and it will cheer you up in your troubles. On the other hand, if all is in nice order at home—your daughter playing the piano, your son assisting with a song (say, "Cradle of the Deep"), and the Canary trying to beat them both in the selection—the bird will be very useful for finishing off the top notes your son cannot fairly reach. There will thus be a grand homely trio always. And if mother is at home (alone) for the most part of the day, our pet Canary will always assist to pass the lonely hours away. So, in conclusion, let me advise every owner of a home to obtain a Canary when opportunity occurs. The Canary's diet is very plain and simple, even to a child's attention; and his requirements are almost next to nothing.

The replies to my advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS" number over 30. I had offers of every description. I had replies from Wales and Ireland.—J. W. Gillham (Chelsea).

"Cage Birds" is the very best paper ever printed for the Fancy. I have taken it in from the very first number, and I have always had good results when advertising in same.—Robert Ward (late Secretary of the Unity Small Bird Singing Club, Battersea).

Hopes of Goldfinch-Twite Hybrids.

Sir,—It may be of interest to hybrid breeders to know that I had the fourth egg this morning from a hen Twite paired to a cock Goldfinch. She has built her nest in a Roller travelling cage in one compartment of a double-breeder. I will let you know later if I have any young from this cross. I am living in hopes of having some young from them. E. Southwood.

Scottish Metropolitan (Open Derby) O.A.

Sir,—Re membership for 1911; there are yet over two hundred of our membership tickets to be accounted for, and, included amongst these are a few in the hands of fanciers whose names were on our roll last year. As Cage Birds has very kindly granted us the use of its columns to insert the full membership got together for the year, we would specially request those fanciers who have not yet replied to send on their decisions not later than the 14th to enable us to publish the names in issue of the 24th inst. We are pleased indeed to say that the number of members joined is a very large one. It was our set determination at the beginning of our season's work to make this the record year. One or two additional names will put us in this proud position. We will, therefore, be deeply grateful to fanciers sending in favourable answers.

The City of Glasgow O.A.

Sir,—The letters appearing in your last issue of Cage Birds must come as a great surprise to many who were not aware that such a "clique" existed as that mentioned by Mr. Gibb. But to a number in the Fancy it was common talk, and if inquiries were made at the Crosshill Club, some information could be got as to what took place at it over a bird said to be one of the party's. If my memory serves me aright, all special prizes were withheld at this show. I strongly appeal to members not to leave the society at this time, but to stick to the president, Mr. Black, and assist him to get this case settled, so that the society can cleanse itself from one of the most contemptible plots that have ever been attempted in the Fancy. For one thing, I can't free the president from blame, and that is: Why did he allow Mr. McFarlane's motion to be put to the meeting? It is clearly a case of spite against a certain dealer not a hundred yards from the Saltmarket. Why does McFarlane only state Glasgow dealers? Does he think he is doing a manly action by excluding them, and leaving any dealer outside of Glasgow to show ad lib? One question I would ask him: Where did the Light Mules come from; were they from a dealer, or what? Now, members, stick close at this time, and do all we can to assist, as if this case is not cleared up it means ruin for the Glasgow Show.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

Sir,—In reply to Mr. Woolhouse's letter, I am pleased to hear of the progress of the Walkley C.B.S., and may it continue. I am also delighted to hear the members of the S.O.S. are laughing. What a change to see fanciers of Sheffield with a smile on their faces! You say how foolish I look. Yes, a wise man knows himself to be a fool; it is the fool that thinks himself wise! You say I make it appear as if you were jealous; certainly, jealousy is the root of it all, or you would not have written your first letter. Thanks for credit you give for the running of the S.O.S. You say I have been itching to "have a go" at the S.C.B.S., and have snatched the first chance, but you were never wider of your mark—had this been my object I could have attained it long ago. Now, Mr. Woolhouse, steer your society away from the arena—there is nothing out of the ordinary in the way of fixed prize money there. I see you are bringing specials in now, £4, for Members' Shows. The S.O.S.. have this for specials in addition to fixed prize money at their Nest Feather Show. Mr. Woolhouse, you invite me to write you as a member of the Walkley C.B.S.; are the members of that society desirous of your writing these letters under their name? I should say not, for the Walkley C.B.S. do not paying fixed prize money, but paying on the sliding scale at their Nest Feather Show on June 24th. Pull down the flag, Mr. Woolhouse. There is only one society out of the four in Sheffield paying fixed prize money, so I still hold it is out of the ordinary in Sheffield. Now, Mr. Woolhouse, as far as I am concerned, this little controversy ceases, as I am sure you will now be convinced our report was correct.

T. Bishop.

Sir,—Mr. Woolhouse practically admits that my report was correct when I stated "out of the ordinary in Sheffield and district." Had I said "in Sheffield" I admit he would then have had cause to fly to the Press. I might point out that I was aware Mr. W., or some of his colleagues, would be waiting for the first opportunity they could really take to contradict our reports. Knowing this, it has made me most careful. Why the animosity, Mr. W.? Do you want all the societies under your wing? It appears like it. Why keep under the cloak of the Walkley C.B.S.? It is the S.C.B.S. you are thinking about, and you know it. Personally, Mr. W., I was very sorry to see your letter, and greatly surprised, I must admit. Another thing I can inform you (which perhaps you don't know), is that whatever function is arranged or fixed by the S.O.S. we always consider the S.C.B.S., as we do not wish to clash or interfere with the latter in any way. Neither does any animosity exist—at least, as far as we are concerned. I like to be on friendly terms with everyone, but if they won't let me, well, things must then take their course. I still say that the S.C.B.S. take 1d. from a 6d. entry fee, and though they give that 1d., in addition to £4, it is still actually taken from prize money, no matter whether it is afterwards given in specials or not. The S.O.S. are giving a big array of specials, in addition to fixed prize money.

John A. T. Woodall.

The Fancy in Ireland.

Sir,—A meeting of the Belfast N.C. and Y.C.C. was held June 3rd, and the individual, "Apostle of Honesty," who gave notice of motion at the previous meeting that members who had written letters to Cage Birds would be expelled the society calmly withdrew his proposition. Why? Had he no supporters? Mr. "Honesty," I contend that the letters that appeared in Cage Birds were the means of letting the novices know "who's who." Do you forget the man who lent the birds for Larne, Lurgan, and Sligo Shows? Is this man a member of the B.N.C. and Y.C.C.? Is the man who borrowed them a member? Perhaps a 20s. special prize from this generous individual would set matters a little easy. If they are members, why were they allowed to continue so? Are they officials? Re the Yorkshire that won the cup, it was a ticked yellow cock, and the owner I congratulate. (I saw by his letter to Cage Birds he thought it was his clear yellow.) The owner of another bird had not the courage of his convictions to object to the winner, but alleged that the cup winner and other winners were not bred by the exhibitor. He's a good winner, but a bad loser. When Mr. South writes again let him give us his own opinion of the present state of the Fancy, and not try to cloak the society and its members by writing what he imagines will please the officials. When this society were revising their rules it was decided that subscriptions must be paid up at June meeting (Rule 12). What was the chairman thinking of when he ruled that new members be allowed a month's grace? According to this the rules are framed and broken at the option of the chosen few. Re the N.P.C.C. of I,, might I suggest, seeing they have only eight members, that they add a few classes for British Birds, and so increase their membership?

First Steps in Foreign Bird Keeping.

By H. J. FULLJAMES

The Song of the Shama.

And what shall we say of his song? The best, the very best, notes of the Nightingale, the flute-like music of the Blackbird, the charming melody of the Blackcap, indeed, the superlative efforts of any singing bird that may be mentioned, all are surpassed by the song of the Shama, and if he is in a bird-room with a collection of the finest songsters that may be got together, he will combine all their music and eclipse them all. I am aware that this may seem extravagant praise, but I have kept Shamas, and I know. If at any bird-show I were offered "free gratis and for nothing" any one bird for my own keeping I should choose, not a Bird of Paradise, not the champion Yorkshire or Crest, not the clear hybrid that has been produced for the first time, but just a Shama, a bird that may be bought for about thirty shillings.

Only, do not try to keep two cock Shamas in one room; they would sing each other to death. With his own kind and sex the Shama is absolutely the greatest fighter I know, and it is quite impossible to keep two cocks under any conditions under which they may reach one another. I once had a pet Shama that was never shut in his cage; he would sometimes follow me into the aviary which extended along one side of the room and get shut in for a time, and he was perfectly inoffensive with the smaller birds. One evening I brought home an exceptionally fine specimen that was better than the old one for exhibition purposes, and in an instant the free bird was on the wires of the newly-introduced cage, and the new-comer was nothing loth to meet his advances. There would have been murder even through the bars of the cage if I had not immediately removed the fresh arrival into another room and kept him there.

House and Food.

A Shama requires a somewhat large cage, or he will fail to keep his beautiful black and white tail in condition; thirty inches long at least (thirty-six would be better), 16 inches high and 12 to 14 inches deep. It should be of the "box" type and fitted with three perches of a good thickness; the food and water vessels should be of glass or porcelain, and the sand-drawer preferably lined with zinc. In the keeping of insectivorous birds a very great convenience is an extra sand-drawer; by the aid of an extra drawer a clean dry cage-bottom is always to hand, and the soiled drawer will have time to get "sweetened" before being again wanted. This extra drawer, by-the-bye, is an excellent institution in any bird-room. It is a much more easy matter to clean and fill a sand-drawer when out of the cage than when in position, but if it is taken out for the purpose there is always the danger of the bird, if a small one, getting through the bottom opening, and the probability that while the drawer is being cleaned the bird will soil the cage-bottom itself. With an extra sand-drawer, ready filled with fresh sand, the change from a dirty cage to a clean one is effected in a moment without worry to the bird.

I suppose I need scarcely say that the Shama is an insectivorous bird. In captivity it will require a food such as should be given to a Nightingale. A stock mixture may be made up somewhat as follows:—Take equal parts by weight of preserved yolk of egg, the very best ants' cocoons, and "dried flies," or powdered silkworm pupæ (either of the latter may be used, but it is not necessary to have them both). Then add to the whole an equal weight of powdered sweet biscuit. A mixture of these ingredients will keep indefinitely, and for daily use a small portion should be taken, and moistened to a "crumbly" consistency either by the addition of boiled potato, grated raw carrot, chopped greenstuff, or occasionally with milk; these various moistening mediums should be used so as to afford a change in the daily food of the bird.

Half a dozen mealworms a day will also be necessary, and any other insects or grubs that may be available, smooth caterpillars, gentles, house or blow-flies, cockroaches, spiders, or anything that may be handy. A piece of banana or any ripe fruit in season should be offered. Many birds do not at first care for fruit, but if they will take it they will soon prefer it to any kind of food, and it will help materially to keep them in bright and healthy condition. A Shama kept as above will live for years, and reward its owner with enchanting melody throughout the year excepting for the annual moulting period.

An American Beauty.

Although the feeding of a Shama, as outlined above, does not entail any particular difficulty, yet there are many who are chary of keeping any bird to which the term insectivorous properly applies, and who, while requiring the best of song from their pets, much prefer birds which may be kept mainly on seed. There is a foreign bird which I have not yet named which meets both of these latter stipulations, and this is the Crimson (or Virginian) Cardinal, popularly known as the "Virginian Nightingale." Because of its being much too boisterous to be trusted in a mixed collection, this beautiful bird has not been included in my lists, but as a single cage-bird, all things considered, it would be difficult to mention a more desirable acquisition. In its brilliant crimson plumage and its conspicuous crest it is a magnificent bird indeed. Truly, there is the liability of its going brick-coloured rather than crimson after a moult in a cage, but I have found the deterioration in the colour to be only temporary, as, with proper feeding, the original splendour is regained in subsequent moults.

It is perhaps the best singer of all the seed-eating foreign birds, and soon becomes devotedly attached to its keeper. Of course such a large bird requires a roomy cage; this should be of not less than two square feet ground space, and larger if possible; 30 inches by 12 inches, and 2 feet high would be a fair size. The Virginian Cardinal is a very hardy bird, and has nested outside in the grounds of Mr. Hubert D. Astley, but in a cage it must, like all other birds, be shielded from draughts, and is better for a little warmth in winter. Its stock food should consist of a mixture of canary and white millet, but if it is to retain its natural vivid crimson colour it must have many "extras." Of mealworms it is especially fond, and may have three or four of these daily. Grocers' currants, soaked in water until plump, any kind of colour-giving fruit or berries during the autumn, green peas, live ants' cocoons in season, or the best quality of dried ditto, steamed in a cloth over boiling water, yolk of egg, preserved or fresh, and almost any tit-bit that may be offered to an insectivorous bird, all these in turn will be appreciated by the Crimson Cardinal, and will assist him to reproduce in captivity the brilliant colouration which gives him his name.

The Methods of a Successful Lady Hybrid Breeder.

Interesting Account of a Visit to Miss Janette Reeves (Wateringbury).

Miss Reeves, of Wateringbury, is a most enthusiastic student of hybridism in birds, and has produced many rare crosses, some of which (notably the Bramblefinch-Chaffinch hybrids) have achieved fame on the show bench in the hands of various exhibitors. In the "Morning Post" there recently appeared an account of a visit paid to Miss Reeves' aviaries, and from this we have taken the following extracts, the original methods pursued by Miss Reeves being, we think, of considerable interest to hybrid breeders generally, even though their practice may be an impossibility, so far as the average breeder of hybrids is concerned. The point concerning the liberating of the Chaffinches, etc., used by Miss Reeves, and their anxiety to return to her aviaries, should make interesting reading for Mr. W. H. Hudson, Mr. E. Bell, and others of their kidney, who profess to believe that the chief anxiety of every captive bird is to escape from its "bondage."

The Aviaries Described.

"I was always a lover of soft-winged things," says Victor Hugo. So are we (writes the visitor to Wateringbury Hall). Therefore let us pay a visit to the aviaries, in which they are to be found in joyous abundance. Many more than "two Goldfinches, whose sprightly song has been their mutual solace long, live happy prisoners there." The first of the aviaries is in the angle of an old ivy and moss-grown wall. The place was orginally used as a pheasantry, but it serves its present purpose admirably. Common thornless rose and other bushes are growing inside, and though the buds of all kinds within the small-meshed wire enclosure are picked off as soon as they appear, the stems protruding through the roof and sides are covered with leaf, making a delightfully shady bower, through which a ray of sunshine penetrates here and there.

Standing inside the aviary we can see that in selected places are stuck big bunches of box trimmings, and in many of these carelessly arranged bunches are nests in different stages of completion, a few of them containing eggs. The population consists of thirty hen Chaffinches, fifteen or sixteen hen Greenfinches, two hen Redpolls, four hen Linnets, three hen Bullfinches, nine cock Bramblefinches, and seven cock Canaries, green and pencilled. Thus, as there is no pair of the same species every egg hatched out must produce a hybrid. A second aviary is somewhat similar as regards both its interior arrangements and its occupants.

Miss Reeves has found it easy enough to rear such Mules as the Linnet-Canary, Goldfinch-Canary, and Greenfinch-Canary. Four years ago this persevering lady was successful in rearing to maturity a pair of Chaffinch-Bramblefinch hybrids, and in the following year she had a dozen of these youngsters fending for themselves. Since then she has multiplied her successes. In nest plumage the fledglings resemble young Chaffinches, varying, however, a good deal in colour and size, according to sex, but in many of their habits and actions they follow the Bramblefinch, while in cases where the male parent bird has been of that species the offspring have become more handsomely coloured. Other crosses which have been successfully produced have been Linnet-Bullfinch, Greenfinch-Bullfinch, Redpoll-Bullfinch, Greenfinch-Goldfinch, Redpoll-Canary, Siskin-Canary, and after many disappointments, Canary-Chaffinch. It is estimated that a bird reared as the result of the last-named cross would be worth a very large sum.

An Astonishing Mixture.

An interesting problem is raised as the result of the produce of one nest occupied by a hen Goldfinch. Her eggs when hatched gave three Greenfinch-Goldfinches, one Redpoll-Goldfinch, and one Linnet-Goldfinch, of which the last-named alone died some time after it was reared.

As a rule, the hybrids are not hatched in captivity, but the fertilised eggs are placed in the nests of various wild Finches, Buntings, and the like. Hen Bullfinches, Hedge Sparrows, and Tits make devoted foster-mothers, and other birds which have been used successfully for this purpose are Chaffinches, Robins, Swallows (which catch myriads of the hop aphis), House and Tree Sparrows, and even Wagtails; but the last-named, being restless birds, constantly on and off their nests, are not satisfactory foster-mothers. Strange eggs put into the nests of Flycatchers in substitution for their own were at once destroyed by these birds, which would seem, therefore, to have a sense of colour, or, at any rate, some intuition not possessed by the others.

Experience shows that while insect-feeding birds can rear seed-eaters, which are fed from the crop, seed-eating birds cannot rear insect-feeding birds.

The Food Supply.

The various kinds of food used in the aviaries are, as regards seeds, the sweepings of the threshing floor after corn has been dressed and "boobied," and consist mostly of the seeds of noxious weeds, such as chickweed, poppy, shepherd's purse, wild turnip, dock, thistle, cockle, or rape, or, in some cases, the addition of crushed oats, canary seed, and hemp seed; but the hemp, though it produces darkness of plumage, seems to affect the liver if given too frequently, and to make the birds short-lived. The insect food consists of grubs, caterpillars, beetles of all kinds, mealworms, ants' eggs, spiders, flies, earwigs (which are trapped in bits of elder, from which the pith has been removed, laid along the branches of wall fruit trees and in other convenient places, and maggots.

After the hybrid fledglings have been fed by their foster-parents for eight days they are taken into the Manor House itself, and then the hard and trying work begins, for they have to be fed every two hours from half-past four o'clock in the morning until roosting time. As it takes about an hour to feed sixteen of these clamouring squabs, it does not allow much leisure time to their patroness.

In a cool greenhouse there were on the occasion of my visit in several roomy three-compartment cages hen Bullfinches paired with Canaries, while in a cage by himself was a cock Bullfinch, whose duty it was to pipe in order that the hens might dance, or, at any rate, content themselves with their existing domestic relations. For nesting purposes the Bullfinches are supplied with fine strands of Manila hop twine preferably to horsehair, which gets round the birds' legs and sometimes ends by severing a foot.

Homes from Home.

On the trees and walls of the orchards (surrounding the Hall) are fixed up boxes, tins, and all sorts of contrivances to encourage wild birds of the kind sought after to nest. Here, for instance, in the cleft of an old apple tree is a big iron kettle with the spout removed, so as to leave a clean round hole. Lift the lid and you will see that it is half full of warm, soft material, in the middle of which lie concealed nine eggs of the Great Tit, six her own and three a third part of nine taken from one of these small foster-mothers and distributed over three other nests. Across the lower part of a big crack in another tree is nailed firmly a sheet of tin from an ordinary biscuit box, with a semi-circular flap cut in the middle to allow ingress and egress. The upper part of the crack is covered with another sheet of tin, the lower ends of which are left loose, so that it can be lifted up for purposes of inspection.

The Wryneck's Clutch of Eight.

The brother of Miss Reeves, finding the nest of a Wryneck containing seven white eggs, replaced them by seven eggs of another species, in order that he might have the Wryneck's eggs for his collection. Next day there was added an eighth Wryneck's egg, which was taken, and this process was continued until in all thirty Wryneck's eggs had been laid in the nest.

Though various ingenious precantions are taken to guard the foster and other fledglings against the incursions and depredations of Starlings, Crows, Magpies, Jays, Hawks, and also cats, it is not possible always to prevent robbery, and even murder. In one case when a nest of Redpoll-Linnets was hung on a tree in a cage so that their foster-parents might go on feeding them, they were enticed to the end of their perch by a Red-backed Shrike, dragged through the bars, and impaled on an adjacent thorn bush, which the "butcher bird" used as his larder.

At the close of the nesting season nearly all the hen birds in the aviaries are released, but they appear to hug their chains, for they hover about all the winter, though there is always a plentiful supply of food put in the outside boxes, and if, perchance, the doors should be left open, they would at once flock inside, so comfortable do they find these cosy quarters, sheltered as they are by the old stone walls in the cold nights of winter.

[Miss Reeves' statement with regard to the breeding of the Chaffinch-Canary Hybrid will no doubt surprise readers, seeing that the opinion is very generally prevalent that this particular cross has not yet been produced. Some six months or so ago this lady sent a bird reputed to be a Chaffinch-Canary Hybrid to a meeting of the National British Bird and Mule Club (of which she is a member), but those present took the view that a mistake had somewhere occurred, their unanimous opinion being that the bird was a Chaffinch-Bramblefinch Hybrid, showing no recognisable traces of Canary parentage. We understood that the circumstances under which this bird was bred made it possible for this to be the case. Miss Reeves, of course, may not agree that the Bramblefinch-Chaffinch (or vice-versa) parentage is the correct one.—Ed.]

Wild-Bird Life.

Insects on Wild Birds.

We are now in the leafy month of June, leaving behind us a record May, the month of all others that has the greatest influence upon the wild bird population. If it is wet and cold it undoubtedly affects the nesting and rearing of young birds, but the past month has been an ideal one, and young birds are plentiful everywhere. Although the majority of nestlings reared in the woods and hedgerows are strong and lusty, we occasionally find specimens that, for some reason or other, fall below the high standards of health set by Nature to ensure a successful arrival to maturity. Young birds that we are able to take by hand, found floundering among the tall grass and herbage growing by the hedge-side, one generally looks upon with a suspicious eye as regards their health. In the majority of cases they do not appear to have anything the matter with them, and we frequently look upon them as babies who have left the parental home rather too early; but when we find them with plumage well developed, we can feel sure there are other causes for their want of strength. The writer has occasionally found some of these fully developed birds infested with an insect known to most countrymen as "ticks." The insects burrow under the skin and appear on the surface as round lumps of a dull bluish colour; and they can only be removed by tearing the birds to pieces. These insects undoubtedly suck the strength from the victim. They are not peculiar to bird life; they can be found upon sheep, wild rabbits, and hedgehogs. Quite recently we found a young Blackbird with a dozen of these ticks buried in the head and neck. As he was on private ground and not likely to be interfered with, he was left for future examination. The bird appeared fairly strong, and shouted lustily when handled, but appeared unable to fly even a short distance. He was frequently found, and, to give him a fair chance, he was placed more than once in the branches of a tree, but was invariably found upon the ground later on. He gradually got weaker, although food was plentiful, and he eventually died—killed by these blood-sucking parasites.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE

The Attack Upon Our Hobby.

Some Views of the Papers.

Hinc ille avium concentus.

Notes by the Secretary.

One of the "round games" of old-time Christmases was entitled "Russian Gossip," This consisted in the reading of some simple narrative to one of a group of people, and of his passing on to one of the others his version of the short tale which had been read to him. His hearer repeated the story to another of the party, and so on, until the last one to hear it committed it to paper. The manuscript so written was then compared with the original document, and not one of the party would believe that he or she had joined in the common responsibility for the distortions which had been manufactured in the passing of the story.

This old pastime for a winter evening was forcibly brought to my recollection on reading in "The Throne and Country" of 3rd June an article which was based upon the Humanitarian League pamphlet referred to in my notes of last week. In my essay entitled "Is it cruel to keep birds in cages?" I wrote "It is a fact that a British bird kept with proper attention in a cage or aviary will prefer confinement to liberty, or, as it may be better put, will prefer the protection and care of its owner to the tender mercies of Nature." Mr. Hudson does me the justice of accurate quotation, but the first time Mr. Hudson is re-quoted the statement becomes, "The writer contends that the British bird prefers confinement to liberty." Not a single qualifying word, mark you! If any one quotes from "Throne and Country," the new statement might easily read "British birds will fight to get into a cage in preference to remaining at liberty." You see that quite a lot of fun is also producible from the game of "Russian Gossip" when played by some journalists.

Is it Blasphemous?

The Editor of "M.A.P." heads a reference to the pamphlet with the question: "Is it blasphemous to keep a Canary?" He points out the curious circumstance that its publication coincides with the gracious acceptance by our Queen of a Norwich Canary as a birthday present from the working-men of Norwich. He quotes what he justly stigmatises as the "brimstone-y language" of Mr. Hudson, and then asks, "Do these terms apply to Canaries bred and reared in cages? Or, to put the matter more plainly still, is the keeping of a Canary at Buckingham Palace 'an outrage on Nature,' etc., etc.?" "I ask the question," the Editor says, "because in millions of homes Canaries are kept by people who would not wish to be cruel."

A Canary may not have been in Mr. Hudson's mind when he wrote the "brimstone-y language" quoted, for, in the context, he goes on to say, "Here is a being made to exist joyously under the sky in sun and wind and rain," and so on, and a cage-bred Canary is not only not made for any such purpose, but would certainly die if subjected to such conditions. Nevertheless, its ancestors were so created, and that the keeping of a Canary in a cage would be prohibited by the shrinking brotherhood is rendered certain by the paragraph I quoted in my notes of last week, and by this further extract: "The great objection to caging Canaries and other birds bred in captivity, who would die if released, is that it keeps alive by example a cruel fashion." In other words, our Gracious Queen Mary should not keep a Canary at Buckingham Palace, because a few, a very few, degraded bird-dealers carry on their trade under questionable and unsanitary conditions.

What About Zoo's?

The Editor of "M.A.P." further asks "If Canary-keeping is wrong, what about the Zoological Gardens? Is it the opinion of the Humanitarian League that the Zoo be abolished?" So far as birds are concerned, the intention of the Humanitarian League is transparent, for there would necessarily be no birds at all in captivity if the taking of them and the dealing in them were absolutely prohibited. What would happen in the case of animals, fishes and reptiles, or even insects, does not concern us at present, but an animal, a Lion for instance, surely feels the loss of its native freedom, and it would only be logical to forbid the keeping of anything comprised in the Latin phrase "ferae naturae." This, of course, will never come to pass.

Help the Good Work.

But "the keeping of any bird large or small" in captivity will surely be prohibited unless we stir ourselves and prevent the insertion of the thin end of the wedge.

Cage Birds League can and will prevent this, but it will only be when we are in a position to voice the unanimous opinion of 50,000 bird-keepers, and this we could do in a week if all of you who read these notes will sit down without further hesitation, and send along your applications for membership with the postal order for eighteen-pence to cover one year's subscription and a badge.

MORE VIEWS OF MEMBERS.

Cage Birds League is a grand scheme; every one of your readers should join.
Bedford Square, W.C. P. H. Harris.

Please enter self and two gentlemen named herein as members of Cage Birds League, and allot half of our fees to the benefit of our association. I think when we start wearing our badges it will be the means of getting a goodly number of fanciers here to join.
A. W. Douglas,
Sec. and Treas., Elgin C.B.A.

I wish the League every success, and hope it will grow strong enough to overcome the faddists who would prohibit keeping birds in cages. Bird-keeping is the most interesting hobby I know of. My birds fly loose in the room, but there are cages for them to sleep in, and they prefer to do so.
(Miss) Lucy A. Knight.
Martin, near Lincoln.

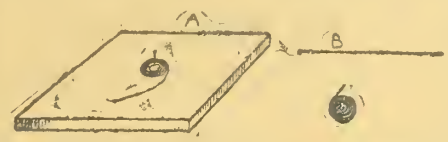
As a British bird-fancier, I can see that our hobby is to go to pieces unless we work in unison. I hope that all fanciers will buck up and make Cage Birds League a grand success. There is no other way out of the difficulty. I hope you will get more than 40,000 members.
Auchterarder, N.B. David Roy.

An Effective Weapon.

My congratulations to you on your appointment to the secretaryship of the Cage Birds League may be somewhat belated, but I can assure you they are none the less sincere. I feel sure that under the guidance of a fancier of your experience and ability the League cannot be otherwise than successful, and I have no doubt that you will soon make it the most effective weapon ever possessed by fanciers to enable them to smite "hip and thigh" the faddists who would deprive the working-man of one of the all-too-few pleasures that make life worth living. Wishing the League every success.
Sunderland. W. Reid.

I am only seventeen years of age, but I have had in my possession ever since I can remember a bird or birds of some description, so you see that it must only be natural for me to have grown up to love birds. It is that which causes me to wish for one-half of my subscription to be used for the protection of the Bird Fancy against sentimentalists.
Walsall. W. Males.

Although my address is Belfast, I am an Englishman, and therefore like to be in any good things. I am sure Cage Birds League is the best thing of all for bird-fanciers. The faddists will pause in their interference with our hobby when they find they have a world-wide League to deal with instead of a few separate individuals. Unity stands not only for strength, but for good-fellowship. There are thousands of bird-keepers in Belfast, and I am looking forward to persuading numbers of them to join, but the Irish, being soundheaded do not want much persuasion when they know of a good thing.
Belfast. J. Somers.



Pray accept my hearty congratulations on your appointment as Secretary of Cage Birds League, an institution which, it seems to me, is destined to exercise a mighty influence over the future operations in the circles of "birdydom." I think I can somewhat appreciate the magnitude and arduousness of your duties, and I most sincerely wish you well in all your efforts towards a satisfactory performance of the same. It is a pleasure to enclose my subscription for one year's membership and badge (lapel).
Bradford. Fred Hammond.

No. 514.
A Twisted Wire Pull.

Sent by Mr. S. Moody, 6, Park Avenue, Cemetery Road, Eastville, Bristol.

Here is a simple way of making twisted wire pulls for sand trays to cages; also for slides, etc. Have a piece of 1-inch board about six inches square. Drive a 1½in. wire nail into the centre, and near to it bore a small hole about ¼in. deep (see A). Bend a piece of ordinary cage wire (see B) and put it in the hole. Then twist same round the nail, keeping it flat to the board till the desired size is obtained. Take the wire off the board, file off the end that went in the hole, and turn up the other end to insert in staple.—Stephen Moody.

No. 515.
A Trap for Sparrows.

Sent by Mr. W. Jamieson, 9, Leigh Row, Chorley, Lancs.

Those who keep Hawks, Owls, etc., and require a constant supply of Sparrows for food can obtain them in this simple manner. Get an ordinary Lark cage. Cut off the string net top and make it of fine string 2½in. by 2½in. mesh, so that the birds can easily get in. Their extended wings will, of course, prevent them from coming out. Put bread and a Sparrow call bird in the cage and place it on the window-sill or house-top.—Wm. Jamieson.

A Member from Oversea.

I have pleasure in sending fee for membership and badge for Mr. A. J. Bennett, of Canada. This is the gentleman of whom I wrote you. He is in England for a short holiday, and says that Cage Birds League ought to have been founded long ago, and he hopes that his brother fanciers in this country will support it as it deserves.
Bexley. G. H. Peck.

Deservers Support.

In my opinion the League will fill a long-felt want, and is deserving the support of every fancier. It is sure to prove itself an effective barrier against the efforts of the faddists. Besides this, in creating and strengthening a bond of friendship between fanciers, it has started a work that will one day prove invaluable to the Fancy. Wishing Cage Birds League the success it deserves.
John Hannah,
President, Vale of Leven C.B.C.
Bonhill, N.B.

Reply: I have entered your membership to the credit of your club, so that it may count with those of any other of your members who may join in competition for our prizes. There are four cash prizes for the societies whose total nominations to the League show the best average per member, so you may win one of these even if your society be too small to have much chance in the competitions for the aggregate number of introductions.—H. J. F.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. H. Peck.—Very sorry neither of the photographs are suitable for reproduction by our method of printing. The faces in the group of yourself and the two young members are considerably too small and would be entirely unrecognisable in a reproduction. If you could let me have a larger photograph with not so much background we should be very glad to reproduce it. I am getting out some literature which will be useful to you and others to hand to prospective members, and I will send you some copies as soon as ready. You are doing all right; keep it up. Glad to welcome the two members to the Juvenile Branch, Sydney Stiles, aged 4, and Wilfred Bennett, aged 5, and to hear of the success of the latter with his exhibition rabbit. I hope he will do equally well now that "he has gone in for cage birds."

A. Wilkinson.—We shall be able to tackle the railway companies in due course. In this, as in other matters, individuals are powerless, but with Cage Birds League behind them, neither the railway companies nor any one else will be able to refuse hearing to their rational grievances.
Henry J. Fulljames,
Secretary Cage Birds League, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

My Method of Breeding.

By E. THOMSON (Glossop).

Rearing the Young.

It should here be remembered that however often the old birds feed the young, the sum total of food which the young can consume in the first few days is very little indeed. When the young are about a week old, a little soaked rape and a supply of hemp seed may be added to the fare. I recommend this gradual change of diet to meet the increasing demands of the growing young; and I further predict that it will keep any normal and healthy hen well up to the task of feeding her young. However, in the event of the hen "sweating" or "flaggin,," a little Epsom salts may with advantage be given in the drinking water, and an occasional bath will have a very bracing effect on the overheated system of the hen.

The next critical period begins when the young are from about a fortnight to three weeks old. Then, too, is the time you may look out for the trouble of "plucking." I further suggest here that this is the time also, when a judicious system of feeding will be very advantageous, as I firmly believe that in the majority of cases "plucking" is directly caused by the rich and injudicious feeding of the young during the first two weeks of feeding the young, as when a large supply of egg food in given during the first week after the young are hatched, most of it is absorbed by the hen, and in this way you force her into such an unnaturally high condition that she will insist on resuming nesting operations.

Feeding and Weaning the Young.

It is now that I find the compartment cages very useful indeed. I have worked this system for the last three years with considerable success, for when the hen has brought up her brood to three weeks old I have only to transfer the young to the centre compartment, supply the hen with a new nest pan and building material, and allow her to renew acquaintance with her old pal, and between them they will usually see that the separated young ones will not go short of food, until they can fend for themselves. But in order to safeguard them going short of food I always give the young a milk-sop in an egg-drawer to peck at, and when they have fairly got on to eating themselves I introduce scalded rape and crushed hemp until they are about five weeks old. I then introduce plain seed until finally they are weaned off milk sop and any other soft food. But milk sop I consider is the safest, cheapest, and most nutritious diet you can give young birds.

I might just add that after separating the young from the parents I knock off all green foods until after the moult, as I consider green food is apt to set the young birds off with diarrhoea.

In conclusion I must thank the members for giving me such a patient and attentive hearing.

A Thrush's Curious Nesting Place.

While a workman was unloading a truck of pit wood on May 23 at the Fernhill Colliery, Treherbert, writes Mr. T. Brimmer (Treherbert), he came across a Thrush's nest with four eggs in it. I thought this something out of the common.

Robin Nests in Reading Room.

At our Institute at Petersham, writes Mr. T. Vine, to the "Daily Express," we have a Robin which has built its nest in the bookcase in the reading room, and although twenty or thirty members every night are conversing, smoking, etc., she takes no notice, but goes and comes through the window quite unconcerned.

A Too-enterprising Blackbird.

A railway carriage had been standing for two or three days on a siding of the London and North-Western Railway at Ingleton, and had then made a return journey to Clapham Junction. On a spring beneath the carriage was found a Blackbird's nest containing two eggs. The nest must have been made and the eggs laid during the time when the carriage was at rest on the siding.

Food of the Wild Duck.

The food of the Wild Duck is partly composed of animal and partly of vegetable substances. The seeds and roots of various plants growing in or near the water, small fishes that frequent the shallows, frogs, worms, and slugs are all taken. There is also minute "life" lurking among the sedges and mud, which the bird's peculiar laminated beak enables him to feed upon. The Wild Duck is an expert "fly-catcher," which habit the young ones follow soon after they are hatched, darting here and there for the insects frequenting the surface of the water.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-ides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

Send your orders at once. Sure to run short, and can't get any more this season. There's a great scarcity in new crop. Mr. J. E. Davies, Stockport, May, 1911.—"Sir, I have much pleasure in saying that your colour food has during the past year given me every satisfaction, having secured over 50 firsts, also seconds, etc., besides N.P.C. Challenge Cup. This is second year in succession. Two firsts, fourth, and champion diploma Crystal Palace, 1911, and my birds were as bright a colour at Crystal Palace after being washed eleven times as they were at commencement of season. At Crystal Palace six out of the eight champion first prize Norwich." Never saw any colour food, only my Royal Red. Every winner in champion Cinnamon section bar one third. Never saw any but my colour food. Another big winner in Yorkshires, who won two firsts, seconds, etc. Mr. Ambler, Morecambe, writes: "April, 1911.—Sir, I can say I got a better colour from your feed than any I have ever tried." Scotland's greatest winner this last season, Mr. G. Mitchell, Brechin, writes: April, 1911.—"I have used your colour feed for years, and have found it to be all that you claim." Wales' greatest winner, Mr. D. H. Tedstone, Brecon: "Sir, I am pleased to inform you that I not only won the Welsh Cage Bird Cup. I won the solid silver Norwich Cup, the Leach Challenge Cup scores of firsts and specials, etc." I could fill this paper with testimonials like above; which should prove you need not try any other. Prices: Royal Red, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/6, 5 lbs. 7/6, 14 lbs. 17/-; Hot Natal, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/8. Honey-made egg crumbs, in use by scores of Crystal Palace champions, 8d. lb., 7 lbs. 3/6. The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills,—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth, 2/-, post free 2/3; in parts 1/-, post free 1/1, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

Anyone wishing to join can do so by sending name, the subscription being 2d. per week. The secretary will be pleased to give any information.—B. Wharton.

SOMERSTOWN.

We had no handicap dinner, June 11. Two races were made between A. Gloss, of Caledonian Road, and D. Lewis, of Somers Town, which resulted in A. Gloss being the winner. In the evening again a race between A. Gloss and H. Tomson, of Marylebone, was made, Tomson being winner. I am pleased to say we are getting more fanciers to take in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. On June 18, there will be a handicap for a leg of mutton, open to all comers.—Pony Moore.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnet contest, held June 10, at headquarters, "George and Dragon," Bridge Street, before a good number of fanciers and friends. We had 41 birds. Winners: 1, S. Morley; 2, B. Nelson; 3, J. Kirk; 4, J. Ramskill. Also on Whit Tuesday we gave an open-to-all-England sing for time and quality. We had a record of 68 birds before a packed room, for six good prizes (three for time, three for quality). Winners: for quality, 1, G. Towers (Leeds); 2, H. Wigfield (Leeds); 3, B. Nelson (Pontefract). For time; 1, W. Sissons (Leeds); 2, J. Kirk (Castleford); 3, W. Dobson (Castleford). Judges, Messrs. P. Madden, C. Biss, A. Watson, and J. Wainwright. SHEFFIELD.

Linnet singing contest, headquarters, Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Attercliffe Common, June 10, when 24 birds entered for 3 valuable prizes given by Mr. J. Grundy (3 minutes singing): 1, Driver, 68sec.; Thomson and Shimwell divided 2 and 3, 58sec.; Albert, 52sec.; T. Robinson, 47sec.; Harry, 45sec. On June 11th Mr. J. Grundy gave three valuable prizes (2 minutes singing) when 24 birds entered, and some good singing was heard by a packed house; 1, J. Robinson, 66sec.; 2, Wadd, 54sec.; Albert and Wadd tied for 3rd prize, 52sec. each; sung off, Albert won, 43sec.; Wadd, 39sec.; Thompson, 49sec.; Albert, 46sec.; Harry, 45sec.; Driver, 44sec. and 39sec. Contest every week-end. Members kindly oblige by attending general meeting, June 18th, from 8 to 9, to appoint committee for next contest. —A. Thompson, Sec.

HULL.

Hull L.F.A. weekly contest, held Cartman's Arms, Canning Street, where some very good singing was heard. 1, 4(magnificent clock), Fred Allen; 2 (clock), R. Dearlove; 3 (watch), Norton. Contest held May 29th. The birds gave us some very good rounds of singing, the crowded room being delighted. 1, Fred Allen (champion); 2, R. Dearlove; 3, Thundercliffe. Mr. Saul's bird, which competed in this contest, unfortunately died next day. It was a very good bird, and cost a nice sum. Judges, Messrs. Thundercliffe and Broadbent. Next contest, Rose Hotel, Beverley Road, June 17. —Fred Allen, Hon. Sec.

LEIGH.

Third Club contest, held headquarters June 10th, when 19 birds competed for eight kettles (four for quality and four for time); and some very good singing was done; in fact, all birds seemed to be in fighting form. The spectators were more numerous than ever. I expect it was to hear our new arrival, but I am sorry to say it did not do what it was expected to do; but after the contest the proprietor allowed it to go in the window again, and then we heard it do some very nice singing. Prize winners: Quality: 1, W. Barnes; 2, J. Statham; 3, J. Whittle; 4, F. Gibbins. Time: 1, J. Hampson, 103; 2, W. Budsworth, 142; 3, B. Jones, 102; 4, D. Banks, 93. I wish to draw fanciers' attention to the fact that we are holding our postponed contest on June 17th, at the Union Arms, Tyldesley, when I hope we shall have a good entry again. I am sorry to see Wigan are running one in the district on same date, notwithstanding it was for their benefit we postponed ours. I am also requested to state result of club contest, held May 20th, headquarters. Quality: 1, T. Statham; 2, J. W. Jones; 3, W. Barnes; 4, D. Banks. Time: 1, J. Hampson, 191; 2, E. Page, 106; 3, J. McAllister, 59, and R. Howcroft, 59, tie for 3rd and 4th prizes. —J. McAllister, Sec.

GLASSHOUGHTON.

Cup contest held Whit Monday, Rock Inn, when J. Kirk was 1st, 88 secs.; B. Nelson 2nd, 58 secs.; J. Kirk 3rd, 51 secs.; W. Dobson 4th, 34 secs.; Piper 5th, 30 secs.; C. Scott 6th, 24 secs. Our cup has to be won three years in succession before anyone claims it as his own with one name of bird. Also on June 11th we had 16 birds sing for prizes; J. Kirk 1st, 50 secs.; J. Kirk 2nd, 44 secs.; C. Scott 3rd, 39 secs.—R. Taylor, Sec.

KIPPAX.

Kippax F. and F.S. (Swan Inn, Kippax) will hold their weekly open Linnet Singing Contest on June 17th, at 3, when we shall be pleased to welcome both old and new members to our club, and help us to make it a success.—J. Henshaw, Sec.

The Shows.

WINDHILL, SHIPLEY & DIS. O.S.

First Feather Show held June 3, at headquarters, Blue Bell Hotel. There were just on 50 birds staged —very good, it being so early in the season. Mr. J. Greaves (Baildon) judged) and gave general satisfaction.

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

First of a series of shows held at club rooms, Red Lion Hotel, June 10th, when there was only a moderate entry owing to the members having a poor breeding season. But the quality of the birds staged was splendid, and with a good moult these should do well for their owners. Winners of most points: Champion Section, Messrs. W. Crabtree, 1st; A. Whitley, 2nd; F. Murgatroyd, 3rd; Novice Section, 1st, T. Tidswell; 2, A. Bennett; 3, J. Haste. Mr. A. Shaw judged and gave satisfaction.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

First of a series of six members' shows during the present year, held June 10th at Park Chapel Schools, West Bowling. The entry totalled 79 birds, amongst which were to be seen some very promising youngsters. Owing to there being a valuable list of special prizes for members to compete for, some very keen competition took place, and it was no light task which Mr. J. S. Clarkson (Halifax) had in giving the awards. In the Champion Section, Messrs. Allen, Stables, Walker, and Hill carried off most points, with four highest birds; in the Novice Section, Messrs. Cowell and Calloway, Grayshon, and Metcalfe; and in the Extra Novice Section, Messrs. Gregson, and Elworth and Burnett. The Judge gave every satisfaction.

ATTERCLIFFE AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, June 8th, when there was a very small attendance owing, I think, to the holidays. Chief business was to have been a table show of nest feather birds, but we only got one class of Yorkshires there, and Mr. Walker, who promised to be present as critic, was unable to come. Mr. Perry took up his duties therefore, and placed the cards well. We had a discussion on our ramble, which will take place on Sunday, July 9th, when we hope all members will go, and make it a big success; any of their friends also will be welcome. We shall meet at headquarters, (the Horse and Jockey Hotel) at 1 o'c, and take car to Rotherham, where we shall meet our guides at the College Square. Also decided, to hold a nest feather table show at next monthly meeting for the points specials to be competed for at three table shows to be held at our monthly meetings in July, October, and November. There will be two classes for Norwich and two for Yorkshires for members' classes, and same for novices. There will also be classes for British birds. So, members, bring your birds and help to make it a big success.

YORKS: 1, 4, vhc, Exton; 2, hc, Webster; 3, c, Waterhouse. A hearty voto of thanks to Mr. Perry brought a very pleasant evening to a close. —W. Richinson, Sec.

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Nest feather and British bird show held at new headquarters, Grange Park Hall, Leyton, June 10th. The birds, taken as a whole, were of very good quality, though scarcely so numerous as last year. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the secretaries, Messrs. Forse and Son, supported by a good working committee. Mr. C. Balleson judged and gave satisfaction.

BANKFOOT AND DIST. C.B.S.

First show of the season, held Red Lion Hotel, the new headquarters. Fifty birds were staged in nine classes. A feature of the show was the strong class of Buffs (16 entries). Through the kindness of Mr. H. B. Wood, 12s. 6d. had to be allotted in cash specials before judging commenced. Mr. Longbottom also gave a cash special for most points throughout show. The medal for best bird was won by Mr. W. Thwaites, with his ticked yellow bird, a really fine long drawn bird, with excellent flights. This is the first time Mr. Thwaites has shown a bird, and the result should be most encouraging. The 4s. special for most points was won by Mr. B Wilman. The 2s. special for second most points was won by Mr. C Bastow. The 2s. for best vhc was won by Mr. J. Lawson, and 1s. 6d. for the best hc by Mr. E. Oxley. Will members please note that 1s. 6d will be given for most entries, and 3s. 6d. for most points with birds out of the money? Mr. Fortnam's special for best bird will also be competed for at this show. Fanciers desirous of joining would do well to send in their names and join in this harvest of cash prizes, to be given at each show. Mr. M. Broadley gave every satisfaction with his awards.

Fifth annual show held June 10th, Railway Hotel. Entries exceeded those of last year, and the quality of the exhibits was good, notably the winners of Seely Bros., and the fine Britishers of Messrs. Atkinson, Archbold, and Rigg. The show arrangements were ably carried out by Messrs. Seely Bros., Neal, Rigg, Thomson, and others. Mr. T. Rowell judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

NOR. YELL.: 1, Seely Bros., grand yellow hen, will be heard of again. 2, Rigg; 3, Clark, both beaten in type only by winner. HULL C.B.S.

First nest feather show of the season, held June 12th, and was a success in every way, 103 birds being staged in 9 classes. The Norwich and Yorkshires made a grand display, some beautiful birds being shown in each section. The competition for the two cups offered by the society for most points gained by champion and novice members respectively at all shows held January to December caused keen competition, especially so in the champion section; in the novice section it almost looks as if Mr. F. F. Potter will win again this year. The following is the position of the parties, this show included: Cham. section: Stamford 79, Calam 77, Precious 50, Barwick 21, Harland 21, Oliff 17, Mason 12, Preutice 9; novice section, Potter 51, Frith 31, Douse 26, Clayton 19, Hinson 15, Riley 14, Calvard 14, Girling 12, Longhorn 11, Hogg 10, Lightfoot 9, Howe 8, Sowden 8, Ridley 7, McKay 6, Clayton 6, Cook 6, Gresham 5, W. E. Sowden 4, Smith 4, Briggs 4, Bray 3, Parkes 3, Fox 1, Clark 1. Messrs. Perkins and Brumby were the elected judges, and their awards gave every satisfaction.

DULWICH & PECKHAM C.B.S.

Eighth annual Y.B. show, held June 13th, Club Room, Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane. Mr. W. Hodson, Hon. Secretary, who has long held the position with distinction to himself and success to the society, superintended the arrangements, being willingly assisted by members of the committee and others. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and although the show was held in the evening, he had no reason to resort to artificial light during most part of the judging. There was a capital display of Norwich, special for best in show going to this section, the winner being a very typical, rich quality, good-headed ticked Yellow, shown by Mr. L. J. Richardson. Yorkshires were not perhaps so numerous or so good all through as the Norwich. Britishers were a small but select collection. At the close of the judging, Mr. Gardner was asked to address the very good audience which had assembled. He congratulated the society upon its continued prosperity, and upon the level and high standard of quality of the exhibits. He was especially pleased with the beautiful type, heads and necks of several of the Norwich, and more than one Plainhead would be heard of again in the autumn. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Gardner, on the motion of Mr. H. E. Tringham. Specials were won in addition to the aforementioned one for best in show, by Messrs. Richardson, Tringham, Tomsett (2), Tebbs, Freeman, and Cole.

SHERIFF HILL AND DIS. F. & F.S.

First half-yearly members' show of young birds held St. John's Parish Hall, June 10th. The cage bird section was judged by Mr. Shepherd (Newcastle). The hall was an ideal one for the purpose, and exhibits were staged in an up-to-date manner on the two tier system. The Secretary had everything in apple-pie order, and for a first show it was a real credit to the management, and it is deserving of better support in the future.

YORKS CL., ETC., YELL.: 1, Smith, splendid bird, well shaped, grandly drawn, should make a good one, a young fancier, his first year, takes special for 2nd best bird in show; 2, 3, Burrell, pair of good ones, shade rough in feather to winner; 4, Witherley; vhc, Willis; No. 5, absent. Wild-Bird Life.

Identifying Wild Birds.

Woodpeckers are almost as well known as Cuckoos, and, like those birds, acquire their popularity more by sound than sight, for unless one knows the haunts of the birds and intentionally watches for them, one may go through the whole season without seeing either. One of the former birds is continually "tapping" the branches and trunks of trees on ground adjoining the writer's garden, and yet he has only seen the bird twice during the whole season. Anyone who lives in the country can hear the Cuckoo from April till June, and occasionally hear so much of him that his voice becomes quite monotonous. But he is so like a hawk when on the wing that he is frequently passed unnoticed. And no doubt many of our other summer visitors are seen but not identified. Many of the warblers greatly resemble each other when seen in the open, at a distance too great to distinguish colouring, which at any time is not very pronounced; and it is only by noting birds' peculiar characteristics and movements that identification becomes in time a matter of habit. Looking across the meadow, there are three birds feeding under the hedgerow; these are black, and we know them to be Blackbirds although at the distance they might easily be mistaken for Starlings. But the latter birds have a much more sprightly movement, a perceptible waddling walk and a quick manner of darting the head forward to pick up food. The difference in these two species is easily described, but in many cases it is undoubtedly a matter of intuition, and although one knows it is a Nightingale, Robin, Whitethroat, Linnet, or Greenbird one is watching, it is not always possible to give a reason for being able to identify with ease. But if it is difficult to do so when birds are busy in the hedgerow, it is generally more so when they are on the wing; yet, curious as it may appear, we frequently are in doubt about a bird's identity until he takes flight. No two species fly quite alike. Some fly straight, others irregular, or in curves; some jerky or undulating; some use their wings differently. Even the Doves do not progress in the same manner; neither do the Crow family. The flight of the Jackdaw can easily be distinguished from that of the Rooks. All these differences one can learn by observation, and the knowledge will add greatly to the pleasures of the fields and woods.

Under the White Rose.

SEVERAL of the Bradford and District societies are now holding their members' first feather shows, and fanciers are looking forward to these events (they have no open shows this season to visit). I hear that at those shows held last Saturday some fine birds were staged, and that the numbers, taken all round, were very satisfactory. The breeding season so far leaves nothing to be desired, it being, if anything, above the average; and really, if the weather rules, there has been nothing at all to complain of. Also, First Feather shows give the novice quite an equal chance with the "old hand," and it was with pleasure that I heard last Saturday evening of a novice, at his first season's breeding, being successful in putting down the best bird in the show. Bravo! And, more than that, the judge wanted to buy it!

FANCIERS in the Bradford district and visitors to the town during the Coronation festivities should not miss paying a visit to the Cartwright Memorial Hall in Manningham Park to see the grand collection of stuffed birds and the superb collection of eggs now on view there. The collections are indeed worth a visit, and should prove very useful to those fanciers who ramble about the countryside, and, maybe, come across something they cannot name. There is the chance of comparing and classifying. Also, some of the nests with eggs are shown, and in others the young in the various stages of growth. Again, others are shown in their natural surroundings, and the large birds that we never see about here, but often read about, are there in all their glory, giving visitors an insight into realms unknown to those who live by force of circumstances in town. There are butterflies and moths, larva and pupae, shells, fossils, named flowers, etc., these being excellent and very instructive to the general lover of nature.

THE meeting in connection with the projected large show in aid of the Bradford Cinderella Fund, held on the 7th inst., was very well attended, and the business proceeded a good stage further, the principal item being the election of judges, or, I should say, the selection of judges. Here a good number are to be appointed, so that each one will only have a few classes to judge, to avoid rushing and to make sure of the show being open to the public in good time; and as British and foreign birds are to be included in the schedule, the show will be interesting to all. The question of the room to be had took up some little time, and at length the Central Baths Hall, in Morley Street, was decided upon, providing it can be had. Unfortunately, it is engaged for the Friday evening on the date required, but there is a probability that those interested will waive their date and allow the show to take place there; if so, the show will undoubtedly be held in the finest room for the purpose in Yorkshire—it leaves absolutely nothing to be desired, and is within two minutes of the Bradford Town Hall. Also, the subscription cards were given out to the members of the committee present, and it is hoped to get a good working fund in hand long before the day of the show.

GREEN food for the birds has been very plentiful so far this season, and dandelion in particular has seeded well. During the holidays acre after acre was to be seen literally covered with the ripe heads of this plant, and as the weather has kept fine and dry, it will be distributed far and wide. The parachute formation of the carrier for each seed will have had ample scope for this end; in wet seasons they are soon beaten down by the rain, and form large colonies round about the old plant. "STRAIGHT 'UN."

*A Knowing Chaffinch.

When I got home the other day, I found a Chaffinch caught up in some wire netting. I found that it had hurt its leg, so I took it indoors and put it in a cage. After a day or two I let it go. The next day it came back and brought a mate with it; and they flew into a cage that was hanging on the wall. Now they are quite happy.—Sent by Edward Brown (age 14), 16, Glovers Road, Reigate.

The Bold Titmouse.

I have a friend who tamed an Ox-eye Tit. He kept a tin with worms in it, and one night while I was holding it, the bird flew down from the top of a cage, took a worm, and went away again. Immediately the table was set it would burst open the door of its cage and steal a piece of butter or bread; then fly back to its cage, where it ate it.—Sent by Dora McCathie, Allan Street, Leslie, Fife.

*Helping a Starling.

My friend had a Starling fall down in his garden. His mother tended and fed it carefully. It was quite young and could not fly. In the afternoon she put it on the roof, and another Starling helped it to get to its nest. Later in the afternoon we found its nest in a loose tile on the other side of the roof. We saw a big Starling bring it food, and occasionally we saw the young ones' heads. There were about four in the nest, and they were not quite fledged.—Sent by Geoffrey C. Grand (age 11), 95, Anson Road, Southtown, Gt. Yarmouth.

FIRST FEATHER SHOWS.

Important Offer: Secretaries, Note!

We have decided again this year to accept advertisements of First Feather (young bird) shows at the reduced charge of 3s. 6d. per single column inch (2s. the half inch). And we will present a special prize of a framed coloured plate to all societies spending not less than 10s. 6d. in advertising their Young Bird Show in our columns.

Secretaries taking advantage of this offer should state very clearly in their advertisements the date, time, and place of the show. These particulars put before our readers will, without doubt, result in a much greater attendance at these early fixtures, and the making of new members, while the "gate-money" (where a charge is made) will benefit, and the sale of catalogues, too. This special cheap rate, of course, only applies to First Feather shows.

Secretaries should note that we can print at very favourable rates, show schedules, posters in colours, and ornamental post-cards. Send for samples and prices.

The Smallbridge and District C.B.S. are holding their First Feather Show on June 24, writes Mr. W. Lanyon, the sec.

The dates of our First Feather Shows are: June 24 and July 29, writes Mr. J. Lewis, hon. secretary of the Spen Valley C.B.S. (Cleckheaton).

Coronation Holidays.—Customers will oblige by ordering early next week, as the railway offices are closed from the 22nd.—J. W. Ramsden.—Advt.

Will secretaries and others please note my change of address from Buccleuch Street to 39a, Causewayside, Edinburgh? writes Mr. Thomas Todd.

The Great Horton O.S. members' show will be held on June 24, at the club house, with Mr. H. J. Chittenden as judge, writes Mr. J. Holroyd, the hon. sec.

Mr. G. Baldwin is, he informs us, removing from Hingeston Street, Hockley, to 68, Icknield Street, Hockley, Birmingham, where he has larger business premises.

Kindly note my change of address from Peters Street, Cambridge, to 81, Westminster Ave., Arlington Heights, Mass., writes Mr. Chas. A. Murray, sec. of the New England C.B.A.

Will Mrs. M. Bunton, of Newtown, who wrote us recently respecting a complaint, kindly forward us her full address, as letters have been sent her and returned marked "insufficient address"?

OBITUARY.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. George Harper, secretary of the Bonnyrigg and Dis. C.C., that I have to inform you of the sad loss sustained by one of our members (Mr. Joseph Thomson, Newtongrange), whose little one passed away on June 5. The sympathy of the members of the club goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Thomson in their sad bereavement.

Messrs. T. FORTUNE and W. H. LUGHTON.

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. J. Patterson, sec. of the Chirnside and Dis. C.B.S., that death has laid a heavy hand on our society by removing two of our oldest and most esteemed members. Mr. Lughton (Hillburn Ayton) was laid to rest in Ayton Churchyard on June 8. Deceased was a keen fancier of the Scotch Fancy Canary. He and his father have bred many good ones in their time—birds which secured many honours for them. He leaves a wife and aged father and brothers. Members and other fanciers will join us in sympathy with them in their sad bereavement. Again, on June 12, the grave closed over our worthy and much-esteemed President, Mr. Thomas Fortune. The society has lost in him one who was always found in his place at the meetings, etc. His wide experience and keen insight into human nature, coupled with a gentle tactfulness, enabled everything he said to be clearly understood, and the utmost harmony prevailed under his able guidance. This made him a general favourite. He was one of the founders of the society, and as such he will be sadly missed. He leaves a widow, son, and daughter to mourn his loss. I know your readers will join us in sympathy with them in this their hour of sorrow.

Our chairman, Mr. J. Hands, has been elected to judge the Annfield Plain Open Show—an honour which the Blaydon and Dis. fanciers highly appreciate—writes Mr. G. Havver, hon. sec. of the Blaydon-on-Tyne and Dis. C.B.S.

The Northowram and Dis. C.B.S. First Feather Show will be held on June 17, the judge being Mr. A. Wooler, writes Mr. S. Sykes, the sec. We have transferred our headquarters from the Queen Victoria Inn to the Yew Tree Inn.

Borth (Cardiganshire) Show will be held on August 11, writes Mr. T. Richards. Judge, Mr. D. R. Thomas (Oxford). There will be a solid silver cup for best Yorkshire; also classes for young birds. British birds and mules, too, will be catered for.

Yielding to great pressure on the part of the members of the Morpeth and Dis. C.B.S., I have again taken over the duties of secretary, writes Mr. E. Cowling, of Fulbeck Cottage, Morpeth. All communications, therefore, should in future be addressed to me.

A convivial evening will be held on June 21 at Hop Pole Hotel, at 7.30 p.m. prompt, writes Mr. E. Jaycott, sec. of the Crewe O.S. A presentation will be made to Mr. Frank Harding, who is leaving for Australia on July 7. All members are invited to attend.

Will all members of the Chesterfield and Dist. C.B.F.S. kindly note that I have taken over the secretaryship from Mr. C. H. Naylor? writes Mr. T. Booker. My address is 27, Storforth Terrace, Hasland. I shall be pleased to welcome any intending members, also any of the old members who have not yet joined us from last year.

The 1911 handbook of the London Cage Bird Association contains the rules of the association, the names and addresses of the members, and an excellent list of fixtures for the year. The sec. (Mr. W. H. Mugford, 1, Strathearn Road, Wimbledon, S.W.) will be pleased to forward particulars as to membership to any fancier wishing for same.

Mr. W. Vardy, writes, June 10, 1911: Send 56lbs. Royal Red, 14lbs. Hot. I won 12 medals last season, four gold medals, both gold medals at N.P.C. Club Show for best two Norwich, and was runner-up for cup. All fed on Sandiford's Colour Feed. It is the best in the world.—See advt. for further proof and prices.—Advt.

Our next club meeting will be held on June 29, and not on the 22nd, as arranged, owing to the Coronation, write Messrs. Towl Bros., hon. secs., Grimsby and Dis. O.S. The classes for the Second Nest Feather Show will be: Yellow and buff champions; ditto, novices; mule or hybrid; and A.S. British. The judge will be Mr. G. Harland (Hull).

CORONATION HOLIDAYS!

Important Notice!

In consequence of the Coronation holidays, CAGE BIRDS must go to press next week considerably earlier than usual, and will be on sale on WEDNESDAY.

Correspondents should note that all matter intended for inclusion in our next number must reach us on Monday, June 19th at latest.

ADVERTISERS: post your announcements early.

We rely upon our readers' kindly assistance in coping with the situation.

The date for our First Feather Show is July 1, writes Mr. Wm. Mallinson, sec. of the Wallasey and Dis. C.B.S.

Will societies desiring the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshire C.C. patronage for their shows please apply at once? Last date of receiving applications, June 24 (first post). Any fanciers desiring to become members should apply as early as possible to have their names and addresses in year book.—Messrs. Grayshon and Allen, hon. secs. (Wormald Street, Flush, Heckmondwike).

The members of Dalkeith C.C., write Messrs. Ewing and Steel, the hon. secs., hold the first of a series of smoking concerts in the Ship Inn. They cordially invite all members of kindred societies in the district to attend. A good programme of vocal and instrumental music has been arranged. The chair will be taken at 7 p.m. (No date given.—Editor.)

At our general meeting, writes Mr. Thos. Smith, hon. sec. of the Ilkeston and Dis. C.B.S., it was decided to have 26 classes at our First Feather Show, to be held at the Durham Ox Inn on June 24, as follows:—Nor., 5; Yorks., 6; A.O.V., 2; Mule, 2; Novice, 2; British, 9. Mr. J. Adnitt (South Normanton) will place the cards, entries to be made at the same time as birds staged, viz., 12.30.

Our ramble to the Dukeries takes place on Sunday next, June 18, and all fanciers and friends are invited, write Messrs. Bishop and Colton, secs. of the Sheffield O.S. The trains leave Sheffield Great Central Station at 9.35 a.m. and 1.40 p.m.; return train leaving Worksop at 8.36. Dinners and teas have been arranged for at the Greyhound Hotel, Worksop. We are anticipating one of the best rambles ever held, as we have been successful in obtaining the services of one of the best known men in the Dukeries to act as guide. Tickets (return train fare and tea), 3s. 2d. each, to be had from Mr. Bishop, 69, Alexandra Road, or on Great Central platform. Those going by morning train will meet the 1.40 contingent at Worksop Station.

The demand for "Ramsden's Specials" having become so great, I find it necessary to devise some scheme to ensure my specials being given where most deserved. I have decided to issue coupons with all canisters supplied either through the trade or direct by post. No coupons will be issued other than on canisters packed by myself. Members of societies are asked to hand their coupons to their secretary, who in turn is asked to enclose same with his application for a special prize. Applications without coupons will not be considered, and the value of the prize given will depend entirely on the value of the coupons enclosed with the applications. Customers who are not members of societies must retain their coupons. They will be asked for them in exchange for a prize, should they win one. Ramsden's Peppers are guaranteed only when sold in my canisters. There is no guarantee with any pepper sold loose by traders. When you ask for Ramsden's peppers, see you get them. Tons of inferior peppers have been foisted on the public, and a lot of them falsely described as Ramsden's. Any person giving information leading to the conviction of offenders will be well rewarded. Ramsden's Peppers are pure; birds thrive on them. In use they are the cheapest on the market. Prices: Tasteless, 2s. lb.; 5lbs., 7s. 6d.; 22lbs., 30s. Hot: 3s. lb.; all post free. Ramsden's Peppers hold the Palace record. See Palace Show Catalogue.—J. W. Ramsden, 11, Josephine Avenue. Brixton, London.—Advt.

ROYAL CORNWALL (St. Austell.)

A capital show both for numbers and quality was that of the Royal Cornwall, which was held at St. Austell on June 14th and 15th. Norwich and Yorkshires were a very typical lot, especially the Norwich; Mules were indeed most excellent, and the competition exceedingly close. The classes of the section, however, were those for British, the four classes having no less than fifty-five entries, whilst the merit was of a very high standard. Never before have we seen such an array of Goldies and Bullies at a summer fixture. The exhibits were nicely staged, and their needs well attended to by the committee, which consisted of Messrs. T. M., Hocking (chairman), Kenyon, J. and G. Carne, Trevenna, Osborne, Martin, Varcoe, Northcott, Chesterfield, Popperwell, Thomas, Newton, Olver, Matthews, Rowe, Rosevear, Whetter, Phillips, Harris, Thompson, Warne, Davies, and Daniel, whilst Messrs. W. P. Northey and R. Harris made a most obliging, courteous, and hard-working brace of secretaries. Mr. C. A. House judged.

NOR. YELL. Will secretaries who have not already applied for the patronage of the Northern British Bird, Mule, and Foreign Bird Club kindly send their applications in before the July meeting, as we will allot it then? writes Mr. George Taylor, the sec.

Breeding Foreign Birds in Cages.

An Easy Method Explained.

By Wesley T. PAGE, F.Z.S. etc.

Not a great deal has been done in regard to this phase of foreign bird-keeping in this country, but on the Continent a fair amount of success has been realised, for again and again in the writings of the late Dr. Karl Russ, and also in the pages of "Die Gefiederte Welt," we find that such and such species have successfully reared young under the conditions of cage-life. It must be obvious then that character of cage, nest receptacle, etc., must play an important part in any success achieved.

The occasional successes that have been attained, almost unsought, with such species as the Crimson Finch, and Long-tailed Grassfinch are sufficient indication that others will reward the persevering bird-keeper, though it will probably turn out that the ultimate success will only be achieved after many failures—that is, so far as many species are concerned. On the other hand there are many species which, given suitable accommodation, will breed freely once they have settled down.

Avoid these Obstacles.

Failures need be neither disheartening nor continuous to the thoughtful bird-keeper, for increased knowledge should be the result, and the past failure, or failures, made the stepping stone to future triumph. By careful observation the cause of the past failure should be apparent, and this being provided for, the next attempt should be at any rate one step nearer success.

Often the cause of failure and loss arises from a failing to realise the difference between cage and aviary life, and also the difference between the incubation period and the activity that precedes and follows that period, even under the conditions of cage life. For this reason the birds must be kept under continuous observation, and at the least sign of over-fatness, without stinting quantity, flesh-forming items of the diet should be lessened, and a laxative promptly given at intervals of two or three days, at the same time exercising care that the patient is not scoured. The same as to the period of incubation; a laxative should be given weekly to counteract the lack of exercise during this period (there is no better laxative for small birds than Dinneford's Magnesia, given in the drinking-water, two parts of water to one of the magnesia). Another obstacle to success is one's interfering too much with the bird's domestic arrangements. Many species strongly resent this, and forsake their eggs and young. But unless this is done, how can we observe? you ask. You must observe by stealth, from a little distance, remaining still while doing so. A hand-mirror will reveal much while the birds are off the eggs or young, either for the purpose of exercising or for taking in supplies; while with a pair of suitable glasses much can be observed while one is comfortably seated on a chair placed in a suitable position at some distance from the birds.

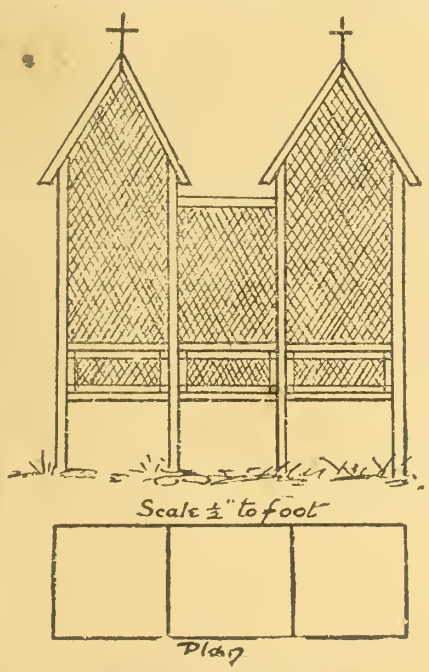
A Suitable Cage Described.

A rough diagram of the cage is figured. It is of a good type. It is roomy; it provides privacy; it secures the birds against draught; and the arrangement of doors and flaps makes every part accessible for cleaning and attendance without scaring the bird. In such a cage the birds could be safely wintered in any room where the temperature was fairly equable. The furnishings must be, some kind of nest receptacle, twiggy branches for perching accommodation, and food hoppers.

A Hartz travelling cage makes a good nest receptacle. Take out the fittings; cut away a couple of the bars for entrance; put in a little hay (about sufficient to cover up the bottom of it) and hang it up in the screened portion of cage, near the top. Other nest receptacles may be formed from any small box (say, 6ins. square), with an entrance hole—according to the size of the bird—facing the light. A good arrangement is a hollow cube, with an earthenware nest-pan hanging up inside. But most species are content with, nay, favour, the Hartz travelling cage as already described.

The perches will be placed mostly in the screened portion. They consist of twiggy branches, one of which should be so placed as to screen the nest receptacle—one branch wired to the back will be all that is required in the part facing the open wire front.

The character of the food hoppers is immaterial, so long as they can easily be cleaned and their contents not easily fouled by the birds. The bath should be of the type to hang over the door of cage on the outside, thus keeping the cage dry.



Outdoor cages should be portable, so that when weather necessitates it, they can easily be handled and taken indoors. Again, it is best to make three cages in one, so as not to have too many to move about, though if the tops, back and sides are weather-proof, they can be left out of doors during the summer months by the simple expedient of fastening a screen in front of them each night, and arranging them so that rain cannot beat into them.

An Outdoor Combination Cage.

A diagram is here given of such a combination cage, which I used for several years with much success; but it was many years ago. The framing was of 1in. quartering, the floor, top, back, and partitions of ½in. tongued and grooved matching, the top being also covered with felt. The cage stood out of doors all the spring and summer months, and was taken indoors in the winter. It had handles at each end, so that its position could readily be changed during gales of wind or driving rain. A piece of roofing felt was hung over the wire front each night.

The diagram is practically self-explanatory. Each division of the cage had a base 18ins. square, the end compartments being 2ft. high at the eaves, and the middle compartments about 6ins. less at the front, as in this portion (the middle compartment) the roof was a lean-to, which, with the two span roof ends, made a pleasing design. There was a large door in the back of each compartment for the annual distempering, insertion of branches, etc.

Such a structure is often dignified by the name of aviary, but in plain English it is but a cage, nevertheless a very useful and practical one. In it during the course of about three years I bred Zebra Finches, Java Sparrows, Silverbills, Bengalese, and Cutthroats, while Green Singing Finches, Saffron Finches, and Magpie Mannikins nested and laid, but did not hatch out the eggs.

All the undermentioned birds are probable breeders under such conditions—i.e., if given such cage accommodation as is indicated above. Most of them might be termed certain breeders, but it must be borne in mind that they will take longer to settle down than Canaries; also that the breeding season cannot be said to be over till the moult commences with the respective species.

Finches: Fire, Zebra, Crimson, Gouldian, Diamond, Ribbon, Cherry, Cuban, Parson, Bicheno, Parrot, Painted, Pileated, Chestnut-breasted, Olive, Red-headed, Bib, Sharp-tailed, Striated, Spice, Longtailed Grass, Rufous-tailed Grass, Masked Grass, Grey Singing, Green Singing, Alario, and Saffron. Mannikins: Black headed, White headed, Three-coloured, Magpie, Bronze, Bengalese, White and Grey Java Sparrows, African and Indian Silverbills, Waxbills: Cordon Bleu Orange-cheeked, Golden-breasted, Crimson-winged, St. Helena, Grey, Sydney, Violet-eared, Common Avadavat, and Green Avadavat. The Waxbills are not so likely to breed in a cage as the other groups; they are by no means free breeders, even in a natural out-door aviary. Miscellaneous: Black-headed Siskin, Hooded Siskin, Cape Canary, and St. Helena Seedeater.

My Favourite Canaries.

The Norwich Plainhead and the Lizard.

By W. REID (Sunderland).

In writing this article, which I do in the expectation that it may interest and be of some benefit to the many new beginners in the Cage Bird Fancy, and especially to the readers of Cage Birds, I propose to confine myself exclusively to two varieties of Canaries, which, in my opinion, are the most beautiful and incidentally the most suitable for a beginner to commence with, viz., the Norwich and the Lizard.

A Universal Favourite.

Taking the Norwich first, we have here a bird that commends itself to practically every fancier, whether he keeps the variety or not. And rightly so, for what Canary is more ideal in respect to the attainment of general characteristics than the Norwich; and what Canary needs less of the various crossings with other varieties in order to keep it up to the standard of excellence required from an exhibition point of view? When one considers its true shape, its general health and sprightliness, and its proficiency in the breeding-room, it is scarcely to be wondered at that the Norwich is the fancier's most popular breed, and that this is so the large number bred and exhibited annually proves beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The first essential point in a good Norwich is shape, and this being so, it is necessary for the breeder to bear in mind continually and to endeavour to produce the short, cobby, tight feathered bird that is so essential to success on the show bench. The necessary type has been so often described in Cage Birds that it is perhaps needless for me to deal with it, yet for the benefit of those who may only recently have entered the Fancy I will again describe what the shape of an exhibition Norwich Plainhead should be. Beak, short and stout, set into a bold well-rounded head, showing no trace of browing; short, thick neck; body short and chubby, with a broad well-filled-in back—that is, totally free from any tendency to hollowness or guttering; deep, broad, full chest, nicely rounded, running off quite clean underneath, giving the bird a cleancut appearance behind; wings short and well braced, carried evenly down the back, the tips just reaching the root of the tail, which also should be short, closely folded, and carried quite straight; the legs set well back, giving the bird a good, full-fronted appearance, with as little of it behind the perch as possible; the bird to be well proportioned.

A Debatable Question.

The question of size is a very debatable one, and has often been the subject of angry discussions. Some breeders declare that 5½ inches is quite long enough for a Norwich, so long as it is proportionately built. That is all right so far as it goes, but if a bird six inches or 6¼ inches long be also built in proportion, and is equal in other points, the larger bird should always take the lead. Personally I prefer a large bird, as it is the most difficult to breed. But it must possess the necessary qualifications that go to make a good Norwich, and, above all, it should be clean behind, for nothing is more obnoxious to my mind than to see a bird supposed to be a Norwich carrying so much feather that it cannot keep its legs clean; and I have no hesitation in saying that the proper place for birds like these, no matter how good they may be in colour and other Norwich properties, is certainly not on the show bench, as they are purely stock birds, and should be kept in the breeding-room, where many of them, undoubtedly prove invaluable when paired to suitable hens.

At the same time the other extreme should be avoided; that is, birds having long, stilty legs, and showing the whole of the thigh, for your true Norwich should be placed upon a pair of good, well-set legs, and in such a manner that only the hocks are visible.

So much then for shape. We now come to the next grand essentials in a good Norwich, viz., quality and colour. It is most desirable that the bird should be clothed with very short, close-fitting feather of good silky texture; and if this silky texture be combined with a rich colour so much the better. Unless the bird possesses these very necessary points in addition to a correct shape, it can not be termed a tip-top specimen.

The Meaning of Quality.

The meaning of the word quality is, I am afraid, not as clearly understood as it should be, for many young fanciers (and, I am sorry to say, some older ones too, who really ought to know better) appear to think that every bird carrying long loose feather must of necessity be a coarse-feathered bird, and I have even seen this statement in cold print. Nothing could be more misleading to a novice than this, and the sooner he learns that quality is not denoted merely by the length or looseness of feather, the better it will be for himself. If quality were simply determined by the length or looseness of a bird's feather, it would be practically useless to look for it in the heavy feathered varieties, such as Crests; yet there are specimens in this variety that possess feather of the very best quality, just as there are some specimens of the short-feathered breeds which carry a coarse, harsh feather.

Soft and Silky.

Quality, as applied to birds, means that the bird possessing such, carries feather either long or short, of that soft, silky texture which gives such an appreciable sheen and grand finish to a good bird, and is quite different from the dry, harsh feather carried by a coarse feathered bird. The young fancier will soon learn to detect the difference between the two, when once he knows what he has to look for.

The meaning of colour is probably understood by everyone, and I need only state that it must be bred for, just as you must breed for type and quality, and that the colour of a good Norwich should be bright and rich, and of an even tone all through.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects. Harmless to everything.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Various.

R. H. Slater.—Very glad to hear you have got such good results by running one cock with two hens and following advice given here. (1) Yes, the young will do very well and moult all right in the aviary, and doubtless be much better than if caged up. They should begin to moult soon now, and will thus get through well before bad weather arrives. (2) The method of feeding given to "Lump Sugar, L'pool," will do very well for them. (3) To be on the safe side you should begin at once to give a small quantity of colour feed in egg food, or on bread and milk, if they eat it thus, freely, twice a week. In three or four weeks hence, even if they have not begun to drop feathers, increase it to three times a week, and continue this until the moult commences, when you must begin to give feed regularly every day, and continue this right through the moult. (4) The best way for you to pick out the cocks is to watch them closely, and note their attempts at singing, and single out those that show a marked inflation and pulsation of the throat when trying to sing. There may be some that will not start to sing until after the moult is quite over. As a rule, the biggest, boldest, and most dominant and pushful birds will turn out cocks, but it is certainly not easy for a novice to recognise the subtle distinctions. There is a plate in one of the published parts of "Our Canaries," which shows the different appearance of the sexes excellently. You should get that and study it.

A Grave Outlook.

W.L.H.—Your letter conveyed to me only one impression, and that unmistakably—that you have a virulent type of septic fever among the birds, and with the generally prevalent tropical weather, I fear the outlook for you is very grave indeed. I suppose the p.m. reply to "W. Tear" in last issue was intended for you, in which case my own suspicions are sufficiently confirmed. Cure there is none. Medicinal treatment is merely so much wasted effort. Therefore, devote all your attention to the general hygiene of your stock; thorough disinfection; and isolation of all apparently healthy birds. Move all that appear perfectly healthy to a place quite isolated from the present room and allow absolutely no communication between them. Use a totally different set of vessels of all kinds for the two lots of birds, to avoid any communication through this medium, and it would be best to get them attended to by separate persons. Keep a sharp eye on the healthy stock, and immediately one shows signs of becoming ill, take it back, cage, fittings and all, to the other room and let it take its chance with the affected stock. Stop all egg food, and feed principally on a seed diet, with a variety of mixed seeds for change, a little crushed plain biscuit, given dry, and occasionally a little bread scalded in milk and sprinkled with maw, and green food daily. Keep everything, especially drinking water, as pure and fresh as possible, and add six drops of tincture of gentian and four of dilute sulphuric acid to the water three times a week for a time to tone up the system. As regards disinfection, get the Nutshell booklet on "Disinfection," 2½d. post free, and Dr. Clarke's brochure on "Septic Fever," 7d. post free, and act on the very full instructions given therein. All your seeds are very good, and have nothing to do with the cause. Stale, or impure, egg food would cause it, or the introduction of an infected bird, or cage or appliance which had been in contact with the disease.

Showing, etc.

C. S. Glad to hear you have met with some measure of success; hope it may lead on to something more brilliant. (1) Of course you might manage with the cage you mention for keeping and training the cock in, but if you have any serious intention of showing, by all means get a proper show cage, which, after all, is not a very serious outlay. You can scarcely expect a bird to behave quite O.K. if you keep and train it in a makeshift cage, and put it in a show cage at the last minute, as it were, to face the judge. (2) Start giving a little colour food in the egg food about twice a week at the end of June, and continue this until they show signs of the approaching moult by occasionally having a nap, looking more or less dull, going off song, etc. When these symptoms appear, give colour every second day, and look out for dropped feathers. When the latter appear, begin colour feeding daily. (3) If the birds agree, the two, or even three, birds may be moulted together in one cage quite satisfactorily. (4) If the breeding cage is fitted with sand-drawers, you might quite safely clean them out every week all through the breeding season. Go about the work quietly and methodically, then there is no need whatever to avoid it out of consideration for the birds. Should the weekly cleaning day fall near the time of young hatching, omit it that week. No further neglect is called for. (5) Yes, sawdust is very suitable for the cage floors whilst birds are moulting. Give a supply of gritty sand in a small vessel in one corner of the cage. If the parents have only hatched this one brood you might, if the hen is equally anxious to nest again, let them have another nest. By all means, get the parts of "Our Canaries," then if there is any point not quite clear to you, write me, and I will endeavour to elucidate it. The sample of crushed hemp would be better described as "hemp seed meal." I should regard it in this condition as quite useless for feeding Canaries, and the very best quality would soon become objectionable after being so ground. All that is necessary is to just crack the husk to make it easier for the birds to extract the kernel. The few stray whole grains in the sample were very good, so probably the seed is good before being ground.

A Single Egg (M. C.).—Give the hen the rhubarb and soda mixture advised to "Darkie" for two days, and then feed her as advised in the same reply after the end of the first week, and continue this feeding until the hen has gone to nest again. If she does not do so in the course of a fortnight it is doubtful whether she will go to nest again this season. No other treatment than the above will be needed.

Broken Toe (J. A.).—You should have given some particulars as to how and when the toe was broken, and in what way the damage affects it. A broken toe would be something of a rarity, and I rather suspect it is simply a deformed toe which curls underneath the foot. If this is so, and it is of any standing, your best course is to leave it alone. If it does not materially hamper his movements about the perches, there is no reason at all why you should not breed with him successfully. In any case it is worth a trial.

Pedigrees (J. Evans). Roughly speaking, No. 4 contains 75 per cent. blood of No. 1, and 25 per sent. blood of No. 2. But, strictly, a bird may, and does, inherit some part of its characteristics from more remote ancestors than its immediate parents and grand-parents. "The Stock Book and Pedigree Register," which our Manager will send you post free for 7d., is specially designed to enable you to keep the pedigree of your stock in a convenient and readily accessible form. With this you should find no difficulty in getting at the pedigree of any bird bred by yourself.

What to Do (Inquisitive).—When a hen has a bad record for being a non-feeder, the very best thing to do is to endeavour to get a pair of good feeders at work simultaneously, so that they may, if necessary, take over the feeding of the negligent hen's young. The day before next brood are due to hatch add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea to the drinking water for one-half of the day, and repeat the dose on the two following days. Also give a bath in which a little common salt has been dissolved on each of these days. Treat her as regards feeding, etc., as advised to "Elene."

Moulting (H.W.B.).—What you describe are all simply the symptoms of approaching moult, which have perhaps been a little protracted. Now the feathers have begun to drop, all should go well. Keep bird in quite comfortable place, free from draughts. Give a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. Give a little greenfood in variety daily, and three times a week half a teaspoonful of crumbled sponge cake, or egg-food, or its equivalent of bread sopped in milk. On the alternating days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts millet, inga, linseed, and maw, with a sprinkling of hemp. Nothing else should be necessary, but towards end of moult 20 drops of chemical food in the water twice a week will do no harm. Bird will not sing until moult is quite finished.

Crest with Horns (Newport).—It is a physical defect, and can only be properly dealt with by judicious mating of the stock birds in order to breed it out of the progeny. Get Part XIII. of "Our Canaries," which will fully explain how to deal with this and similar defects in the breeding season. It will certainly spoil the bird's chances of success on the show bench. Although not a disqualification, it is a serious defect, and tells against a bird considerably in good competition. If horns are of only slight extent you might do something when getting the bird ready for a show by moistening the offending feathers with warm water, and then gently brushing them down where you wish them to lie with a small camel-hair brush or pencil, continuing the brushing, and now and again warming the brush, until the feathers are quite dry, and finally give a brush with a tiny pad of silk. During all the operation keep the brush or pad stroke in the direction the feathers should lie to make them the least prominent and unsightly.

Crest-bred Hen (Darkie).—I'm afraid nothing will put this hen right, neither will she ever be of any use to you for breeding. You might try what the following treatment will do for her. Keep her in a quiet, comfortable, airy, but not draughty place, as free as possible from fluctuations, or vitiated air of any kind. Give a staple of plain canary seed. For the first week give, besides this staple, a free supply of greenstuff, chickweed, dandelion, plantain, daily only, and add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence to the drinking water every second day. After this, add to the diet half-a-teaspoonful of summer rape, and a similar quantity of egg food or crushed sponge cake, sprinkled with equal parts of maw, sesame, and gold of pleasure seed, every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, teazle and linseed. Give a little dandelion daily. In the drinking water give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid for three days, and follow this with 20 drops of whisky, six each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week or ten days.

Rings and Limewater (Mystery, S.W.).—(1) No ring came to hand, so you probably overlooked it. Assuming the rings are well-made, I should imagine you must have injured the legs, perhaps broken them, in putting on the rings to account for the effect produced. You rung them rather too early—from 7 to 9 days old is about the best time—but that should not have produced these ill-effects. (2) Rings are undoubtedly the most reliable means of recording pedigree. You might use open rings, which you could put on when the young are about leaving the nest. Another method is to cut notches in the web of the flights, or stamp them with indelible numbers—both temporary and risky methods. (3) Lime-water may sometimes be beneficially used medicinally for birds, in which case it is added to drinking water. Look through replies this week, and you will find one or two where its use is recommended.

Going Light (Lump Sugar, Liverpool).—You are not feeding the young correctly, which is doubtless the cause of the trouble. First of all see that all your seeds are quite sound and good, especially the hemp, and that cages and perches are kept scrupulously clean, and well provided with clean gritty sand. As a staple diet give plain canary only. Every second day give a little summer rape, and on the alternate days twice each week a small quantity of hemp—about half teaspoonful per bird—not crushed, as the birds should be quite able to crack it themselves; just slightly crack it a few times, then give it whole. On two other days give a similar quantity of bread and milk sprinkled with maw. A few plaintain stalks may be given occasionally. This is for general diet. For the next week feed as above, but give the bread and milk daily with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion per bird mixed in it before adding the maw, and for one day add four drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a threepenny piece to each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Keep water supply perfectly pure and fresh.

Moulting and Young (R.I.C., 11).—(1) Keeping them under as healthful conditions as possible, free from draughts and fluctuations, and in a fairly warm place when the moult begins, is the best way to assure a good and quick moult. Twenty drops of whisky and a few shreds of saffron added to the water for a few days when they show signs of beginning, until they are well broken into moult, will do no harm, and those showing any signs of trouble in beginning, give a little egg-food every second day with a slight dusting of flowers of sulphur on it until they break away, and also keep them quite warm and cover over the cages. If trouble occurs in any particular case, write us and send full particulars, and I shall be glad to assist you. (2) There is not much wrong with your feeding of the young birds. See to the quality of the seeds, and keep cages and all food and water vessels scrupulously clean, and feed and treat as advised in reply to "Lump Sugar, Liverpool." It is just possible their dulness is due to the approaching moult.

Starving Chick (I. B. R.).—If you had no other good feeding with young about the same age to which you could transfer the chick, hand-feeding for a day or two was the only way out. Hope you succeeded in the attempt. The young one you found on the floor was probably dragged out of nest accidentally. See that the hen's claws are not overgrown next time, also that the nest is placed so that she hops off on to the side before going to a perch instead of flying off with a rush, and always take a glance over the cage floor when feeding for the first few days after hatching to see if any young have been dragged out. If discovered in such circumstances whilst still alive, replace them in the nest. See reply to "Elene" for hints how to treat next brood.

Is it a Mule? (Lidnum).—The mere fact of the hen laying two clutches of unfertile eggs is no proof at all that she is a Mule, even though she does "look so like a Linnet." It only shows that one or both birds are not in very good breeding condition, or do not "hit" together. I have an almost clear buff Roller hen that has done precisely similarly, and I know she is no Mule. But if you could show the hen to a Mule breeder he should be able to tell you whether it was really a Mule or not. If she is anxious to go to nest again now, there is no reason why you should not let her do so, in which case give a small teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with half as much of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and sesame, mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, hemp, and millet. Give a free supply of chickweed and dandelion daily. In the drinking water add a small crystal of sulphate of soda daily for three days. Continue the above feeding until she has gone to nest.

Young Dying (Novice, Manchester).—Your hens evidently did not begin to feed at all. You must not give yolk of egg solely for any length of time. Give a small quantity, say a small teaspoonful, when brood is hatching, and begin from next feeding time to add bread or biscuit to it. See reply to "Elene" above, and act on these hints with future broods. No. 1910 birds are not too young to feed the chicks, though it is not uncommon for hens to make hash of the business, more or less, with the first brood. They may do better next time. Hens usually commence feeding young within an hour or two of hatching, but the quantity of food consumed by the young for the first day or two is, of course, very small. To make a good firm nest get a nest-box or pan, put in a little moss or short hay, the coarsest part of the penny nest-bags usually sold, work it into shape with fingers, then fill up centre fairly solid with cow-hair, stand a hot egg you have just boiled for birds, on end in the centre of mass of hair, and gently press it down and twist round and round pivot-wise for a few minutes, when you will find it has, with judicious use, moulded an ideal nest for you.

Small Egg (F. J. Langley).—The egg is quite abnormally small, and would not have hatched out in any case. It had probably been in the nest some days to account for the partial drying up. Very young hens or old hens sometimes lay these abnormal eggs, but there is not necessarily anything physically wrong with them—the ovary is not in full vigour, that's all. But in old hens it often indicates that their reproductiveness is exhausted, and unless exceptionally good birds, they are scarcely worth wasting the services of a cock bird with. If the hen is a young one you should feed her rather liberally for a week or two and give a liberal supply of chickweed and dandelion daily.

Is it good? (Tinker).—If the bird was really ruptured, as you were told, the advice to paint it with iodide—which, by the way, was probably a mistake in terminology, and meant iodine—and to give the oil named in egg food, instead of being good, is as useless as rubbing tatcho on its beak to make its tail grow longer, and not nearly so harmless. I cannot tell what the substance may be without seeing it, or at least having very precise details as to its position, size, appearance, etc., and the general condition of the bird. It may be simply a little overfed, and I do not really think there is anything serious the matter with the bird. Keep it on the plain canary for a fortnight, and give in addition once a week a little bread and milk sprinkled with maw, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts summer rape, black rape, and millet. Give green food freely daily. If not better, write again, referring to this reply, and giving the fullest particulars you can on the above mentioned. Apply nothing externally.

Leaving in Charge (Puzzled, Buxton).—Sorry it was not possible, owing to holiday dislocation, to reply to your query in last issue, as it did not reach me until sometime after that issue had gone to Press. As you had a friend who would attend to the daily feeding during your absence, you could certainly have given him or her a lesson in making the ordinary egg food which would have occupied but little more time and been far better than changing for any substitute whilst young were being fed. As long as the birds are doing well, it is always unwise to make a drastic change at such a time. But if you considered it really necessary, one of the very best substitutes is a mixture of half-pound good preserved egg yolk and one pound of crushed maizena wafer biscuits, well mixed together and stored in a cool dry place in air tight tins. To use, take a little less than the required quantity in cup or basin, add a little stale bread soaked in cold water and squeezed as dry as possible, and a little maw, and blend all well together with a fork. The quantity of bread should be just sufficient to bring the whole to a crumbly, moist state. It would not be wise to separate the cock at this stage, as many hens would refuse to go on with the feeding, and as you would not be on hand to see how things were going, it is best to leave them together, and take the chance of their not starting nesting again.

Colour Questions (No-Bo).—(1) The sample of hot Natal is only moderate. You should easily get a richer colour. (2) If you wish to hot feed, in the absence of a richer coloured pepper, this sample might be tolerated, but would have to be used in a little higher proportion to get the same effect, which is not a desirable point. I am not much in favour of very hot feeding, and consider two ounces of good, rich coloured Natal in a pound, gross, of colour-feed sufficient; but to get the same effect with this sample you would need about three ounces in a pound. In addition to this, add four ounces of soft brown sugar, and, if the peppers appear lacking in oil, an ounce of finest salad oil, and thoroughly blend all together. Let it stand in an earthenware jar for a few days, and it is ready to use as required. (3) This is answered in No. 2. No other ingredients are required. You could get the feed ready blended in the proper proportions from the vendor of the brand named. (4) The water paint named would do well enough to re-decorate the cages after the mites have been exterminated; but do not simply re-distemper cages with this or any other brand with the hope of destroying mites in toto. If you do you will be mortified to see the mites running about the insides before they are well dry, looking out for fresh harbouring quarters. Thoroughly wash and disinfect the cages, scraping off any old loose distemper before applying fresh distemper. Look through the last two week's replies, and you will find full details for eradicating this pest.

Ill-luck (Elene).—Surely you cannot really mean that the young of the Crests were in the nest six weeks? This must be a slip of the pen, as even with bad feeders, if the young get enough to keep them alive they should have been out the nest and feathered by the end of the fourth week. I do not think you gave the parents a fair chance, as by withholding all green food you probably deprived them of the one thing that would have saved the situation. Never mind them being a trifle loose in bowels next time, give green food freely. Many birds will practically rear their young well upon it when they absolutely refuse to feed with anything else. Give a spray of tender chickweed, or a flower head of groundsel on the second day after hatching, and after this gradually increase the quantity, and give it fresh two or three times daily. If the looseness gets troublesome from this cause, add a pinch of maw seed to the egg food each time, and a tablespoonful of lime-water to the drinking water for one half of the day for a day or two. Also make your egg food with equal parts egg, crumb of stale bread, and crushed stale sponge cake, with a sprinkling of maw as mentioned above. Keep it just crumbly moist. You may also offer a little soaked rape in a separate dish, but be careful it does not become sour. You will, however, probably find the green food your "open sesame" to success. By adopting these hints I have no doubt you will do better with the coming broods.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Breeding Bengalese.

J. Rickwood.—Bengalese are an artificial production, and there are many unfertile eggs with this species. Again, they are loose sitters, and often cock and hen crowd into the nest together, and other eggs are spoiled this way. The probability is, your birds have not yet fully settled down, and that you'll have some luck with this second clutch. At any rate all you can do is to leave them alone, and some young are almost sure to be reared during the season. In addition to your present diet, supply millet, sprays, greenfood ad lib, such as chickweed, groundsel, and lettuce, and when young are hatched, or rather, when they are about due to hatch, some soft food mixture should be supplied—several good ones are advertised in our pages—or equal parts of ants' eggs, crushed biscuit, and crumbled sponge cake, made crumbly moist with boiling water. You will, of course, also have the usual essentials grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing. The incubation period is from eleven to thirteen days. After the eggs have been incubated eighteen days I should remove them, as they will not hatch, being either addled or unfertile, as by so doing another clutch will be more quickly produced. The breeding season may be said to commence in early spring, and to continue right up to the moult. At this season do not omit the daily bath, and it is better to have one which will hang outside the cage, over the open door.

Treatment for Sugar Birds.

Tanager.—Sugar Birds and Chloro-Tanagers (Necklace, All Green, etc.) mostly arrive with their feathers more or less glued together, and in the cleansing process feathers are lost, and also in small quarters they are by no means amiable with each other, and this does not spell "a full garment." Again, the latter especially are soft feathered birds, and in handling, cleaning, etc., some of the plumage is lost, and the genus Chlorophonia is notoriously difficult to establish. I expect they will ultimately take a mealworm, but they should do well on a sop made with condensed milk, hot water, liquid malt, and crumbled sponge cake, accompanied by unlimited ripe fruit—they can have almost any kind they will take, but I always give orange in limited quantity, and as a change. They should do well in the quarters you have assigned them, but I like them best in a fairly roomy flight, part of which is all glass, and the other part all wood, for retirement, the portion under glass to be planted with a rambler rose, myrtle, orange, and abutilon; this gives them natural quarters, and is, besides, very spectacular. The trees require very little attention, being planted in the ground, and the birds thrive and do well. Of course, a system of ventilation must be provided without draught, and the same applies to your bird-room. This spring, in one of our eastern counties, Yellow-winged Sugar Birds were in a garden aviary, and during this period on several mornings there were several degrees of frost on the grass. One morning there were 9 degrees; the birds are living and in fine plumage. Fed and treated as above (in your cages) the birds should soon renew their plumage.

Java Sparrows' Eggs Infertile.

W. H. P.—Your dietary is certainly all that is needful, and I am rather afraid as to a solution of the difficulty you will have to help yourself by close observation. My difficulty is as follows: From your details of outward distinctions between the two birds, you would appear to have a true pair, but, regarding the number of eggs to the clutch this certainly points to two hens, as also does the fact of their both sitting on the eggs together at times. The differences in form of bill may in this case possibly arise from a very young and an adult hen of somewhat ancient age. I suggest your keeping them under close observation for a time so as to secure definite knowledge. Have you seen them pairing? If they are about building again, now is the time to be on the look-out. Also as regards the beaks, compare these in profile; that of the hen is wedge-shaped, or perhaps the better term would be a V lying on its side, so <. In the male the upper mandible is distinctly arched and the beak as a whole altogether more stubby than that of his mate. Settle these points to your satisfaction and if you are able to decide you have a pair, and the eggs are again infertile, retain the certain hen and arrange with the nearest dealer to change your cock. Any dealer should do this for you for a trifle. But it would be better if you could carry the exchange through personally and not by post.

What Parrot? (H.B.).—You must give me some idea of the size of the bird. If it is a large one it is an Amazon, but please give me its comparative size, or if you give it in inches, then measurements should be from tip of beak to tip of tail, with approximate length of the latter. I can then name it for you. At present I could only make a guess.

What is it? ("Cackler.")—You do not give me enough data to go upon. Please tell me how you are feeding and treating the bird. Also how long it is since you first noticed those symptoms, and I will try and give you definite help next week, or perhaps you had better write at once and get a reply per post. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water, and after an interval of two days repeat the dose. I must say the symptoms look very like sexual excitement.

Grey Parrot Laying Eggs in Captivity (Nemo).—It is not at all uncommon for a Grey Parrot to lay eggs in its cage, but the regularity and number of eggs laid by your friend's bird is certainly unusual. It would be wise to see that this bird has not only cuttlebone, but also a lump of old mortar rubbish to nibble; also keep its bowels well regulated by an occasional laxative (Dinneford's Magnesia is about the best), but this must not be given sufficiently often for the voidings to remain watery loose.

Unexplained Cause of Death (Kay).—I presume in addition to canary, millet, cuttlebone, and water, they got green food. Budgerigars must have the latter, and at this season there is nothing so good as flowering (seeding) grass, though lettuce is freely eaten and is very wholesome, but they cannot have too much flowering grass. At this season also they should be on nesting lutenl. A pan of crushed oats, in addition to the small seeds, will be good for them, also occasional millet sprays. Your only means of definitely knowing cause of death is to send the next body to our Mr. Yates for P.M. examination (see rules). During the present spell of hot weather there have been some cases of heat apoplexy; during the heat they will not keep in the shelter; have you provided shade in the flight? Have you got our Nutshell Booklet on Budgerigars? If not, you should get it, 2½d. post free from our Manager.

Are Red-crested Cardinals Amiable? (C.F.E.).—I much fear you can only settle your difficulty by personal observation. I have heard of pugnacious individuals, but this has been mostly with birds in a confined space; on the other hand, I have kept them with small Finches and Waxbills for years, and never had a mishap, and I certainly should not condemn them till you catch them in the act. I am of the opinion that observation will reveal the Budgerigars to be the culprits. Budgerigars will live often for several years with Finches, etc., and do no harm; then you will be continually picking up maimed birds or mutilated bodies. On the Budgerigars' part it is more mischief than maliciousness, yet the fact remains, the birds are killed. On the other hand if the Cardinal did run "amok" it is quite capable of doing the damage. Only observation can give you the definite answer. Have you Saffron Finches? If so, they may be the culprits.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Sea Sand for Birds (W.T.B.).—You cannot do better than utilise clean sand from the seashore for the floors of your cages. But it should be gritty—not the sand which is, so to speak, like dust, but fine shingle. It is improved by the addition of a small quantity of ground oyster shell (obtainable from most fanciers' providers).

A Thrush (J. B. Mullins).—If the loss of feathers seems to be accompanied by skin irritation (as you state), then it is the work of minute parasites (not red mite), and you cannot do better than bathe the affected part with a solution of sulphuretted potash (one dram in a pint of water). Use this warm. Do it once daily for three or four days. Afterwards anoint the part with a tiny smear of boracic ointment.

Coal Tit in an Aviary (L.A.D.).—This bird is insectivorous, and so should have available a dish of insectile food prepared in the usual way. Good mixtures for the smaller Softbills can be bought at a very reasonable price now—you will find them advertised at 1/3 or 1/6 per pound, upwards. It should also have live foods frequently (one or two mealworms or smooth caterpillars, gentles, flies, or any kind of small grubs out of the garden, or branches of fruit bushes, etc., infested with smother (green) fly.

Sex of Goldfinch (R. Riley).—You will find another answer this week dealing with a similar difficulty. My opinion is unaltered, viz., that your bird is a hen. What your friend calls "song" might, to my view, be merely twittering—I have heard hen Goldies rattling out a succession of notes in such a brisk, lively fashion as might deceive anyone into thinking them cocks. If they happen to be rich-coloured (jonque) hens, then this serves to complete the deception. The small blaze of your bird and the state of its vent are conclusive evidences of sex. Some hens are very good from the point of view of colour—a jonque hen, in fact, being better in this respect than many buff cocks. The long, tapering beak is a good sexual sign. A fair amount of good, sound hemp seed is excellent for all Goldies.

Two Points (Serin).—1: Your trouble is entirely of your own making. To keep three hen Greenfinches and a cock Canary in a "fairly large back cage" is very wrong. The hen which is in perfect feather has been attacking the other two (as one might expect) and has plucked and otherwise mal-treated them. How could you expect all three to "go to nest" in such a cage? I can well believe that you could "find no sign of red-mite"—there would be no room for any, I should think! Keep one hen and one cock and give them a good sized cage. Then you may expect better fortune. 2: You will not get this Chaffinch really steady until he has moulted. You should keep him in a Finch stock cage (not in a flight cage) and run him out into a small cage (such as an old show cage) two or three times a week, and spray him. I do this with some of my own Finches.

A Bullfinch (Cooty).—The box cage you describe is not quite the right shape to make a really good home for your Bullie—at least, this is my opinion. I certainly do not believe in cages where the height exceeds the length. Better dimensions would be 16 (or 18) inches long, 11 to 12 high, and 8 or 9 wide. The style of cage will be found illustrated in the "Nutshell" handbook on the Bullfinch (post free 2½d.). You should invest in a copy of this, for it also contains very full information concerning the management, feeding, etc. You should give now canary and teazle 2 parts each, summer rape 1 part, a little hemp and sunflower occasionally only.

Goldfinch Singing but little (W. Lee).—The behaviour of your bird is exactly that of a hen. The hen sings a little; many, in fact, sing quite well enough to deceive people concerning their sex. I have known heaps of such cases. You say that the bird "must" be a cock. Pity you did not give me your reasons for being so definite on the point. Should like to have had a little wager about it, but unfortunately I got "broke" at

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS

Epsom. You are feeding the bird very well, and you say that it is in the best of feather and condition. Well, no self-respecting cock Goldie would do other than sing his level best at this time of the year if in such fettle as you describe. Have you examined the vent?—an absolutely infallible guide to the sex during the late spring and the summer.

Identity of Songster (T. H. Phillips).—Your question is not an easy one to answer, as you say that you are "familiar with the songs of all British birds except Nightingale and Blackcap." Well, you can eliminate the latter, as it is not a nocturnal songster. A few Nightingales have been located in North Wales, so that this celebrated feathered minstrel is not an impossibility. But in the attempted transcription of the song into words, which you send me, I do not find anything peculiarly Nightingalian, if I may be excused the word. Now, the song of the Gale has one famous phrase—a wonderfully effective, liquid succession of notes sounding something like the oft-repeated words, "jug," "jug," "jug," "jug,"—which serves to identify it beyond question. If a Nightingale, then it will not stray far from the spot where you have heard it singing, and one can always get a glimpse of his modest garb by judicious watching and stalking. Don't disturb his home, for young must be due very shortly now.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Josephine M. Duncan.—The trouble has its source somewhere in the dieting of your birds, and I am much afraid you have other birds affected. The liver is the seat of the disease, being greatly enlarged and altered in character. It is not contagious, but emanates from one source, viz., the food. It is difficult for me to express an opinion as to what part of the food is responsible, but I should strongly suggest an immediate change.

Blue Pigeon.—Heat apoplexy, lungs engorged with blood arising from depressed heart action. Possibly about three years. I have buried remains as desired.

R. Groves.—Pneumonia subsequent to a cold. The trouble had originated at the time its voice was affected, and the disease extended from the upper air passages to the lungs. It is very fatal to birds, and must always be anticipated in catarrhal diseases of birds, and preventive treatment adopted.

Andrew Buchanan.—Your bird died in a fit. A vessel on the surface of the brain had ruptured, causing instantaneous death. Any sudden fright would account for it, particularly if he was in high fettle and full song; such are more predisposed to arterial changes due to high tension in the vessels.

C. Greenoy.—The bird was a hen and not a cock bird, as you thought, for I see you mention that this is the second cock Pintail you have lost. Acute enteritis brought about its death due to the introduction of irritants or ptomaines with the food. These birds are very susceptible to bowel disorders, and readily take on diseased changes when from any cause slight ptomaine changes take place.

I.E.S.—Your young Canaries are dying of ptomaine poisoning due to the formation of ptomaines or poison generated in the food. Post-mortem examination revealed acute inflammation of the bowels, together with pneumonia and rapid putrefactive changes. The seed I carefully examined, but this was quite above suspicion. Use scrupulous cleanliness with your feeding utensils; wash same each day in a solution of Condy's Fluid. It is after food has been prepared that these ptomaines form. The trouble I am inclined to think is connected with the egg-food or the preparation of same.

O.B.—Your bird was suffering from true asthma, which is of nervous origin, and often associated with functional disturbance of the heart from failure of which it died. You are wrong in your surmise that in asthmatical subjects the lungs diminish in size. Generally from emphysema of the lungs producing asthmatical symptoms the lung tissue is distended in places, and of larger volume than in healthy lungs. Nor would there be organic changes of the heart such as you describe, the disturbance being of nervous origin and functional, with entire absence of post-mortem changes. The light yellowish or pinkish structures behind the heart on either side are the lungs: these lie in depressions formed by adjacent ribs, and the surface of the lungs, i.e., the upper surfaces, show depressions corresponding with the ribs. The hard lump you describe is the gizzard, and is easily felt during life through the abdominal wall. To make an anatomical examination properly you should first remove all feathers, pin the subject to a board, and with a pair of fine scissors cut through ribs on either side of the breast, and raise this up, after examination of the chest and its contents cut round the abdominal wall, when the remaining organs will be readily visible in situ. A very useful book is Beddard's "Structure and classification of birds," originally published, I believe, for a guinea; but a soiled copy can be obtained from Smith's for three shillings. The anatomy and physiology of the bird is a subject of great interest, particularly when studied comparatively.

F. E. Lister.—Cerebral apoplexy, induced by the hot weather, and predisposed to by high condition brought about death of Budgerigar. Give an occasional dose of some saline aperient in the drinking water, glauber or Epsom salts are good reducing agents. Allow a moderate supply of green food. Green grass is best. A little hay seed sprinkled on the floor of the aviary will also afford them some employment.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Croydon Society (R.M.A.) There is a fanciers' association in Croydon, whose first show was held on November 10th last. The secretary is Mr. A. C. N. Hewens, 70, Oakfield Road, Croydon.

Contests (H. Chatterton).—We shall be pleased to publish reports of your contests whenever you care to send them.

Press Cuttings (W. Bennett, H. French, and others). We are much obliged to you for the newspaper cuttings sent us.

A Photograph (W. Dobson).—We are keeping this photograph for one of our special issues, containing an art paper supplement. It would not lend itself well to reproduction in an ordinary issue.

Broken in Transit (Manchester Novice). Yes; rule 8 applies to this case, and we are ready to put it into operation if you care to comply with its provisions. We should have thought eggs would have travelled quite safely packed in a tin well padded with cotton-wool.

A Shania (T. J. James).—A Shania, if turned out at once, would winter well in the aviary sketched, providing shelter can be afforded on north and east aspects during the rough weather. It would hardly be likely to harm the Pekin Robins.

A Sparrow Trap (M. R. Medomsley). Your sentiments do you credit, but you must take a broader view of such matters. What of the many thousands of Sparrows destroyed annually by sparrow clubs, and the large numbers of birds of many species killed and eaten by Hawkes, Owls, Magpies, etc., in a wild state?

Duroline (H. Curry).—Note the correspondence columns this week.

A Suggestion (J. W. Goldsmith).—Thanks for your letter and we will think its contents over, but we doubt whether the system you name could be worked by us.

A Norwich "Derby" (Sunstar) We will print your letter in our next issue.

German Canaries (Siefert).—A "stick" comprises seven birds. The sexes are separate. The wholesale importers advertise in our "Roller" columns during the season. You will find addresses, of course, therein. The birds are sent from Germany to England.

A Hybrid Between Linnet and Grey Singing Finch.

Sir,—I have been successful in breeding a hybrid from a Brown Linnet and a Grey Singing Finch in my garden aviaries this season. I don't know if this is rare, but should be glad to hear if any reader has bred a similar hybrid.

A New Society for Townhill and District.

Sir,—A number of fanciers met in the Co-operative Hall, Townhill, on Tuesday, June 6, and formed a club for cage birds, etc. (confined to an eight-mile radius). Will fanciers in the district please note that our next meeting will be held in the Co-operative Hall, Townhill, on June 17, at 6.30 p.m., where we shall be pleased to welcome any intending members?

A Skylark that Sings and Lays Eggs.

Sir,—A lover of Larks, I caught a few last season as "runners," and I have two left that sing very hard every day, yet, strange to say, one of these birds laid three eggs last week! Any fancier would take it for a cock bird. It hasn't got the plumage of a hen bird, and its spurs are fully one inch long, while it stands well up on the legs. Has any other reader had a singing hen Lark? I have asked a few Lark men, and none of these has ever heard of a hen Lark singing.

What is an "Antiseptic Saline"?

Sir,—In answer to "Novice," I wish to say that an antiseptic is that which will prevent putrefaction. The saline referred to in my article was "Aveau," prepared by Mr. W. Vale. I can testify to its value, having used it for a number of years. Young birds, I may say, when they leave the parents, require much care and attention, and if that is not given, trouble will ensue. What I find is that the food is scattered by the birds when feeding on the bottom of the cage, some of which is not eaten, and, becoming decomposed, causes serious complaints; therefore, you will see the necessity of keeping the cages clean. Best clean them out each day whilst egg food is being supplied. When I notice a bird at all "lumpy," I straightway give a drop or two of castor oil in its beak, and add "Aveau" to its drinking water until well again.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

Sir,—I am sorry to take up so much of your valuable space, but if you will allow me to reply to Messrs. Bishop and Woodall I shall be obliged. Before I deal with a few of their mistakes, I would ask the fanciers of Sheffield to carefully study their letters, as I am sure no reply of mine could reveal half so much as their effusions—they speak for themselves. Mr. Bishop I will refer to my last letter as to what the members of the S.O.S. are laughing at. You say, Mr. B., you have not been itching to have a go at the Sheffield C.B.S. Why didn't you take the advice of your officials when they tried to persuade you to refrain from replying to my first letter? You could not help it, of course. As to whether the members of the Walkley C.B.S. agree with me in writing these letters, I am quite prepared for them to pass judgment on my actions in this matter. You might take the same question home to yourself, Mr. B. I am afraid you have lowered the dignity of the S.O.S. more than you are aware, and you are not the "One and Only" that you think. As to the Walkley C.B.S. paying fixed prize money at their next nest feather show, I did not say they were doing so; what I said was that they had paid it for several years, and at their annual show since the formation of the Society. You ask me to "pull down the flag." I think not. The flag I hoisted at first is flying still, viz., that the S.O.S., in paying fixed prize money, is not "out of the ordinary" in the Sheffield district. It remains for you to prove your assertion, which you have not done as yet. Let me say, in closing my remarks to you, that should you at any future time see fit to write to the Press, stick to the point at issue, and keep your spleen to yourself. In reply to Mr. Woodall, I don't admit, Mr. W., that your report of "out of the ordinary" in the Sheffield district was correct. I distinctly say it was a wrong report. You have not brought forth one argument to prove your assertion. Start and prove your words instead of discussing things off the subject. You say you were aware that some of my colleagues, or myself, would be waiting for the first opportunity to contradict your reports, and, knowing this, has made you most careful. Good gracious! Fellow fanciers, listen to what Mr. Woodall says: "No sliding scale here, boys, this is where you get something for nothing." Most careful, forsooth! I fear the time when J. A. T. W. lets himself go if, in his previous reports, he has been "most careful"! As for the animosity, let me inform you again, Mr. W., that so far as myself and the Sheffield C.B.S. are concerned we hold none towards the S.O.S., and I defy you to trace it in my letters. You say you were very sorry to see my first letter. I dare say you were, not because of the letter itself though, but because you and your colleague in the fight, having fired your shot, and missed the mark, find it rebound and injure yourselves. I am sure the S.C.B.S. are grateful for your kind consideration when fixing your dates, so as not to clash; but it so happens you fixed your dates first, and it was the S.C.B.S. that avoided the clashing. You are off the line again; why don't you stick to what you have said, not try and wriggle out so. You are trying to make people think you said the Sheffield C.B.S. "take" 1d. out of each entry; what you really did say was, the Sheffield C.B.S. "keep" 1d. out of each entry; there is a lot of difference between these two words.

The Proposed Union for Lancashire and Cheshire.

Sir,—Will you kindly announce that I have arranged to hold a meeting at the Deansgate Hotel, Deansgate, Manchester, on Saturday, June 24, at 3.30, to consider the above, and shall be glad if delegates and all others who are interested will attend.

Wake Up, Oswestry!

Sir,—Now that the idea of forming a Cage Bird Society for Oswestry and District has fallen through, we should hear something of the Oswestry and District Fanciers' and Working Men's Show. What has become of it? There has been no annual meeting to pass last year's accounts and elect new officers. Now, then, Oswestry fanciers, don't let this good little show (the only one we have) fall through.

A Remedy for Beetles Wanted.

Sir,—If your correspondent who is troubled with black beetles will try sprinkling powdered borax underneath and at the edges of carpets—in fact, anywhere where the beetles congregate—I think it will be the means of getting rid of them. It does not appear to kill them, but they seem to have such a dislike to it that they quit the premises. Some twenty years ago, upon taking over my premises, the place was overrun with thousands of beetles. I found the above treatment very successful then. If there are many, I think a good sprinkling of Keating's Powder will be advisable first to lower the stock; then, after two or three nights, use the powdered borax.

J. W. Goldsmith.

Sir,—If your correspondent, Harold Taylor, would sprinkle borax freely about, he would soon be rid of his trouble re beetles. I have proved this.

R. W. Yearsley.

Sir,—The following is an excellent remedy, and should prove effective: Half-pint finely powdered plaster of Paris; half-pound oatmeal; and sugar to sweeten. Place little piles of this about and fill up all holes with it.

A. E. Long.

Sir,—Sprinkle borax or salt where the beetles are (borax is best); they will then soon disappear. The tortoise is only fed on garden produce, and is not of any use for beetles. It is cruel to put them where beetles are. All powders are good if the beetles are burned or drowned while under the effect of the stuff, or they wake up again. Borax is cheap and the right thing.

Nemo.

Sir,—If your correspondent will buy or beg a hedgehog he will soon get rid of the beetles in the house. He can keep it in a box with some rags and paper in it during the day time, and turn it out so that it can have the run of the house during the night. Set a saucer of bread and milk to drink. Your correspondent will have no more trouble then. I once bought a tortoise, but what he liked best was to get in the garden in the beds of lettuce and plants; and if they live in the garden, what with the amount they eat and what they destroy with their shells, you will wish you had never had one. And a hectic they will not eat.

Cut-throats Come and Go in an Aviary.

Sir,—Reading the views of the faddists, I should like to relate an experience of mine. About ten days ago I bought a pair of small birds known as Cut-throats, which I keep in an aviary enclosed with one-inch mesh netting. On going to the aviary the other night I found these two birds flying about in the garden. I tried to catch them, but failed, and they flew away over the fields. I thought I had seen the last of them. Imagine my surprise, therefore, on going to feed the other birds the following morning, to find them safe back inside the aviary. After clearing their place out I looked again, but they had vanished. I waited for a few minutes, and saw them flying across the field. Then they again alighted on the netting, and after a few minutes' search found a hole a little larger than the rest of the mesh, through which they again entered.

How to Mix Whitening.

Sir,—Seeing the question of "How to mix whitening" in last week's Cage Birds, "W. J. W." should try a half-pound of size to every halfpenny knob of whitening, as size is a fine thing for this purpose. I have done my outdoor aviary and cages on the insides with it, and find that it does not wash off when water is squirted on it. An improvement on this would be to put a little blue from the blue-bag to make it a better white. My cages and aviary are just as good now as when I whitened them three months ago. A pound of size costs one penny, and can be got at almost any oilshop. I think Cage Birds a very interesting paper.

N. E. N.

Sir,—In reply to "W. J. W.," I may say that my way of mixing whitening to prevent its coming off is to add a small quantity of ordinary glue or concentrated size to it. The directions of mixing the size are given on each packet. If you add a pinch or two of ordinary blue to your whitening it will look much whiter, as I always add some to my whitening. I trust you will be successful with this method of mixing.

W. G. Tucker.

Sir,—In reply to "W. J. W.'s" enquiry how to mix whitening, may I suggest that he uses Castle Brand Distemperette? I consider this is much superior to whitening for cages, etc., as the surface does not rub off, and can be washed when dirty. It costs 3d. per lb., which is sufficient to cover from six to ten square yards, according to surface required. It can be had from most paint shops and general stores in a variety of colours, and is non-poisonous.

Verb. Sap.

Sir,—If "W. J. W." will add a small quantity of size to his whitewash and stir it well in before using, he will have no trouble to get it to stick to the cages. Too much must not be added, or it will work stiff on the brush, and also be apt to blister and shell off in patches. It can be got of any oil and colour man, who would tell him just about the right quantity to use in a given quantity of whitewash. It is melted in hot water to add to the whitewash. Another method—and an excellent one for cages—is to make a little flour paste, the same as if made to hang paper, using common flour (self-raising is useless for the job), and well mix this in the whitewash. About half a pint of paste in two quarts of whitewash would suffice.

The Squirrel in Captivity.

Sir,—I purchased a young Squirrel recently through your columns, which had been brought up by hand from the nest. Although I know it is hardly in your province, I thought perhaps you would advise me as to the feeding. At present he has nuts and odd pieces of cake, biscuit, etc., and I give him water and milk to drink.

P. T. Harvey.

[We submitted our correspondent's letter to Mr. H. J. Fulljames, who writes: "The Squirrel will need no better treatment than that which you are giving him. Of course, you will vary the nuts from time to time. Barcelona, or "Spanish" nuts will form the staple food; and other nuts, beechmast, pea nuts, acorns, etc., may be given as convenient. Milk sop made with stale bread is a good morning meal. It is to be hoped that you will not keep your Squirrel in one of the totally inefficient 'wheel-boxes' made for the purpose. It is nothing but cruel that a Squirrel should be deprived of all exercise excepting that which he may get in a small wire wheel. A proper box for a Squirrel should have at one end a small and snug sleeping place, and at the other a wheel into which it will be entirely optional for the Squirrel to go and to take exercise. Between the sleeping box and the wheel should be a considerable space, wired all over, and with a removable bottom tray; this tray kept filled with some such material as peat-moss, which will absorb moisture. Squirrels are very 'smelly' subjects, and need frequent cleanings out if they are kept in close confinement. A Squirrel reared from the nest makes a most delightful pet. Three of mine, which I had at the same time, were never happy except when they were running all over me. They would play hide and seek in and out of my coat and waistcoat, and when I was tired of playing with them I had quite a trouble to get them back into their large cage. They nearly always had the freedom of the kitchen, which, by the by, was not always conducive to the keeping of unbroken plates on the shelves, and they would jump ten or twelve feet from the top shelf of the dresser to my shoulder. I could always let them loose in the garden with the certainty of their coming to my call if I noticed any tendency of their getting out of bounds."]

A Recipe for German Paste.

Sir,—Could any reader kindly tell me, through the columns of your valuable paper, of a good recipe for German paste, so that I may mix up my own? I thank you in anticipation for inserting my inquiry, and also for the help gained through reading your excellent CAGE BIRDS.

A Cure for Soft-shelled Eggs.

Sir,—Will some kind reader advise me on the following points? I have a hen Bullfinch that lays a soft-shelled egg every week. She is paired to a cock Greenfinch, and all the eggs are good. I have plenty of grit and cuttlefish in the cage, and everything I can think of, but to no purpose. E. HADDRELL.

An Inquiry Instituted.

Sir,—An inquiry in connection with the alleged judging of his own birds by one of our judges at our late show will be held in the Graud National Halls, Gorhals, Glasgow, on Friday, June 23, at 8 p.m., when it is earnestly requested hy the ahove Association that anyone wishing to give evidence bearing (of course) on the alleged incident will come forward, so as to assist the Association, in the best interests of the Fancy, to clear up this scandal.

Unions in the Cage Bird Fancy.

Sir,—In your columns every now and again there are letters about either a Lancashire Union or keeping the C.B. Union. I think it is about time a move was made with one or the other, as we shall soon have the show season here again, and no ruling body. For my part, I would sooner see a National Union. I think one is wanted. From time to time you see letters about men trying to win more than the three firsts in novice classes, and last year there seemed to be a lot of faking, while now there is this hother about a Scottish judge's alleged lending of birds. I would like to see the London Federation take it up and allow representatives of the Press to he on the committee, so that the puhlic may get to know the general workings of the Union. There should be a branch union for each county, and each county to send their representatives to the general committee meeting. I hope some of the leading fanciers will state their views, and I will sign myself, for the present, J. SEE.

Young Canaries Dying.

A Well-known Dealer's Views on Bird Mortality.

Sir,—I note in CAGE BIRDS of the 10th inst. an article on the problem of young Canaries dying, and I send herewith a few particulars concerning what I think are causes of young Canaries and other birds dying. Being, as you are well aware, a large dealer in Canaries and an importer both of Canaries and foreign birds, also a great fancier of our "feathered pets," I should like to give a "secret" (if I may call it such) away to my brother fanciers. This breeding season I have had many inquiries like this: "Can you give me any idea as to the reason I am losing my young Canaries; they do well for a few days, then die?" Now, I have been in many breeders' and small fanciers' rooms, and my reply has been: "Look at the water-pots." "Why the water-pots?" they ask. I reply that that is the secret. Some breeders are not very particular about this—the main thing of the bird's life, especially in its young days. "I don't know how" it is, I always give fresh water every morning. "Just so," I say; "but it is the cause of the hirds dying, because the pots are not thoroughly cleansed." The parents, as we all know, drink the water, and the food that they put into the little birds' crops soon becomes sour, and the little birds die through fever, which is got from the foul water. I have many thousands of birds pass through my hands every year, and the principal thing I have to guard against is death from fever. I have my pots (every one) taken out of the holder, put into a bucket, and taken down to the tap, in the sink, and all emptied out, thoroughly rubbed with a sponge or cloth, put into a bucket, and the water allowed to run through for about half an hour, until they are quite sweet, and so clean that I am not afraid to offer anybody a drink out of any one of them. How many times do we rinse a glass out before we take a drink of water ourselves, although it has been thoroughly cleaned before being put away? Some one may say, "I never do." Then all I can say about that particular person is that he does not care much for his own health, as it does not matter how or when the glass has been cleaned, there is always the deadly microbe lurking on some part of the glass—the typhoid microbe, especially in hot weather. The same applies to the hirds' glasses. It is usual (I have seen it done) for the hird fancier to first of all get a bucket, and sneak his good wife's kettle or jug, and start to water. He takes out No. 1 glass or pot, emptics the water out, then just rinses the glass out with a drop more water, and then fills it up, or probably he takes a little water in the bottom of the bucket and a cloth to wipe the glass out. He goes then to No. 2 glass, and right through the lot. But has he considered that he has emptied all the water pots into the same bucket, and washed them out with the dirty water? Here we see that he is spreading the microbes to all the other glasses; they are invisible to the eye, and so he does not see them, and many have not heard of the typhoid microbe. As long as the water looks clean, that is sufficient. Now let him take some of the water from the bucket, and put it into a small but powerful microscope, and behold! he will see thousands of them—no, millions—and then he wonders why his little birds die. Do the same with the glass that he has had in the same bucket, when rinsed out once; it still leaves a few in, and they soon multiply. This is the secret of success—"Cleanliness." Fanciers, take every pot off your cage; wash it well in two or three changes, and see that it is thoroughly clean. Polish it with a glass cloth like your wife does your glass, and see that it is done every time, so that if necessary and you want a drink yourself you would not be afraid to drink out of a bird's pot. I think if you will take a little time and trouble over your hobby it will repay you. If a thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well. There is also another thing: Empty the seed pots right out into a small sieve (cost, about 6d.), and put clean seed into the hopper. Then when you have a little spare time, riddle the seed and put it out on a sheet of paper in the sun to kill all the mites and other little microbes that may be in same. It will repay you. I have had twenty years' practical experience, and they say experience teaches. When I have a large consignment of foreign birds arrive from very far away, I go over every bird to see if it requires anything doing to it. It might be upset through travelling, or possibly, through a change of water, requires a little of something to assist nature. Then I give a little olive oil, and in most cases it recovers. To give you an example: A fortnight ago I had over 2,000 birds arrive from Africa. I went over every hird myself to see if it was in perfect health, and any I found not very well I gave a drop of olive oil. What was the result?—a good week's wage saved for a few hours' trouble. I (like all other fanciers should) cannot bear to see the beautiful things God has given us to look upon and admire in misery when a minute's trouble will give relief, and ensure a happy, bright life. Out of the total number of birds received, only eighteen died. Keep your cages thoroughly clean. You will not disturb the birds when sitting; they will not mind but will soon go back on the nest. If the cages have not sand-trays, it will pay you to clean them three times a week—just simply take the dirt away, or, better still, thoroughly scrape and put some clean sawdust on, and a little sand on the top. I trust the above will be of some little use to brother fanciers, and apologise for taking up so much space.

BERNARD HOLLINS.

Hopes of Goldfinch-Twite Hybrids.

Sir,—I wrote you last week about eggs I had from a hen Twite paired to a cock Goldfinch. She laid five eggs, but I am sorry to say they are all clear. The hen is at present rearing a nest of young Twites I brought in and gave to her to see what she would do. I gave her five eggs. She started to sit on the 1st of June, and hatched out four young Twites on the 8th of June, and the other on the 9th. The Goldfinch was in with her at the time. As soon as she came off the nest to feed, out came the four young ones by master Goldie. I put them back, but he pulled them out again when I went out of the room. So I put them back and put him in a cage by himself; and since then the Twite has been stuffing the young ones with crushed hemp and egg food as good as the hest of Canaries could do it. I am going to let her rear this nest, and then run the Goldfinch to her again. I hope to be able to report something good before the end of the season. Could you tell me if anyone has had young from this cross before? I have not see anything about it that I remember. If this meets the eye of any who have had fertile eggs or young from this cross, I should feel much obliged if they would let me know about it through CAGE BIRDS—the hest of all birdy papers.

E. SOUTHWOOD.

[The Twite-Goldfinch Hybrid has not yet been bred, we believe. Kindly note rule respecting writing on one side only of each sheet of paper.—Editor.]

Useful to Aviarists, etc.

Sir,—Where can I purchase a substance called, I believe, "Duraline," or a similar substance suitable for roofing an aviary, which will not exclude light, and yet be wind and rain proof?

H. C. CURRY.

Cheap and Novel Nesting Pot

Sent by Mr. F. Pawson, West View, Garstang.

Procure some preserve jars, about four inches in diameter (which are white ones); then fill to a little over half-full with moist clay, and put into a warm oven until set. When this is done, place a wire round the top of the pot, and attach another wire over the top to hang up hy. Both Canaries and foreign Finches take readily to these nesting pots. Of course, nesting material must be provided.—F. Pawson.

A Cage Disinfector.

Sent by Mr. G. May, 7. Boones Street Lee, Kent.

I enclose sketch of disinfector (which every fancier can own), with which to purify cages. Get a box made same shape as your cages, four inches larger over all, and airtight. Place a pan of hurning sulphur on the ground. Place your cage over it, resting on four blocks two inches high off the ground, and put the large hox over all. It will then allow the sulphur to get to every part of the cage. See that the large box fits tight to the ground to prevent the sulphur escaping. Let it stand for a few hours, when there will be no escape for red mite. When not using your disinfector utilise it as a flight cage by having fronts fitted to it. I have a cause for thinking this out the third year of entering the Fancy. I lost all my birds—about forty—through fever. I burnt all the cages, and this blow I have not yet recovered. I hope this will benefit the Fancy. D in the sketch represents the disinfecting box; A, the breeding cage; C, the blocks (2in.) to rest cage on; and B, the sulphur pan.—G. May.

RUTHERGLEN AND DIST. O.A.

Meeting held May 15th, Mr. Livingstone chair. Decided, to hold nest feather show first Saturday in July; also to hold annual show 25th November. Mr. J. Lawrie (Govan) has kindly consented to judge same. Next meeting 19th June.—Jas. Lappin, Sec.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Meeting held White Lion Hotel, June 10th. Mr. A. Leech took chair. Decided, that we hold our next meeting June 24th, and that we accept entries for nest feather show on above date, allowing each member to make three entries on the morning of the show (British excepted). All entries to be made before 10 a.m. July 1st, and birds to be staged by 10.30, when judging will be commenced. I hope all members will get as large an entry in as possible, and give us a record meeting, when we intend to discuss the Cage Birds League. Will all intending members who have not paid their contributions do so at once?—R. H. Dixon, Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting held June 7th, capital attendance of members. Final arrangements were made for the young bird show, June 22nd, the prospects of which seem very bright, and I quite anticipate a display of birds, which will be a credit to the society. To this end I trust every member will make as large an entry as possible. It was decided that members who have joined since February should be allowed to show if paid half the annual subscriptions; others should, according to rule, be fully paid up. Mr. McMurtrie promised 2s. 6d. cash for the best young Canary or Mule, and Mr. Walton a special for best in variety old bird class. Mr. J. Bowers has been specially engaged to judge the same. All birds should be staged not later than 2 p.m.—J. Pitchford, Sec.

SOUTHERN NORWICH P.C.

Committee meeting held May 24, when specials were arranged for 1911; in championship section the same as 1910, and for novice section, trophy value 10s. 6d. (for most points at each show) six in number, provided there are not less than four members exhibiting (no member can win more than one trophy in the season); 2s. 6d. for best vhc bird; 2s. 6d. for best hc bird at each show. Guinea trophy (patent egg-boiler) for most points won during the season; bound volume for second most points, given by Cage Birds, bound volume given for most points gained by member joining this year during season 1911, presented by Cage Birds. Fanciers wishing to join should write at once to F. S. Matthes, hon. sec., 34, Rotherhithe New Road, London. On June 26th, a committee meeting will be held to receive applications for patronage. Will officers and members of committee attend at 7.30 sharp at Mr. Pretty's, 6, Old Burlington Street, W.? Clubs wishing for our patronage must apply at once. Will members that have not paid, kindly forward on subscription?—F. S. Matthes, Hon. Sec.

SCOTTISH CRESTED C.C.

Committee meeting, held Nelson's Temperance Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow, 3rd June. Mr. Noble (president) occupied the chair, and there was a very creditable turn-out of members. Letters of apology were read from several members expressing regret at being unable to attend. Secretary intimated result of 1911 official election, when the following presiding office bearers were elected: President, Mr. Noble; vice-presidents, Messrs. Cairns, Campbell, Kirkwood, Moreland, McLay, Paul, and Sanderson. Application for club's patronage, etc., were next read, when the following were successful, viz.: Lochgelly, Kelty and Blairadam, Kilmarnock, Dundee, Dunfermline, and Scottish National. After a very considerable discussion, it was agreed to hold club show in conjunction with Kilmarnock Assodiation on 18th November. Question of club drinker tin next dealt with, the various samples and designs on view being kindly sent by several fancier friends, each sample having some special feature to recommend it. After a somewhat lengthened, though very interesting discussion, it was finally agreed to leave the whole matter over till August meeting, when we hope to have additional tins for inspection prior to a final selection. Following gentlemen duly proposed and admitted to membership: Messrs. J. Henderson, W. Barrie, and A. Comb (all of Dunbar), A. B. Townhill (Dunfermline), A. Bowman (Dunfermline), McGregar, J. McLean (Lochgelly), and J. Hersehill (Dundee). This being all the business, a vote of thanks to chairman brought the meeting to a close. Subscriptions are now due, and I would be pleased to hear from old members or others wishing to join.—John Young, Sec. and Treas., 80, High Street, Rutherglen, N.B.

LANCASHIRE & LIZARD F.A.

A tea and social were held at Wellington Hotel, Hyde, May 27th. We were pleased to note that some of the fanciers' wives and friends were present. Amongst those at tea we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. Swalwell, Mr. and Mrs. Hampshire, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, and Mrs. Thompson, senr., Mr. and Mrs. Ridgard, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, and Messrs. Oliver, Fuller, Stansfield, Laycock, Shaw, Hordern, and Rukin. After a first-class tea, we proceeded with the presentation of prizes and specials won during the last season, and a grand lot they were. In the absence of Mr. J. Garner, we had to find a fresh chairman, Mr. Swalwell eventually filling that position in a very able manner; the only fault to find with him is his determination not to make any speeches. Mr. Oldham was presented with his special for winning the Championship Trophy for Lancashires. This consisted of a very handsome pair of Japanese vases and half-a-dozen dinner knives. Mr. E. T. Turner, as runner-up in Champion Lancashire Section, won a grand gold medal, but owing to business reasons was absent, his special being received by the Secretary. Mr. Laycock was presented with a splendid dinner cruet as winner of the Novice Lancashire Championship; Mr. N. Stansfield, as runner up for same, winning a handsome gold centre silver medal. Mr. Rukin received a gold necklet and pendant as winner in the Lizard Championship Section; Mr. Joe Hampshire received a splendid gold medal as runner up. Mr. E. Ollerenshaw won the Novice Lizard Championship and received a grand gold medal. Mr. Bacon, who was unable to attend, won a silver-mounted scent bottle. Mr. Rukin gave four silver medals for competition, restricted to novice members of the L. and L.F.A., Mr. E. Ollerenshaw winning one at Manchester and one at the L.C.B.A. shows. Mr. Bacon won one at Rochdale Good Intent, and Mr. Bosworth the fourth, at Nottingham. Mr. J. W. Ramsden, of Colour Food fame, kindly gave a handsome silver-plated cruet for most points gained during season; this was, for the second year in succession, won by Mr. J. Rukin. Mr. White was then called into the room and was complimented on his catering. We were sorry not to have Mrs. White in also, but we understand she was not in a very good state of health. During the evening Mr. W. Shaw (Hyde) generously promised 5s. for best clear yellow Coppy, and 5s. for best clear buff Coppy, to be competed for at Hyde Show. Mr. E. Fuller promised 5s. for best thick yedded yellow, and 5s. for best thick yedded buff, same to be won at a club show, at Shaw. Mr. J. Rukin promised 5s. for best gold Lizard at one of the club shows. A hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the meeting. Fanciers will be sorry to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Rukin received quite a terrible fright on receipt of a solicitor's letter, sent at the instigation of our irresponsible friend Teddy, for alleged attempt to damage his reputation. However, we understand that Mr. Rukin has sent a counter-claim for £100,000, and in the probable event of receiving the said sum, he intends refunding the money, conditionally, on Teddy Fuller selling him his interest in the Lancashire (Glossop) Canaries.—John Rukin, Hon. Sec.

MORPETH AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held June 10th, when Mr. H. Seely presided over a good attendance. The most important business was the appointing of secretary in place of Mr. Nicol, resigned. It being the most earnest wish of the members present that I should again take the office, I consented to do so, and feel confident that by being as courteous and obliging as it is possible to be, fanciers generally will rally round us and make our next show as successful as our previous ones. Other business was in regard to first feather show; after a great deal of discussion it was unanimously agreed to abandon same for this year. I may say our members generally have had a good breeding season, a report of which I will send later. Subscriptions are now due, and should be paid as soon as possible. —E. Cowling, Sec.

HAMILTON (Cadzow Oaks) O.S.

Meeting held Town Hall, June 10th, Mr. Shearer (president) in chair. The chairman remarked on the sad death of one of our members, viz., Mr. W. Wallace. Deceased leaves a son and daughter to mourn his loss, to whom the members of this society tender their sympathy. There was a good muster of members present. Secretary read correspondence re advertising open show. It was decided to advertise in Cage Birds alone. Young bird show was settled to be held July 22, in the Lesser Town Hall. Following classes provided:—Nor. 4, Border 4, A.O.V. Can 1, Mule 2. Entry money 3d. each bird in all classes, which entitles exhibitors to compete for specials. Entry money in each class to be returned in prize money. We have eight handsome specials and expect to get some more. We give a hearty invitation to any fanciers wishing to become members. Please communicate with me before July 22. Any new member will be welcome. The schedule of open show: It was unanimously agreed to abide by 1910 schedule. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a very fine meeting to a close.—G. Marlin, Sec.

BOOTLE C.B.S.

Meeting held June 5th, Thompson Cafe, Rimrose Bridge, there being a good attendance of about 30. A vote of condolence was passed to the widow and children of our late chairman. Decided to have a draw for their benefit, valuable prizes being given by several members. Tickets are now in the hands of members, and it is hoped a good number will be disposed of. The members present are hoping to raise about £10 for such a worthy object. Mr. Kincla was unanimously elected chairman for this season, with Mr. Knowles as vice-chairman. Specials were allotted to the nest feather show, to be held on July 1st. Mr. J. Thoruton (Liscard) is to judge. It is hoped members will put out all available birds, bearing in mind that all points count for the valuable special presented by Mr. R. B. Wright, of the N.G.M.Y.C.C. Several new members were elected, including Mr. J. Davie, late of the G.C.A. The members report a very good breeding season. Things are now booming in the society, and are likely to do so, being in the hands of a very able committee, among whom is Mr. F. E. Hawks, one of the most energetio and able secretaries in this district. Fanciers are invited to join, subscription, 3s. per annum. Address, Secretary, 39, Lloyd Street, Everton, Liverpool.—"Reporter."

GLASGOW AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Half-yearly general meeting, held June 6th, Duncan's, 7, London Street, Glasgow. Chair occupied by the president, Mr. R. B. Jarvie, before a large turn-out of members. Balance sheet of subscription sale, duly audited, was unanimously adopted, showing a balance in hand of £12 12s. 8d. The following classification which includes several alterations from last year, was decided upon. Nor., 18 classes; this includes two extra classes for nonfed birds; also the price of selling class matched pairs was increased from 30s. to £2 per pair. A motion by Mr. A. Sloan that the price be £3 per pair, being defeated. Crest section: 5 classes; a motion by Mr. Paling that the price of selling class in this section be increased from £1 to £2 defeated; the previous question moved by Mr. F. Taylor. Border Fancy section: 10 classes; against 9 last year. An extra class was added on the motion by Mr. Walker, for marked birds. Yorkshire section: Decided, on the motion by Mr. D. Graham, that we make application to the Y.C.C. of Scotland for their Club show, and, in the event of our being successful, to give the classes required, viz., 5 open classes, and 4 young bird classe (confined to Y.C.C. members), the young bird classes to be fully guaranteed by them. Also carried that a class for Cinnamons be added, in place of the "Any Variety Canary"; that class to be deleted. Mule and hybrid section: This was allowed to remain the same as last year, viz., 7 classes, the only alterations being in the wording of Class 38, which shall read "Any Variety Light Mule." British section: 17 classes; this was allowed to remain the same, with a slight alteration in the wording of two classes, Class 57 to read "Any Other Variety Bunting or Finch," and Class 61 "Any Other Variety British Seed eating bird, not larger than Bramble." Foreign section: 3 classes; an alteration was made in the wording of these classes, to allow the Cardinal to compete with the small foreign, instead of the large foreign birds. The selling stock classes remain the same as last year, one for "Any Variety Canary," single or pairs, and one for "Mule or Hybrid-breeding," entry fee 6d. per bird. We hope to see a larger entry in these two classes than was the case last year. The judges for the various sections were then decided upon; the names will be published as soon as possible. The question of a more suitable hall (?) was left along with several minor items for the committee to decide upon, and a very pleasant and enthusiastic meeting terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman.—Fred. Bowman, Sec.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

At the Nest Feather Show, held on June 7, the following new members were elected: Messrs. T. Hedley, F. Mirley, W. Westgarth, J. Gracie, D. W. Scott, and Cattell. Our society is still forging ahead, having made fourteen new members this year; and as there is still another month in which fanciers can join our ranks in order to compete at all shows, we are likely to add further to our numbers. List of specials to be competed for during year: Chair. section open shows, championship trophy for most points over six shows, good medal for second most points; and silver medals at every show for most points with three highest birds, challenge cup for best young bird bred by a member, Ramsden's special for second best bird, diploma given with each of these specials, a case of carvers for best heavily variegated bird bred by a member. Novice section: Silver cup for most points over six shows to be won outright in one year, gold medal for second most points, silver medals same as champion section. Club table shows: Silver cup, a pair of polished horns, and several other specials to be decided on later.—R. Tindale, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW (West End) C.B.C.

Meeting held Clarendon Hall, on June 9th, Mr. H. Jamieson presiding over a good attendance. The arrangements of classes for annual member's show came under consideration, and these were remitted back to the committee to deal with. Five new members were enrolled, viz., Prof. Lillian, J. Campbell, D. Campbell, R. Prentice, and J. McDougall. A paper on the Yorkshire Canary, by Mr. R. B. Gibb, should have been read, but owing to unforseen circumstances this was postponed to some future occasion. Would members please note that subscriptions are now due? In respect of the correspondence appearing regarding the City of Glasgow O.A., this came in for a considerable amount of discussion among the members when the following resolution was arrived at, viz., That we, the Glasgow West End C.B.C., do hereby pledge ourselves to refrain from contributing any support whatever to the City of Glasgow O.A. in the way of specials, entries, or membership, until such time as the said City of Glasgow O.A. purge their ranks and free them from such alleged "dishonourable conduct" as was disclosed at their last meeting.—William Proudfoot, Secretary and Treasurer.

DERBY C.B.S.

Meeting held Derwent Hotel, May 27th, when a good attendance of members was obtained, due to its being nomination night for young birds. Business re open show was dealt with. We have secured the services of Messrs. J. Robson and R. Rhodes to judge; they will, we hope, be given a record number of birds. We have booked the St. James's Hall in which to hold our show. No finer hall can be had in the Midlands; trams from all parts of the town pass its doors; and Derby being excellently served with railways, no fancier need fear his birds being unduly delayed. The Norwich Plainhead Club have allotted us their patronage, and we are looking forward to some keen competition in this variety. We hope to announce the patronage of other specialist clubs in due course. A pleasing feature of our meetings has been the steady increase in membership, and we are glad to receive some of the Melbourne fanciers into the club again, thus enabling us to cater a little more for the Yorkshire fanciers Now, Derby fanciers, there are a lot of you in the town who should belong to your local society; in fact, I am told it is because you have never been asked. Surely you have a better sporting spirit than to hold aloof for that reason. I shall be pleased to explain objects, etc., of the society if you will just call at my address—18, Colyear Street, Derby.—G. H. Wharam, Reporting Secretary.

SOWERBY BRIDGE & DIST. C.B.S.

Annual ramble held June 3rd, when about 14 members and friends had an excellent outing. The weather at first seemed rather threatening, and no doubt this would account for the rather poor attendance, but later on the sun shone splendidly, and nature was seen at its best. Those who did not accompany us missed a treat. We left Sowerby Bridge station at 2 o'c., and alighted at Hebden Bridge twenty minutes later, where our guide, Mr. Harrison, met us to direct us through the woods. And right admirably did he conduct us, giving us a good afternoon, as he had a fine knowledge of the district and the bird-life that abounds there. Starting from the "Lodge," at Hardcastle Craggs, we took to the right, up Horse Bridge, Clough, and followed the stream a good distance. Here bird-life seemed plentiful. Our first find was a Blackbird's nest with four eggs. Next came a few Thrushes', empty (this season's nests, no doubt); but it seems we were too late for the first round. We then found another Thrush's nest which contained three eggs, and after we had all peeped at the blue eggs, we continued up stream. Now one of the party created roars of laughter by falling in the stream and getting his socks wet. Our next find was a Chaffinch nest with four young ones in it, about two days old. The old bird sat close till we could nearly touch her, and seemed very reluctant to leave her treasure. We journeyed until we reached the Hebden fishing grounds, where we turned to the left, and through more woods; then across the Moorland to Hardcastle Craggs, where tea was partaken of. A wash and brush up seemed to put new life into us. We proceeded up the woods again near the ancient town of Hepstonstall, which boasts of two churches in one yard, where a splendid view of the surrounding hills was obtained; also a bird's-eye view of the Craggs. After a short rest we journeyed to Hebden Bridge, and on the way the Yellowhammer was seen singing lustily on the top of a hawthorn tree. Reaching our destination, most of the party proceeded to the car for home. A few of us stayed and had a look at Mr. Harrison's bird-rooms, which contained about sixteen pairs of Canaries, and a few pairs for hybrid breeding, viz., Greenie-Bullie, Goldie-Greenie, and Redpoll-Bullfinch. He has two fertile eggs (incubating under Canaries, of the last-mentioned pair; we hope he is successful in rearing them. The birds seen and heard included the following: Cuckoo, Willow Wren, Lapwing, Larks, Song Thrush, Blackbirds, Chaffinch, Yellowhammer. We visited the home of the Dipper and Sandpiper but could not locate either of their nests. The nest of the Hawk also was seen at the top of the high trees, and various others during the day. After thanking Mr. Harrison (as no doubt it was owing to him that the ramble was so interesting), we proceeded to our homes all satisfied with the ramble, which is the best we have had.—C. Pickles.

SITTINGBOURNE & DIST. C.B.S.

A most enjoyable ramble for the study of wild bird life was undertaken by members on Sunday, June 4. About fifteen members started from Bell Road at 5 a.m., and walked to Mincing Wood, Milsted, where the ramble, by kind permission of Mr. Aldam, of Woodstock Park, was commenced under the direction of Mr. R. Hart, gamekeeper. The walk through the wood to Bluetown proved most enjoyable, and on returning to Milsted a splendid breakfast was served in the Red Lion by the licensee, Mr. S. Hall. After breakfast the ramble was continued through Torry Hill Estate Woods, by kind permission of Mr. R. L. Pemberton. Under the direction of Mr. Hancock, gamekeeper, the party entered the woods just above Milsted school, and many Thrushes, Blackbirds, and Wren's nests were found, some with eggs and some with young. The party left this wood at Torry Hill House, crossed the road, and entered Sweets Wood, noted for its pretty avenues with rhododendrons on either side, and its lovely arch covered with creepers. Returning through this wood a Linnet's nest with four young birds, ten to fourteen days old, was discovered, and the nestlings were rung with aluminium rings bearing private numbers of the society. Sittingbourne was reached shortly after one o'clock, and the ramble was voted a distinct success.—B. Tidy, Hon. Sec.

HEBDEN BRIDGE AND CALDER VALLEY O.S.

Members turned up in good numbers on June 3rd to take part in a ramble to Withins Reservoir, Cragg Vale. We started from Nutclough Tavern at 2.30 p.m., and proceeded by way of Crow Nest Wood, Carr, and Stocks Hall, to Parrock Clough, where scores of nests were found, including the following: Blackbird, Missel Thrush, Song Thrush, Wren, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, Hedge Sparrow, and Spotted Flycatcher. Proceeding up Bell Hole (rather a rough scramble, as one of our number found to his sorrow —Are your socks dry yet, Frank?), we arrived at Bell House Moor, where a splendid view was obtained of the surrounding country, which is now looking at its best. From here we struck across the Moor, and soon arrived at our destination, where we observed the Green Plover, Grouse, and a few Gulls. After a short stay here we made our way to the Sportsman Inn, Cragg Vale, as we were both hungry and thirsty. That first pint would have been grand down in the clough, wouldn't it Jack? Having done full justice to the splendid feed provided by the host and hostess, we had a good talk on the vagaries of the breeding season, the disappointments we had had, and our hopes for the future. We here noticed one of our members in earnest conversation with the gamekeeper. Most likely he was trying to make arrangements for a brace or two of grouse nest August. Leaving here we strolled down the lovely Cragg Valley to Mytholmroyd, and went thence by car to Hebden Bridge, having had a most enjoyable afternoon.—"Nutcracker."

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Annual pic-nic held on Whit-Monday (June 5th), at Hartford House, Northumberland. We assembled at the Central Station, Newcastle, at 1 o'c., and proceeded by train to Plessy station, and then had a pleasant walk to Hartford Bridge, where the cyclist party joined us. Having seen our provisions arrive from town under the care of our good friend and caterer Mr. Steel, we entered the beautiful grounds of Hartford House and made ourselves perfectly at home. These grounds and woods belong to Mr. Burden, who so generously gave us his permission to view them. By-the-way, we are indebted to Mr. W. Scott for writing Mrs. Burdon and her son for same. Unfortunately Mr. Scott was unable to be present, owing to sickness in his family, which, we hope, will soon pass away. Having found a guide we went through the lovely greenhouses and conservatories and there saw absolute perfection in the growing of a lot of our commoner plants, and also some rarer species. To describe all of these would take up too much space. Some shades of yellow made the fanciers long to breed a youngster with such a depth of colour. We now came into an old-fashioned garden, nestling by the riverside, completely surrounded by woods on all sides, and a dive for the garden seat was made. The day was superb, and more than we could have wished for; the sun never ceased to shine all day, but the shade of the lovely trees was beautiful. It made one feel quite poetic; in fact, somebody had carved on the seat the following: "The kiss of the sun for pardon; the song of the birds for mirth; one is nearer God's heart in a garden, than anywhere else on Earth." Making our way back to the woods by way of the riverside, we saw a lot of nests, but mostly all unoccupied. One was cunningley woven into a fir tree, most likely a Wren's; and after tea we discovered one with 10 young in. Nests like these would soon make a houseful. Mr. Gills, a new member, who was so good as to find us a "Good Samaritan" in the way of a caterer, and also a new recruit to the Fancy, had had his coat off helping, and a lovely tea was laid under the trees for us. We were all ready for it, and we did justice to it. Miss E. MacKenzie was busy taking snapshots, and Mr. Patterson took a group. It was a happy party who were all agreeable to do exactly as each other wished. After tea another ramble was taken, and the scouts of the party were again among the bushes and undergrowth. The party entered a secluded portion of the woods, still by the riverside, and all were loath to leave it (in spite of being so tired) to catch the last train home. Unfortunately the secretary had to go by an earlier train. After a long walk among the woods where many interesting finds were made, we returned to Newcastle, having spent a most enjoyable day. Special thanks were due to Messrs. Steel, Gills, Hutchinson, Petterson, J. McKenzie, and others too numerous to mention; all did their best to ensure a complete success.—J. E. Atkinson, Sec.

The "Work" on the Linnet.

The next thing is markings. Of course, I like to see plenty of work, of fine pencilling, all over a Linnet, but, unfortunately, as with the Goldie, you cannot have everything. The pencilling should he even, distinct, and regular on back, breast, and throat, the flank marks going well down under the rump. The whites of the flights and tail should show clear and distinct. The wings should be perfectly carried. The primary feathers lying on the back should have a heautiful edging of golden tawny, contrasting with the deep chestnut which shows a distinct pattern when the bird is at rest, or carries himself to perfection.

Now, just to show you how easy it is to obtain a good Linnet, you may be interested to learn that my Scottish National 3rd prize Linnet of this season was hought for eightpence out of a catsmeat shop, where it was in a small hack cage. But, remember, friends, I hought him "in the rough," and made him what he is—and he was rough, I assure you. You would have thought that they had fed him on catsmeat. Still, I pulled him round, and, eventually, I did a decent lot of winning with him; and, if all goes well, I hope to do a little more next season. Do not think that I am trying to blow my own trumpet, as it were, in this paper, by mentioning this little incident. I only put it in to show you that these commoner birds are fairly easy to obtain, provided you know what is wanted, and have got the time to hunt about, as well as that keen eye for obsc'vation of how a bird is going to develop with proper treatment and a good quick moult. I close my remarks upon the Linnet by stating that his bill of fare consists of eighth teazle, quarter canary, quarter English rape, eighth charlock, and quarter flax. As a tit-bit I supply him with the same as I give the Goldie.

Not Easy to Pick up.

The next feathered friend of mine is my dear old friend the Greenie, as I term him. This particular hird, I find, is not quite as easy to pick up as the Linnet, simply hecause the competition birds one has to meet at the various shows up and down the country are of the giant class, while the majority of Greenies brought into the London market are only of the medium size. Thus, if you wish to be successful with the Greenfinch you must possess one of enormous size, and very largo in skull; in fact, the "treasure" is a hird of the waggon horse type, and teeming with colour all over. Many fanciers prefer the yellows, but, as a rule, the buffs are a lot larger and stouter in hody than the yellows; at least this is my experience. A yellow is generally a wee bit thin and flat on the head, and if there is any Finch I like with a good head it is the Greenfinch. I do not care if it is as big as a cocoa-nut, as it were. Of course, if I could get the size of buffs in yellows, why, naturally I should prefer the yellows, but, when all is said and done, take my tip: do not despise rich-coloured buffs.

The colours are extremely delicate, and intensely beautiful, and when you do get a topper in rattling fine trim I know of nothing more beautiful to look at the feathers are of old gold, glistening liko satin, and the delicate colours of grass green and mauve trying to burst their way through a refined mealing of French grey. A really rich-coloured Greenie is exquisitely handsomo, and its beauty is almost indescribahle. There are many fanciers that have no love for the Greenie; but if I were to clear out of the Fancy to-morrow I should always retain my old pal, the Greenfinch.

The Song of the Greenfinch.

Then comes his song. Many despise and scoff at him as a songster. Well, I must admit I have a warm corner in my heart in favour of his song. These scoffing persons really have not kept their birds in the condition necessary to get the song they desire. All they give him is perhaps a few old oats and a drop of water to get on with, and probahly a piece of soaked bread, should they run short of corn, or as a tit-hit. But I assure them that I would place him third on the list of Finches. His song is simply grand and sweet, and there are many fanciers at Metropolitan shows, who can verify my statement, since on more than one occasion they have heard one of my old birds trying to sing the judge down while he was awarding him the first, and whilst I am penning these notes I recollect to-day seeing one of my young Greenies trying to sing one of my Hawfinches down, and wanting to feed him, while the old sedate Hawfinch looked at him with disdain. In another flight I actually saw a Greenie feeding a cock Bullie. That's condition, if you like. The first Greenie had his tail spread out, his wings down, and head thrown back, and his song was simply splendid.

Again, I am rambling, only I wish to take this opportunity of contradicting a few of my more experienced brother fanciers. Well, as I say you want size and colour, above all—rich bright yellow wing bars, and perfectly carried wiugs; and his head, as I have said before, should be large and well-rounded, and his very attitude hold and fearless.

I feed my Greenies on quarter white sunflower, quarter clipper oats, quarter canary, eighth flax, and eighth hemp, with just a sprinkling of rape and teazle. I also give them the same tit-hits as I supply to the Goldie and Linnet. I shall deal with the green food later on.

Perky and Merry.

I now come to the next, which is the Siskin, one of the smallest, and perhaps one of the most contented of all captive birds. He will calmly submit to captivity immediately he is caught, and his perky and merry little ways make him quite a favourite with most fanciers. He has one great drawback, and that is that he never knows when he has had enough to eat, so you must be very careful in dieting this little rascal.

In selecting the Siskin for show purposes you want the largest yellows you can get, having well-proportioned hodies, bold heads, dense caps and hihs, the cap to extend as far back as possible. Some judges prefer them with a grizzled cap, but I think the hlack is much better. Then come the lacings of the flanks, which should he regular and well defined; we also need bright yellow wing hars, and perfect wing carriage. The song of the Siskin, if I dare call it such, is about the length of his tail; hut for all that he is not a had little chap, and is well worth his place in any fancier's team.

I feed my Siskins on half teazle, eighth canary, eighth flax, and eighth niger, with just a sprinkling of hemp and English rape, hut the Siskin, like the Goldie, is not very partial to rape.

As Happy as a Sandboy.

The next bird I shall single out will be the Redpoll. You all know there are Mealy and Lesser Redpolls. I must admit I am not a great lover of the Mealy. I like colour and plenty of it at that, hence my recommendation of the Lesser Poll. Now, this blithe little fellow much resembles the Siskin in his habits and cheerfulness. He is very lively, always on the move, and as happy as a sandboy.

In selecting a Redpoll for exhibition, go in for size again, cobby body, good head, large crimson poll, stout chest, and as large a bih of jet hlack as possible, while, above all, do not forget colour. Get a Redpoll as rich in colour as you possibly can, and leave all the smoky huff ones alone. Also, in choosing one do not forget the well-laced back mantle, and plenty of lacings on hreast and flanks. As regards his song, I bracket him with the Siskin again, although perhaps his is a little sweeter. The stock mixture for the Redpoll is equal parts of teazle, canary, and rape; and for tit-bits, treat the same as recommended for the Goldie.

Not to be trusted with others.

I am afraid I am keeping you too long, so I shall finish hriefly with an account of two more friends worthy of attention; then I shall give you a few tips as to their management. The next hird is the Bramblefinch—in my way of thinking a very handsome bird, hut not to be trusted to any great extent with other birds in the Canary room or aviary. He is a perfect villain, practically squealing all night long, and occasionally taking a ramble up the wires of his cage and terrifying other birds. I have about eighteen Brambles at the present time in my outdoor aviary, and, believo me, I have to cage a dozen of them every night into small schooling cages, and place them in a dark corner, so that they are not ablo to see "Big Mussa Moon." But even this does not help some nights, as I have had my Blackbirds scared hy these reckless demons. They cause the Blackies to screech out their alarm and upset the whole aviary of about 200 birds.

In selecting the Bramblefinch size is again the most important point. Also get hold of a well-spangled bird, with a rich rufous brown on the breast and flanks, going as far down as possible. Many good show birds I have seen winning seem to fail in this respect. Also look out for a clear-cut hood, richly spangled head, and black mantle, good flank markings, and clean yellow legs. He is not much trouble to cater for, his bill of fare being much the same as that of the Greenfinch, with a small mealworm added daily.

BIRD MISSIONARIES.

The view of a great London Daily Paper on the "League" and its work.

"Hinc ille avium concentus."

Notes by the Secretary.

I think I cannot do better than begin my notes this week with a reprint of a portion of a sympathetic article published in our popular London contemporary, the "Daily Mirror." The article is the result of an interview with the representative of that paper, who called at our office on Monday.

Would you care to be a "bird missionary"—a real friend to the wild birds of England? This delightful occupation is now open to all, including children. The work, which is done "for love," simply consists in visiting and improving the conditions of the thousands of caged Skylarks, Thrushes, Bullfinches, etc., which hang up in other people's homes.

To become a "hird missionary" one simply joins the Cage Birds League—the subscription is 6d. per annum—and forthwith, after one has learnt the proper way to keep and feed caged hirds, one may start work.

A small but ever-increasing body of children are just now spending most of their spare time in searching for poor little Linnets and Thrushes imprisoned in tiny dark cages and fed on the wrong food. Here, for instance, is a sample campaign carried out hy a boy "bird missionary" in a Kentish village.

He sees, high up on a window ledge of a cottager's house, a cage, 8in. by 6in., and from this tiny box comes the dispirited song of a Skylark.

He holdly knocks at the door. Mr. Hodge appears. "Is that your little bird up there?" asks the boy. "It is," replies Hodge. "May I have a look at it—it might he a good one, you know?" says the youngster.

Hodge fetches down the cage, and then the missionary "goes for" him. He takes him sternly to task. He makes him promise that he will get a bigger, cleaner, brighter cage; he tells him the right kind of food to give the bird.

And the result is that Hodge is ashamed of himself. "I never thought of it before," he says. As the "bird-missionary" goes away he whistles merrily. One more bird made happier!

This charming idea of bird-missionaries was, it is believed, first thought of hy a little girl who listened to the song of the Nightingale as she lay in bed.

Other children, however, also claim to have "thought of it first," while one little member of the Cage Birds League, aged five, asserts that Peter Pan "whispered it to him."

Grown-ups are, of course, included in the League—it is hoped in time to get 50,000 members.

Mr. Henry Fulljames, the Secretary of the Cage Birds League, whose offices are at 154, Fleet Street, E.C., told "The Daily Mirror" yesterday that the work of improving the condition of caged wild birds was of the greatest moment. It is simply ignorance that makes people treat their pets in an improper manner.

"The object of this League is to make the life of all cage hirds happier and brighter. All information respecting hirds can be obtained from me.

"The children's section—the youngest member is only four years old—should be a valuahle help."

Trouble in the Family.

The "youngest member" referred to in the above article is Sidney Stiles, of Bexley, Kent, introduced by our indefatigable member, Mr. Peck, of Dartford, and in reference to the installation of this young fancier and his friend, young Wilfrid Bennett, Mr. Peck writes this week: "Please enrol Reginald Wm. Bennett, aged 6½ years. When his brother was last week made a member and received his badge there was trouble in the family, so we have started him with a Goldfinch Mule, and he wants to wear the badge of Cage Birds League."

Sympathetic; and otherwise.

The publication in the "Daily Mirror" of the article above-mentioned has led to a bombardment of letters and queries. The majority of the letters express sympathy with our object: one or two the reverse. As a sample of the latter I give some extracts from a letter written by a lady:—

"I beg to say that there should bo no occasion for such League. A law should be passed making it illegal to keep a bird of any sort whatever in captivity (a monstrous cruelty). Also to catch hirds for plumage or food should be illegal, and the penalty for breaking these laws should be most severe. The law should bo brought into force without delay, not merely talked about, the object persevered with and achieved, the caged birds released, the misery done with, tho helpless creatures of this world released from the tyranny of man." (The diction and the italics are the lady's own, but I have had to alter the spelling in places to make it in conformity with custom.)

The language is quite on a par with the hysterical denunciations contained in the Humanitarian League pamphlet, and could only be used by one in total ignorance of the subject; but it emphasises the danger to which I have several times referred. These rabid opponents of our hobby have money behind them, and they will use it to effect if we do not take care.

Some letters cite cases where birds are apparently being kept in unsuitable conditions, and these shall all have attention.

That birds in liberty are not quite the unmitigated blessing which some would have us believe is apparent from the fact that the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds has now gone in for the protection of fruit, flowers, and agricultural produce from the attacks of birds, and offers prizes of five guineas and two guineas for the best essays setting out the best means of effecting this "by other methods than those of killing or destroying the birds themselves." This announcement is taken from "The Times" of 12th inst., and any of our readers who would like to enter the competition must send in their efforts to the Hon. Sec., at 23, Queen Anne's Gate, London, S.W., not later than Dec. 1 next.

Readers, Help on the Work!

The letter of Mr. Ball, printed below, is an echo of one of my notes of last week. We have lots of work to do, and we are receiving enthusiastic support. All the same, there are still many thousands of you who have read my notes from week to week, and who up to the present seem to be content to let others do the supporting part of the business. I could find much better use for my space than to occupy it in reminders, and I hope you will each individually take this part of the work off my hands by sending along your applications for membership. It is not possible for you all to see the evidence which is continually coming to my knowledge of the efforts of those who would put an end to our hobby, but you may take my assurance that frantic endeavours are being made to prevent even a Canary from being kept in a cage. These people will prevail unless we show them they have no chance, and, as I have said before, we could show them this in a week if you would all join the organisation which has been made absolutely in the defence of your hobby, and without hope or wish of any pecuniary benefit. All you have to do is to send along eightceupence for a year's subscription and a badge of membership. Cage Birds' League will do the rest.

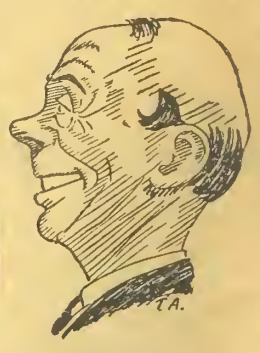
Rolled Gold Badges.

I am glad to be able to announce that I have now had made some very handsome badges in rolled gold mounts as chain pendants or as brooches for ladies; these latter can be worn pinned to tho coat lapel or on a cycling cap, and both are of a quality that anyone will be pleased to wear. The price of the pendants or brooches, in rolled gold mounts, is one shilling. each. Those who have them in the cheaper pattern may if they choose exchange them for the mounted ones by returning their old ones, together with seven stamps, and I am sure they will be pleased with the exchange.

I have been a reader of Cage Birds for a long time, so I am taking the hint in this week's issue. If all fanciers would sit down and write an application for membership, wo should get along. I shall look forward to my badge coming along, so that I may show it to my friends.

Shaw, Lancs. G. H Ball.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.



W. Downing.—Your suggestion of guaranteeing classes for novice exhibitors is a good one, but would savour somewhat of interference with show societies. This we must not do. Cage Birds League is ont simply to promote the proper keeping of birds in captivity, to encourage, by means of special prizes, their proper exhibition, and to defend bird-keepers from ontside attacks upon their hobby. Members of societies may allocate half of their subscriptions to be spent in special prizes, and it is for them to say whether these shall be given to novice classes or otherwise.

N. C. N.—You say you would join Cage Birds League, but you do not quite understand its motives. Surely you have not read Cage Birds very attentively, for these have been fully expounded during the last few weeks. For a short statement of objects, please see reply above to "W. Downing." The subscription is one shilling a year, and the price of badges sixpence each. If you will send a postal order for eightcenpence, I will send you badge and membership receipt for twelve months from date of joining.

Secretary Cage Birds League, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-ides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

THE QUEEN'S CANARY MOULTED ON ROYAL RED.

"190, Oak Rd., Norwich, June 9, 1911:—Mr. Sandiford, Sir,—The bird chosen from about 40 birds shown by the chief breeders in the city was mine, and a committee of six, acting as judges, said it was the best for our Queen, for it was a lovely colour. The Queen was delighted with it. It was fed by me on your Royal Red Food, with which I have been very successful, for I have won five first prizes and many others at the Norwich Alliance All England Bird Shows, and scores of prizes at the Norwich Record Bird Breeding Soc.'s Show, and at other great shows about the country. I also hold two medals from the Record Bird Breeding Society—where I get my Royal Red Food,—for the best birds fed on your Royal Red. I have used it for the last 12 years, and can honestly say it is the best food on the market.—Yours truly, Geo. Campling.

The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills,—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth, 2/-, post free 2/3; in parts 1/-, post free 1/1, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

ALLEGED FRAUDS ON FANCIERS.

Operations all over the country.—Interesting Case at Doncaster.

A case of great interest to bird fanciers occupied the attention of the West Riding County Justices at Doncaster for seven hours on Friday, June 16th, resulting in a prisoner being committed for trial to the Quarter Sessions for alleged frauds upon bird fanciers all over the country. Five distinct cases were proved, whilst the police intimated that numerous other charges could have been preferred.

The prisoner was Fred Middleton, a miner, residing at the Model Colliery Village of The Woodlands, near Doncaster. He was charged with obtaining from George Whitten, of Southborough, Tunbridge Wells, a Canary in December, 1910; from John Milne Finlayson, of Brechin, N.B., two Canaries in April last; from J. W. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, two Canaries on or about April 19th last; and from W. J. Bobbett, of Bridgewater, Somerset, 20, British birds in May last, all by false pretences.

Superintendent Hickes said he had received complaints concerning persons trading from all over the country, especially from people at a distance, and had twice sent his officers to warn the man. As the compliants continued to come in he had him arrested. Prisoner's modus operandi was to answer advertisements in various newspapers in which he saw articles offered for sale. Although only a miner, he used notepaper which described him as a confectioner, cycle agent, and repairer, taxidermist, an agent for miners' tools, etc. This gave the impression that he was in a good way of business, and the people sent their birds on approval on the promise of cash by return. The cash was not sent nor were the goods returned.

Mr. G. Whitten, who stated he bred Canaries for a hobby, spoke to sending a cock bird from Kent, value 10s. He then wrote for a hen bird, but witness declined to send this until the first transaction was settled. Prisoner made all sorts of excuses for non-payment, and asked witness not to drag his name through the mire.

Mr. Finlayson spoke to forwarding two Canaries to prisoner from Scotland at his request, witness stating that he was in partnership in breeding the birds. Neither the money was sent nor were the birds returned, all manner of excuses being made and a doctor's certificate forwarded purporting to show prisoner was ill.

Similar evidence was given by Mr. J. Dobbett in regard to sending prisoner 16 British birds, value £1, the prisoner writing in reply to his advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. Prisoner wrote and said three of the birds were dead on arrival, and witness agreed to allow 3s. off. The man then wrote and said five more had died.—Mr. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, spoke to sending prisoner two Canaries.

The prisoner elected to give evidence, and declared he did not get the things with the intention of not paying for them. He was subjected to a very severe hour and a-half's cross-examination by Supt. Hickes, and made some remarkable admissions. Among these were that he had never been appointed agent for several well-known cycling firms, he claimed to represent, that he had obtained birds value £2 from Mr. Roberts, of Blackpool, whom in his letter he wished "a prosperous New Year," and never paid him; that he had not had a straight deal with anyone for twelve months; had signed himself "Captain" Middleton; had obtained three stuffed birds from a clergyman in Cornwall, and a ferret from a clergyman in Norfolk, for which he had not paid. A man named Lindley, of Wombwell, to whom he owed 30s. for two birds came over for payment. Prisoner said he had just posted him his postal order. He admitted now that this was a lie. He also admitted returning two dead birds to a man who demanded payment. He had received two birds from a man at Rudyard, Staffs, whom he had not paid. He wrote to all these people on printed memorandums conveying the impression he was in a good way of business. He admitted during the last year or two he had been getting things from all over the country and not paying for them.

The Bench committed prisoner for trial to the Quarter Sessions.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Meeting held Oddfellows' Hall, 27th May. Mr. J. Muir presiding. Business was enrolling some new members, and settling prize cards for forthcoming shows.—Mr. Robert Reid (Shieldhill) will judge our first Feather Show on July 29.—W. Clubb, Sec.

SHETTLESTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held May 10th, Mr. McFarlane in the chair. Final arrangements for first F. show to be held in Houstan's Restaurant, 1st July. Judging to commence at four o'clock. A hand-some silver medal valued 10s, is to be competed for best young birds. All fanciers in the district wishing to compete can have full particulars from me.—A. Berry, Sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything.

CITY & COUNTY OF PERTH O.S.

Meeting held Laidlaw's Temperance Hotel, 12th June, Mr. D. Brown (Pres.) in chair. Club show was fixed for October 28th, in Good Templar Hall, Mr. A. Chalmers to judge Canaries and Mr. Goodfellow British Mules and Forcign. Also agreed to held nest feather show in Laidlaw's Hall, 1st July. Several good specials will be competed for, and a prominent North fancier was nominated for judge. Also agreed that owing to the heavy loss sustained on last year's open show, we do not hold an open show this year, but try and make our club show as attractive as possible. This closed the meeting.—James Kerr, Hon. Sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A

Meeting held June 13th, Mr. J. Stenhouse (Pres.) in chair. Agreed, to accept special prize from Hyde's, and confine it to a 2-mile radius. Also agreed, to apply for full patronage of the Scottish British B. and M.C. Collecting books were issued to the members to gather for the funds and spls. The proposed rules of the West Fife League were read, and passed as satisfactory. Secretary reported donation of 10s. 6d. Our Association is in a very flourishing condition, having a good sum in the bank, and has every prospect of a record show for this district. We have two cups just now, and expect to have two others for the open show. The breeding results are a sort of half-and-half. Some are doing well, others the opposite. Our worthy president having again started Scots Fancys has five young ones and two full eggs from Goldfinch-Greenfinch. I hope members will turn out better to the meetings.—A. Dickson, Secretary.

CARDIFF O.S.

Meeting held Maskell's Cafe, Queen Street, June 15th. The chairman, Mr. Whetton, on opening the meeting, passed a few sympathetic remarks on the sad occurrence, since our last meeting, of the almost sudden death of our late and most respected member and treasurer, Mr. S. E. Tonkin. The secretary was asked to send a letter of condolence to the widow and family. Mr. W. Wilson, of Yorkshire fame, was elected to fill the vacancy of treasurer. Stewards for Y.B. Show, July 5th, were elected, after which the following gentlemen were enrolled members: Messrs. W. Morgan, T. Wheaton, R Spillane, and J. Bruford. The rest of evening was spent very pleasantly in answering questions on the various British birds. Messrs. E. J. Davies, J. Sivill, F. D. Jones, A. Shellam, C. Wells, E. James, W. Morgan, and R. Spillane took part, and the discussion was much enjoyed. Next meeting July 20th: discussion on the Yorkshire, by Mr. W. Wilson. All fanciers are invited to join.—J. W. Dummett, Sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS. O.S.

Cups for Novice Members.

Three silver cups, value £2 2s. each, will be provided for competition at the open show to be held on November 11th and 13th, 1911, for novice members, to be won outright. There will be 2 classes for Norwich (cup presented by Mr. Hodgkinson); 2 classes for Crests (cup presented by Mr. Ley); 2 classes for British (cup subscribed for by other members of the Society). There will also be a novice class for Foreign birds (first prize a gold medal presented by Mr. Raven). The cups will be awarded for most points. Prize money will be on the sliding scale. For the purposes of the competition a novice shall be an exhibitor who has not won two first prizes in open competition previous to October, 1911. All birds to be bona fide the property of the exhibitor, and to have been his property and in his possession one month previous to the date of the show. Entries in the novice section will not be accepted from the address of a champion exhibitor. The above will be open to members residing within the city boundary and West Bridgford. We shall be very pleased to welcome new members. G. E. Wilkinson, Hon. Sec. (9, Wellington square, Parkside).

NORTHERN BORDER & S.F.C.

Second meeting, held Lockhart's Cafe, June 12th, a large number of enthusiastic fanciers turning up. Re extending the Club to take in the Scotch Fancies; Mr. Harvey spoke on their behalf, and right well he pleaded for their cause. If they were all as whole-hearted as Mr. Harvey I am afraid the Scotch Fancy breeders would soon rival the Border Fancy men in point of numbers. The matter received a good deal of discussion, and when put to the vote it was unanimously carried That we admit the wanderers. The all-important business was the drawing up of the rules. This is usually a matter in which there is much room for criticism by those who like to split hairs, but it was got over in a very friendly way. Let us hope this friendly spirit of help will be kept up. Rules were drawn up which satisfied nearly everybody. The Border Fancy Club model and standard were adopted as the model and standard of the Club. Proposed by Mr. Currah and seconded by Mr. Smith that we hold a club show at next meeting.—Carried. Mr. Shepherd, our worthy and esteemed chairman, was appointed to judge. Following classes arranged for Borders: 1, Yell.; 2, Cl. Buff; 3, Ticked or Varieg Yell. or Buff; 4, Greens or Cinnamons; 5, Yell. Scotch Fancy; 6, Buff Scotch Fancy. The Club is now an assured success. We invite applications from secretaries for patronage, which we will allot if possible, at our July meeting. Will all Border and Scotch Fancy exhibitors please join as soon as possible, so as to forward the business for the coming season? We invite you to help us by doing so.—J. N. F. Scott.

CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

A lecture of great interest was given by Mr. Edmunds (Swindon) on June 7th, who with the aid of plans and drawings, took his hearers for a tour through M. Pauvvels' aviaries at Evesbergh, Belgium. The forty six aviaries and bird-rooms were minutely described, together with many of the rarer species of birds, and an interesting account of the preparation of food and its quantity used each day. Mr. Edmunds was heartily thanked for his kindness in coming from Swindon, and for providing the interesting fare he had. In reply, Mr. Edmunds said he was always pleased to come amongst his fellow members and do what he could to assist them. He hoped more would take up foreign bird-keeping, which to him was the most fascinating branch of aviculture.—A. S. Treasure, Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Meeting held June 8th. In the absence of the chairman and vice-chairman, Mr. H. Day was unanimously elected to take the chair. Prize cards won at the various shows were distributed. New members were elected as follows: Rev. H. A. Soames (Bromley), Messrs. Harrison and Becker (Bromley), E. Rice (Stepney, E.), Wiggins (Dalton), W. Stammers (Colchester), and F. Pitt (Old Ford, E.). A hearty vote of thanks was accorded all the judges who officiated at the monthly shows, and the Hon. Sec. was instructed to write them to that effect. Arrangements for monthly show, July 13th, were then made, and the election of judges confirmed. The following gentlemen kindly promised specials for competition on July 13th.: Messrs. A. H. Huggins, A. Wasey, A. Lears, H Day, R. Cape, J. Sykes, G. Eves, and W. Maxey. membership is open to the United Kingdom. Fanciers joining now can compete at the show on July 13th.—W. Maxey, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting held headquarters, the Sydenham Hotel, Small Heath, June 14th. Mr. J. Hughes occupied the chair at one of the largest gatherings of members since the society was founded. Mr. Yardley was ballotted for as a new member and duly elected, which puts us on the road for 40 members. The chief item was allotting specials not specified by donors. How best to award the beautiful silver medals raised a good discussion. Decided to give same to best bird shown by a novice. Over 12 specials were dealt with, and the keen way in which the members awarded the many classes with same should add great interest to the first feather shows. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. J. H. Roe for consenting to act as judge for the July show, to be held on a Saturday evening. Business over, the members settled down for a chat and debate on colour feeding; all took part in it with enthusiasm. The secretary opened the debate by reading Mr. Ramsden's very useful book on the "Colouring-Feeding of Birds, etc." (to be obtained from CAGE BIRDS' offices at 3d.). Meeting closed with the secretary offering Mr. J. H. de Maillett the heartfelt sympathy of the members present on the serious illness of his wife. I trust all will bring along all birds, good or bad, as there will be a fine muster of friends and visitors at our first effort. Will the members who were asking about show cages please note that the official cage-maker to the society (who has a good stock of all kinds) is Mr. G. Walton, 15, Dolphin-road, Sparkhill.—J. Sheppard, Sec.

SWANSEA C.B.S.

Meeting held June 13th, Market Coffee Tavern, Mr. J. W. Ford presiding. Among the correspondence read by Secretary was a letter from Mr. Harding Williams, of the Morriston C. B. S., with the final arrangements for the transfer of that Society to the Swansea Society. There were that the Swansea Society accept nine members into their Society with free membership for the current year, and in return for this the Morriston Society hand over the balance at the bank, also all their show fittings, and that the Cup belonging to the Society be put up for competition open to all the late members of the Society. After a little discussion on minor points it was unanimously resolved to accept the conditions in the letter. By this amalgamation the Swansea C.B.S. has been greatly strengthened, and is now the strongest Society in Wales, its membership being only a few short of 100, and with the cheque from the late Morriston Society, the banking account has been substantially increased, giving a grand prospect to coming events of the Society. The classification for the open show was proceeded with. Resolved, that all classes stand as last year, with an addition of two for British, a selling class and a small soft-bill class, making a total of 62. The Chairman presented the specials to the two members who gained most points at the table show, Mr. J. W. Ford giving a pair of silver salt cups with spoons in case; the winner of this was Mr. Phil Jenkins. Mr. D. A. S. Longden gave a gold-centre medal—winner, Mr. D. Williams. Both gentlemen suitably responded. Officials for F. F. show elected: Stewards (Canary section), Messrs. J. Gay and D. Williams. (British), Messrs. D. Jenkins and W. J. Jenkins; Doorkeeper, Mr. J. Mock; show managers, Messrs. J. Hocking and Phil Jenkins. This show is going to create a record in number of entries, caused by two silver cups that will be up for competition. Every member intends to put out every bird fit for this occasion, and the excitement is running very high. We had great pleasure in adding three new members to the Society, namely, Messrs. F. Walters, B. George, F. Scrienes; also the transfer of nine from the late Morriston Society, Messrs. W. R. Morgan, W. H. Wilcox, W. H. Lewis (late Sec.), E. J. Hopkins, W. M. Bowen, W. J. Jones, A. C. East, D. Jeremy and Harding Williams, the last two gentlemen being the trustees of the Society.—S. H. George, Sec.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

At a meeting held June 10th, at the Club-house, a lecture was given by Mr. H. J. Chittenden on the Breeding and Rearing of the Yorkshire Canary. It was one of the most interesting lectures ever put before the members. The lecturer started with the question of cages, which he insisted on being specially clean. The nesting also should be clean. He followed with the birds he thought it best to pair together to produce winners or good stock birds. Then when you have the eggs, how to look after them until they hatch out, and how to feed when the young birds are in the nest; also when taken away from the old birds; and then until they are ready for the show bench. Then he specially advised fanciers not to sell off because they had not bred a winner, as they might have bred the correct stock birds which would produce winners the following season. A hearty vote of thanks was given the lecturer at the termination of the meeting.—J. Holroyd, Hon. Sec.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Meeting held Crown Hotel, Station Street, June 7th. Present: Messrs. Broadhurst, Wells, Berry, Southon, Broomfield, Wainwright, Baldwin, Day, James, T. Jones, Burke, H. Pease, Trout, Clay, Hemersley, and Secretary. Mr. Burke in the chair. Alteration of date of nest feather show: Secretary explained the reason, as our date clashed with South Birmingham O.S., which he thought was only right. Proposed and carried, that we alter date to July 12th. Mr Wells was elected to judge nest feather show. Members then amused themselves when Sec. was reading ballot books. Letters regarding Federation read. Sec. explained reason he could not undertake to carry it on—as business prevented it. Proposed by Mr. Broadhurst and carried that same stand over till some future date. Sec. informed members the reason that prevented our late Sec. from being with us; proposed by Mr. Broadhurst that Sec. convey to Mr. De Maillet the sympathy of the members re the illness of his wife and hopes for a speedy recovery.—S. Mole, hon. sec.

NEW CROSS AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting and table show held headquarters, June 8. I am sorry to say we cannot boast of large entries. We had a good number of members present, and also made a new member in Mr. Jones, of Hither Green. All our members are suffering ill-luck this season, both in the shape of unfertile eggs and young dying. I myself have only reared two young Yorkshires from 4 pair. Our entries consisted of 3 Yorkshires and 1 Norwich in the selling class, and 2 Redpolls in a class, and Bramble, Chaffinch, and Greenfinch in their class. Not one unflighted bird was shown. I might state that the society's chief show will be held July 6, when we expect some big entries. We have great hopes of getting this, as most of us have a good nest or two coming along. We have six specials allotted for same, and Mr. J. Robson will judge. Mr. Meades gave the unfortunate members who could not go to the Hilderboro' ramble a short chat on same. After this he gave the members his promised notes on colour-feeding, which were much appreciated. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Meares for his evening judging, and chat. Burton and Hearn, Secs.

READING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held June 7, there being a very good attendance. Our usual chairman being unavoidably absent (which is a novelty), Mr. E. J. Smith was elected to the chair. If he gets that job very often we shall have to get a chair made for him, as this one won't hold him. Three new members were elected, viz., Messrs. A. C. Noble, E. Honchin, and J. Vivers. The chairman then introduced Mr. Maisey, who gave us his promised lecture on the Yorkshire Canary. It was a thoroughly practical and instructive lecture, and as there was a good muster of amateurs present, there is no doubt it will prove very helpful. A good many questions were asked and answered in a businesslike fashion, and caused a good discussion. At the close a very hearty vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Maisey for his kindness in coming over from Aldermaston for our benefit. Final arrangements for the Young Bird Show on July 12th were made, which will take the place of the usual July meeting. Schedules and full particulars will be sent to all members when printed, and as the admission will be free, it is hoped they will advertise it amongst their fancier friends. The society is adding £1 to the prize money, and several good specials are promised.—W. H. Pyke, Hon. Sec.

CHESTER C.B.F.A.

Meeting held Nag's Head Cocoa House, June 6th, Mr. Bracegirdle in chair. The annual show was fixed for Boxing Day. A revised classification of 23 classes was agreed to. Prize-money, 8s. per class, will be paid in all classes which contain eight birds, half prize money in those classes which have under that number. Mr. Battye was elected judge, subject to his being free to judge on that date.—J. Swindley, Sec.

HANLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held Albion Hotel, June 8th, when a good numbers of members attended, Mr. C. J. Robinson in the chair. After the general business we proceeded to draw up a schedule for next feather show. We decided to run 4 classes for Yorkshires, 4 for Norwich, 1 for Lizards (silver or gold) and 1 for Mule or Hybrid (young birds). Mr. F. Bate (Stoke-on-Trent) will judge. Birds to be staged at 3 p.m. The show will be open to the public any time during the afternoon; admission free. We may expect birds of good merit from our members' rooms. The Society is progressing favourably. Mr. T. Newman was made a member. Any person wishing to become a member may do so at our next meeting, June 28th. Entries will be accepted for F. F. Show.—G. Lawton, Hon. Sec.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARY (National Derby) O.A.

Half-yearly meeting held Grand National Halls, Main Street, Gorbals, 12th June. In consequence of pressure of business, the President, Mr. Wright was unable to be in attendance. Mr. O'Donnell (Paisley) was called to the chair, and conducted the duties with acceptance. It was reported that the vice-president, Mr. Hogg, was indisposed. The members hope he will have a speedy recovery. A report was given on the tickets accounted for; which was discouraging, several members who have been long associated with the Fancy have ceased to breed the Scotch Fancy Canary, which is much to be regretted. Decided, to have the small prize cards from Mr. Ritchie, with two large cards for the leading winners. Judges appointed: Messrs. D. Holden (Muirkirk), J. Kean (Edinburgh), D. Kennedy (Paisley), and A. Neshit (Galston).—Gentlemen to whom tickets were sent, and who have not accounted for them are earnestly requested to do so at once. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—Thos Smith, Sec., 10, Lockside Street, Crossmyloof, Glasgow.

Singing Contests.

PONTEFRACT.

Usual weekly Linnet contest, held June 17th, Woodman Inn, before a large company. 1, 3, H. Dickinson; 2, J. Bullough. Open contest, June 18, when we had a large number of birds, and some very good singing, before a fine company. Result: 1, T. Piper; 2, B. Nelson; 3, T. Piper. We are having a contest on Coronation Day, special prize (grand clock).—H. Chatterton, Sec.

Weekly Linnet contest, held Woodman Inn, June 5th, when some good singing was heard. After a close finish the result was: T. Piper 1, H. Dickinson 2, Price 3.—H. Chatterton, Hon. Sec.

SPENNYMOOR.

Linnet sing held at Butcher's Arms, where a very large company assembled to hear 35 entries. Some of the best singing I have heard was done. 1, G. Ridley; 2, D. Martin; 3, "Peter." Judge, Mr. J. Gardner. Timekeeper, Mr. M. Brown.—W. Fairless, Sec.

BLACKBURN.

Blackburn Quality Club, Headquarters, Old Red Lion, Snig Brook, held their club contest for the Boothman Cup on June 17th, when there was some splendid quality singing; 23 birds competed. Winners: 1, Boothman cup and special, W. Barnes (Wigan); 2, Brown (Leigh); 3, W. H. Topping (Blackburn); 4, J. W. Jones (Leigh); 5, R. Howcroft (Leigh); 6, J. Statham (Leigh). Judges, Messrs. J. W. Jones, J. Dobson, and R. Hayhurst. Timekeeper, W. H. Topping. Next contest for quality (members only, consolation), July 1st.—T. Slater, Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Linnet singing contest held Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Attercliffe Common, June 17th, when 20 birds entered (3 minutes time singing). 1, Albert, 101 sec.; 2, Thompson, 73 sec.; 3, Bisby, 68 sec.; Thompson, 67 sec.; Rodgers, 65 sec.; Albert, 63 sec.; Harry, 60 sec. Also June 18, when 24 birds entered (2 minutes time singing). 1, Albert, 50 sec.; 2, Watson, 49 sec.; 3, Jack, 47 sec.; Albert, 46 sec.; Thorpe, 44 sec.; Thompson, 39 and 38 sec.; Thorpe, 39 sec. Contest every week-end.—A. Thompson, Sec.

DURHAM.

Linnet sing. held Travellers' Rest, Gilesgate Moor, June 10th, when 52 birds entered, and some good singing was heard. Owing to a slight mistake in the time-keeping, by Mr. Reed, a division was made between Bell, Barass, Walton, Ridley and Wilson. Judge, Mr. A. Brady. Also on June 17th, at Black Horse, Elvet, where 22 birds entered. Result: 1, Wilson; 2, Lockhart; 3, Bell. Judge, Mr. G. Reed (Brandon). Nest contest, July 1st, the Travellers' Rest, Gilesgate, Moor. 1st, cup value £3, also 2 clocks and a case of spoons. Special judge engaged.—G. Reed, Hon. Sec.

WEST HOUGHTON (Wigan)

Open Linnet contest held Horse Shoe Hotel, when 18 birds sang for some very good prizes. Quality winners: 1, T. Mawsdley; 2, A. Parker. Time winners: 1, J. Macfarlane; 2, R. Crompton. Judges: Messrs. T. Mawsdley, Parker, Timers, R. Leyland, R. Macfarlane and W. Dootson. Am sorry to say we had a poor entry, but we are not disheartened. As for the Leigh secretary saying they have postponed their match for us he is wrong, as he should not send official list out to the other clubs and have some open dates, and when they are taken up arrange other matches.—A. Parker, Sec.

The Shows.

GT. HORTON (Good Intent) O.S.

First feather show held, Church Schools, June 17th. I am sorry to say we had a very poor entry, only 29 birds being staged. Our members, taken as a whole, have had a very bad breeding season. Mr. A. W. Hartley (Great Horton) gave the utmost satisfaction as judge, and the society tender him their best thanks also for returning hi sfee as a special prize at the next show.

CL., ETC., YELL. (13): 1, Hill; 2, hc, Holden; 3, Bartle; 4, vhc, Walker; c, Hanson. BUFF (9): 1, Walker; 2, c, Hanson: 3, Peddar; 4, Sharp; vhc, Lawn; hc, Kaberry. EVEN. ETC., YELL. (2): 1, Kaberry; 2, Sharp. BUFF (5): 1, Walker; 2, 3 4, Hill; vhc, Peddar. Mr. C. Walker won special prize, also headed the list of points with 19 points, Mr. H. Hill second with 16 points.—H. Gornall, Sec.

NORTHERN COUNTIES NORWICH & CINNAMON CLUB.

First nest feather show held June 7th at headquarters, Lockhart's Cocoa Rooms, 65, Grainger Street, near Monument. Decided to have just two classes. Mr. A. Hermiston judged, and everyone was pleased with the way in which he placed the cards.

CL.: 1, Hope, good yellow, should moult into a nice exhibit; 2, Topping, buff, good size and col.; 3, Hooper, good col.; 4, 5, Hooper. A.O.V.: 1, Holden, another good one, buff, marked on neck; 2, Hope, marked buff, good size and col.; 3, Hooper, variegyell.; 4, Davidson; 5, Topping. Next table show July 19th, when Mr. A. Holden (Gateshead) will judge. The following are the classes: Cl. Yell., Cl. Buff, Yell., Marked Buff, and Cinn. any col. Members please note that subs. are now due.—W, Curry, Sec.

SOUTHPORT AND DIST. C.B.S.

First nest feather show, held in the Phœnix Hall, Sussex Road, June 10th. Entries were very poor this year owing to the unsatisfactory results in the first rounds, but we think if the younger members would take more interest in the Society the results would soon be apparent both to the Society and the district generally. Mr. Peter Wareing (Preston) judged and gave satisfaction.

NOR. CL. YELL. (4): 1, Johnson, nice bird, good col., slips back claw; 2, Fawcett, another good bird, but rather too young; 3, vhc, Bullough, two nice birds. BUFF (8): 1, Sutton, very promising bird; 2, hc, Johnson, another good bird, richer in col. than leader; 3, Fawcett, very nice bird; vhc, c, Bullough. TKD. SHEFFIELD O.S.

One of the finest collections of Foreign birds ever staged in Sheffield was put down by the members at a table show held at headquarters, Rose and Crown Hotel, Waingate, June 13th. It included some very rare specimens and many noted winners, among others, Toucans, King Parrakeets, Crimson-wing Parrakeets, Mexican Jays, Striped Throated Jay Thrush, Giant Whydahs, White Javas, Cordon Bleus, Lavender Finches, Zebra Finches, Golden-beaked Waxbills, Orange-cheek, etc. There were about 30 in all in two classes—not bad for a table show. After the general business, which included the election of new members, final arrangements for ramble, June 18th. Mr. E. E. Smith (Sheffield) gave us a lecture on keeping, feeding, and exhibiting Foreign birds, which was enjoyed by all. He pointed out that the keeping of Foreign birds was not so expensive as a good many people imagined. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Smith. An inspection of the Foreigners then took place. Don't forget next meeting, July 3rd at headquarters—lecture on Breeding, Feeding, and Exhibiting the Norwich Canary. Bring your friends.—John Woodall.

GRASSFINCHES, ETC. (15): 1, Dawn, lovely pair White Javas, shown in the pink of condition; 2, 3, res., Baxby, 2nd, bonny pair Lavender Finches, faultless, good 2nd; 3rd, nice pair Golden-breasted Waxbills, lovely colour; 4, c, Bishop, true pair Orange-cheeked Waxbills, tight as wax; vhc, hc, Fletcher. A.O.S. (9): Class contained some well-known winners: 1, 3, 4, Baxby, 1st, true pair Mexican Jays, absolutely perfect condition and colour; 3rd Toucan, in lovely condition; 4th, Giant Whydah, in full colour; 2, Fletcher, lovely Crimson-wing Parrakeet, also perfect; res, hc, Fletcher; res, Patagonia Conure, in nice condition; vhc, Drabble, Yellow-wing Blue Sugar Bird, not looking so well when judged.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners-up.

*A Homing Greenfinch.

Last year I found a lame young Greenfinch which I took home and put in a cage. It soon got quite better and very tame. One day his cage was left open, and he flew away, and we thought we had seen the last of him. However, the door was left open, and the cage put outside, and when we awoke in the morning there was Master Greenie as lively as ever and quite happy. He sings most of the day, and he is so tame that he will take food from our hands.—R. Inman, 1, Woodville Mount, Hunslet, Leeds.

*An Adventurous Canary.

One summer evening last year my Canary opened the door of its cage, and soon after I found it perched on the top of its dwelling. Being anxious to get it, I took hold of my cap and tried to catch it, when all of a sudden it darted out of my reach, and mounted on to a neighbouring chimney pot. Soon a shower of rain came down and wetted the bird's wings. The bird not then being able to ascend, descended on to the scullery roof, and in a short time it unfortunately fell into a pail of water. But it was none the worse for its adventure, and was singing away shortly afterwards, as if it had enjoyed the incident.—Sent by J. Simpkin (age 12), 69, Lichfield Road, Sneinton Dale, Nottingham.

A Goldfinch's Wooing.

A friend of mine has a Goldfinch which she puts out in its cage on a sunny wall. This spring the bird attracted to herself a handsome mate. He has a beautiful head and bright gold markings on his wings. He fed her for days through the bars of the cage. One day we opened the door and off she flew with him. But to the surprise of all in the evening she was found in her cage feeding with great content. Sometimes he comes in to feed her, but he never drinks the water. If she thinks he is taking too much, she angrily puts him out, and if he sits on the top of the cage she will sometimes nip his feet. But every morning he is seen sitting on the fence waiting for her appearance.—Sent by Louisa Barnes, age 11, 5, Railway Place Grangetown, Yorks, R.S.O.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects. Harmless to everything.

LABELS for the BIRDROOM.

Mark your seed, etc., tins with our special labels. Sheets of twenty printed in red, on gummed-back paper, marked "Canary," "Hemp," "Softbill Food," etc. Price, three sheets for 1½d., six sheets 2d., post free.

GOD BLESS OUR KING AND QUEEN and grant them a long and prosperous reign.

The Torbay O.S. First Feather Show will be held on July 18, writes Mr. J. N. Jeffery, the secretary.

Our annual Nest Feather Show will be held on July 1, writes Mr. A. J. Barratt, sec. of the Coventry O.S.

I am a reader of CAGE BIRDS, and I think it a very good book for bird lovers.—J. T. Hodgson (Malton, Yorks).

A bird show will be held at the Fleece Hotel, Great Horton, Bradford, on July 15, when specials will be given, writes Mr. J. Ward, the sec.

Nestling under a carriage of a Birmingham to Yarmouth express, a Blackbird and four youngsters were found when the train was examined at Bourne, Lincolnshire.

Will secretaries and others please note for future correspondence that after June 23rd my address will be Nene House, Eaglescliffe Junction, Co. Durham, writes Mr. F. Marwood.

Messrs. Spratt's Patent, Ltd., ask us to notify that their offices and factories will be closed on June 22, 23, and 24, to enable their staff to enjoy the full benefit of the Coronation festivities.

A Baron in Thuringia has given up about 500 acres of his park, woods and plantation for the exclusive use of wild birds, which are encouraged in every way to nest and live secure from interference.

Will secretaries and members kindly note my change of address from Hett Hills, Pelton Fell, to 3, Low Howlett, Pelton Fell S.O., writes Mr. Wm. Forster, sec. of the Pelton Fell and Dis. C.B.S.

Our First Feather Show will be held on July 1 at the North-Eastern Hotel, Mile End Road, South Shields, when Mr. James Stanger will place the cards, writes Mr. James Barrass, sec. of the South Shields and Dis. C.B.S.

We are holding a Brown Linnet singing contest on June 24 at the Butchers' Arms, Merrington Lane, Spennymoor, writes Mr. W. Fairless, sec. of the Spennymoor Society. Five pounds will be given, so that it is expected there will be a good entry.

We received on June 19th a two-folio contribution entitled "Royal Canaries," with no name or address upon it, and the accompanying letter (if there was one) has been accidentally mislaid. Will the sender kindly communicate with us?

At the monthly meeting held on June 6th it was decided, owing to our members having had such bad results in their first rounds, to postpone our First Feather Show from June 24 to July 15, write Messrs. Hallam and Lovatt, hon. secs. of the Longton and Dis. C.B.S.

The annual report and balance sheet for 1910 of the Wimbledon and District C.B.S. speak well for the sec. of the society (Mr. H. Smith) and his fellow officers. The amount to be carried forward into the next year's accounts is no less than £22 17s. 6d., which is a distinctly creditable balance.

The Colne and Dist. C.B.S. have taken rooms of their own, writes Mr. Will Maxwell, the hon. sec. We have already doubled our membership, and are looking forward to holding an open show in the near future. We are holding our young bird show on July 1, in our own rooms, Dockray Chamber.

FIRST FEATHER SHOWS.

Important Offer: Secretaries, Note!

We have decided again this year to accept advertisements of First Feather (young bird) shows at the reduced charge of 3s. 6d. per single column inch (2s. the half inch). And we will present a special prize of a framed coloured plate to all societies spending not less than 10s. 6d. in advertising their Young Bird Show in our columns.

Secretaries taking advantage of this offer should state very clearly in their advertisements the date, time, and place of the show. These particulars put before our readers will, without doubt, result in a much greater attendance at these early fixtures, and the making of new members, while the "gate-money" (where a charge is made) will benefit, and the sale of catalogues, too. This special cheap rate, of course, only applies to First Feather shows.

Secretaries should note that we can print at very favourable rates, show schedules, posters in colours, and ornamental prize-cards. Send for samples and prices.

Our First Feather Show is fixed for July 1, writes Mr. R. S. Black, sec. of the Darlington C. and B.B.F.A.

We have engaged Mr. Cowgill (of Yorkshire fame) to judge our Open Show on Nov. 17 and 18, writes Mr. Jas. Irlam, hon. sec. of the Sale Open Society.

We have secured the services of Mr. W. Moule (Durham) to judge our First Feather Show on July 8, in the County Hall, writes Mr. C. Ramsey, sec. of the Spennymoor and Dis. C.B.S.

We have received from Mr. A. Watson, the sec. of the G.P.O. F and F.S., a copy of that society's rule book. Any reader who is employed by the Crown is eligible for membership, particulars as to which may be had on application to Mr. Watson, 116, Maurice Ave., Wood Green, London, N.

At a meeting of the Mid Wales F.F. and H.S., held on June 7, Mr. F. Beard in the chair, owing to its being so near the holidays it was decided to alter the date of next Open Show, to be held at Llandrindod Wells, from August 9 to Wednesday, August 16, writes Mr. P. Muscott, the hon. sec.

Our First Feather Show will be held in the Lesser Oddfellows' Hall on July 8, at 3 p.m., writes Mr. Robt. Rennie, sec. of the Falkirk and Dis. C.B.S., when the following members will judge:—Messrs. W. Scaife (Norwich), T. R. Wallace (Borders), and J. Morris (British). We have also fixed up with the following gentlemen to judge our Annual Show:—Mr. Holmes (Edinburgh), for Norwich; Mr. J. Jeans (Camelon), for Borders and Crests; and Mr. D. J. Gardner (Bathgate), for British and foreign.

OBITUARY.

Mr. G. HOLT (Nottingham).

It is with deep regret I have to report the death of one of our oldest members, Mr. G. Holt, who died very suddenly while at work, writes Mr. J. Bunn, secretary of the Nottingham and Dis. Permanent O.S. Deceased was a staunch fancier nearly all his life, being known by nearly all fanciers in Nottingham and district. He will be missed at the shows, where he was always to be seen on show days.

I regret to inform you of the loss sustained by the secretary of the Coventry O.S. (Mr. A. J. Barratt) in the death of his wife, writes Mr. T. Gilbert (Coventry). After a long and painful illness, she passed peacefully away on June 16. The sympathy of all who know him I am sure will be extended to him.

It is with very great regret that we hear of the grievous loss sustained by that old-time and highly-esteemed Crest fancier and judge, Mr. J. H. Scothern, of Nottingham, whose dearly-loved wife passed away on June 17, after a long illness. Mr. Scothern's wide circle of friends will join us in extending heartfelt sympathy to him in his sadness, occasioned by the passing into "the Land of Shadows" of so worthy and respected a help-meet.

Will secretaries who have not applied for the patronage of the Northern Border and Scotch Fancy Club kindly send their applications in before the July meeting, stating classes given, so that we can allot our patronage, writes Mr. J. N. G. Scott, the secretary, 186, Cartington Terrace, Newcastle.

Members of the Edinburgh Norwich Canary and Mule Breeders' Society are reminded that the ramble will take place on Saturday, June 24, to Musselburgh, writes Mr. James Finnie, the secretary. Mr. Crossley Sykes will meet the train due to arrive at Musselburgh Station at 4.10 p.m., and show us around. Mr. Cooper (president) will take a photograph of the party.

Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield) will judge the Leeds C.B.S. Members' Young Bird Show, to be held in St. George's Schoolroom on July 8th, when the Leeds Cup and the president's will be competed for with four and six starred birds respectively writes Mr. A. Wilson, the hon. sec. For classification see syllabus. Will any member not having received one, please apply to me?

To obtain the best results in Colour Feeding you must use Ramsden's Pure Peppers. Over 300 awards at the last Crystal Palace Bird Show to birds colour-fed on Ramsden's Pure Peppers. If proof is needed, refer to the catalogue. Fully guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act. When you ask dealers for Ramsden's Peppers, see you get them. Packed in canisters bearing Ramsden's label and coupon.—ADVT.

The need of a book of reference containing the names, appointments, and achievements of the world's foremost scientists has long been felt in learned circles. Messrs. J. and A. Churchill, 7, Great Marlborough Street, London, W., have in preparation, we hear, a new annual which is designed to meet this want. It will be called "Who's Who in Science," and is to be edited by Mr. H. H. Stephenson.

A splendid testimonial has been received by Mr. T. Sandiford, the well-known colour-food specialist, of Preston, from Mr. G. Campling, of Norwich, the working man who was successful in breeding the Canary recently presented to Queen Mary. The bird, whose colour was so much admired, was moulted on Sandiford's "Royal Red," a pepper with which Mr. Campling has had much success. Further particulars appear in the advertisement columns this week.

Will members kindly note that our consolation contest will be held this Saturday (June 24), when we shall be able to enrol new members, writes Mr. J. McAllister, sec. of the Globe Inn Linnet Club of Leigh. We shall give a knife and fork tea to all members after the contest. Will all who wish to join us kindly give in their names as soon as possible? Our next contest will be held at the Elephant and Castle, Bag Lane, on July 1, when we give the usual £1.

Sandiford's Colour Feeds feed more winners every year than all others put together. I sell you the proper colour—not specials. This year's Royal Red costs £15 per ton more than any other imported into England. Already supplied most leading breeders not with a pound or two, so they can compete for specials, but all with 56lb. lots and over, including J. E. Davies, E. Baker, J. Howard, W. Booth, W. Vardy, A. Hirst. Thousands more. Sold two tons in Norwich City alone.—ADVT.

Our next meeting will be held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle, on June 28, at 7.30 p.m., writes Mr. Geo. Taylor, sec. of the Northern British Bird, M. and F.B.C. Mr. T. Robson will make a few remarks on "Experiences with British Softbills; their Feeding and General Management, etc." A table show will be held, with classes as follows:—1, British A.S., previous winners not debarred from competition; 2, A.S. British that have not previously won a prize; and 3, Foreign A.S. Fanciers welcome.

A very charming coloured frontispiece of Mr. H. Goodchild's graces the June number of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club—its subjects being the Purple Sunbird and the Great Billed Flycatcher. Notes on Sun Birds in Captivity are supplied by Mr. L. W. Hawkins. Mr. C. T. Maxwell writes on the Purple Sun Bird and Great-billed Flycatcher, while Mr. Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., contributes an article on the Flycatcher depicted in the coloured plate. Mr. Page has something to say about the aviaries and birds at Hoddam Castle. There are many other interesting features.

Open Norwich P.C.

Will all societies desirous of the Open Norwich Plainhead Club's patronage for season 1911-12 kindly make applications, stating number of classes (Norwich) and judge's name, before June 30, to me?—O. Mitchell, hon. sec., 13, Lodge Terrace, Bowling, Bradford.

Help Wanted.

Respecting the prize drawing in aid of Mrs. Johnson, Messrs. Cook and Walsh, the secretaries (6, Randal Street, Blackburn), write that they have been compelled to postpone the draw until July 3. Will all persons having received books return duplicates, etc., not later than Saturday, July 1? Will fanciers help us to make the draw a success for so deserving a case? We have as yet only received a small return for the quantity of books we sent out. Winning numbers will be published in CAGE BIRDS.

Crested Canary Club.

Applications for the Club's support have been received from the Scottish National, Clapham, Coventry, Plymouth, Bournemouth, Derby, Cheltenham, Sheffield, Newcastle, L.C.B.A., and Nottingham. Further applications must be made at once, as the list will be submitted to the general committee very early in July. All communications concerning the Club must now be made to me direct, or it may result in delay and possible overlooking.—John Tyson, hon. sec. (169, Sloane St., London, S.W.).

Northern Counties N. and C.C.

Will secretaries who would like the patronage of the Northern Counties Norwich and Cinnamon Club please send in their applications before July 19, as we confine our patronage to six shows? The following classes are required: Six classes for Norwich, one or more classes for novices, and two for Cinnamons. Will any fancier in the counties of Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland, and Westmorland, who would like to join us, kindly send his name and address (subscription 2s. 6d.), when I will be pleased to forward all particulars.—W. Curry, secretary, 60, Grosvenor Gardens, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Cyclists' Coronation Souvenir.

To commemorate the Coronation of the world's most eminent cyclist—H.M. King George V.—the Mead Cycle Company, of Liverpool, has issued an extremely handsome monster size art souvenir, which contains a mine of information, which is invaluable to those who are about to purchase a cycle. Moreover, the list depicts in a variety of charming colours their Majesties the King and Queen attired in their Coronation robes; a magnificent panoramic view of the procession; no fewer than 26 sumptuously tinted life-life portraits of the world's mightiest monarchs, and the most gigantic and beautiful bicycle illustration that has ever appeared in any cycle list in the world. A free copy of this delightful souvenir will be sent, on receipt of a postcard, to any reader of this paper who mentions CAGE BIRDS when writing for it. Address, The Mead Cycle Company, Paradise Street, Liverpool.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to CAGE BIRDS having to go to press two days earlier than usual this week, all Club and Show Reports, Correspondence, etc., reaching us after last post on Monday has had to be held over until our next issue.

New Series by this popular Author.

By the Rev. C. D. FARRAR

No. 7.—My Redrumps.

I suppose you have heard of the lion-tamer who was hated by another man? Well, the lion-tamer's big play to the audience was putting his head into a lion's mouth. The man who hated him attended every performance in the hope some time of seeing that lion crunch down. He followed the show all over the country. The years went by, and he grew old. And at last one day, sitting in a front seat, he saw what he had waited for. The lion crunched down, and there wasn't any need to call a doctor.

Now, that's what I call patience; and it's my style. I don't know how many years I waited before I got my first Redrumps. I am sure it was something like the proverbial seven that Jacob waited for Rachel. When you don't want a thing there are always plenty knocking about; when you really are bent on having them they are nowhere to be found.

Friendship's Beginning.

When I was a lad—never mind how long ago that is—Redrumps were almost as common as Sparrows down East. I could any day have gone and bought a good pair for fifteen shillings, or even less; but at the time I am thinking of, some ten years ago, there wasn't one to be found anywhere for love or money. At last, one day I was reading the paper when my eye was caught by an advertisement, Redrumps for sale, cage-reared—Savage, Rue Bihorel, Bihorel, Rouen. I at once wrote off and made enquiries, and began one of my most pleasant and valued bird friendships.

Mr. Savage informed me that the young Redrumps had been reared in a big box cage in his sitting-room, and that he had five youngsters for disposal, as the parents were anxious to go to nest again. So fearful was I that another would step down before me and secure the treasure, that I went to the extravagance of a wire. In a few more days I received one of the familiar Continental travelling cages with sloping front, and on opening it I was delighted to see five beautiful young Redrumps in perfect feather and condition—two cocks and three hens. I at once transferred them to a nice, medium-sized aviary, and spent many happy hours in watching my latest acquisition.

Redrumps are very slender and elegant, and their soft colours are particularly attractive, while their soft, tuneful whistle is always a source of pleasure. Of course, I knew that I could do nothing in the way of breeding that year, but I had done my best to be first next year, or, at any rate, to prevent anyone else from having a chance. This, I know, sounds selfish; but in breeding birds we are all selfish. If you do not get on top of the other man, the other man will get on top of you.

Nobody need be frightened of losing Redrumps by death, except it be by egg-binding or accident. Weather will never hurt them. I have seen mine bathing in water in which the ice has only just been broken, and even nibbling bits of broken ice in sheer playfulness. Mr. Savage informed me that they were wonderfully free breeders, as indeed they must have been to go to nest in a big box wired only in front. Personally, I never heard of any other Australian Parrakeets doing so—not even Budgerigars.

Precept and Practice.

Not many people are practical, though I never knew anybody who did not think he or she was. The really big ones are always trying to be practical, like Sir Isaac Newton when he ordered a good-sized hole to be cut in his back door for the cat, and a little one near it for the kittens. Of course, I am nothing if not practical; so I must needs devise my own patent nest-boxes. To this end I got from our woodman some well-rotted logs of wood, and set them up on shelves. This, I thought, was a really clever idea. The logs were stable, the litter would be caught on the shelves, and the baby Parrakeets when they arrived would have a nice platform to exercise on. It sounded all right in theory, but like Randolph Churchill who forgot Goschen, I forgot the mice. The brutes got on the shelves, made endless burrows through the logs, and so scared the Redrumps that they avoided their nesting sites as the devil is reputed to shun holy water. Redrumps like quiet, a quiet and peaceable habitation, where none shall make them afraid; and this mice will not permit.

Accordingly, I had to take down my shelves, banish the rotten logs, and go for something much more prosaic and useful. I discovered that no birds will or can breed where mice are allowed to congregate. My first move, therefore, was to destroy the mice. This I did with the patent German affairs, in which they commit suicide, and so save me from the guilt of murder, beside supplying toothsome dainties for the domestic grimalkin; and then I had to set my brains to work to devise some better form of nesting box.

A Model Nesting Box.

After some study I fixed upon a model which I have used ever since for Parrakeet breeding, of course, varying the size according to the bird that had to use them, and I am conceited enough to think that they cannot be improved on. They consist of plain upright deal boxes with a hinged lid, a hole in the front near the top; a very strong and tough perch running just below the entrance hole, and going right to the back of the box, so that the parents can by means of it descend to the nest below, and also to afford a means of exit, by which, when the young are ready, they can come forth and view the world.

Once upon a time I did not have any branch, and the consequence was that I lost a splendid nest of young Turquoisines. I knew they were there, and I knew about their age, and thought they ought to be coming out, but still they did not appear. One day I noticed the parents were no longer going into the log, a bad and ominous sign. I watched long and anxiously, but they took no notice, so I felt sure that something had happened. I did not like to meddle; it never does to meddle with nesting Parrakeets, but at last I grew desperate, and I felt that unless I did something I should burst. Accordingly I got a step-ladder and mounted with fear and trepidation. Still the old birds did not seem interested; an ominous sign. I climbed higher, opened the lid and peeped in. Alas! alas! there were my young Turquoisines reared up on end in one corner. Too late, I knew that they could not climb up the steep and slippery sides of the log. It had been a veritable death-trap. The old birds had tired of feeding, and the poor creatures had literally starved to death.

I can't tell you how I felt at that moment; I seemed to realise the feelings of Joseph's brethren. We are verily guilty concerning our brother. It took me quite a long time to recover my normal spirits. It is these preventable hardships that are so painful.

What should I do? So far as I could see I could do nothing in this case but send the corpses to be set up.

Real Fighting Cocks.

On the return of spring the following year I caged off the Redrumps in pairs, as otherwise domestic arrangements would come to nowt, for though Redrumps are fairly peaceful in couples, in company with two cocks they are veritable demons.

By March breeding operations were in full swing, and in a few weeks the ladies retired each on domestic duties intent, while the cocks sat on the edge of the logs and warbled their sweetest. I should very much have liked to know what their nesting boxes contained, as the time went on. I often thought of the question of H.M. Inspector put to a class of twenty little bumpkins, "How much is eleven-twelfths?" and when there was no answer, he put the question in a more searching way—"Who knows how much is eleven-twelfths?" And the village dunce answered, "Gawd"; that being the generally accepted answer to difficult questions couched in this form. Time alone would tell me the answer.

There was nothing for it, I know, but patience. One day I entered the aviary and heard a gentle grumbling in one of the boxes, accompained by the scrambling of tiny feet, and I cheered up, as a fisherman does when after hours of nothingness he feels a timid bite.

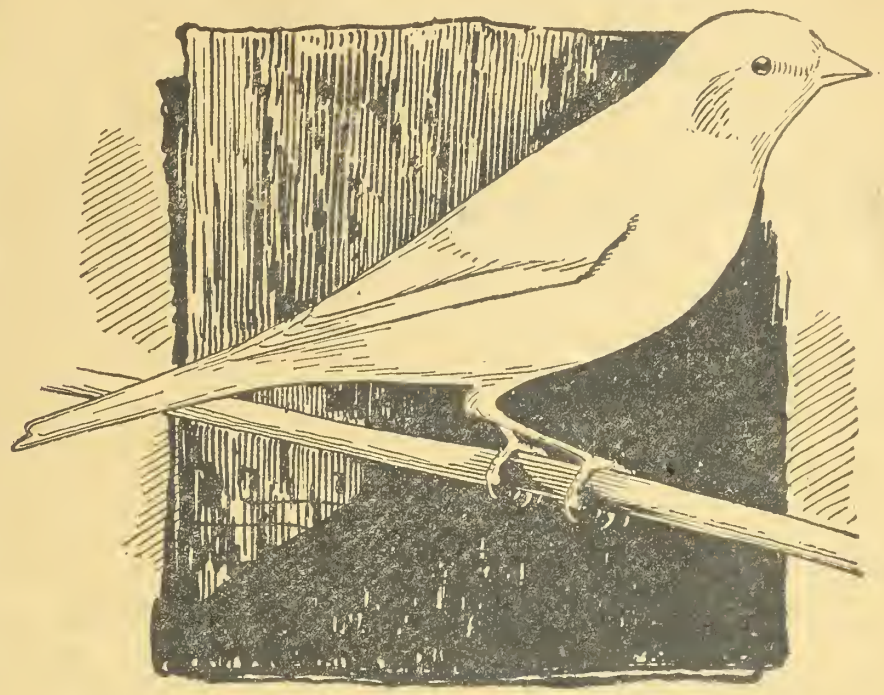
A few days later, on entering the compartment, I was horrified to see a little yellow object lying on the floor below the nest, and kicking, apparently, in feeble protest at being on the ground. I picked the poor little beggar up and warmed him for a few moments in my closed hands. He was very cold when I got hold of him, but with the warmth he speedily recovered and it was wonderful how strong so small a thing was; but his appearance—well, it was not what I should call pretty—it reminded one of the innocent enquiry of a school inspector of a class.

Beauty; and the Inspector.

What am I, asked the inspector? A man. Yes, a man; but the vicar is a man and the master is a man; what sort of a man am I? A very ugly one, came the unexpected answer.

I got a chair and gingerly opened the lid and popped my poor little friend back into the nest. For a wonder, the parents did not resist my interference, but went on feeding as if they had noticed nothing.

In about five weeks five most lovely young Redrumps left the log, quite as big and very nearly as handsome as their parents, and the cocks quite easily distinguishable from the hens. The old birds did not long trouble themselves about the youngsters, but speedily went to nest a second time; but there was a great dispute as to the future home. The cock selected one end, the hen another; but it's one thing for a cock to give orders, quite another for the lady to obey. Don't you remember Susan Nipper's remark: "Oh, bless your heart, Mrs. Richards, temporaries always orders permanencies here; didn't you know? Why, wherever was you born, Mrs. Richards? But wherever you was born and whenever and however (which is best known to yourself), you may bear in mind, please, that it is one thing to give orders and quite another thing to take 'em." So poor Mister Redrump discovered, and in the end he had to do as he was told.



Nothing remarkable happened in the second nest, and once more six grand youngsters emerged, to my delight. To feed Redrumps is the easiest thing in the world. All they want is good Spanish Canary seed, and all the flowering grass and groundsel you can provide them with. Do not forget to give them plenty of ground cuttlefish bone if you do not want to lose your hens with egg binding. In passing, let me relate a little bit of carelessness. One day I forgot to close one of the dividing doors, and two cock Redrumps got together. There was a very pretty fight, I imagine, though I did not actually witness it, and when I came back a few hours later, one of the combatants lay dead with a hole in his head. I could not help thinking of the remark of the Irishman who killed a ganger, "Please, your Honour, I did not hit him a very hard blow, and why the devil did the Government make a ganger of a man with a head no thicker than an egg-shell?" No doubt this was something like what the victor Redrump said of his dead rival. Moral: Always shut doors, or you may be sorry when it is too late; but old age, as it has been bitterly said, when it can no longer set a bad example, gives good advice.

Wild-Bird Life.

The Wryneck's Habits.

Up to the present we have had a phenomenal summer, for the weather has been almost ideal. Consequently, bird life has multiplied exceedingly. Every thicket and every hedgerow contains young birds of many species. The common birds are more plentiful than ever, and some of the rarer kinds have done much better than usual towards perpetuating their race. The single brooders are now getting their young ones well out of hand, and will have all the rest of the summer to spend free from family cares, although many of them remain with the young ones until spring comes round once more, and form family groups which may occasionally be met with. One sometimes wonders why some species do not increase more than they do. As an instance, take the Wryneck, or "Cuckoo's mate," as it is called. Here we have a prolific breeder that is seldom interfered with, yet season after season goes by, and those who roam the fields and woods can see no difference in the numbers of this interesting bird. The rate of mortality must consequently be high; possibly the nature of its food and perils of migration keep it from increasing to any extent. The Wryneck is no nest-builder, but takes possession of a hole in a decayed stump in the woods, or in one of the fine old trees in the more open spaces. The parent birds are shy in visiting the nesting site, and in many cases the entrance hole is well concealed by overhanging foliage. One that the writer found recently in a decayed stump showed no semblance to a nest, the eggs being deposited upon the powdered wood at the bottom of the cavity. Unlike most other birds, the Wryneck does not desert the nest if the eggs be taken, but continues to lay egg after egg until she is exhausted. It is on record that as many as forty eggs have been deposited by a single bird during a season. No doubt one of the chief difficulties that this interesting bird has to face is the trouble of obtaining suitable nesting sites. Unfortunately, the one most suitable is that frequently chosen by the common Starling—a more powerful and numerous rival. Consequently the rarer bird has to give way. Three seasons back more than one pair of Wrynecks nested in the old trees close to the writer's dwelling, but these have been driven away by Starlings, which are increasing rapidly, and making use of all the available holes in the numerous trees in the district.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Father and Young.

C. S.—Yes, the cock was undoubtedly the culprit, and maltreated the young as you describe through being in too high condition and wanting to start breeding again. Had you been feeding on a mixed diet with, or without, egg-food during incubation? If so, this would largely account for it. A diet of plain canary seed only is best during incubation for such vigorous birds. It is just such a cock as this that may be utilised with every advantage to run with two hens alternately. Next time remove him when the hen begins to sit, and take him to another room, if convenient. There is no reason why you should not remove the eggs as laid in the usual way. It is the best plan to do so, and you need not fear disturbing the hen to any material extent so long as you do the job coolly and without unduly fluttering the bird about. When the young are due to hatch, adopt the advice given to "Elene" in last issue. The slight mark on the side of the head of the cock will only disqualify him for "clear" classes. He is still eligible for "ticked" classes, or classes for "clear or ticked," or "clear, ticked, or variegated," etc.

Dealing with Egg Eaters.

E. C. R.—Vice, pure and simple, is the cause of the birds eating their eggs. If only the cock is the culprit shut him off from the hen with the wire slide at roost time each night when the hen is expected to lay, and do not return him until you have removed egg and placed a china one in its place, next morning. On the evening when the third egg is laid remove him permanently, return the hen's eggs, take away the china ones, and leave her to hatch and rear the young herself. If the hen also is addicted to the vice make a special nest box, as described and illustrated in Parts VII. and VIII. of "Our Canaries," in which the eggs roll out of sight as soon as laid. Then you would have to set them under a pair of foster parents. Of course, you have to consider whether this pair of birds is worth the trouble. You might also try the ruse of putting in the nest one or two prepared eggs for them to investigate, made by blowing out the contents of an ordinary Canary's egg and filling the shell with a spicy compound of mustard and cayennes mixed to a cream with vinegar. Then seal the hole, and "egg" is ready for the experiment. It is quite possible to breed successfully with the one-year-old hen and seven or eight-year-old cock, if both are healthy and vigorous, but you will probably not be over-stocked with cocks among their progeny. Get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free. As a beginner this will save you making many false steps.

Loss of Voice.

Frank Hambrook.—As the loss of voice appears to have been coincident with the advent of warm weather is it not possible that the bird has been exposed to draughts by having doors or windows, or both, more freely opened without paying any attention as to whether the bird was being subjected to a direct draught thereby? If this is so the remedy as to prevention in future will be sufficiently obvious, and the following treatment should soon remove the effect. On the other hand, supposing these suggested causes are non-existent, it is not unlikely the bird may be about going into an early moult, in which case you must not expect it to sing until the moult is over. See that it is kept in a bright and airy place, as equable as possible, but free from draughts or foul air of any kind. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture advised to "A. Wilson," a good spray of chickweed daily, and every second day for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Also make a little paste by well mixing as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, and half as much grain of paradise, in a teaspoonful of pure honey, and reducing to a paste with sufficient finely pounded biscuit. Give a piece the size of a pea on the end of its perch on the days when sponge cake is not given. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week, and in the next week 20 drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day.

Young Dying (J. Culshaw).—The sample of hemp is decidedly bad and unfit for feeding birds. It is certainly not nearly so bad as some I have examined, but is bad enough to be a decidedly dangerous food for young birds. This may be the cause of your losses, though it would have been better had you given some particulars of your general management. Carry out the hints given in the article referred to, and one or two other replies which have just lately appeared.

Limewater (Erratum).—In replying to "Ill-Luck" in last issue I am made to advise "a tablespoonful of limewater" to be added to the drinking water. I am not sure whether this was a slip of the pen or a vagary of the comp. It should have read a "teaspoonful of limewater." Luckily no harm could result from giving a tablespoonful, except that the birds would probably not drink of it freely, so that in practice they would partake of less than would be the case by giving a weaker strength which they would drink more freely.

A Colour Question (Anxious Novice).—Yes, certainly, the pure red peppers, by which I suppose you mean tasteless peppers, the same as are ordinarily used for colour feeding yellow Yorkshires, are also used in the same manner for feeding buff birds. There are not two separate kinds of colour feed for feeding yellow and buff birds respectively required; neither are they necessary. You should get Part IX. of "Our Canaries," in which you will find the methods and purpose of colour feeding very fully dealt with.

Stopped Singing (J. W. Pope).—The bird is undoubtedly just going into moult, which is the cause of his cessation of song. He will remain silent now until the moult is quite finished. Your feeding is very good, and beyond adding a pinch of maw every second day whilst the feathers are dropping, and increasing the supply of egg food to a small teaspoonful twice a week, needs no further alteration. You mention no green food. Give a little greenstuff, or green plantain stalk, daily. Continue the bath as freely as the bird likes it, and see that it is not exposed to draughts. Nothing else should be required, though an occasional dose of 20 drops of Chemical Food in the water towards the end of the moult will do no harm.

Seed Sample. (J. Muir.)—One cannot properly estimate the quality of a mixture of seeds of this kind. It is neither a proper staple diet nor a good mixture for occasional use. The bulk seems a very fair sample of canary of good size, next is a rather large proportion of good teazle, small proportions of inga, maw, and summer rape, and a sprinkling of millet and very questionable quality of hemp. The whole gives the impression that the bulk is rather dirty—that is, with extraneous dirt and dust. You should have given full particulars about the birds dying and your treatment, then I might have suggested something to help you.

Cause of Failure (Hillsboro').—As both the birds are in good robust health and have not reared a brood, you certainly did right to allow them to make another attempt. The cause of your previous failure is not easy to guess. The loss of the young brood I am inclined to think was due to non-feeding, and the feeding you suspected was more apparent than real, or was limited to the cock feeding the hen. Next time when the hen commences to sit remove the cock, and keep him out of her sight, leaving the hen to bring up the young herself. When young are about to hatch, feed and treat generally as advised to "Elene" in last issue. If she has not laid by the time this appears, give a leaf of dandelion daily, a small teaspoonful of egg food, or crushed sponge cake, every second day, and on the alternate days the same quantity of the seed mixture advised to "A Wilson," and continue this feeding until she has laid her complement of eggs.

A Fourth Brood (Disappointed).—Personally, if I valued the hen I would not allow her to have a fourth brood, even though she has only reared two young out of seventeen eggs, therefore I cannot conscientiously advise you to do so. As you seem to be fully aware, you spoilt the season yourself by being a little too premature at the beginning, so you should profit by this experience another year, and not try to take it out of the hen, and by so doing perhaps spoil your chances of success with this hen next season. There are so many possible causes of the unfertile eggs that it is useless speculating upon them. Maybe one or both the birds were not in good condition, or the weather might have been at fault, or even the manner of mating might have been at the bottom of it. Some hens you will find call their mates whilst in the nest, and remain in the nest—not on the side—during copulation. From these hens you will never be overburdened with fertile eggs. Verb sap. The jarring of the cage you mention would have nothing whatever to do with the unfertile eggs.

On account of the Coronation festivities, which involved our going to press early on Tuesday, it was quite impossible for us to get all the queries received answered in time for publication in this issue. They will be replied to next week.—EDITOR.

Panting After Bathing (A. Wilson).—The bird probably bathed a little too freely during the winter, and was perhaps not sufficiently protected from the causes of chill afterwards, and now it is suffering from the effects of that indiscretion. Only give it a bath daily now when the weather is warm and settled, and withhold it when the weather is wet, and during the short spells of windy or chilly atmosphere which occur for brief intervals in and out. After bathing, see that he is protected from all draught until plumage is getting dry again. For the next month feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give twice a week half a teaspoonful of a mixture of two parts each hemp, inga, and millet, one part each teazle, black rape, and broken groats, and a half part each of maw, linseed, and gold of pleasure. On two other days each week give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil mixed in it. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and in the next week 20 drops of whisky, six of glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day.

About Crossbreds. (Patience Rewarded.)—The young of Yorkshire cock and Roller hen will certainly breed next year under normal circumstances. Being crossbreds will not affect their breeding in the slightest degree, as they are in no sense mules or hybrids. Your next question as to value is really too vague. How could you possibly rate these young at the value of the parents? You certainly do not suppose you can add the value of a Yorkshire cock and Roller cock together, and call that the value of the young crossbreds? The real value is just that of ordinary songsters, varying only according to their accomplishments. Probably somewhere between 4s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. for cocks when in song, and hens 2s. 6d. or 3s. 6d. Yes, young birds often make a great "to do" of preening their feathers when not more than a fortnight old, so the fact of yours doing so does not necessarily mean they are pestered by mites. As you are taking all reasonable care to prevent the pest being troublesome I do not think you need worry on that score. The preening is doubtless an indication that the birds are thriving well in this case. Glad you have found our books so useful.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Cockateels Not Rearing Young.

Disappointed.—With the varied diet you have been giving, the young should have been fully reared. Cockateels, though certainly prolific breeders, are yet often very disappointing as to individual pairs, these proving the very reverse—numbers of fertile eggs are laid, aviary conditions and feeding practically perfect, and yet only an occasional youngster is reared—it is really one of those things which "no fellow can understand," yet the fact remains. Watch them closely with their next brood, ascertain if you can which is the most neglectful parent. Also be on the look-out for other causes. Are mice getting into their nest receptacle and disturbing them? Is their nest receptacle infested by parasites of any kind? Are the cheeky Burgerigars interfering with their domestic arrangements? Either of the above would account for the desertion. I once possessed just such a pair, scarcely ever reared anything—they were such a fine and handsome pair that I kept them, had them for eight years, and then gave them away (two years ago) to a friend who admired them, and they are living still. If you find none of the above causes exist, change the most neglectful parent; re-paired, they may breed freely enough. In a friend's aviary 16 eggs have been laid, and 12 strong young birds full reared (all still living) since December last; and exceptional conditions existed.

Indian Green Parrot (T. Land).—Seed mixture, ripe fruit, green food, nuts, grit, cuttlebone and water. The seed mixture should consist of three parts each canary and white millet, and one part each maize, paddy rice, oats, grit, hemp and sunflower seeds—well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Any kind of ripe fruit may be given that the bird will take; most species are very fond of apple, and this is a good "stand by." Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage, and the bird must either have a regular supply of water or be allowed to quench its thirst two or three times a day. Keep the cage in some airy, but not draughty, position, and the bird should do well. It should soon begin to pick up things it hears you say—you can also teach it by the constant repetiton method.

Is it Safe? (Bird Lover).—(1) The large cage will be much better for your Parrot, although as a rule for the wires of a Parrot cage I prefer Brunswick black to anything else, and it is also very neat, yet I do not anticipate any trouble from the aluminium paint, providing it has been put on evenly and there are no little lumps left for the birds to pick off. It certainly will be a wise precaution to stand it out of doors for a month, exposed to atmosphere, sun, rain, etc., for that period; it should be then quite hard and innocuous. (2) They are green birds, with pinkish breasts and black facial markings. A curved streak extending from the base of the beak as far back as the eye, on the side of the face (moustachial streaks) give the bird its trivial name. It will thrive on the same diet as the Grey Parrot, but its mixture should contain maize. Individuals vary, but I have not met with a screecher nor yet a good talker; nevertheless, if pains be taken with it, it will talk a little.

Green Singing Finches (Rita).—A true pair usually agree well enough together, though there have been instances of the cock killing his mate. In a roomy box cage, larger than the ordinary breeding cage, they may breed, and, of course, if any young should be hatched out, soft food must be supplied. Before putting them into the cage together. As they have been caged separately for some little time—it would be well to put the two cages together and then when you see them caressing one another through the wires it should be safe to put them into the same cage, but it would be well to keep them under observation a little at first, as these birds are very difficult to sex, and in plumage they are practically alike. I think you have a true pair, but it is possible that you have an adult and a young male.

Canaries and Budgerigars (A. C. B. L.).—There is but little difference in the size of the eggs; if anything, those of the Budgerigars are the smaller of the two. The Budgerigars' eggs are pure white, and thus differ materially in appearance from those of a Canary, but a hen Canary is not over particular, and there is but little doubt about them being duly hatched out, but there I am afraid the matter would end; for I regret to have to say that the species are so widely separated and differ in their methods of feeding that I consider there is no chance of the young being reared. If you make the attempt, kindly let me know the result.

What Species? (Rose, Portsmouth).—You gave me no idea as to size, which makes the task of identification very difficult, neither do you say whether they are long or short-tailed species. No. 1. This I should say is the Yellow-collared Parrakeet. Its extreme length is 14 to 15 inches, and the tail is long and broadish, and not pointed at tip. No. 2. The description you give coincides with that of the Black-headed Conure. This species has a fairly long tail, broadish at base, but pointed at the end. The value of both birds, providing they are the species given above, should be from 30s. to 50s. each, that is, what you can get nearest these figures. If you can give me further details, I will confirm or correct above identification in next issue.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Feeding and Management of Thrushes and Blackbirds. (W. J. White).—You will find in the "Nutshell" handbook (post free 2½d. from CAGE BIRDS) entitled "The Song Thrush and Blackbird," all the necessary, up-to-date information concerning the management and feeding (from the nest, too) of these two birds.

A Feeding Problem (Salt Pan).—Am afraid my answer will not be of much use to you, for your problem will have solved itself before you read this. I hope you have decided to let the hen go on incubating the second lot of eggs. She would have found time to finish off the feeding of the first lot of youngsters. Besides, young Mules are precocious little beggars and out of the nest and feeding themselves some days before Canaries of the same age. It would have been better, however, had you kept the hen back a little, on the principle that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." It is always best to have one nest of young safe before encouraging a hen to thoughts of the next brood.

Young Hedge Accentors (Hedge Sparrow).—The Hedge Accentor (commonly called "Sparrow") is quite an easy bird to keep in captivity, and your two youngsters should thrive admirably in the aviary. You will have to provide a dish of a good quality insectile mixture designed for the use of small soft-billed birds (many good ones are advertised in our columns) and give them whatever live foods you can, according to season (smooth caterpillars and grubs from the garden, flies, mealworms, well-scoured gentles, beetles, and the like). They like a little seed and will pick this out of mixture supplied for the seed-eating birds.

Bullfinches Hatched in a Cage (Anxious).—It is a nuisance to have the young thrown out of the nest and killed practically as soon as they are born, but this is one of the misfortunes which follow attempts to breed British birds in small cages. The hen Bullie is often guilty, but in your case I should say that the culprit was the cock Bullfinch. If you cannot transfer the next lot of eggs to a hen Canary, try removing the cock when the hen commences to sit. Last week I gave a young Canary (newly hatched) to a hen Bullie which had sat her time on unfertile eggs, and she fed it splendidly for two days, but on the third day she pitched it out of the nest, and refused to have it in again. This has invariably been my experience when I have tried to get hen Bullies, etc., to rear young. I have had some successes, but only a few. I have never found the fact of a cock Bullie being house-moulted affect the point. If you pair him now with a hen of another species he may quite likely behave very roughly towards her.

The Redpoll-Siskin Hybrid (Anxious).—This hybrid has been frequently exhibited at the shows, and is not by any means a rarity. What kind of hen is it you have the eggs under? If the Siskin hen, then I am afraid your chance of getting any youngsters reared is a poor one. Hen British Finches are not dependable. It is better to give the eggs of hybrid couples to a hen Canary. Possibly, however, you have done this (your letter is not clear on the point). The hen will rear any young on the usual foods, namely, egg-bread as the chief item, with good sound hemp and cracked sunflower in a separate dish, a mixture of best canary and summer rape seeds in the hopper, and a plentiful supply of seeding chickweed and shepherd's purse (or, failing these, young watercress and lettuce leaves). I always find the shepherd's purse and chickweed very valuable helps, appreciated by all hens. By-the-way, I have no knowledge of this hybrid having been bred from a Mealy Redpoll. Have you examined the eggs and found them fertile? I should be glad to know.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

An Address (A. E. Stott).—We have had no experience with the goods you mention. You might write Mr. C. Roehl, 400, Edgware Road, London, W.

A Photograph (W. Clarke).—Thanks; will endeavour to reproduce the photograph in our next issue.

Club Notice (H. Rutter).—Your postcard did not arrive until Thursday morning. We go to press on Wednesday; see notice.

Press Cuttings (G.A.W.; No Name, Mansfield).—Thanks for the cuttings, with which we will deal with next week.

Wire Fronts (T.Y.).—We regret that you should be dissatisfied, but people differ, we presume, in their methods of making wire fronts. If you ordered them to be made in a different style, then clearly you are entitled to redress. We cannot trace an advertisement under the name you give.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

HALIFAX O.S.

Members and friends had an enjoyable ramble on June 17th. Meeting our leader, Mr. S. Fielden, at King Cross, we proceeded by car to Luddendenfoot, and then took our way along the canal bank until we reached Mytholmroyd, up Cragg Vale, to Withens Reservoir. Arriving there we had a good view of the surrounding district, which looked at its best after the little rain. Turning back over Broadhead Top we made our way to Hollock Lea, where a good tea was provided by Mrs. Greenwood. Leaving here, we entered Spring Wood. Walking down the valley a few nests were found, including the Greenfinch, Hedge Sparrow, Wren, and Blackbird. Also we saw the Tree Pipit, Chaffinch, Missel Thrush, Magpie, Meadow Pipit, Yellowhammer, Swift, and Black-headed Gull. A few botanical specimens were picked up by the members, including figwort, valerian, plantain, ragwort, and other well-known species. Making our way down Cragg Valley to Mytholmroyd, then by car to King Cross we brought a very pleasant outing to a close.—F. Burdekin, Assist. Sec.

DUNFERMLINE & DIST. C.B.S.

Second annual ramble, held under the auspices of the above society, took place on June 3, to the estate of Pitreavie, kindly granted by Mr. Henry Beveridge and Sir William Robertson. The weather was all in favour of the project, "Old King Sol being a merry old soul." Quite a tropical heat beat down upon the thirty members who took car to Halbeath, where we were met by the wise men of the east. Taking the old waggon road and making due south we very early met in with our guide, who for the second year had very kindly and to great advantage taken us round. We were not long in getting to work. The first feathered friend to be noted was the Whitethroat, the merry little fellow keeping well within the hawthorn hedges on our right. We did not commence a diligent search until reaching a young plantation lying to the south of Hallurmuir, and gaining experience from our last season's excursion, we this year made it a point in keeping to the outer ridge of this wood. Birds here are very little disturbed, and instinct has taught them the usefulness of having their housing operations carried out within easy reach of their feeding grounds. Right from the first did three of the party get out of touch with us, and close on two hours elapsed before we had them with us again. We had struck the line to a nicety, for nests were plentiful. Harry Hemp drawing first blood with a nice, ready-to-flee brood of Hedge Sparrows, the restless, excitable nature of the mother betraying her secret right off. Perched on the wire fence the Yellowhammer appears, and within a few yards from his citadel, James McCarr, who had come from Lochgelly with his friend Mr. Halfpenny, very nearly excommunicated his mate and four eggs. The male bird is at present aglow with a beautiful and brilliant soft yellow, shaded with brown, and with his two or three short notes he is a very keen favourite with not a few birdie men. Our president (Mr. Rankine) by the way, has a soft side to this fellow, and is the possessor of a couple of field-moulted ones, which in a short time he expects will do him credit. I wonder if the Greenfinch and Yellowhammer have anything in common, for we frequently noticed these birds setting up house together side by side. Treas. McLaren, in his passion for Hybrids, was taking full advantage of a few old nests which, after they get a smell of the oven, will require to do duty at Mill Hill Street. The two Masters Anderson were enjoying their outing, and were frequently calling attention to their finds. Blackbirds and Thrushes find in this wood a happy hunting ground, and their several nests contained eggs, young birds, some with eggs and young newly hatched, and from one friend Hogg took a dead bird from the side of his brothers and sisters. The weasel seemed to be making a ravage on a few nests, as we picked up a few skins and skulls of young birds, seemingly not having flown. Getting out of the young wood the party divided, one half taking the ditch side and the side of the fields, while the other half pursued their search through a wood keeping to the side of the old hunt road, which divides the wood. Although the fields were the longer road, those who took it were amply repaid for the little extra work. Several Pheasants were noticed sitting, but with Mr. Hutton's instructions we let these well alone. The Peewit and the Lark we found had already hatched out their nests, and those who desire a good hunt I would advise to follow up the former birds. You think you are so near his nest by his excited actions over your head, that you find in the long run he has the better of you, and except you find a young bird on the run, you have to own up defeat and get back from where you began again. Coming on the others of the party who took the woods, a halt was made, and a rest taken, when the general summing up took place; and while debating the secrets of flight, migration, etc., Messrs. Louth and Gould appeared on the scene. From here the second half of the journey started. This time we were led through a heavy undergrowth of bramble, nettle, etc., which was far from pleasant for those who were scantily attired for warm weather, but in the stumps of wood felled a few years ago we found the Wrens busy; some just finished building, while others had eggs ranging from one to eight and nine. In the overhanging branches of the fir and the yew, that wonderful builder, the Chaffinch, had executed its work in a marvellous way. This bird we found busy at incubation; only this and a young one being reported all day. After passing through this jungle we took the main road to Westerton, but on our way a few indulged in a slight refreshment, in which they were joined by two hardy sons of toil, who, after profusely thanking their benefactors, resumed their work, while the birdie men continued in hot pursuit of their friends. While forging our way through the "wilderness," and rightly named so, an argument arose over a nest containing four eggs, and after considering the pros and cons we came to the conclusion that the eggs which had a peculiar colouration belonged to the Coal Tit. After leaving the shading boughs, we again took to the main road, where another halt was called, after which our guide led us down the main avenue to the Castle, but skirting the building we again held due south. While passing along the main avenue we found the only Linnet's nest of the day; this contained but a single egg. We hope to have a few more nests of this particular bird now, as reports go to prove he is nesting in and around Pitreavie. Owing to want of time we were compelled to take the nearest route for Inverleithing, where we arrived at 6.30. A good wash-up was enjoyed by all before tea was served, which was done ample justice to by all. Mr. Law, of the Burgh Arms, had put the dining room at our disposal, and Mr. Wilson kindly took charge of the piano. Mr. Rankine proposed the toast of "The King," while the secretary proposed "The Cage Bird Society," after which several of the party entertained the company with songs. The company took train home this time after having spent a very enjoyable and profitable afternoon in the country.—Robert T. Campbell, Sec.

CLAPHAM AND DIST. C.B.S.

The annual outing took place on Sunday, June 11th, when the neighbourhood selected was Ashtead, Chessington and district. It is the second visit paid by the club to this district, and was selected for the second time because of the success met with in finding nests, and the large variety of birds seen on the last occasion. The party consisted of the vice-chairman, Mr. Yeoman, and Messrs. Sandy, Sexton, Priest (hon. secretary), Osborn, Warley, Barker, Silverthorne, R. J. Pretty, Pearce, Robson, and one or two others. The route taken was through the beautiful woods to Chessington and back via Ashtead and Epsom Common. A large number of birds were noticed, amongst others, a fine pair of Redstarts, who evidently had young; but the nest could not be discovered; Stonechats, Whitethroats, Magpie, Missel Thrush, Linnets, Thrushes, Blackbirds, Cuckoo, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, and various small warblers; and the Garden Warbler was heard singing, but was not actually seen. One unusual sight was a hen Greenfinch, which was found dead on her nest. Upon a close examination it was seen that the poor bird had in some way forced a sharp thorn through her throat, and so pinned herself to the nest; possibly she had been disturbed, and in attempting a hurried flight from the nest, had struck the sharp-pointed thorn, which for ever put an end to her nesting operations. A Partridge's nest containing 15 eggs was seen at the foot of a low furze bush, covered by a few dead brambles. The hen was sitting, but flew off as some of the party approached. As lunch time approached, the party adjourned to the "Marquis of Granby" Hotel, at Epsom, where an excellent hot lunch had been arranged, to which the party did ample justice. Mr. Yeoman proposed the health of "The Fancy," to which Mr. Robson replied. The afternoon was spent on Epsom Common, and a large number of birds of various species were seen. As evening approached, the party again adjourned to the "Marquis," where a good spread faced them, and after again satisfying the inner man, tracks were made for home, everyone agreeing that a very pleasant day had been spent.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Members and friends went for a ramble to Cordwell Valley on June 17th, the party taking train to Dore and Totley Station, where, after a little consultation as to the best route to go, a start was made about 2.15 p.m. After a short journey on the road, Messrs. Bradshaw and Curley led the way over the fields in the direction of Holmfield Wood. The little rain we had the previous night had freshened the trees and grass, making the country look beautiful, so that we had an ideal day for a good walk. On climbing the hill to the wood several halts were made to view the surrounding country, and many were the exclamations of delight with the views obtained. To traverse Holmfield Wood is a perfect pleasure. The freshness of the trees and the scent of the flowers on the occasion made it a place long to be remembered. A notable feature of the ramble was the way those friends of the Yorkshire type (with plenty of leg) kept to the front, while those of the Norwich type brought up the rear. The Yorkshire men having set the pace were chaffed by the others about their good sitting qualities when they came up and found them on some mossy bank, and declared they would give a bit to have a few hens as good in that respect. Having gained the summit of the hill, the descent to the valley was somewhat spoiled by the sky being overcast with clouds, and we had a few drops of rain. However, we managed to reach our host's house just as the storm broke. We were to have had tea prepared on the lawn in front of the house, but the rain deprived us of that pleasure. The members did full justice, all the same, to the good things provided, the tables being turned in this respect by those of the Norwich type being the winners. While we were partaking of tea the rain cleared off, and after a short rest we commenced the homeward journey. It was now that the birds gave us of their best, delighting our ears with their melody. It was not really an occasion as to who could find the most nests, but rather, for the cementing of that fellowship which exists to so marked an extent amongst the members. Several incidents occurred that tended to keep the friends in that humour so conducive to a pleasant outing. If space permitted other incidents might be recorded. After a walk of about 14 miles we reached the Woodseats car terminus, each remarking on the success of the ramble, and trusting it would not be the last of its kind. The "City of Steel" was reached about 9.45.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1½.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description. 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

A Cure for a Linnet Going Off Song.

SIR,—Could any of your readers account for a cock Linnet going off song? He is a fine bird, but this last two weeks he has hardly sung at all. I might say that I feed him on black, white, and brown seeds, and that he is not moulting. If any reader could tell me the best thing to do I shall be greatly obliged. Also could any reader tell me what a "pinched head" means?

C. G. W.

["Pinched" means narrow in the head, as opposed to a good broad skull.—EDITOR.]

The Song of the Chaffinch.

Sir,—In your last issue I read that a Chaffinch had been heard to sing as many as 20 times in five minutes, and it was evidently thought to be remarkable. I have a very fine Chaffinch and thought as it seemed to be always singing, I would time it, which I did on Sunday last (June 11) in the presence of my brother, and this is the result for half-an-hour's singing. First five minutes, 23 times; second, 18; third, 31; fourth, 25; fifth, 29; sixth, 27; total, 153 times. In the second five minutes, three songs were not properly finished. I thought this might be of interest, and if you would insert this in your interesting paper perhaps some other reader would time his bird and let us know the result. I thought the above was a very decent performance, but I should like to know what readers think of it. Wishing you every success.

EDWARD CADMAN.

Yellowhammers Competing in Finch Classes.

Sir,—May I be permitted to ask the cage bird judge at Harpenden Show why he awarded 1st and sp., to a Yellow Bunting in class 50, when the schedule distinctly states A.O.V. Finch. The only "award" the bird was entitled to was "wrong class."

FAIR PLAY.

[The point raised by "Fair Play" is an interesting one. According to the classification adopted by scientists, the Finch family of birds is divided into three sub-families (1) the Grosbeaks; (2) the True Finches, and (3) the Buntings. The Grosbeaks comprise the Hawfinch and the Greenfinch, so that if the Buntings are to be debarred from competing in a "Finch" class, then from the scientific point of view it would seem to follow that both Greenfinch and Hawfinch should be debarred as well. All of these birds are Finches, however, being collated under the family heading, Fringillidae. —Editor.]

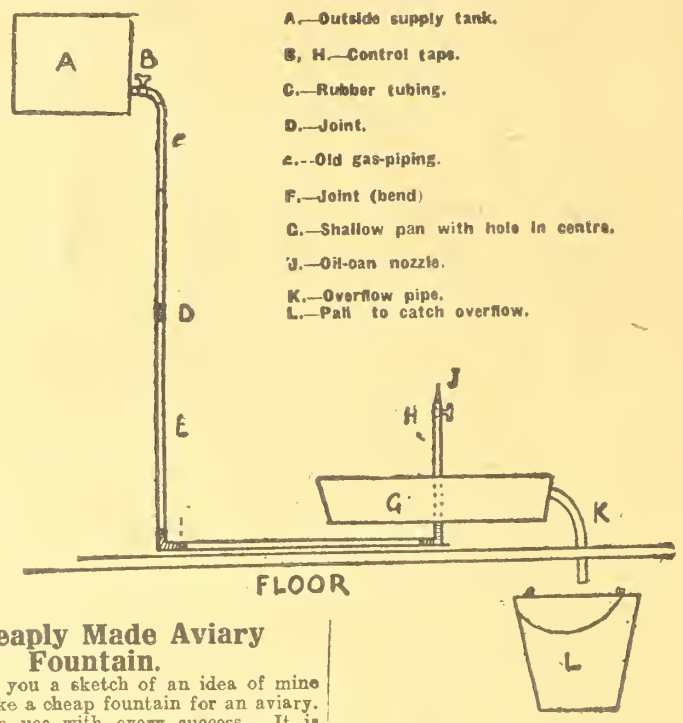
A "Derby" for Norwich Fanciers.

SIR,—I have been thinking that the Norwich fanciers have been neglecting, in a way, the advance of the bird o' colour, and I would like to propose that the members and friends of the various Norwich Plainhead Clubs in England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales combine, and have a National Derby in the form of a trophy, to be competed for annually at a show in each of the above-mentioned countries in rotation. For instance, this year in England, next year in Glasgow, the next in Dublin, and then Swansea (or any other place decided by the committee appointed). It should be confined to young (unflighted) birds, each member to nominate one or two candidates (not more than two). This, I firmly believe, would be one of the best contests of the year, and would be bound to create a great "gate," for one can fancy seeing the cream of young Norwich Plainheads gathered together, and then seeing the best of the lot. I would like to hear the views of others better versed in these affairs.

SUNSTAR.

A Cure for Soft-Shelled Eggs.

Sir,—In a case like this, where ordinary measures seem to be unavailing, the correspondent should add a little white millet and broken groats or crushed oats to the seed diet. Both these foods are valuable for helping to supply the mineral salts necessary for shell formation. He should also get a little old mortar from some building in process of demolition, smash it up into coarse powder, and strew it liberally on the sand on the floor of the cage, finally scattering a little of a mixture of crushed oats and millet upon it to induce the hen to pick about it. A teaspoonful of limewater added to the drinking water daily when the hen was expected to be about laying would also prove a useful help.



CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Sir,—If your correspondent who wants a cure for soft-shelled eggs will try egg food and grated cuttlefish moistened and mixed together well, he will have no further trouble with soft eggs. I have a hen Bullio that started laying soft eggs. I tried the above, and now get good shells on the eggs. I wish you continued success with CAGE BIRDS.

W. SCHOFIELD.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO SECRETARIES, &c.

"Cage Birds" goes to press on Wednesday during the summer months, therefore club notices, reports, etc., should reach us on Tuesday to secure publication in our issue of the same week. Will society officials kindly make a note of this?

A Cheaply Made Aviary Fountain.

Sir,—I send you a sketch of an idea of mine on how to make a cheap fountain for an aviary. I have one in use with every success. It is quite a novelty of itself, besides being useful. I send it to you for the benefit of other readers of CAGE BIRDS. It is quite simple to make, for any old gas brackets do. But they must be boiled or scalded out if they have been in use. When it is fixed together, all you have to do is to fill the tank outside, turn the taps on to what height you want it (the water, of course, will find its own level—the higher the tank, the higher the jet of water). Mine will flow for quite three hours without attention. As the bucket under the overflow is filled, all you have to do is to return the water to the tank outside; and it will keep on going as long as you like with very little trouble. I also have a small branch tied to the flow pipe from the roof, which hides the pipes and acts as a perch for the birds. A in the sketch represents the outside supply tank; B and H, taps; C, rubber tube; D, joint; E, old gas pipe; F, joint (bend); G, shallow pan with hole in centre; J, oil can nozzle; K, overflow pipe; and L, pail to catch the water by the overflow; this, as stated, is returned to the tank. The tank, I may say, is an old bath with a filter tap affixed, and a cork screwed on inside to make it watertight. I might say my aviary is a lean-to greenhouse, with the roof covered with roof felt, which keeps out the rain and the sun. The back and front I have made into breeding compartments and flights. I have made a small door in each compartment, so that if I wished I could send the birds out of one compartment into the other, and finally into the large flight without touching them; which acts with every success. If any reader wants information on anything he doesn't quite understand, I will willingly help him.

D. HILL.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

Sir,—Mr. Woolhouse says that I have not brought forward one argument to prove my statement. My report in CAGE BIRDS of May 13th stated: "The great feature of our Nest Feather Show will be fixed prize-money in all classes; this is out of the ordinary in the Sheffield District." Mr. Woolhouse wrote in your issue of May 20th: "I should like to point out that this is not so, as the Walkley C.B.S. has given fixed prize-money for several years at their nest feather and back-end shows. This statement inferred that they not only had done so, but were still doing so this coming show. I replied to Mr. W. in your issue of May 29th, and stated that I still maintained my report was correct; distinctly stating "in Sheffield District." At the time I admit I was not aware that the W.C.B.S. were doing different to what they had done in the past. On June 3rd, Mr. W. states in reply: "I fail to see where "out of the ordinary" comes in. We have four societies in Sheffield, two pay prize-money on the sliding scale and two fixed prize-money." Mr. W. is also told by Mr. Bishop that Walkley C.B.S. are paying prize-money on the sliding scale. In to-day's issue Mr. Woolhouse says that he distinctly states that my report was a wrong report, and I have to start and prove my words. I think I have done so. Out of the four societies in Sheffield, the Sheffield C.B.S., Walkley C.B.S., and Attercliffe C.B.S. are all paying prize-money on the sliding scale; the remaining society, the Sheffield O.S., are giving fixed prize-money. Now, to use part of Mr. Woolhouse's words, three are paying on the sliding scale, and one fixed prize-money, so that the fixed prize-money must be "out of the ordinary." If you quote sentences out of club reports, Mr. W., have them before you; don't trust to memory. In a report I referred to a show with prize-money, 5s., 2s. 6d., and 1s. 6d., and no entry fee—this is where I used the phrase "something for nothing," Mr. W. It is useless your mentioning animosity; we know too well how it is; every letter you have written shows it. We have not found the shots hurt, as you term it. It is the other way. You distinctly state in to-day's issue that you did not say Walkley were paying fixed prize-money. Stick to the truth. On June 3rd, in your letter you say that we have two societies paying fixed prize and two sliding scale. As to your remark about me not being worthy to be Press correspondent, we don't wish your opinion on that, neither has it anything to do with fixed prize-money.

J. A. T. WOODALL.

Sir,—I was rather surprised to see another letter from Mr. Woolhouse, and more surprised at him saying, stick to the point at issue. I have done so in all my letters, and have also told him there is only one society out of the four in Sheffield paying fixed prize-money, and that is the S.O.S. The Walkley C.B.S. are not paying fixed prize-money at their Nest Feather Show. I am, along with members of the Walkley C.B.S., at a loss to understand his statement. I still stick to what I have said—it is jealousy that is at the root of it all. You refer me to your last letter, to see what the members of the S.O.S. are laughing at, but I know without. They are laughing at the progress the S.O.S is making! You say why didn't I take the advice of my officials and refrain from replying to your first letter. This would have suited you immensely, but I have instead made your letter false. Then, again, my officials did not know I had replied until I told them. You say I have lowered the dignity of the S.O.S. I don't think. Judging from the number of members present on Tuesday last at the meeting, and the number and quality of the birds staged at the Table Show, there is something in the way of a revolution in the bird fancy in Sheffield. Mr. Woolhouse, you give me credit for considering the S.C.B.S. in not clashing with their shows, and then say it was the S.C.B.S. that avoided the clashing I don't know where you get your information from, but the S.O.S. Nest Feather Show, to be held on July 22, was not fixed until April 4, and the members back-end show was not fixed until May 2. So you have made yet another mistake. On each occasion the date of the S.C.B.S. was considered. You say the S.O.S. have not even held one members' show as yet. I take it you mean the present S.O.S.—not the one 33 years ago? If so, there is credit due to you for you are right. Our first Nest Feather Show is on July 22nd. Mr. W., I hope you will see your way to write again; you are giving us the best advertisement we ever had. You are helping me to win a bet I made at the beginning of the year that we should have 100 members by the Nest Feather Show.

T. BISHOP.

The Cleansing of Water Vessels, etc.

SIR,—With reference to the letter in last week's CAGE BIRDS giving a "tip" to all to keep away the dreaded bird fever. I am of the same opinion as the writer, but I do not think that every working man has so much time to spare to go through the long process of cleaning with so many waters as he mentions. I should like to give my own mode of procedure. I get a large pot of boiling water (or a copper will do if you have a large number of pots), and, when boiling hard, put in a few drops of carbolic, to make it fairly strong. Then get your pots and pans and throw them all into it, and let them boil for about five minutes. Then fish them out with a "dipper," and wipe on a clean cloth as you take them out. No rinsing is necessary as the carbolic will not hurt the birds. I also do the same with nest pans and linings. It will keep the red mite out of the nest if the linings are put in and then allowed to dry. Also, when taking your drawboards out, before putting them back rub the bottom of them with a cloth wetted with carbolic.

A Remedy for Beetles.

A Warning about Hedgehogs.

Sir,—If Harry Taylor adopts the advice given him to keep a hedgehog as a beetle destroyer, let him look well to two points. Firstly, that all caged birds he may have are inaccessible to his hogship; and a hedgehog is capable of a good deal more than is generally credited to him both in locomotion and voracity; and, secondly, to preserve peace and amity with the feminine powers, see that the hedgehog's lair, or bed, is well dressed with Keating's. The hedgehog is really and truly a most pestiferous beast, and when the good housewife discovers the source of the "scarlet bounders," there'll probably be "no place like home" until the prickly lodger is "turned oot." A demon beetle trap is still a good method of dealing with such a plague.

CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Sir,—Procure an ordinary shallow pie dish, into which pour some strong smelling beer. Round the dish place some sticks of wood so that the beetles can run up. Put near the haunts over night. I have tried this method, which has never failed.

A Recipe for German Paste.

SIR,—Re Mr. H. H. Dadson's inquiry for a recipe for German paste. Well mix, or knead together, ½lb. of split peas, ½lb. of very small bread crumbs, ½lb of sugar, the fresh yolk of a raw egg, and 1oz. of unsalted butter. Put the mixture in a frying-pan over a gentle fire, and continually stir it until it is a little browned, but by no means burnt. When it is cold add to it 1oz. of maw seed, and 1lb. of good bruised hemp seeds separated from the husks. Mix the whole well together, and it is ready for use. Here is another good recipe: Take four fresh eggs, and boil very hard a ½lb, of white peameal and a tablespoonful of good olive oil; if the least rancid it will not do. The eggs must be grated down very fine, and mixed with the meal and olive oil. The whole is then pressed through a tin cullender, to form it into grains. like small shot; then placed in a frying-pan over a gentle fire, gradually stirred with a broad knife until it is partially roasted and dried, the test of which will be its fine yellowish brown colour.

C. G. W.

SIR,—In reply to H. H. Dadson's inquiry for recipe for German paste, I beg to submit the following: Boil four eggs until they are quite hard; then throw them into cold water. Remove the whites, and grate, or pound, the yolks until they are quite fine, and add a pound of white peameal and a tablespoonful of olive oil. Mix the whole up together, and pass the dough through a tin cullender, so as to form it into small grains like shot. Fry these over a gentle fire, gradually stirring them until of a light brown colour, when they are fit for use. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

A Parrot which Lays Eggs Every Three Months.

Sir,—A friend of mine has an African Grey Parrot that has laid eggs about every three months since she was twelve months old. She is about eight years old now. She is poorly for a day or two, then lays one egg, and soon after lays another. There are always two, with a few days between each. It is the only case I know of where a Parrot lays so many eggs. Perhaps others of your numerous readers have had similar experiences?

AFRICAN GREY.

Goldfinch Nesting in a Cage.

Sir,—I have a hen Goldfinch which has built a nest and laid five eggs, and is sitting on them at the time of writing. She laid the first egg on May 30. This is my eleventh season of trying. In past years my hens have either died (gone in the moult) or done nothing. Last season this same bird was with two other Goldies, and I think must have got a scare at night, as one morning I found all three with their flight feathers knocked out. I will let you know what the result is later on. We read in your interesting paper from time to time the various methods and ways of feeding. I rely a good deal on hemp, but let me advise readers to see that all seeds are the best they can get, and hemp-seed more than all for these birds, as you get dreadful stuff at times. I could write for hours about Goldies, as they are such favourites of mine. These birds are kept in the kitchen, and anyone may call and see for themselves.

A Linnet Fancier's Difficulty.

Sir,—In reply to Mr. James re Linnet going thick, I wish to tell him that I see signs of "thickness" whenever my Linnets drink a lot of water; it is generally the sign of the old enemy, viz., inflammation. I put some sulphate of soda in the drinking water for one day in the proportion of one teaspoonful to a gill of water, and let the ailing Linnet have a run in a flight cage by himself. The next thing is to stop him from drinking too much water, and to do this I fill his drinking glass with two parts water and one of tea, and this I let him have till he comes all right again. Here is an old remedy which was given me by a noted Linnet fancier:—Take the water away entirely for three hours; then fill the drinking glass with sour milk with six drops of sweet nitre in it. I know of some birds which have been saved by this treatment. I think a lot of the trouble is caused through bad seed, which sets up inflammation, and then the birds drink too much water. The red mite pest I am never troubled with, because I only use the same cages for two seasons. I always use Watson's soap boxes. I get the number I require, and take the backs out, and then put 3-ply in, which can be cut from tea chests. I then sand-paper them well, and fill up all the little holes and cracks with putty; after which I give them three coats of varnish paint inside and one outside. I do not use false bottoms. When they are dry I get the fronts to fit same. After the breeding season I scrub them thoroughly out, and at the beginning of the next breeding season I give them one coat of varnish paint; then, after the second season, I have a fresh lot of boxes and use the old ones for firewood. These boxes make nice stock cages for Linnets. J. NICHOLSON.

My Yorkshire Canaries.

Sir,—The Yorkshire Canary is my favourite. I started at the commencement of the New Year to feed them up gradually so as to get them up into condition. By the back end of March or the beginning of April I gave them a little boiled carrot or a piece of apple two or three times a week, and a half-teaspoonful of egg once a week. I also gave the hens a pinch of inga and a pinch of hemp twice a week up till mating, but I kept it from the cock birds, as I am of opinion that they come into condition much quicker than the hens. About the beginning of March I washed all the cages, appliances, and cage stands; also I cleaned the room out thoroughly. I first rubbed all the cages over with paraffin; this brings the mite out of the crevices, if there are any in them. Then I washed the cages with ammonia and water, rinsing well after with clean water and drying well before the fire. I use the loose-fronted cages, as I think they are the handiest to keep clean, and they save one a lot of time. When the breeding season came round I caught the birds and examined all their beaks, claws, and the vents of the hens to see that they were all right. Then I mated the birds up. I prefer quality on the hen's side and size on the cock's side. I like to put a yellow cock to a buff hen when I can get them. After the birds were mated I looked every morning to see if the hens were all right and not likely to be egg-bound. If I find a hen egg-bound I give one drop of olive oil in its beak, and then I oil its vent, using a small feather. I bring the bird into a warm place. I keep off steaming her as long as I can. When the hen began to lay I took the eggs out of the nest until she laid the third. I put them in bran till I replaced them in the nest. I always well powder the nest with Keating's powder, and then again after nine days' sitting. The day before the hatching I gave the hen a little egg and troubled her no more till I saw the youngsters. Then I gave her a pinch of hemp (uncrushed) and a little German rape. The rape I gave raw, as I think the birds take no hurt from it owing to its being made a pulp in the hen's mouth before they get it. The egg food I mixed thus:—One hard-boiled egg to three tea biscuits, which I put through a wire sieve. When the young were able to crack seed for themselves I put them in flights and gradually weaned them on to hard seed by taking the green food from them. I gave them a pinch of crushed hemp and egg till I was sure they could fend for themselves. The youngsters want well looking after till they are through their first moult. If I found any sitting thick and puffed out, I took them out and put them in a cage by themselves. I took the seed off them and put them on to milk sop. I also put a few drops of Parrish's food in their drinking water (which I always boil and let stand to get cold). I have built one or two up again into good condition by mixing cod liver oil with milk sop; some I find will not take it. Another thing I find to be a good medicine is a pinch of Epsom salts given in the drinking water and sometimes Friar's Balsam—a drop in the drinking water. I always give the birds a bath regularly in warm weather. This I find does them a lot of good. In winter I give them the bath only on mild days. When they begin to moult I help them through with it, as I think a long moult weakens them. Cochineal tea and saffron are good things for the moult. I kept the birds in a shady room—shielded from the sun. After breeding and moulting I always clean the cages the same as in spring. Then I look over the youngsters and weed the worst out, keeping the best for myself. I also dispose of any hens or cocks that have not done well during the breeding season, as I think it a waste of time to be bothered with them. I buy the best Spanish canary seed, and the best of any other seeds I want, as I find it pays to get the best. LITTLE SCOTTIE.

Bird Life in the Far West.

Notes from British Columbia.

Sir,—Cat-birds have a pretty song, which they repeat from the topmost branch of some tree, much in the manner of the Thrush. The colour of the Catbird resembles that of a Nightingale, and the bird is considerably larger. It is a very shy bird, and if roughly disturbed makes for the green maple thickets, where it will sit still for hours rather than allow itself to be seen. Another sweet little Wren is the Fire-Crested Wren, rather larger than the Gold-crested Wren of Britain. The body and wing markings are the same, but the Crest would be difficult to describe properly—it consists of a brilliant orange-red strip set in a cap of golden yellow. The head markings are not raised like a crest, as in the Crested Wren, but lie flat on the head. I was not fortunate enough to find a nest, but have good reasons for believing that it is usually built high up in the spreading branches of some fir or cedar tree. It is there that these, and most of the small Tits, spend their time. They feed in small flocks in the fall of the year, keeping together by uttering a long-drawn "cheep," which sounds the same as the Gold-Crest's note. The young don't carry the coloured cap till after the first moult. Another bird is the Golden Warbler. Small flocks of these have at the time of writing gathered together, no doubt preparing for their winter migration southwards. In habits this bird resembles the Fire Crests of the homeland, differing only in the fact that they feed more on the vine, maples, and elders. The natives call this bird the Canary, getting the name from the colours, which are bright yellow on the body, back and nape, and dark olive on the wings, with a neat cap of the blackest hue. The bird is of about the size of an English Siskin, and for neatness of body and polish of feather it would beat any bird I have ever met. Observing bird life here in the summer has its drawbacks as well as its pleasures. Mosquitoes buzz round your head and hands, and the black ants (which will eat anything) will let you know that they are interested in you, and they usually do that when you want to be perfectly still. I have often heard that cedar wood will withstand the attack of any insect; not so with these ants, for they burrow into the dead cedar logs, leaving often as much as a pailful of neatly-sized grains of sawdust on the ground beside their nest. But the Woodpecker knows what the new heap of dust means, and he soon gets to work with his long bill and makes a hole in the wood big enough to allow his long flexible tongue to get to work. The good work he does in thinning the number of wood-boring ants is greatly counterbalanced by the damage he does to telegraph poles. The curse of the linesman is on his head, for he selects a nice pole, makes an oval hole about five inches long by three wide, hollows out the inside of the pole, and there the nest is made with a few chips of rotten wood, thereby wasting a good pole. On going near the nesting hole if any of the old birds are at home, on hearing you approach, out pops the head and bill till it gets a view of the intruder. Should you climb to the hole, the birds wait till you are a few feet from them, then leave and make for the top of the next pole. And not only do they waste the one pole, for while one bird is sitting the other whiles away the time by practising on the neighbouring poles. The telegraph companies in the districts where these birds are most common, are now steeping the poles in creosite, which prevents the boring to a great extent. The small boy with his first rifle gives these birds a good deal of attention, as they make an easy mark. If he misses his first shot, the birds only fly to the top of the next pole. This bird, the largest of the Woodpeckers, is a beautifully marked bird. The body is evenly marked with round spots set on a ground colour of dingy gray, the wings and tail are barred with dark slaty bars; the shaft of the feathers are bright pink. Underneath the wings and tail is bright rosy pink, and on the throat is a dark bib, making in all a wonderful combination of colours. Another curiously marked Woodpecker is the red-headed one, a bird which is now very rare in North America. The ground colour is black, with regular round white spots, which look like white bars from a distance. The tail consists of only eight feathers in pairs, the top pair are black, and the bottom pair white. The middle ones are half-and-half. The legs are short and very stoutly made for the size of the bird (it is about as big as a Lark); the toes are four—two in front and two behind. Upon the head is a cap of dark scarlet. From this the bird derives its name. After about six months' observation in a district where most Woodpeckers are very common, I only noticed one of the Red-headed variety. This one was feeding on the black ants in a bushy elder tree, and allowed me to get quite close to it without any fear. It is the Blue Jay that gets a full share of the youthful sportsman's attention, and very often he deserves it all. He is a terror to all small life. Should a squirrel or a chipmunk come within his range of vision he is soon at it with a screech, forcing it to the shelter of some friendly stump or a pile of brushwood. He spoils the deerstalker's sport with his warning cry, and is always ready to take a full share of any deer that may be "treed" till the return of the hunter. In hard weather these birds gather in flocks round the logging camps, glad to get any scraps that may be thrown out. The size and shape are much the same as those of the English Jay, only the bird has a much larger crest, which is always kept erected. The body colour is dark marine blue, getting darker near the wings and tail, which have faded black bars. The female is never as bright in plumage as the male; still, she is a very bright-plumaged bird. Numbers of these Jays are often caught in pole traps, a trap like a rabbit trap, baited with scraps of meat, and placed on a stump or pole. This is the Jay's favourite landing place, and the bait is not at all necessary. The Jay makes a delightful pet, being very confiding and amusing when properly studied, and having all the good points of, and a brighter plumage than the English one. The food consists of berries, nuts, and perhaps small animals and birds. Now, we have a bird that takes the place of the Jackdaw here—the "Bob-o-link." It is a summer migrant to these northern parts. The male is a little larger than a Starling, and is anything a little stouter built. The plumage changes at each migration, the bird's breeding plumage being: Head, breast and lower body black, the wings black, crossed with a patch of white, and the rump also white. The tail is black, each feather running to a point, which gives it the appearance of being badly frayed. The markings of the female are not so bright, the whites being very dirty and dingy, making her very easy to distinguish from her mate. The species feeds mainly on insects, grubs, corn, and any old scraps, visiting rubbish heaps for that purpose. The nest is built in a hole in a chimney or tree, and when the breeding is over they gather into flocks, doing great damage to the ripening crops. The song of the "Bob-o-link" is very amusing, especially at pairing time. He will start, then stop and get a note added now and again, till he has his little song perfect, all the time shifting from one leg to the other to help himself out of his difficulty. This is one of the few birds that have all the light markings above and dark ones below, which gives him an upside-down appearance. These birds make nice pets, but are inclined to be rather too dirty for ordinary cage purposes, an aviary suiting them better. The Blue Bird is one of the summer migrants that visit this locality, coming on the warm winds early in May. It is very like a Wheatear in size and shape, and has the same "cock-a-tail" habits, perching on elevated stones or stumps. The colour of the male is a bright indigo blue, which is brightest at the tips of the tail and wings. On the breast is a crescent of faded chestnut, and on the back a patch of the same colour. The colours are seen to the best advantage when the bird is in flight, for, like the Wheatear, it never rises high from the ground. The female, as in the case of most birds, is not so bright in markings, and is smaller in size than the male. It is an insectivorous bird, catching flies on the wing, much in the same manner as a Flycatcher. The nest is built of grass, hair, and feathers, and is generally placed in the hollow of some decaying tree. The eggs, five or six in number, are of a pale blue colour. The most of these birds I have seen have been on the outskirts of towns, meadow lands and clearings being their favourite feeding grounds. In the north the coming of the Blue Bird is looked upon as a sign of the coming of summer, just as the Swallow is in the old country.

British Softbills:

Notes on the habits of some popular species.

. . By . .
A. LEES.

A Lecture before the Vale of Leven C.B.C.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:—In the district where the members of the Vale of Leven Cage Bird Club live one has many opportunities of studying the habits of both Hardbills and Softbills. By Softbills I mean wild birds that are frequenty kept in cages, and whose principal food is insects. Although Softbilled or insect-feeding birds sometimes eat seed, the same may be said of Hardbills—they frequently eat insects. For instance, many of the Finch family that are supposed to live entirely on seed will not refuse, and on the contrary appear to enjoy, a small worm or snail. I can see a Blackbird in my aviary frequently having a turn at the Canary seed; and—a still more unusual thing—I have seen a Wagtail taking a feed of Canary and hemp seed.

Rich in Bird Life.

Walking from say the gamckeeper's lodge, on the Tullichewan estate, to the bridge across the Fruin, the student of natural history will see many birds to interest him, more especially if he has a little knowledge of natural history. A pair of field glasses is a good thing to have with you, as you can get a better view of the different birds. On such a walk you can frequently see the most of tho Tit family. Perhaps the commonest will be the Blue Tit and his bigger brother, the Ox Eye Tit. On creeping up the moss-covered dyke, the Cole Tit may frequently be seen searching for insect food, and at odd times the Bottle or Long-tailed Tit. At the road end leading up to Auchendennan Farm I have seen a nice flock of Golden Crest Wrens hopping about in the fir wood there; also I have seen the Dunnock, the Hedge Sparrow, and the Wagtails of different kinds, while overhead, flying from one wood to the other, is the Jay whose cry may be heard. This bird although noisy in the winter time is very silent during the breeding season, and has the credit of being a very wary bird.

The Jay is a very beautiful bird, and easily kept in captivity, provided you can give him plenty of room. He will eat almost anything. If you put a live Sparrow in with him he will kill and quickly demolish it.

The summer visitants are all here now, and afford very interesting studies . The Wheatear is a captivating bird. It is a little larger than the Robin, and has similar habits. In some districts it is called the "White Rump," from its having a white patch at the root of the tail. It gets the name of Wheatear from the fact that it has a mark like a pile of wheat on the side of the face. It is an insect feeder, and makes its nest in holes in dyke sides.

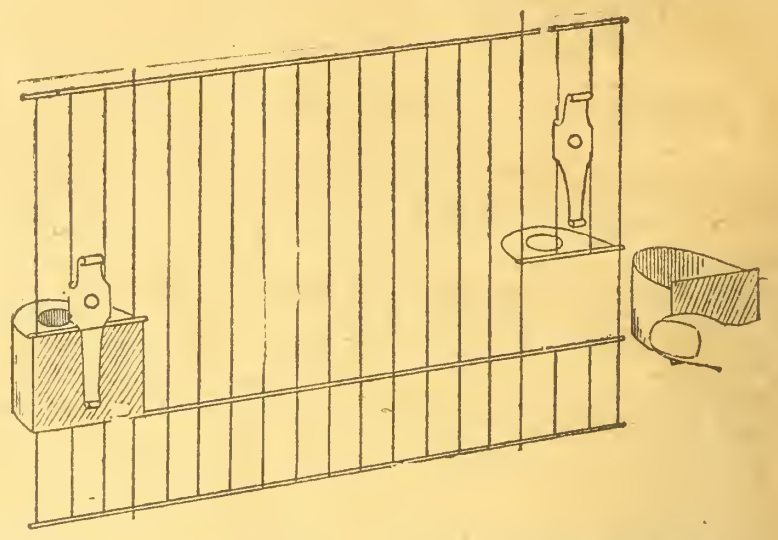
The Redstart is another of our beautiful summer visitants, and about the size of the Robin. It builds in old walls. The last nest I saw was in the wall of a bridge which crosses the road between the Cashel Farm and Dhee Lach on the Balmaha Road. The nest is of beautiful construction. This bird is also an insect feeder.

The Cuckoo is also a summer visitant, arriving here in the spring, later or earlier, according to the weather. This bird, as you know, lays its eggs in the nest of the Tit Lark, Robin or other insect feeding birds. The young Cuckoo is hatched and reared by the foster mother, the original young being hustled out of the nest by the young Cuckoo, which is the stronger bird. As a rule there are no old Cuckoos in this country after the end of June; they have left by this time. The young ones are here much later and follow the parent birds when they are strong enough to do so. The food of the Cuckoo consists of insects, and the caterpillar is a favourite bite with them. The Cuckoo is seldom kept in captivity, its food being very difficult to procure.

The Sprightly Starling.

The Starling is, if not the commonest, one of the commonest of our familiar British birds. His sprightly, pleasing colour of black glossy metallic sheen, together with his smart rolling gait, make him a popular favourite. Mr. Starling walks, while the most of our feathered friends hop. If you notice the gait of other birds you will find that they hop off both feet and land the same way, while our friend the Starling walks, stepping out step by step. The Starling is not exactly a favourite cage bird, as he requires a pretty roomy cage to begin with; and unless he is properly fed he makes a terrible mess of his cage.

The natural food of the Starling is all sorts of insects, worms, grubs and grasshoppers. In confinement, however, he has a most accommodating appetite. He will eat raw and cooked meat, bread, cheese and mushrooms; in fact anything that is neither salt nor sour. when old Starlings are newly caught they are very violent, and will sometimes starve themselves to death, but these should be liberated. He must always be allowed a plentiful supply of water for bathing purposes, so that he may keep himself clean of vermin. The species of late have become very numerous, and in our own district extremely so; in fact they have become a menace to other species. They get the blame for sucking other birds' eggs, and I have frequently come across the nests of the Dunnock, the Song Thrush, and the Blackbird, where the eggs had been destroyed by some marauder who had the power to put a small hole in the egg and pilfer the contents. On the estate of Tullichewan in the front of the castle in the late Mr. Iame Campbell's time there were a lot of laurel bushes which gave shelter to a lot of birds. By-and-bye Mr. Starling found this place a haven of shelter and was soon accompanied by some thousands of our speckled friends; and they made such a row before they became settled down at night that they were a perfect nuisance, being so near one's dwelling. The result was that orders were given for the laurels to be cleared away. This was done, the bushes being cut to within a foot of the ground. This had the desired effect, and made the flock seek fresh fields and pastures new.



Starlings and the Shoemakers.

In Linlithgow, where I spent my boyhood days, stands the palace where Scotland's fairest but most unfortunate Queen (Mary Queen of Scots) first saw the light of day. As you all know, this palace has been a ruin for many a long year and its time-stained, crumbling walls afford a splendid shelter for a lot of species of birds, notably the Jackdaw, which breeds there in great numbers; also a lot of half-domesticated pigeons which make their nests in the holes of the old building and get their food from the fields of the neighbouring farmers. At the time I speak of, occasionally a pair of Starlings would make their appearance, and propose to take up housekeeping in the old palace. At this time the principal industry was boot and shoe making, and the tradesmen had most, if not all, the Government contracts for the army. Amongst them were ardent bird lovers, and the Starling being accounted a wonderful bird both for its song and its capabilities of speaking, it was a common thing for these enthusiasts to stop working for days to try and capture the coveted bird; and on many a tree and gable was placed the familiar box to encourage them to breed.

The young Starling on leaving the nest is very differently dressed from the old or parent birds, their plumage being brown, which at the first moult becomes more of the adult colour, but is speckled with light grey. The older the bird is the darker the black metallic sheen becomes. Mr. Lumsden, in his book on Loch Lomond says:—"Within the last forty years this species has very much increased in numbers." "I can well remember," he says, "about the years, say 1855 to 1860, on many of the large trees at Cameron and Arden wooden boxes were placed to encourage the Starlings to breed." They certainly require no such encouragement now. In every unprotected chimney or corner about a house is to be found a Starling's nest. The Starling has increased more of late years than any other bird in the neighbourhood. They have in some ways become a perfect pest; they have a most objectionable habit of building their nests in the chimneys of houses and it is almost impossible without seeing it to believe the amount of materials—hay, straw, feathers and other odds and ends— which a pair will stuff into a chimney. But notwithstanding its many faults I believe the Starling to be a farmer's friend, as the number of insects they eat must be enormous. The belief that the Starling had to get its tongue split with a silver sixpence before it could be taught to speak was very prevalent in olden times, and that cruel and ineffective notion has now vanished, so that any Starling that can speak does so with the tongue as Nature gave it.

Many interesting stories are told of this wonderful bird and its speaking powers. Anyone who has not read "The Starling," by the late Rev. Norman McLeod, who wrote a story in connection with the Sunday question some years ago, will be well rewarded by a perusal of the book, when he will learn something of the wonderful speaking powers of this bird.

Improved Front for Roller Canary Contest Cages.

Mr. A. G. Pattison (of Gravesend, Kent) has designed a new front for the contest cages used by Roller Canary fanciers, which he claims has decided advantages over those at present in use. This front has been exhibited recently at various meetings of Roller fanciers in different parts of the country, and has been very highly spoken of. Mr. Pattison has kindly given us permission to place a sketch of his cage-front before our readers. He writes concerning it:

"I have added to the existing pattern two pieces of zinc with holes in the centre, which, when soldered to the front, act as covers to the food and water vessels, and prevent the birds either from bathing or wasting their seeds. Most birds do the latter in the cages now in use, and soon get them into a dirty condition, which means a lot of work to fanciers with but limited spare time. Why the Roller show-cage should have open food and water-troughs, it would be interesting to learn, as all other varieties have at least the water vessels outside the cage. I have no hesitation in saying that at the big shows the Roller cages are the dirtiest of the lot, which is caused by the bird having access to an open water-vessel. The additions are most simple, and anyone can get them made or fixed for a few pence. When on journeys to or from shows, if a wet sponge is put in the water trough the bird will be well supplied in case of a delay en route; further, the jolting will not throw all the seed out. I shall be pleased to send any club a fitted front if they will make application (31, The Terrace, Gravesend)."

Breeding Yorkshire Canaries in an Outdoor Birdroom.

By T. E. NICHOLSON (York).

When breeding Canaries in a portable outdoor building, where extreme variations of summer and wintry weather are to be expected, I recommend you to provide a few climbing plants (to be grown outside your bird-room) in the spring and summer months, so as partly to shade your room from the extreme heat of the sun where it is most exposed. The heat in a small room is terrible during the mid-day, even where plenty of ventilation exists. And the heat makes your hens forsake both eggs and young.

The best plan, when commencing to breed Yorkshires in an outdoor bird-room, is to buy your birds from similar places; or let them be cold-room-bred if you wish to commence getting your stock early, which is the best plan, as by the time you commence breeding operations your birds will have become quite used to you and settled down in your room and surroundings. I have had a few years' experience in this way of breeding, so you can be sure that what I write is of practical worth.

No Artificial Heat Required.

I do not have any artificial heat whatever in the winter, and my birds are all strong. They soon begin to come forward when the fine, mild days come; and this without undue feeding. They are kept on good, wholesome seeds and egg cake, with fruit, such as apple; also I give them raw carrot, boiled carrot, boiled potatoes, and fine oatmeal mixed crumbly moist. The last-mentioned is a grand thing for birds in cold rooms.

Keep your cock birds in single cages; mine are singing through the whole of the winter months. The hens are best kept in flights during the winter to give them plenty of exercise, which fits them for the coming breeding season. The only fault is that they are a little wild when first caught, but they soon settle down when put into the breeding cage and attended to; they soon get used to being looked at, and don't mind at all by the time you are ready to run the cocks in with them. This should not be before April, owing to the frequent changes in the weather, which very often upset our "dreams of Palace winners"—in the early Spring, by having clear eggs and young chilled when the hen is off the nest first thing in the morning when there is a slight frost.

Getting Birds into Condition.

As regards feeding the birds to get them into condition for breeding, I don't care for too much egg food—only about two or three times a week. But give them a good supply of mixed seeds composed of the following (which I mix ready myself): Maw, gold of pleasure, teazle, niger—¼-lb. each—and hemp and rape—½-lb. each. I give them a good teaspoonful every other day with fruit, such as apple, and I supply boiled carrot, or dandelion (young) fresh gathered and free from frost.

The birds will be in good condition on the above treatment. The egg-food I make is as follows: one hard-boiled egg and three biscuits (either fancy, lunch or tea, whichever you prefer). The egg is boiled for ten minutes and allowed to get cool before being used—ground in a mill with biscuit, and well mixed, a piece of sugar (not much, about half a teaspoonful) being added. Give a teaspoonful to each pair instead of mixed seed, as above; then, weather permitting, you should not be long in getting your hens to work. Give them plenty of good grit and sand for the cage bottoms. Allow them good-sized breeding cages—from 18 to 20 inches long. Let them have the best Canary seed, with clean water every morning. They will and ought then to do well.

You will, of course, have cleaned all your cages and room out in the spring; also distempered same. All will then be neat and clean to commence with. Don't forget to give them a bath every fine day, as it both keeps them clean and strengthens them.

As regards pairing the birds, some knowledge is required as to how they are bred and how you wish to improve them. Take birds for the purpose from your own stock and buy what you think will improve them; or get someone to give you an idea of what would be best to improve your birds on the points yours fail in. I like medium-sized hens paired to cocks that stand up well, having good legs, and not being too heavy built.

Owls' Affection for Young.

Owls are supposed to have an extraordinary affection for their young, and will continue to feed them long after they leave the nest. If caged specimens are hung outside at night, the parent birds will visit them, bringing more food than the young can consume

A Young White Blackbird.

According to a Retford paper a white Blackbird was recently found by Mr. Lobley, of Martin Hall, while bringing home some sheep that had strayed. The mother Blackbird was feeding the young one as it sat on the hedge. The bird is perfectly white, has pink eyes, yellow beak and eyelids.

A REVIEW OF ITS OBJECTS.

The Membership Steadily Increases: Have you sent Your name yet?

"Hinc ille avium concentus."

Notes by the Secretary.

As a consequence of the widespread publicity kindly given to Cage Birds League by our esteemed daily and weekly contemporaries throughout the country, I have received a large number of requests for printed statements of the objects and constitution of the League. In this issue, therefore, I publish a summary, which I trust will give all the information required.

Re Rolled Gold Badges.

I am sorry to have to report a delay in the supply of these, the makers having found themselves unable to deliver as promised. I am daily expecting their delivery, and will immediately despatch the large number for which I have already received requests and remittances. Will members kindly excuse the delay?

Our Introduction Prizes.

I am receiving many introductions from members who are officially connected with bird societies, but without any intimation as to how they are to be credited. There are two distinct competitions for cash prizes (see conditions re-published in this issue) one for societies, and one for individuals, and unless it is expressly otherwise stated, introductions coming from officials of societies will be credited to the societies to which such officials belong.

More Views of Members.

I hope that the number of members will increase until the League will be a power to be reckoned with, and fulfil the good purposes you have in view.

Elgin, N.B. A. W. Douglas.

I hope every post brings new members into the League, and that we shall very soon be the strongest union in the country. I think the badge very beautiful.

Glasgow. D. Grainger.

I think I can promise you a fair list of enrolments from this district, and at every opportunity I shall recommend Cage Birds League to my friends and acquaintances, which cover from Newcastle to London.

Leicester. J. E. Leavesley.

We trust that by wearing our badges we shall be the means of many others joining the League.

John and Alex. Sneddon.

Coatbridge, N.B.

I have much pleasure in sending you the names of four gentlemen fanciers, in addition to my own, for enrolment as Leaguers. I have many more promises, but send you the first five as an earnest.

Manchester. W. Downing.

Your League is the realisation of a long-felt want. Although late in wishing it success, my wishes are none the less sincere. May the League badges be prominent at every show throughout the country.

(Mrs.) Fielden Richards.

Llangollen, N. Wales.

A BRIEF SUMMARY OF THE OBJECTS OF CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

The necessity of bird-keepers banding themselves together in the interests of the hobby they hold so dear has never been so apparent as at the present moment. The actions of those misguided individuals who from sentimental reasons would welcome the suppression of bird-keeping and bird-keepers have never been more aggressive than at the present day. And until the establishment of Cage Birds League there has been no organisation on the side of the bird-keeper to stand up for his cause and effectually combat the mistaken views of the faddists who attack him.

The object of calling this League into being has not been solely one of defence against outside enemies. That is but one sphere in which it can be of use. The primary object is rather that it shall be a League of good-fellowship—a bond 'twixt fancier and fancier and 'twixt all who are interested in the hobby of bird-keeping, though not "fanciers" in the strict meaning of the term.

It should be very clearly understood that this League will in no sense aspire to be a governing or controlling body, and will not interfere or conflict with any club or society at present in existence. Its sole idea will be to work in the best interests of bird-keeping and of those who make bird-keeping their hobby.

To put the objects of the League clearly before our readers, we will define them tentatively as:—

(1) To form a bond of good-fellowship and union between bird-keepers all over the world.

(2) To inculcate the principles by which birds suited to captivity may be kept under humane and proper conditions.

(3) To act as a League of Defence and Protection.

The sympathy and co-operation of secretaries of societies are especially sought by us in bringing this League to the notice of all their members. We intend, in fact, to ask each secretary to act as a district representative, so that should it at any time be necessary for bird-keepers to take concerted action in their own interests, it will be possible to call mass meetings in centres where it is convenient to do so; this, of course, secretarial co-operation will make easy of attainment..

£1,000 WORTH OF PRIZES TO BE DISTRIBUTED.

Every member of the League may, if he chooses, assign half the value of the annual subscription of himself and his friends in special prizes to any society or show in which he takes a special interest. The other half will go towards the progressive and protective work of The League. By catching a pal from the ranks of outside bird-keepers, a member is thus enabled to help materially the special prize list of his particular society.

Cage Birds will underwrite or guarantee special prizes under this scheme to the value of £1,000.

The allocation and division of the special prizes due to each society will be left entirely to the League members in the society concerned. The prizes will be selected from £1,000 worth of real oil paintings and water-colours handsomely framed—constituting magnificent ornaments for the fancier's home.

To encourage secretaries and fanciers to enlist members in the new League we offer the following:—

CASH PRIZES AMOUNTING IN ALL TO TWENTY POUNDS.

£5 cash to the individual fancier who, between the opening date—March 10th, 1911—and March 11th, 1912, secures the greatest number of recruits to Cage Birds League.

£5 cash to the Society whose nominations to the League between March 10th, 1911, and March 11th, 1912, are the most numerous.

£3 cash to the individual fancier who nominates the second highest number of members to the League between the same dates.

£3 cash to the Society which nominates the second highest number of members to the League between the same dates.

And Four Cash Prizes of £1 each to societies whose total nominations to the League show the best average per member

SOME ALTERNATIVE PROPOSITIONS.

But a League member who is not interested in show matters is not bound to contribute his quota to the development of the exhibiting interest. He may donate half his annual subscription to the League to any one of the following ideas:

LITERATURE FUND.—For the dissemination amongst poor birdkeepers of useful literature calculated to enlighten them and improve the conditions under which their birds are kept in domestication.

DEFENCE FUND.—For the protection of bird-keepers by legal or other process from swindlers, or unjust attacks by moneyed faddists and sentimentalists. For the general protection of bird-keepers' interests.

Failing any specific instruction from a League member as to how his donation is to be expended it will go towards the GENERAL PURPOSES FUND.—For the development and progressive work of the League, advertising its objects and promoting its ideals.

The subscription to the League is fixed at the small sum of one shilling annually, so that the benefits accruing from membership are within the reach of all.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, the price of these being sixpence each in either of three forms: as a button for the coat-lapel, a pendant for the watch chain, or as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps. The pendants and brooches are also supplied mounted in rolled-gold at one shilling each. The kind required should be specifiedclearly.

We hope members will wear their League badges at every possible opportunity. They will be found to be attractive, yet subdued and refined in appearance, with no suggestion of "advertisement" (except of the C.B.L.) about them. The badge willserve as an introduction between bird-keepers—an outward and visible sign, so to speak, of the "bond of good-fellowship" it is the object of the League to establish—and to bring the fact of the existence of the League into wider notice. We are looking to the use of the badge as likely to help greatly the furtherance of the objects of Cage Birds League.

JUNIOR BRANCH.

A branch has been established for young people under fourteen years of age at the time of joining, the subscription being sixpence each annually; badges at above prices.

The temporary offices of Cage Birds League are at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Henry J. Fulljames, Secretary.

BREEDING RESULTS OF THE 1911 SEASON.

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

So far as I can ascertain, writes Mr. R. Rhodes, the Nottingham fanciers are not doing particularly well this season with their birds. I have no doubt, however, that they will manage to produce a few specimens ere the season ends, that will worthily uphold the traditions of the City.

I have had my most successful season so far, writes Mr. A. G. Pattison (the well-known Roller Canary breeder, of Gravesend), with nearly 50 young birds on the sticks, and over 20 due to hatch.

I have had good results. I put up five Yorkshire and two Norwich pairs. I held them back through cold easterly winds, and they have gone well since. I have 22 young on the sticks, and four hens on with their second round, feeding well.—T. H. Melhuish (Cardiff).

Morpeth and District C.B.S.

Judging from the report at our last meeting, the members have had, up to now, a very fair breeding season. Seely Bros. head the list with seventy all told, some of the birds having proved the stuff they are made of by winning very extensively at Choppington last week. Harry is in good form, as one could easily see by the smile that played around his face when he told me "the hens won't do wrong this year, somehow." His stock consists of Norwich, Cinnamons, and Yorkshires. Tom Dixon, that noted exhibitor and judge has also done exceedingly well, having forty Norwich. Cinnamons, and Borders, with some very promising youngsters amongst them. W. Woollett can boast of thirty. This fancier has bred an extra good Norwich hen. We hope he will have luck with her. Fred Scott has also bred thirty, with more to come. I had the pleasure of seeing his stock a few weeks ago, and thought he possessed a few very nice young Norwich, especially yellows. R. Richardson has not done so well as in previous years, having only eleven. Never mind, Ralph; remember it is quality, not quantity, that counts on the show bench! T. Griffiths totals twenty-three—Cinnamons and Norwich. Tom should have some "good 'uns," judging from the stock birds he had up when I saw them. T. Mitford has the unlucky number, thirteen. Never mind, Tom; better luck next time! B. Clark has managed thirty, with twenty of them on the sticks—not quite up to his previous season's. Somebody said the incubator was gone wrong. I have not seen J. Creighton, but I hear he has a big number. R. Rowell, too, it seems, has had an exceptional season—quite a change for Dick, I believe, seeing he has experienced a few very bad years. John Dixon is doing very badly, considering last year's success. T. Rigg numbers twenty-six—very encouraging for a young fancier. H. Neal has eight youngsters off one pair. These beginners can get them! A. Stevinson has only nine, but let us hope that what is lacking in quantity may be made up in quality. I have not see J. Graham for some time, but I expect this great Border Fancy enthusiast will be full up. For myself, I have forty odd, all Norwich, with about thirty of them doing for themselves.—E. Cowling, hon. sec.

No. 518.

A Cheap and Effective Perch.

Sent by W. A. Wall, 35, Greenhill Road, Handsworth, Birmingham.

I enclose a sketch of a very good and effective perch which I think is a preventative of red mite to a certain extent. I believe it is impossible to avoid them altogether. First of all, get a piece of wood about ⅝in. by ½in.; round off the corners and drill a small hole about one inch from the end. Then get a 6in. piece of cage wire and push it through the hole in perch as shown in Sketch 1. Bend the same as in Sketch 2. Get a small ring screw as shown in sketch, and screw it into the end of the perch that is drilled. Then get a ring screw and put it into the back of the cage. Hang the perch on the ring screw, and hold up the same as in Sketch 2. Drill two holes here, bend wire, and then put the wire in the holes and drop perch down. You will then find that you have a strong perch and one that is easy to remove and keep clean.—A. Wall.

No. 519.

To Avoid Grit in Slide Grooves.

Sent by Mr. A. Brown, 32, Barbara Street, Liverpool.

Most fanciers know that in using slides in flight or double breeders the groove the slide runs in gets full of grit, etc., very quickly. Here is my method of getting out of the difficulty. Get your slide, and at the bottom back corner drill a small hole. Insert a piece of wire and bend same as a door fastener. Let this swing freely in the hole. At the top back corner do the same, but make the wire a fixture, sticking upwards. The wire fronts hold it in place at front. This does away with top and bottom grooves and affords less harbour for red mite in the hot weather.—Alf. Brown.

How Petrels are Reared.

It is supposed that the Stormy Petrel feeds its young entirely upon oil, as no solid matter can be detected in the stomach of the young ones.

The Eggs of Waders.

The eggs of most of the waders are arranged in the nest with the narrow ends pointed inwards. If one takes the trouble to put them otherwise, the birds rearrange them at once.

Tom-tits in Pillar Box.

One of my daily duties (writes "Postman," Hungerford, to the "Morning Leader") is the clearance of a country letter-box, inside which is a Tom-tits' nest with four eggs. Each time I collect letters one or the other of the birds is inside. The only way by which the birds can reach their nest is through the narrow opening, which is 1in. wide and 4in. long. The letters posted fall on the top of the nest, but the birds take no notice.

Partridge Nesting on a Tree.

In Daniel's "Rural Sports" it is recorded that a Partridge made her nest on the top of an oak pollard; and this tree had one end of the bars of a stile (where there was a footpath) fastened to it, and by passengers going over the stile before she sat close, she was disturbed, and first discovered. She then hatched sixteen eggs; and her brood, scrambling down the short and rough boughs which grew out all round the trunk of the tree, reached the ground in safety.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

QUEEN'S CANARY MOULTED ON ROYAL RED.
TESTIMONIAL.

Why use any other after you read below? Grand testimonials from Messrs. W. Vardy, E. Baker, H. Knight (big winner in Southern Yorkshire Canary Club), O'Reilly, Dublin (big Yorkshire winner in Ireland), all received this week. Mr. J. E. Davies, Stockport, May, 1911.—"Sir, I have much pleasure in saying that your colour food has during the past year given me every satisfaction, having secured over 50 firsts, also seconds, etc., besides N.P.C. Challenge Cup. This is second year in succession. Two firsts, fourth, and champion diploma Crystal Palace, 1911, and my birds were as bright a colour at Crystal Palace after being washed eleven times as they were at commencement of season. At Crystal Palace six out of the eight champion first prize Norwich." Never saw any colour food, only my Royal Red. Every winner in champion Cinnamon section bar one third. Never saw any but my colour food. Another big winner in Yorkshires, who won two firsts, seconds, etc. Mr. Ambler, Morecambe, writes: "April, 1911.—Sir, I can say I got a better colour from your feed than any I have ever tried." Scotland's greatest winner this last season. Mr. G. Mitchell, Brechin, writes: April, 1911.—"I have used your colour feed for years, and have found it to be all that you claim." Wales' greatest winner, Mr. D. H. Tedstone, Brecon: "Sir, I am pleased to inform you that I not only won the Welsh Cage Bird Cup. I won the solid silver Norwich Cup, the Leach Challenge Cup scores of firsts and specials, etc." I could fill this paper with testimonials like above; which should prove you need not try any other. Prices: Royal Red, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/6, 5 lbs. 7/6, 14 lbs. 17/-; Hot Natal, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/8. Honey-made egg crumbs, in use by scores of Crystal Palace champions, 8d. lb., 7 lbs. 3/6. Grand for rearing youngsters and using to mix with my colour feeds. The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills.—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth, 2/-, post free 2/3; in parts 1/-, post free 1/1, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

The contest to endeavour to make the club a success will take place on July 8th, and it is open to all England for time and quality. Mr. Coates is adding £1 to the entrance fees, and Mr. T. Pearson (Salford) is giving a special to the winner of quality; and we are doing our best to get some more prizes to give the time-singers the same fairness. It is hoped all the Lancashire Singing Clubs will be represented, as it is owing to their efforts we have been able to get a club. We shall also try to give a special to the first club member. Singing will commence 2 o'clock. It is easily reached by all the Pendleton and Eccles cars, Ordsall Lane (L.N.W.), Salford, L.Y. being the nearest stations.—B. Wharton, Hon. Sec.

PEMBERTON (Wigan).

Open Linnet contest for time and quality, held White Lion, when some very good singing was heard before a good company. We should have some better singing only it was dull and raining all the afternoon. There were birds present from Wigan, Westhoughton and Appley Bridge. Winners for quality: 1, W. Barnes; 2, T. Mawdsley. For time: 1, J. Woodward, 108; 2, T. Mawdsley, 65. Judges for quality, Messrs. Mawdsley, Parker; timers, Messrs. Macfarlane, Woodward and Parker. After the contest the fanciers spent a most enjoyable evening.—A. Parker, Sec.

HULL.

Hull L.F.A. held weekly contest June 17th, Rose Hotel Beverley-road. Three good prizes were given. 1st, Fred. Allen's "Champion"; 2nd, R. Dearlove; 3rd, Johnson.—F. Allen, Hon. Sec.

KIPPAX.

Kippax F. and F.S. weekly Linnet contest held June 17th, headquarters (Swan Inn) before a good company. Fifteen birds competed for three good prizes. Winners: 1st, Henshaw; 2nd, O. Potter; 3rd, J. Wallis. Potter and Wallis sang a tight match, both birds singing same time. The result was a sing off for 2nd prize, Potter beating Wallis by a second. Fanciers will be welcomed every week-end.—J. Henshaw, Sec.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Linnet contest held Prince Albert Inn, June 18th, when 19 of the best picked Linnets sang for three good prizes, for quality singing only. The room was crowded to hear some very good singing. The birds were judged perfectly by our old friend, Mr. Harry Allen. Timekeeper, Mr. C. Lorriman. 1st prize, J. Chippendale; 2nd, T. Soloman; 3rd shared between B. Hayes and J. Sellars. Our Linnet club is in a flourishing condition; we have made 11 new members, so are going strong.—E. Wood, Hon. Sec.

Usual week-end Linnet contest held at Prince Albert Inn, when Mrs. M. A. Saynor gave three good prizes for 13 of the best picked birds in Leeds. Judges, Messrs. H. Allen and C. Lorriman. 1st prize, T. Stead (King's Head Association); 2nd, T. Soloman; 3rd, J. Chippendale. All present were satisfied with the judges' decision. E. Wood, Hon. Sec.

LEIGH.

Globe Inn Linnet Club Open to-all-England Linnet contest held Union Arms, Tyldesley, June 17th, when we had an entry of some 40 birds, which was very good considering there were contests at Wigan and Blackburn. Some very good singing was done both for quality and time. Winners: Quality, Hande's (Warrington), 1st; Wood (Tyldesly), 2nd; Robinson (Leigh) 3rd; Whittle (Leigh), 4th. For time: Parkinson (Leigh), 148, 1st; Jackson (Leigh), 108, 2nd; J. W. Jones (Leigh), 93, 3rd; Owen (Tyldesly), 72, 4th. Judges for quality were Messrs. O'Neil, T. Gibbins, and Roy. Howcroft; for time, Messrs. Woods and J. Pool; timekeeper, Mr. W. Yates; birdman, Mr. Boot. J. McAllister, Sec.

Globe Inn Linnet Club Coronation contest held June 24th, when there were 13 birds left to sing off. As we had decided that all members this turn should have a prize we gave 13 kettles. Winners for quality: R. Holcroft, 1; W. Boot, 2; W. Yates, 3; B. Brown, 4; J. Elison, 5; J. Shaw, 6; Kavanagh 7. For time: J. Gore, 140, 1; G. Ammison, 93, 2; J. Harrison, 89, 3; J. Hilton, 76, 4; J. Yates, 60, 5; R. Wilson, 49, 6. After the contest 52 members and friends sat down to a substantial knife and fork tea. Tea over we came back to the Globe Inn and after giving the winners their prizes Mr. Harrison (a member), secretary of the Union Arms Linnet Club (Tyldesly) presented the Sec., Mr. J. McAllister, with a beautiful and expensive breakfast service. After several speeches made by members we had a social evening, when some very good songs were given by Messrs. M. J. Whittle, Statham, Harrison, Ellison, M. Holt, Holcroft, J. McAllister, M. Shaw, Gorgan, B. Jones, J. W. Jones. We had several dances, and Mr. J. W. Jones moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Brown for the magnificent way in which he provided our first social and tea. I wish all intended members to note that we are open to accept them on an entrance fee of 3d. and 4 9 per year, to be paid monthly. We made 23 new members and have more to follow. Will fanciers note our next open contest is at Elephant and Castle, Bag-lane, Atherton, July 1st, when I hope to see all the old faces and some new ones.—J. McAllister, Sec.

YORK.

Weekly Linnet singing contest held St. Lawrence Working Men's Club, Lawrence-street, June 24th, when 16 birds competed. Some excellent singing was heard. 1st, J. Firth; 2nd, J. Lee; 3rd, W. Weaver; 4th, J. Walker; 5th, J. Smith. Mr. Jackson officiated as judge, and Mr. Kirby as timekeeper.—J. Smith, Sec.

SHIPLEY C.S.

First show of young birds held June 17th, headquarters, Prince of Wales, when there was a good entry of 96, amongst which were to be seen some very promising youngsters. Owing to there being a good list of special prizes for members to compete for, some very keen competition took place, and Mr. A. Craven had no light task in making the awards. Mr. J. A. Taylor won special for best yellow, and Mr. L. Crossland that for best Buff and best third bird. The judge gave every satisfaction.

THATTO HEATH (St. Helens).

The members of this new society held their first members' show on June 24th in a large, well-lighted building off Booth-street, Nut-grove. Close upon 50 birds faced Mr. Chas. Houlton, who judged. Norwich were a very creditable lot, and some very promising youngsters were shown. Norwich Greens, too, were very nice. Only a couple of Yorkshires were shown, but Mr. Tyson put them down in very fine condition. Borders were neat, but on the small side. A very good pair of cinn. variegs. Norwich were shown by Mr. R. Gibbie. British Hardbills were headed by a very smart Bullfinch in fine order, which took special for best British; a good medium-sized, deep-coloured yellow Greenfinch was 2nd, and a fine Mealy Redpoll 3rd. There was a very good Bramble for colour, but its jet-black head, cheeks, and neck, etc., spoilt all spangling. Several money and other special prizes were kindly given by friends, which added to the interest in competition. Mr. Houlton's judging appeared to please all.

NOR. YELL. (9): Good all-round class. 1, Tyson, pretty varieg. dark saddle, fine body, rare quality and condition; 2, R. P. Bixter, cl., cobby, just passed a trifle in condition only; 3, hc, Woodward, cl., fine quality; vhc, Gibbie; c, J. Bixter. BUFF (14): A very strong class of good birds; 1, 2, R. P. NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Annual Nest Feather Show held Co-op. Hall, Darn Crook, June 24. This was the first N.F. show held in King George's reign, and as one of the crowd said, it was "George's rain." The entry was very little short in spite of a deluge of water from late on Friday night till Sunday morning. The judges did their work excellently, and gave satisfaction to nearly all. Mr. Robson judged the Canaries, Messrs. Shepherd and Maddison the British and foreign. Judging was over in good time, and the cards up. Then came the final issue for the cups. Mr. R. Tindale, the Yorkshire enthusiast, was successful in winning the Canary cup with a typical marked buff. The Norwich belonging to Mr. Holden was a close runner-up, as also was the very smart Border Fancy belonging to Mr. Geo. Aitcheson. The judges seemed to have a very difficult task to decide until the Yorkie got up in true guardsman style and asked for the cup. As the judge said afterwards, the longer he stood on the table the better he became. Mr. Holden has had hard lines, as this is the second year he has run so close. The British and foreign section was an easier matter to decide, as Mr. A. C. Young's Festive Tanager was an easy winner. It is a beautiful bird, and should do some good for its fortunate owner. Mr. Young is one of our latest members, and is very keen indeed. The Coronation special cup winner cards were much admired. Where are our British bird fanciers? The Redpoll class was the only one well filled. All went well except the "gate," but this was due to the very wet day. Unfortunately, our chairman was not present owing to the death of his sister on Friday. We all send him our very deepest sympathy in his trouble. We heard of a grand Yorkshire being bred at the seaside by a member; in fact, he had a strain about 10 inches long, and he said it was exactly that length. He is having a special show cage built for it. I wish to thank all who helped so willingly, principally Messrs. Tindale, Reed, Coutts, Coltman, Hope, and Mr. Holden, the Gateshead sec. We had quite an "entente cordiale." The Gateshead sec. was very busy in the office making subscription receipts out. This is the spirit we should like to see more of. Thanks are due also to our judges. Will members and friends please take note that Mr. Crawhall is giving us his ideas on Line and Pedigree Breeding on July 6? All fanciers are welcome to meetings.

HARTLEPOOLS C.B.S.

The first nest feather show for the present season was held on June 21st and was a distinct success. The birds were staged in the large room of the Y.M.C.A., and a fair number of visitors were present. The quality of the stock exhibited was good. The judge (Mr. Ben Evans) remarked that he had never previously seen such an excellent class for marked birds. His awards gave great satisfaction. Mr. Marwood (Thornaby-on-Tees) placed the cards in the British section.

ROCHDALE (Good Intent) C.B.S.

The 15th annual first feather show was held June 17th in the Assembly of Newbold Friendly Society's Rooms. Sixty-two birds were staged, this number being rather smaller than usual owing to the breeding season being poor. The quality of the birds was very good. Some excellent birds were staged. Mr. R. Barrass judged, and gave satisfaction all round.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First of a series of six members' shows during present year, held June 17th, Horse and Groom Inn, where 49 birds were staged in seven classes. This was a good entry, considering a great number of the members have done badly with breeding. But the quality of the birds that were staged was splendid, and with a good moult they should do well for their owners. Mr. H. Sutcliffe had no easy task in placing the awards. Most points were gained in clear and ticked section by Messrs. J. Crowther 17, J. Nicholls 12, Bairstow and Chapman 7, B. Wilman 6. In Green Marked section, by Messrs. C. Bastow 14, J. Nicholls 7, W. Ellerton 7, D. Sutcliffe 6, B. Wilman 6, W. Hillas 6. In Cinnamon Marked section, by Messrs. D. Thornton 11, A. Deighton 3, J. Nicholls 2. Most points for cup: Messrs. Crowther 13, Bairstow and Chapman 12, A. Deighton 10, W. Ellerton 9, D. Cutcliffe 7, D. Thornton 7, J. Nicholls 7. Special for best bird, Mr. D. Thornton. Special for most points gained with four birds, J. Nicholls 19; second most points, J. Crowther 17; third, C. Bastow 16. The judge gave every satisfaction.

PUDSEY, STANNINGLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First show of the season held June 17th, Fleece Hotel, Stanningley, the new headquarters. Fifty-eight birds were staged in six classes, one class being void. This speaks well for a society of small membership. The quality of the birds was fairly good all round, and there was very little to choose between some of the winners. Mr. H. H. Towers judged, and gave every satisfaction.

WIGAN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual show of nest feather Canaries and British and Foreign birds held Legs of Man Assembly Rooms, Market Arcade, June 17th. Entries turned up very badly, but there were several nice young Canaries staged. There were a few nice Foreign birds and some champion British birds. Mr. W. Dyer, our assistant-secretary, made his debut as a judge, and his awards were well received.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The third annual nest feather show was held June 17th at the Onward Hall. The hall is most conveniently located, well lighted, and suitable for such an event. The entry was a fairly good one, 100 birds being staged—an increase over last year's. The birds were a grand lot, and several of them, given good fortune in the moult, will certainly be heard of again. Silver medal for best bird captured by Mr. H. Slater with a grand Yorkshire, with R. Booth and J. Vint close up. Best bird in novice Yorks., Mr. A. Taylor; best bird novice Norwich, Mr. J. Vint. Mr. A. G. Smith gained most points with a grand team of British, Mr. H. Slater being runner-up. Winners of other specials: Messrs. H. Boothman, E. H. Fletcher, and D. Buckley. Mr. Tom Harrison (Altrincham) judged, and his awards met with general approval.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

This progressive society held their first Y.B. show of the season at the Parochial Hall, Battersea, on June 24. There was a fine entry of about 80 birds, the greater portion being Yorkshires and Borders. The Norwich breeders having had a rather bad time with the first round were not able to make much show; but good ones were put down by Messrs. McGregor, McMillan, Cross, and Denham. The majority of the Yorkshires were seen in the champion section, where some of the one-time novices fought their old battles over again. Mr. Tebbs staged a real good marked bird of capital type with fine length of wing. Mr. King pressed him hard, and had another good one winning in the clear class. Other good birds were staged by Messrs. C. Mabey, Hall, Clements, Saunders, and Walker. The show of Borders was one of the best ever seen in London at a young bird show, and among them were some very neat specimens of good type and quality. Mr. F. Moore put down a grand marked bird which won special for best in section. Mrs. Thynne as usual had out a good team, as did Mrs. McGregor, whose clear bird stood first in a strong class. In the novice section Messrs. Burgess, Gollop, and Mrs. Denham were the principal winners. Some really good Finches shown by Messrs. Cross, Newton, Hall, etc., made up a very interesting exhibition. The special winners were Messrs. McGregor, Tebbs, Moore, McMillan, Burgess, Cross, and Hall. The general interest in the competition was beyond the average, as points gained at this and subsequent shows, count for the valuable silver cups, which are won outright annually. Mr. H. Norman judged.

Unless members' subscriptions are paid up at our next meeting, writes Mr. J. Irlam, hon. sec. of the Sale Open Society, I shall have to cancel the First Feather Show. Our meetings start at 8 p.m. Will members who are not on the committee please note that these meetings are for them?

We are holding our fourth annual young stock show on July 1st, with Mr. G. Gardner, judge, at headquarters, Trinity Schools, Beresford Street, Woolwich, write Messrs. Meades and Woolgar, secs. of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S. Doors will be open at 5 p.m.; concert at 8 p.m. Fanciers are invited.

The Barnsley and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their Nest Feather Show on July 1, writes Mr. F. C. Sims, the sec. We have provided four classes for Yorkshires, four for Norwieb, one for Linnet, Twite, or Redpoll, one for A.O.S. Hardbill, one for A.S. Softbill, one for Mules or Hybrids and one for Foreign A.S. The exhibition will be held in the large club room at the Clarence Hotel. Birds to be staged at three o'clock prompt. Mr. W. Rapson will judge. A hearty invitation is extended to local fanciers.

FIRST FEATHER SHOWS.

Important Offer: Secretaries, Note!

We have decided again this year to accept advertisements of First Feather (young bird) shows at the reduced charge of 3s. 6d. per single column inch (2s. the half inch). And we will present a special prize of a framed coloured plate to all societies spending not less than 10s. 6d. in advertising their Young Bird Show in our columns.

Secretaries taking advantage of this offer should state very clearly in their advertisements the date, time, and place of the show. These particulars put before our readers will, without doubt, result in a much greater attendance at these early fixtures, and the making of new members, while the "gate-money" (where a charge is made) will benefit, and the sale of catalogues, too. This special cheap rate, of course, only applies to First Feather shows.

Secretaries should note that we can print at very favourable rates, show schedules, posters in colours, and ornamental prize-cards. Send for samples and prices.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything.

Will members of the Musselburgh O.S. please note that the First Feather Show will be held in the Royal Hotel Hall, kindly granted by Mrs. Graham, writes Mr. Wm. Nisbet, the hon. secretary. The show will be held on July 17, birds to be staged by one o'clock p.m. The committee are requested to meet on July 8, at 7 p.m., in Gray Horse; business, the election of judges.

Residents in London and suburbs shou'd pay a visit this Saturday afternoon or evening (July 1) to the premier show of young Canaries held in the Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, High Street, Marylebone (near Baker Street Station) by the City and Suburban A.C.B. Easily reached from all parts by 'bus, tube or rail. Fine lot of British and foreign birds also on view. Don't miss it!—Advt.

Will members and friends of the Wolverhampton C.B.S. please note that owing to Mr. F. J. Weaver, our chairman, withdrawing from judging the Mules and British birds at our annual Nest Feather Show, on account of wanting to exhibit, we have engaged Mr. J. A. Tonks (Wednesbury) instead, as it was he who opened the eyes of every critic at our last show, writes Mr. J. Gibbons, the sec.

The young bird show of the Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S. is being held on Monday next, July 3, at the headquarters of the society (6, The Broadway), where it is hoped a large number of fanciers and other friends will meet. The schedule comprises no fewer than twelve Canary classes, a Mule and Hybrid class, and a British bird class. The show will be open from 6 o'clock p.m. to 9.30 o'clock p.m.

OBITUARY.

I regret to report the loss sustained by the secretary of the Pentre and Dis. C.B.S. (Mr. G. Lingard) by the death of his mother-in-law, who was an ardent breeder of Canaries in her time, writes Mr. J. Byard, chairman of the Pentre and Dis. C.B.S. Mr. Lingard's wide circle of friends will join with us in heartfelt sympathy with him and his dear wife in their sad loss.

It is with deep regret that I have to inform you of the death of the only son of Mr. Wm. Duke, our treasurer, at the early age of 19 years, writes Mr. Jas. Barrass, Sec., South Shields C.B.S. Always to the front, hard-working and obliging, and assisting his father during his secretaryship, he was loved by all fancier friends and members alike. He was a loving son to his parents, and his loss is deeply mourned by us all. He was laid to rest on June 24 in the Harton Cemetery. I am sure all will extend to Mr. and Mrs. Duke our most heartfelt sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Mr. R. WATSON (Denton).

It is with deep regret that I have to inform you of the death of one of our vice-presidents, Mr. R. Watson, who passed away on June 16 after a long and painful illness, at the age of 45, writes Mr. W. Hopwood, sec. of the Denton and Dis. C.B.S. He was one of the first in the forming of our society, and has always been a willing worker in trying to make it a success. The sympathy of the members goes out to Mrs. Watson in her sad bereavement.

Mr. J. CHALMERS, Sen. (Kelty)

It is with regret, writes Mr. Adam Dickson, sec. of the Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A., that I have to report the death of one of our oldest members, Mr. John Chalmers, sen. He was working at his trade (tailoring) on June 14th, and died on the following Tuesday. Pleurisy was the cause of his death. Deceased was a staunch fancier all his life. The love of birds seemed to have run in the blood. His father before him was a fancier, and all his brothers are. He was a native of Markinch. He was as keen as the youngest of us, and will be sadly missed by us all.

Mr. DAVID RENFREW (Glasgow).

Mr. Thos. Smith (Glasgow) writes: Your readers will regret to learn that Mr. David Renfrew, the well-known Scotch Fancy Canary breeder, judge, and exhibitor, passed away suddenly on the morning of June 19th at his residence, 110, Aitkenhead Road. He occupied the position of foreman blacksmith in the iron works of Messrs. W. Dixon, Limited. He went to his work as usual at 6 a.m., but shortly afterwards had a seizure, and was assisted home, where he expired within an hour. Some years ago he gave up the breeding and keeping of Canaries. He had a most successful career as a breeder, having in his time produced the best of stock, which figured at the leading exhibitions in the forefront. He bred a substantial Canary, and never had the slightest difficulty in getting his surplus stock disposed of. In the capacity of judge none was more popular. He had a thorough grasp of the points of the Scotch Fancy Canary, and was never known to flinch in giving an exhibit its position of merit. He was easily distinguished in a show, and being of a noble and firm character, he was respected by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. Your readers will no doubt join in sympathy with his widow and family.

I started in the Fancy in the early part of March, and now have eight young ones on the sticks, with four eggs to hatch, from one pair—a Yorkshire cock and a Norwich hen, writes Mr. C. Pratt (London, S.E.). I think I may consider myself successful. If any reader of Cage Birds lives near me (3, Vowler Street, Heygate Street, Walworth) I should be glad if they would call and see my birds, so as to give me their opinions on them.

Will all secretaries desirous of the patronage of the Yorkshire County British Bird and Mule Club please apply at once, as time is getting on? write Messrs. Lane and Jowett, hon. secs., 15, Aberdeen Terrace, Lidget Green, Bradford.

The New Cross and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their Young Stock Show on July 6, at 7.30 p.m., Mr. J. Robson to judge, write Messrs. Barton and Hearn, the secs. Six specials are to be competed for, one 2s. 6d. for most entries. Members joining same night can compete. (Subs. 1s. per quarter, no nomination fee.) All particulars to be had from us at 8, Warwick Street, Deptford.

Will secretaries and others please note my change of address from 158, Lowfield Road, Stockport (formerly of the Rams Head Hotel, Stockport), to Brunswick Hotel, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne, writes Mr. F. A. Hargreaves. I am sorry to say that my unflighted Buff is dead. He was 1st at Wellingborough, 2nd at Crewe, 1st at Rochdale, 4th at Belle Vue, 2nd at Liverpool, 3rd at Nottingham, 1st at Stockport, and 2nd at Halifax.

We have been successful in securing the services of the following well-known judges to officiate at our First Annual Show on December 2, writes Mr. J. I. Mackie, sec. of the Edinburgh and Dis. C.B.S.:—For Norwich and Crests, Mr. A. Sloan (Glasgow); for Border Fancies, Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso); for Scotch Fancies, Mr. J. King (Musselburgh); and for British and Foreign birds and Mules, Mr R. Bald (Bathgate).

Mr. James Dewar, the celebrated judge, writes:—"Dear Mr. Ramsden, kindly send me 60 tins of your pure tasteless pepper. I am glad to say it is going strong this season, and rightly so, as I think this season's is the best I have ever had the pleasure of handling. The colour is simply marvellous. The fanciers are delighted, and think it is the best they have ever used." And so say all those who understand anything about pepper. Ramsden's Pure Peppers are, without doubt, the finest the world produces.—Advt.

A private meeting of the City of Glasgow O.A. was held on Friday evening, June 23, under the presidency of Mr. David Black, supported by the secretary, Mr. McDonald, and seven Scotch Fancy members, in reference to the allegations recently made against a judge. The evidence for and against (writes our representative) was of a voluntary nature, and full particulars will be submitted at the extraordinary general meeting which will be convened at an early date. Members past and present will do well to be present and bear for themselves and take part in the business of this meeting.

A Huge Clutch.

A friend of ours told us the other day that one of his hen Canaries had laid a clutch of ten eggs. This was at her second attempt, the first clutch being a normal one of five eggs. An egg was laid regularly each morning until the enormous number of ten had been deposited in the nest. The hen looks none the worse for the experience, and is now sitting closely on part of the clutch.

Two Swan Hybrids.

It may interest your readers, writes Mr. Thos. Johnson (Southport) to know that two hybrids between the male Australian black Swan and female white Swan have just hatched out and are on the water. There can be no possibility of mistake, as the two have been the only Swans on the water for two years. I understand, though, that this hybrid has been obtained before. They are to be found on the lake at Hesketh Park, Southport.

Cinnamon-marked Y.C.C.

Owing to the overlapping of judges, etc., for societies applying for the patronage of the Cinnamon Marked Yorks C.C., write Messrs. Grayshon and Allen, the secs., we are still at liberty to grant patronage to one show, which must be held on any one of the following dates: Nov. 18th, Dec. 16th, or Jan. 13th, 1912. Will any society willing to make requisite number of classes, please write us as soon as possible at Wormald Street, Flush, Hecknondwike?

Fanciers at Cricket.

"Windhill versus the Rest of Bradford" are the sides in a game of cricket to be played on July 15 on the grounds of the Hare and Hounds Hotel, Menston, writes Mr. T. Ogden, Dudley Hill, Bradford. Any bird fancier wishing to make one in this party, either as a player or a spectator, will oblige by sending their names to me or to Mr. Walter Crabtree not later than July 10, as the proprietor wants to know how many to cater for. Tea, 1s. 6d. per head. All are welcome (ladies included).

My Favourite Canaries.

W. REID

So many writers have described in the columns of CAGE BIRDS the method of pairing in order to obtain the best results, that it is quite unnecessary for me to go fully into this subject; I will content myself therefore by stating that the cock should be of good size, and full of colour, while the more typical he is in shape, of course, the better. The predominating points in the hen should be type, combined with short, close feather of the finest quality; and the more typical you can get the hen the greater prospects you will have of producing something fit for the show bench.

The Beginner's Best Method.

Beginners should also thoroughly understand that it is quite useless attempting to breed high-class birds from common stock, and if their aim is to produce exhibition birds they would be well advised to obtain a reliable foundation to commence from, as this will save years of disappointments. The best thing he can do is to place himself in the hands of some reliable fancier who, he knows, has bred his own winners consistently for several years. Even if he has to suffer a few little disappointments at first, he will, if he follows the breeder's advice, most assuredly get his turn, and that very soon. And the little sets-back he has experienced at first will serve to make him more zealous—that is, if he has the making of a true fancier; and he has the further satisfaction of knowing that he had to creep before he could walk. I don't care about the class of fancier who suddenly rises, meteor-like, from nowhere, and (probably owing to his possessing a better-lined pocket than the majority of fanciers are blessed with) wins more prizes (in open classes) during his first and second years than many fanciers do in ten (posing meanwhile as an expert in the particular variety he is exhibiting), only to disappear as suddenly as he came—the natural result of his own ignorance. Yet if you were to ask some of them why they had declined the Fancy they would probably tell you they were tired of it.

An Apology for the Lizard.

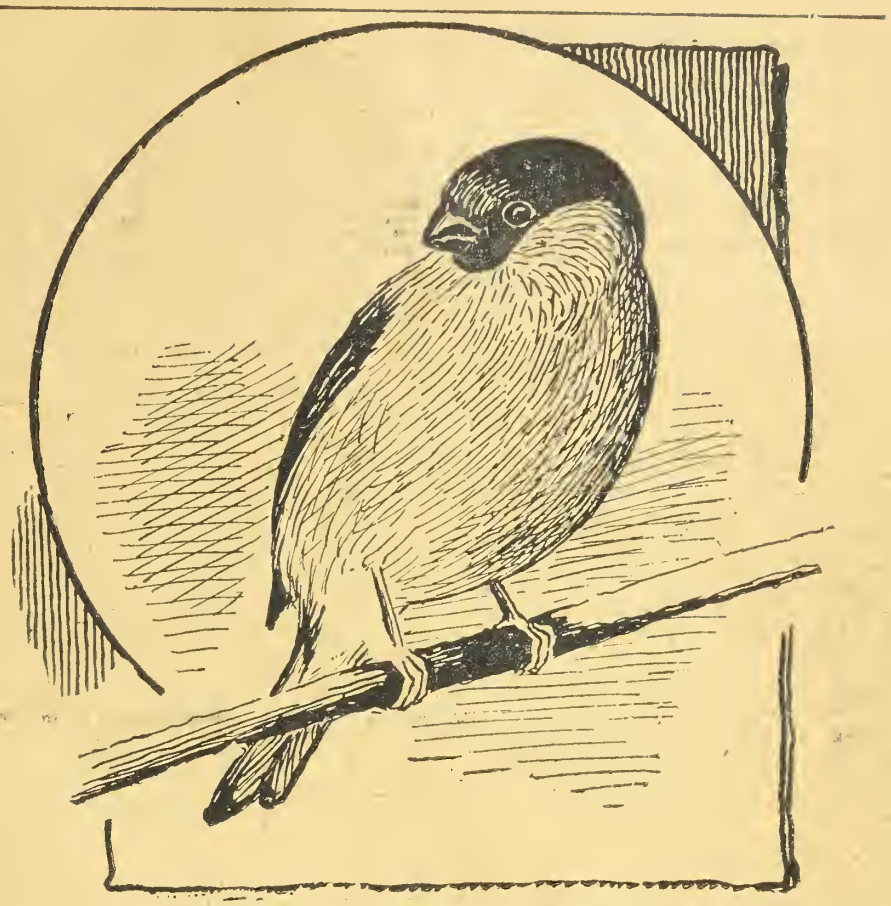
With these few remarks I will close this part of my paper, and go on to the next part, viz., the Lizard. This is a variety that stands very high in my estimation, and I have bred and exhibited it successfully for some years. Its beauty and general excellence will be very hard to beat, and the distinctive characteristics, such as the spangle, cap, etc., give to it an especial charm possessed by very few of the other breeds of Canary. It is, moreover, a very free breeder—at least, I have always found it so—besides being a really excellent songster; and if fanciers would only dismiss from their minds the absurd objection they have to it, namely, that it is an exhibition bird for one year only, there is no reason why this beautiful variety should not become one of the most popular on the show bench, as it deserves to be.

To describe the Lizard as a one-year bird is, I often think, carrying things too far, or rather, I should say, not far enough. Thus you will hear some fanciers say: "Oh, yes; the Lizard is a bonny bird, but the worst of it is it is only a one-year bird"; then they stop, and appear to forget that they ought to explain what they mean by this. The result is you are sometimes astonished by a young fancier remarking that Lizards are no good as they don't breed after their first year; while others are under the impression that over-year birds with the light tips will only breed birds like themselves. Of course, those who breed the variety know that the above-named impressions are entirely fallacious, and it will be apparent to everyone that they would be quite done away with, and the true facts thoroughly understood, if fanciers would only take the trouble to express themselves properly when discoursing on the subject, whether they take an interest in the variety or not. And I believe that this scant regard for details is to a great extent responsible for the poor support given to this variety by fanciers in general. Fanciers who are thinking of taking up this variety (and I hope they are many) will gather from the above that Lizards certainly breed for as long a time as any other variety of Canary, and that breeding with over year birds makes no difference whatever in the young ones. I am afraid, too, that some of these young fanciers would receive something of a shock if they offered to purchase some of the old birds at present in the possession of some breeders—that is, if they expected to get them cheap, simply because they were over-year birds.

Now for the bird itself. As in the case of the other varieties the Lizards are classed as of two colours, yellows and buffs, the difference here being that the yellows are termed golden Lizards and the buff Silver Lizards. The first great point in the Lizard is the spangling, which is formed by the lines of black feathers running down the back, each feather forming the line being fringed with a light edging, either gold or silver, according to the colour of the bird. These lines run from the neck right down the back, narrow at the top and getting slightly wider apart as they come down, the spangling increasing in size in a corresponding manner. It is most essential also that these lines be perfectly straight and running in regular order; otherwise you cannot have that grand formation that is so desirable in a first-class Lizard.

Faults in the Spangling.

At the same time it must be understood that this formation is not the only thing required, for you must also have the bold distinct spangle. Thus a bird may be too pale in ground colour, or it may carry too much of the light fringe on its feathers; in either of which cases the spangling will not appear as clear and distinct as in the more perfect bird. On the other hand, the light fringe on the feathers may not be large enough, giving the bird the appearance of having no spangle at all, although it may be perfectly rowed; but as I have said, rowing by itself is of no use if it is not accompanied by clear, distinct spangling, for it is this perfect rowing combined with good spangling, which constitutes what the Lizard breeders term "grand back-work," and the more of these rows of perfect spangling you can get on the bird the better it will be. Yet, remember, you do not want rows to begin at the neck and finish off about half-way down the bird's back; neither do you want a short row of spangling between two perfect rows, for both these defects spoil the appearance of the bird's back, though they make it as if it has a lot of spangle.



The feathers on the shoulders and upper part of the wings are also fringed with a lighter shade of colour, giving the bird a most beautiful appearance, while the outside margins of the flight feathers and also the tail feathers are laced with either a gold or silver edging, according to the colour of the bird. If you can get the bird well laced with dark lines down both sides of the body and over the breast then you have a perfect Lizard so far as spangling and lacing are concerned.

We now come to the cap, which will be either clear yellow or clear buff. A clear cap, that is, one without a break in it, should be as large as possible, and the shape of a thumb-nail, running in equal width over the head, from the base of the beak to just over the back of the skull; and, of course, the wider the head of the bird the better the cap will be. The cap should not be cut off too short at the back of the head, neither should it be carried too far over. These are defects which a breeder gives due attention to when pairing up his birds, especially in the latter case.

Just over the eyes there is a fine black line, termed the eyelash. This line gives a most finished look to a good cap.

There are, of course, broken caps as well as clear caps. "broken" meaning that the cap has a patch of dark feathers running into it. This patch may vary in size, but the least bit of dark running into the clear constitutes a broken cap as much as though the bird had nearly the whole of the head dark. These broken cap birds generally excel in spangling, and the "crack" breeders generally have either heavily broken caps, or non-capped birds (these latter being birds without any cap at all) in their rooms, as they are invaluable for breeding birds with good spanglings.

Yellow-headed Marsh Birds.

I saw a query recently in the correspondence columns from a reader who wished to identify a "Yellow headed Blackbird" he had shot in America. I expect this was Xanthocephalus Icterocephalus, which is known by the above name in the States, and answers to the description, though the male has a patch of white on the wing, which the correspondent did not mention. This fine species has a most extensive range over almost the whole of (western) North America, and is even said to have been found in Greenland. The male is a large bird, black except its yellow head and white patch on the upper wing-coverts; the female is smaller, brownish with a little yellow on the sides of the head. Some were privately imported last autumn, and others by Mr. Frost; another (private) consignment is expected in July. The following is an extract from the "Ornithologist and Ologist":—"An abundant bird in some portions of Wyoming, inhabiting the marshes and wet prairies. At Fort Laramie I found a breeding place and secured fifteen complements of eggs and a few nests. The nests were built in the tall rushes of a slough and formed of rush leaves of the year before, very nicely woven together and lined with the same material in fine pieces. They were firmly attached to three or four rushes, and built very close to the water among a colony of Redwings."

A pair built a good nest in a Lincolnshire aviary last year, and their owner was hoping to breed them successfully this summer, but unfortunately the female has recently died. I am indebted to Dr. Amsler for the following remarks on its habits in captivity:—"They are very mysterious birds: I can see my aviaries from one of my windows, and often watch the birds with field-glasses, yet I never see them feed, and do not really know what they eat. I am told they take seed, and I believe it, though they do not look like seedeaters; mealworms are the only food I have ever seen them pick up. The cock and hen are never far apart, but are shy, and fond of hiding in a bush. I find them quite inoffensive to small birds, and indifferent to cold. Both were out all last winter, and the cock was perfectly fit all the time: the hen, however, had to come in in March as she moulted heavily, and could hardly fly at all. I think that, to breed them, they should have an aviary to themselves, because they are very bad hands at looking after No. 1, and allow themselves to be hustled by smaller and weaker birds. The cock has a rather disagreeable song, beginning with a splutter and ending with a most painful scroopy note. There was a letter in CAGE BIRDS some weeks since saying that the writer had seen a black bird with yellow head flying loose; this must, I think, have been an escaped cock Reed-bird, or some species of Troupial." My experience with Marsh-birds (L. superciliaris) and Military Starlings (T. militaris and T. defilippii) coincides with Dr. Amsler's; I have not known them eat anything but seed and mealworms, and they do not seem, as a rule, to be long lived, which is much to be deplored, as they are very handsome birds and quite harmless.

Orphean and Barred Warblers.

A few individuals of these two delightful species have been recently privately imported, but unfortunately too late for the breeding season. They are amongst the largest of the European Warblers, and have an extensive range, the former in S. and S.E., and the latter in Central and E. Europe. A few stragglers have reached this country; hence the names of both are to be found in the list of British Birds. The male Orphean somewhat resembles a Blackcap, but is half as large again, and the area of black on the head extends below the eyes. The female, except in point of size, closely resembles a male Whitethroat. A solitary female in my aviary this summer commenced several nests, and, I think, would have bred if I could have procured a male of her own species. I tried to induce her to mate with a cock Blackcap, but they took no notice of one another. Presumably, therefore, these two species, though somewhat alike, are not closely related—indeed I have always maintained that the Blackcap, if only from the fact that it has no spring moult, should be regarded as somewhat apart from the true Warblers. We may note another point of difference in the fact that the young male Blackcap shows some black on the crown very shortly after leaving the nest, whereas some young male Orpheans, which I saw at Messrs. De Von's in the autumn a couple of years since, were very like an adult female. It is delightful to watch this Warbler in an outdoor aviary. Always spick and span, neat and trim, it threads its way through the densest foliage as deftly and gracefully as the hull of a racing yacht glides through broken water.

The Barred Warbler is much more easily procured, as it breeds in Central Europe, and therefore comes into touch with the German bird-catcher. It is a bird of most distinctive appearance—I think we might call it a miniature Cuckoo, being ashey-grey barred over the whole of the lower parts, from the throat to the under tail-coverts, with darker grey, and having a bright yellow eye. The underparts of the female are whitish, with just a few bars on the flanks. The male has a habit of ruffling up the feathers on the crown just as a Whitethroat does, when she scolds one for coming too near her nest, and he has somewhat similar notes, though harsher. I find that both these species will eat a good deal of fruit, and are therefore quite easy to cater for. If the European Warblers were better known in this country I feel sure they would be very popular. Some of them are very handsome though in point of colouring they cannot compare with some of the American species, which are as brilliant as the Tanagers. For instance, there is the Blackburnian Warbler, which nests in Canada and winters in the tropics: head black striped with flaming orange, throat brilliant orange, underparts bright yellow, wings and back shining black striped with pure white.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Feather Eating.

M. F. Hurst.—You should have said how you feed and treat your birds, as I fear from your remark about them smelling badly there must be something radically wrong in this respect. Keep cages and perches as clean as possible, and whilst the unpleasantness lasts strew them well with fine sawdust giving a small shallow box or tin full of gritty sand in one corner of the cage. Feed on a staple of plain canary only for fortnight, and every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days a morsel of bread and milk well sprinkled with maw seed. Give a little chickweed or green plantain stalks daily. Allow birds to bathe regularly. Give all round six drops of syrup or rhubarb, and a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a small pea in the water every second day for a week, and in the following week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. Then go on to the ordinary dietary, frequently advised here and in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," for continued use. Should the particular hen referred to commence to pluck out her feathers give in addition to the above treatment in the first week, on the days alternating between giving rhubarb, etc., as much bromide of potassium as will cover a threepenny piece in the drinking water.

Poor Results.

W. E. H.—Sorry, but the holiday dislocation rendered a reply last week quite impossible. If your soft food consists only of crushed biscuits, and your letter infers as much, you will get little, if any, better results until you alter it. The sample of seed is quite good, but you do not require an elaborate mixture like this as a staple. Give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as staple. When young are expected to hatch add a crystal of sulphate of soda to the drinking water of those hens that appear lacking in duty for two days, and offer a bath in which a little common salt has been dissolved. For the first few hours after hatching give a little pure yolk of egg, then add a little crumb of stale bread to it each time until, by the third day, you are using two-thirds bread crumb to one third egg, or better still, give equal parts egg, bread and crushed sponge cake, and in either case add a sprinkling of maw to it. Begin giving green food on the third or fourth day, and give both this, and the egg food in small quantities as often as convenient, but not less than twice a day, and as fresh and pure as possible. If the young get too loose slightly dust the egg food once a day with powdered cuttlefish, or add a teaspoonful of lime water to the drinking water until looseness is corrected. Keep cages and all food and water vessels scrupulously clean.

Trouble with Young Crests.

Disheartened Novice.—It is certainly unfortunate that all your feeders should have behaved so badly and gone to nest again so soon. Have you been feeding them too highly whilst sitting? If not too late put all these feeders when sitting on a diet of plain canary only whilst sitting, and allow no "extras" save just a pinch of hemp, and a scrap of egg food once each per week. If you find it necessary to keep the cocks out of the earshot, if possible, and whilst feeding young give chickweed, groundsel, lettuce, or watercress freely as green food, but strictly avoid dandelion. As soon as young can begin to pick for themselves give a supply of canary seed with a sprinkling of summer rape on top daily. Give also a little egg food daily, mixed rather on the dry side, and sprinkled with maw and a little cracked hemp (see that it is good) each day. As soon as the birds crack the canary seed freely, gradually withdraw the hemp and egg, and, finally, bring them on to plain canary as staple, with a little rape every second day, and on the alternating days twice a week a little egg food, and on other two days a little of a mixture of hemp, broken groats and millet. Withhold green food until they are about six or seven weeks old, then give a few green plaintain stalks to begin with. For hand-rearing make the ordinary egg food into a soft paste, and feed lightly about every half hour from dawn to dusk. Give as much as each will readily take. Add a little finely minced green stuff to the egg food several times each day, only making this addition to the quantity of food you are going to use immediately. As soon as they get out of the nest and begin to pick about, give a little seed and egg food to pick at and proceed the same as above advised.

To Tame the Young.

George Turner.—I think your treatment is at fault, as young at six weeks old should not require both egg food and bread and milk to be supplied daily. They should be going pretty strong on seed diet at that age. If you adopt the following treatment you will soon find an improvement in the birds' condition. As soon as they are quite weaned from the parents keep them supplied daily with a box of good sound canary seed, on top of which sprinkle a little summer rape daily. In addition give egg food sprinkled with maw in the egg drawer, and keep it rather on the dry side. Add no moisture at all in mixing the egg food other than what is naturally in the hard-boiled egg, which is quite sufficient to bring the food to the desired crumbly consistency. Stop the bread and milk, and give instead a small supply of cracked hemp daily. A teaspoonful of soaked rape, drained and wiped dry, may be given daily to each brood, but be careful this does not become sour, and see also that the hemp is sound and good. Watch the seed box, and as soon as you see by the husks left that the birds are cracking the canary seed freely begin to reduce the supply of egg food and hemp, and encourage them to partake freely of the seed. By the time they are six weeks old you should have gradually brought them on to a diet of unlimited plain canary as staple. Every second day give a little summer rape as an extra, and on the alternate days a half teaspoonful per bird of egg food, crushed sponge cake, or the equivalent in bread and milk—one or the other, but not all of them at once—and twice a week give a small quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp and broken groats. At seven or eight weeks you may reduce the soft food to twice a week. Withhold all green food for the present, and add a teaspoonful of limewater to the drinking water for a day or two until the looseness is checked.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Bottye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1½); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Feeding Young....(A Worried Novice).— See reply to "Disheartened Novice," which will fully meet your needs. Use two parts hemp, to one part each of broken groats and millet, for this mixture. I presume when you separated them from the parents you arranged matters so that the parents could, if disposed, feed the young through the wires. The cock, at least, might have gone on feeding some time longer, and thus given the young a good start.

Loss of Young. (A. Hollingshead).—See that all your seeds and foods are sound and sweet, and if you have been using hemp break open some of this and see if the kernel is sound and good. Read reply to "W. E. H.," and in the main adopt that advice but make your egg food with equal parts of egg, crushed sponge cake, and stale bread crumbs, and add a sprinkling of maw. Also begin to give greenstuff in small quantities from the second day. I rather suspect the hens are not feeding, in which case you should treat them about the time of hatching as advised to "Disheartened Novice."

Voice Failing. (H. R.).—The bird that seems to be losing its voice, may be doing so because it is about going into moult, but the other bird being wheezy gives a rather ominous aspect. See reply to "Frank Hamhrook," in last issue, and carry out those suggestions as to removing causes, and also treat the two birds as therein advised, except that you only need give the rhubarb and salts for two days. If there is not a considerable improvement in a fortnight get a chemist to mix two drams each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one dram each of ipecacuanha wine, and chlorodyne, and six grains of iodide of potassium, and give 20 drops of this in the water of the wheezy bird every second day for a fortnight.

Back Claw Useless (Walker).—As the young do not go wrong until four or five weeks old I suspect your perches are the cause of the mischief. See that they are well and conveniently placed, fit firmly, and are of a proper size for the birds to grip comfortably. Try now, putting in small perches, about the size of a lead pencil, or graduating from rather small to rather larger than a lead pencil. If you find the birds grip these, do nothing else, but leave in these perches for two or three months. If they quite fail to get the hind claw under them as it should be, put in more substantial perches, and put small rubber rings on the toes as frequently described here. Leave these on for a month, then remove, and put in the small perches for a time.

Not Nesting. (A Constant Reader).—Are you quite satisfied about the sex of the Rollers, and does either of them sing, and how old are they? The replies to these questions would have helped to clear up matters. I rather suspect the birds are two hens. Still, try the following:- For three days give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn in the drinking water, and for the remainder of a week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and tincture of steel. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a small teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake with a pinch of a mixture of equal parts gold of pleasure and sesame mixed in it, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of equal parts hemp, inga, linseed, and millet. Give two or three dandelion leaves daily, and if you have them available three or four mealworms a day might be very helpful. If, as you surmise, the other hen's eggs are unfertile feed her as above before she starts nesting again. But it is now getting late to allow a hen to start again. See reply to "P. D. R.," re unfertility.

Moulting. (G.R., Cardiff).—You omit to say whether the bird moulted last autumn or not, if it did it should not have started moulting again when it did. See that it is kept free from draughts, and extreme fluctuations, not near an open window or the ceiling, but in a bright and airy place. As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a half-a-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, and teazle. Give a little green food daily. If available two mealworms a day for a short time would be beneficial. In the drinking water give six drops or syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight. The seeds sent were good.

Feeding Young (Hamlet).—Your query has been mis-sent to me. See Mr. Weston's replies next week, and meantime I think you may safely follow the same advice as given to several correspondents in this and last week's issues for the treatment of young Canaries after leaving their parents.

Young Dying (E. Griffiths).—There must be something wrong with your general treatment for all the young to go off, as you say, year after year. It would have been best to have mentioned your system of feeding, etc., in detail, as then I might have detected where the screw was loose. See reply to "George Turner" in this issue. By following up that treatment for the young you should have no difficulty in saving them.

Border Hen.—(H. W. W.).—I'm afraid the hen is not going to be much of a prodigy in health or stamina. A "last year's bird," by the way, is generally understood to be one that hatched last year, so I do not quite see how, in that case, she could have bred well before you had her unless it was done very early this spring. Keep the perches scrupulously clean. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give every second day for a fortnight a morsel of bread sopped in milk, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and sprinkled with maw seed. On each of the alternate days give a little green food. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the next week 20 drops of Chemical food two days in every three. Allow her to bathe freely, and anoint the bare place sparingly three times a week until irritation ceases with zinc ointment.

Seed and Infertility.—(P.D.R.).—No, I do not consider the sample of hemp good enough to feed young Canaries in the nest, nor adult ones either for that matter. Try to get better quality or discard hemp altogether. As regards the infertility, it is almost futile speculating about the cause both birds appearing so healthy and vigorous. It may be due to such a variety and number of circumstances, of which I may be unaware. See latter part of reply to "Disappointed" in last issue. If that suggestion applies to the behaviour of your birds try to arrange the nest and perches so that the hen may be induced, if possible, to hop on to side of nest or perch when mating. See that the side of the nest gives a good grip for the bird's feet, and that the perches are firmly fixed. If birds have long loose feathers about the flanks and abdomen trim off the loose tips neatly before they go to nest again. How old are the birds? This may have something to do with it. In any case as the hen feeds well after hatching the eggs of other hens she is certainly worth her keep, if it is only to be utilised when required as a foster parent. Never discard a good feeding hen lightly, however useless she may be as far as producing young herself is concerned.

Failing Song. (S. Wants).—The bird is going into proper moult, and will doubtless cease singing altogether for a time, even though he did not cease last year. The continued slow moulting is almost certainly due to keeping the bird in a draught or fluctuating temperature. This must be totally avoided. Keep it in an airy place, but quite free from draughts or extremes of heat and cold, and particularly avoid a position near a window that opens, or near or over burning lights in the evenings. As soon as the feathers begin to drop freely cover over the cage until they have ceased doing so. In addition to the staple diet give half teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake, sprinkled with maw seed every second day, and twice each week until the moult has made good progress, slightly dust it with flowers of sulphur. On the alternate days give it a little greenstuff. Allow it to bathe freely. To get a good moult, add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to the water for two days, and afterwards twenty drops of whiskey and a few shreds of saffron for a few days.

Roller Hen. (Doubleyou).—Many thanks for your letter. It would be mutually helpful if more querists reported the future fortunes of sick birds. The sudden relapse when nesting after apparently recovering so well under treatment seems to confirm my previous suspicions that some disease of the ovary was at the root of the trouble. A post mortem would have been most valuable in such a case, and I am sorry the condition of the body deterred you submitting it for the same. I do not think your management was in any way the cause and certainly the previous owner could not be held to blame. It was doubtless just one of those lapses from the normal condition to which every living creature is subject. More than this I cannot say in the absence of such definite knowledge as a post mortem would have revealed. Thanks for good wishes. Shall be only too pleased to assist you in every possible way at any time.

A Trio (One in Doubt).—(1) The height to which Canaries can reach their feeding holes comfortably without a cross perch is quite a matter for personal observation. It depends solely upon the stature of the bird. A hole, for instance, that was uncomfortably high for a Roller would be quite easily accessible to a Lancashire standing behind it. For a Roller, I should say 1½ ins., and a Crest or Lancashire 2½ ins. to 3 ins. would be about as high as they could comfortably manage. This is speaking from memory. (2) Yes. Canaries can be colour fed quite easily without egg food. But do not attempt it by substituting soaked rape and biscuit, which is too apt to become sour. Use simply plain crushed sponge or Madeira cake as a vehicle for the colour agent, or, better still, you could make a cake and introduce the colour into it in the course of making. You would find a recipe for this in Part IX. of "Our Canaries." (3) Your Mule query should have been on a separate sheet for Mr. Weston. See his replies next week. Meantime you may, assuming the birds are able to pick egg food easily, treat as advised to "George Turner" for young Canaries.

Not Nesting (F.W. P.).—The hen is clearly not in breeding condition, and at this late season will probably not come into condition at all this year. But you may try what the following treatment will do. For one week give nothing but plain canary seed and a free supply of green food daily, and every second day add 12 drops of syrup of buckthorn to the water. At the end of the week add a fourth part of summer rape to the staple diet, and every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with a pinch of equal parts maw, sesame, and gold of pleasure mixed in it, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, teazle, and yellow mustard, and two leaves or seed heads of dandelion daily. Continue this treatment for three weeks, and try her with the cock again after she has been on it a week. If she does not then soon show signs of nesting, revert to the plainer diet, and turn her into a good sized flight for moulting, and let her stay in it until next spring.

Injured Leg (Inquirer).—You omit all mention of the nature of the accident which caused the injury, so I am very much in the dark as to what it is likely to be. But of one thing you may be sure: that your suggestion about the thigh "being out" is wholly imaginary. There couldn't be "no sich thing." Your best course is to leave the remedy entirely to Nature. Strictly avoid all interference and keep the bird as quiet as possible until it resumes activity and begins to use the leg freely on its own account. Keep it in a moderately sized cage, with the perches placed firmly and conveniently, so as to enable the bird to get about them on one leg with the greatest amount of ease and comfort, and do not put anything on the floor which may get entangled with the claws; sawdust or clean dry sand will be best. See that the bird does not have to strain to reach the food or water vessels.

Pulling out Feathers (E. G. Cove).—First of all see that the bird does not hang in a window that opens, in any direct draught between doors or windows; near or over burning lights in the evening, nor high up near the ceiling. Keep it in a bright, airy and healthy position; also examine the cage well, scraping out any cracks or joints on to a sheet of white paper, to see if any red mites are to be found, and, if so, eradicate them. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape, and continue giving a little green food daily. Twice a week for the next month give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed, and on two other days each week give a crystal of sulphate of soda and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny piece. It is quite probable the bird may begin to moult quickly before the month's treatment is finished, but continue it, as it will help to make the moult complete and normal. A green plantain stalk daily would help to divert its attention from its plumage for the time being.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

A Naughty Cat (Feline).—I am really surprised that you should find it necessary to write to me to ask what you should do to a cat that persists in sitting on top of the cage of your Blackbird and frightening the inmate. I am afraid talking to it won't cause it to mend its ways, and naughty cats, unlike naughty children, are not easy to cane. Perhaps a very liberal dusting of the cage top with strong pepper might prove persuasive. If this is impracticable, drive a quantity of thin wire nails through a suitable thin piece of board, then file the ends of the nails very sharp and arrange the board on the roof of the cage. Or a few strands of barbed wire might answer. I have known an air-gun, carefully directed, to convince pussy that life on an aviary roof or cage top is not worth the living. Any cat so disreputable as to fail to yield to one or other of these blandishments can only be classed with the vermin. And "vermin killers" are both morally and physically potent.

Two Items (S. C. R.).—The knocking out of the flights in the night is due to the bird being subject to nervous fits (periods), when it dashes blindly about the cage. Some birds are very troublesome in this respect, although normally very tame. What kind of cage do you keep it in; and is there any chance of lights shining in after it has gone to roost; or of disturbance by mice, cats, or the like? The cage should be of the box pattern, and you might do well in covering the front at night with a thin black cloth. Yes; a Hawfinch should be given a little colour-food when moulting. I always make a practice of giving my birds a little soft-food (some good insectile mixture prepared in the usual way) throughout the summer. They are very fond of it, and during the moult they take it freely. It is very good, then, as a change of diet, and the sweet pepper can be easily mixed amongst it (very little is needed if the bird is naturally rich in colour).

When Nesting Again (One in Doubt).—Note the replies given "Hamlet" and others this week, which cover your own query. It is of no use to hurry on the hen with another nest, and thus endanger the lives of the Mules as yet unable to feed themselves. A bird on the perch is worth two in the next nest, as Shakespeare remarked. A hen, of course, will continue to feed youngsters, though engaged in building her next home, but she does not pay them so much attention as formerly, and if she comes on to lay quickly, then there is danger of her neglecting the growing babies, when, if they "go back" (as fanciers term it), they may become too weak to pick up for themselves, and so find an early grave. Mule-breeders very rarely have a cock bird at hand which will finish off a young brood; therefore we need to compel the hen to do it before allowing her to commence incubating further eggs. Truth to tell, however, I do not encounter much difficulty on this score, for young Mules are more precocious than young Canaries, and can satisfy their own wants at an earlier age. Personally, I shut them off in one half of the two-compartment breeder (the type of cage I always use and recommend), which prevents the hen plucking them if inclined that way, while she can feed them through the wires of the sliding division.

A Magpie's Tongue; and a Skylark (A. G. Child).—I advise you either to invest in a copy of Mr. Norman's book on "Softbills" (post free, 1s. 1d.), or the "Nutshell" booklet on the Skylark (post free, 2½d.), either of which our publisher would send you. You will then be in possession of full information as to the best possible methods of feeding and managing a Skylark. In the space allowed me here, I cannot possibly go full enough into the subject. I agree that your bird ought to be a fine songster next year. With regard to cutting the tongue of a young Magpie with the idea of facilitating its talking, this is a useless cruelty, which ought to be punishable at law. A bird does not need to use its tongue to talk, and therefore the barbarous operation known as "slitting" it is no aid to articulation. I have explained this times without number. It seems, however, to be an "old woman's tale" which dies hard. Those who slit birds' tongues ought to have their own tongues slit; then, possibly, people might cease to recommend the operation. I have a Magpie now which talks as clearly and fluently as any bird I ever listened to (Parrots excepted), and its tongue is in the same condition as Nature made it.

Young Hybrids (Hamlet).—The diet need not vary for young hybrids between the Canary and any of the Finches; at least, I never find any necessity to treat one Mule differently to another at the time they are commencing to pick up for themselves. The great thing is not to encourage the hen Canary to get on with her next nest until the Mules are fairly on the way to supplying their own wants. Don't give her nesting material, on any account, until the youngsters are begining to pick over the food. The latter should be placed on a feeding board, one of the most useful appliances out (an illustration of one appeared in Mr. Norman's article in CAGE BIRDS of March 11th last). By using this, they get on food very quickly; they see the hen feeding from it, and soon begin to follow her example. When observed to do the latter, they can be shut off with a wired slide, through which the hen will continue to give them frequent "meals" (while building her next nest) until they cease to "cry" to her for food. Put a mixture of food on the board—egg-bread, crushed Canary, hemp and sunflower seeds and maw seed, together with sprays of ripe seeding shepherd's purse. Note another answer given this week. The seeding shepherd's purse is very valuable; young birds delight in it. Good luck to you.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

A Feather Puller.

J. H. W. (Littleborough.—Your Roseate Cockatoo has evidently been mistreated before coming into your possession. Every fourth day so long as the voidings are not watery loose, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water, about one ounce, and on the intermediate days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Continue to spray with quassia solution. I prefer the following mixture to mixed foods: Two parts each Canary and white millet, and one part each hemp, paddy rice, small maize, wheat, oats, and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Supply ripe fruit daily, you can also supply at intervals, nuts, plain biscuit and green food. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage, and add a pinch of grit to the daily supply of seed.

Waxbills in Cages.

"Je ne Suis pas."—You should get our Nutshell Booklet, "Waxbills," 2½d. post free, from our Manager; it will tell you all about keeping these minute and charming birds. Both Crimson-ears and Orange-cheeks are shyer breeders than others, for instance, Golden-crested and St. Helena, and I advise you to procure the two latter. In an all-wire cage, a board, piece of opaque glass or something similar, should be laid on top of the cage, covering up the nesting receptacle, which should be a cocoanut shell (not husk), these can be purchased ready for hanging up. Supply Canary and white millet, and keep a millet spray hanging in the cage, replacing it with a fresh one when it is picked clean. Also supply green food, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. All other details will be found in the article referred to in the booklet "Waxbills."

What Birds?

W. W. D.—If your book has coloured plates in it, refer to the Silverbill, as I think you bird is of that species. Are you acquainted with the Silverbill? If so, and you know your bird is not of that species, it might be a female Grey Finch, but in that case the beak is not so bluish as in your drawing; it is really blackish horn colour; and in the latter case I rather doubt its pairing with the Cutthroat. If the plumage of the bird is mottled with darker markings, of much the same hue as the ground colour of the plumage, then undoubtedly it is an African Silverbill, and this I believe it to be.

All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

I am keeping the sketch in case you write again, if the above identification you know to be wrong. In case of repeating query, kindly give me some idea of any mottling or markings there are on plumage.

Cage and Moustache Parrakeets (W. Hughes).—I rather think I have answered both these queries, but at any rate I cannot do so from the letter before me, as you do not state what you wish to know; but I am under the impression both the above queries were answered for you under "Is it safe" (Bird Lover) in our issue of June 24. If not, please repeat query with fuller details.

What Birds? (X. Y. Z.). Undoubtedly, the species of Whydah out of colour. If a male, will begin to change its plumage almost immediately. Very probably either the Paradise or Pin-tailed Whydah; if the latter, there will be only two long feathers in the cock's tail; if the former, the bird has a mahogany coloured breast and many long tail plumes.

Owing to severe pressure on our space several answers to querists have unavoidably had to be held over until next week.

Budgerigars and Lovebirds (F. A. G.).—At this season of the year, while seeding grass is plentiful, Budgerigars would have no difficulty in living in the open; neither do I think they would suffer any more hardship during the winter months than does our indigenous Sparrow. Two pairs of Budgerigars would be more likely to do well and breed in your cage than 1 pair each Budgerigars and Lovebirds, but the latter two would agree together all right, and the Budgerigars probably breed, but I doubt the Madagascars doing so. I am, of course, assuming that you intend procuring a mate for the Lovebirds of its own species. I cannot advise you to attempt cross-mating Lovebirds save in a cage entirely to themselves. I cannot speak from experience re Antwerp and Hamburg, for seeing and purchasing;—probably the latter: for seeing only, I should say the former, but either will be full of interest.

Grey Parrot—What Value (F. E. H.).—If the bird is beginning to pull its feathers and becomes confirmed therein, its value is small indeed. A talented Grey in good plumage, without any taint of feather picking or pulling, is worth £10, and I should be glad to hear of one, but it would have to be a good one. Your diet has been all wrong; stop the milk sop and table scraps, and confine the dietary to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuit with cuttlebone, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. Our Nutshell booklet "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free, from our Manager, should help you.

...What Bird? (Jacky).—It is either a green singing Finch or Yellow-rumped Seedeater, most probably the former. Hybrids have been reared between these species and the Canary—a small variety of the latter should be chosen. It might also mate with a Siskin. It has crossed freely with its near relative the Grey Singing Finch. In addition to mixed seeds, supply in a separate hopper a mixture of Canary and white millet seeds, in equal parts. Hang up a millet spray in the cage, and replace it when all the seed is picked off. Do not omit green food and grit.

Birds for Aviary (J. C. H. O.).—Providing the shelter is well lighted, and the aviary is well arranged, such birds as are referred to below should do well in it all the year round. Yellowhammers and Chaffinches often prove quarrelsome in the aviary, but they are more likely to prove quarrelsome with each other than the foreign species mentioned be low. The small Waxbills could be put in the aviary and left there. The Avadavat should begin to renew its colour very shortly. You could put in the aviary pairs of the following: Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Bengalese, Bronze Mannikins, Bib and Ruficanda Finches. All the above should safely pass the winter out of doors, though it might be advisable to provide a shutter for the east side, say, from end of October to beginning of April, or, at any rate, to tack roofing felt over this portion for that period.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

E. G. Watts.—Acute haemorrhagic enteritis induced by a chill. The whole length of the bowel was in an acute inflammatory condition, and its contents principally made up of blood. The same state of affairs is also seen in death from acute mineral poisons, but in both cases its ouset is sudden, and death results in the course of a few hours.

Mrs. Bousfield.—The bird was a male, and on examination I found the intestines in a state of catarrhal inflammation; and mixed with its contents were a number of small feathers, as though the bird had been eating its own feathers, setting up irritation thereby, and subsequently developing inflammation of this part.

I. R. D.—Ovarian disease complicated with pneumonia caused death of hen, most probably originating in a chill. The ovary was much inflamed, and the lungs were in a similar state; this latter affection would account for the choking or asphixiating symptoms that you observed.

A. Cant.—Inflammation of the oviduct and peritoneum, together with rupture of the former, due to breakage within it of a shellless egg, was responsible for death of hen. The body was noticeably swollen and distended, and easily diagnosed before opening. On post-mortem, however, the body was found filled with egg contents, the whole having assumed a septic condition. Probably your former loss originated from the same cause.

John M. Miller.—I have examined remains of your Budgerigar, which I found to have died as the result of a fit. On exposing the surface of the brain, I found a large blood clot from rupture of one of the meningeal blood vessels. The predisposing cause was apoplexy—a condition of the arteries in which rupture readily occurs from extreme blood pressure. I never remember making a post-mortem examination on a Budgerigar that was in such a fat condition as this one; there was a thick layer of this under the skin, and the body cavity was full of it. It is this overfat condition that conduces to disease of this kind. These birds ought really to be kept apart from the others, and fed on a more restricted diet, with an occasional saline aperient until they resume their normal condition.

Jos. Foster.—I examined both Canaries, and found the symptoms much more marked in one than in the other, depending, of course, upon the stage of the disease. The trouble exists in the liver, parts of which were quite dead or necrotic, brought about by the introduction of irritants, ptomaine or bacteria carried in with the food. I am of opinion that the soft food is the mode of entrance. The advanced lesions found in the one could have no connection whatever with the colour feeding, for these must have existed prior to putting there on this. When the liver is affected, especially structurally, as in this case, its functions become disorganised, its secretions minimised; and from loss of the latter the intestines suffer, and diarrhœa results with consequent death from exhaustion. I was sorry to see such promising youngsters sent for post mortem, and hope you will have better luck. The sudden fall of temperature could have no connection whatever with the disease; its origin is purely dietetic. When structural disease exists, Bismuth would not have the desired effect. Try the following mixture: Acid sulph. dilute, 1 drachm; infusion caryoph, 2 drachms; infusion haematoxyl, 2 drachms; aquam ad, 8 ounces. Thirty drops of resulting mixture to be allowed each affected bird in its drinking water night and morning.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Pink Eyes (W. M. Morton).—Note the correspondence columns this week.

Seed or Egg-Food Boxes (W. Challinor).—These trays (or boxes, as you call them) were illustrated a few weeks ago by Mr. Norman in the articles he wrote on cages and appliances.

An Article (T. Routledge).—Many thanks for your kind promise.

Seed Samples (Puzzled One).—Both are moderate. The maw is somewhat old and dry, while the hemp contains a small percentage of bad grains.

Sweet Pepper (Norwich).—"Sweet pepper" is just a fanciers' term, and indicates the tasteless kind of pepper in contradistinction to the pungent (hot) kind of pepper. You should buy your tasteless pepper from one or other of the advertisers using our columns; a satisfactory quality for putting colour into a bird's plumage cannot be obtained from ordinary grocers' and chemists' shops.

An Address (J. E. S.).—It is Tower House, South Norwood, London.

Annual Picnic Notice (R. B. Gibb).—We are sorry but CAGE BIRDS was posted before your postcard reached us.

Club Notices, etc. (G. Fawton, E. Hartley, Jas. Stoan, F. Allen, W. Yardley, J. C. Bush, and others).—We are sorry your communications reached us only after CAGE BIRDS had gone to press.

Letters (J. B. Wall).—We have duly forwarded the letters to their right addresses.

"Our Canaries" Back Numbers (Ed. Brown).—Yes, back numbers of "Our Canaries" are to be had at the same prices as the advertised current issues.

Goldfinches Nesting in a Cage.

Sir,—I am sorry to state that the result of the above was all eggs clear, the hen having sat 14 days, and as close as a hen Canary. As she is again nest building, I shall hope to report better luck next time.

Wm. Hy. Bowerman.

Quality Notes in Linnet Singing.

Sir,—At the request of several members of the Salford Linnet Club, will you kindly ask the Linnet fanciers the notes for quality singing, and whether the Lancashire and Yorkshire clubs judge the same notes? There seems to be a lot of difference. Certain notes are given as good in Yorkshire, when in Lancashire they are not counted. Linnet singers, kindly reply.

B. Wharton.

The Keeping of the Woodlark.

Sir,—Could any of your readers tell me the best way to keep a Woodlark? I believe it would be a good thing for many fanciers if they could get some information on this subject W. R.

[In a week or so's time two "Nutshell" booklets dealing with the keeping of insectivorous birds will be published, and the Woodlark is dealt with in one of these. Mr. Norman's book on "Softbills" also deals with this bird.—Editor.]

A New Cage Bird Society for Gravesend.

Sir,—A few friends met together at Church House, Church Street, Gravesend, on June 20, to form a new Cage Birds Society. We decided to call it the Gravesend and Northfleet Coronation Cage Birds Society. We will have our first general meeting on July 5, at eight o'clock, at the above address. All who are interested in cage birds are invited to attend. Ladies are especially invited. It was also decided that the annual subscription should be 2s.

Death of a Noted Exhibition Linnet.

Sir,—It is with deep regret I have to report the somewhat unexpected death of my well known Linnet, "Old Brownie," who died on the evening of June 20th, in what I should term an apoplectic seizure, or fit, which lasted about twelve minutes. I tried all I knew to pull him round, but without effect. As a prize winner very few Linnets could surpass his record, which totalled 41 first prizes, and three challenge cups, and he was thrice first at the L.C.B.A. (Horticultural Hall) Show (1907, 1908, 1910). Unfortunately in 1909 he just missed the 1st award, and was undoubtedly beaten to second place by a very fine bird exhibited by Mr. Maxwell. Still I have the consolation that he is to be given an honoured place in the British Museum, where he will grace a special case of meritorious winners allotted by the authorities to the members of the L.C.B.A., and although he has gone over to the great majority, I shall always cherish with much pride his brilliant achievements on the show bench.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

Sir.—I think the above has now been debated enough, and this shall be my final letter In reply to Mr. Woodall, I may say that the further he goes the bigger hash he makes of it. He says, when I quote club reports have them before me, don't trust to memory; and then in his own letter he quotes the very words I used. He asks me not to quote from memory, and then deliberately misquotes my letter in your issue of May 20th! He says "I still maintain my report was correct, distinctly stating in the Sheffied district," meaning the 20 miles radius. Then to try and prove his point he quotes the four Sheffield societies. Now, Mr. Woodall, what do you mean? When you say a thing, stick to it. Don't wobble about so. Quoting my letter of June 3rd you read into it something I never said. However, Sir, I cannot go on for ever correcting false statements. Seeing Mr. Woodall has only been in Sheffield something like a year, and has to get all his information second-hand, there is no wonder (considering the source he gets it from) that he makes so many mistakes. With regard to Mr. Bishop, after saying in a previous letter that so far as he is concerned this little controversy ceases, he treats us to a second edition, but not at all revised, and still full of that bunkum which characterises all his letters. Mr. B. says the S.O.S. nest feather show was not fixed until April 4. Now, Mr. B., you know quite well the original date was fixed before the Sheffield C.B.S. fixed their dates. If you don't, refer to your syllabus, and you will find it was fixed for July 15th. It is known why it was altered to the present date. But, Sir, I think I have exposed sufficient of their statements for readers to know that anything Messrs. Woodall and Bishop write needs taking with a grain of salt. I am quite content to leave the issue in the hands of the fanciers of Sheffield and your numerous readers. In conclusion, let me say how thoroughly I have enjoyed this correspondence; it has revealed more than I ever thought for.

J. Woolhouse.

Ground Plan of Mr. Illingworth's Outdoor Aviary.

My Outdoor Aviary and Its Contents.

Sir,—My aviary is situated in the corner of a snug garden in the village of Lightcliffe, two miles from Halifax, and six miles from Bradford. It is 16ft. in length and 5ft. broad, 6ft. high. For the indoor or sleeping compartment I use a section of a greenhouse, this part being boarded in so as to give warmth to the birds in cold and frosty weather. The outdoor section is partly covered in by a roof consisting of boards and tarpaulin. The front and end are open. A wall forms the back, with ivy growing up, thus offering the birds a splendid site for nesting purposes. In front of the ivy are five small shrubs—a boxwood, evergreen, thick privet, and a rhododendron; in these I have placed husks. On the back, over the ivy, are several nest boxes, made out of Canary wood, square in shape, with a small hole for the birds to enter. At the front grass sods form the finish to the soil, which starts at the back of the aviary. At one end there is a double door which gives access into the flight. I always make a point of feeding my birds inside the aviary, because the seed is an attraction to mice. I have a shallow stream running through the aviary (with rocks and long grass at either side), thus giving the birds plenty of clean water to drink and bathe in. The contents of my aviary are Nutmeg Finches or Spice Birds, Avadavats, Weavers, Waxbills (orange-cheeked and St. Helena), Zebra Finches, Combassous, Cordon Bleus, Bishops, Firefinches, and one pair of Paradise Whydahs. All the above birds are living out of doors, and have been since April 1 of this year. Up to now I have had no loss, the birds having found the indoor compartment warm enough to shelter them during the cold weather in April. I have two pairs of Zebra Finches with eggs, which are due to hatch in a week. I enclose a ground plan, which may help the reader to get a firmer grasp of the position of the aviary. I wish Cage Birds the great success it deserves.

A Remedy for Beetles.

Sir,—I see a reader asking advice on how to get rid of beetles. I can endorse the advice given by Mr. J. Simpson. I once removed into a house which was "alive" with them, and I was advised to get a hedgehog. My father, being a gardener, got me one, and the hog got them out in no time. It was amusing to wake up in the night-time and hear him munching away at them, as it was only in the night-time he came out from under my bed, where he slept.

Hybrid Bred Between Sulphur Seed-eater & Hen Canary.

Sir,—I have this season bred a hybrid between a Sulphur Seed Eater cock (Serinus sulphuratus) and a Canary hen. The hen laid five eggs—two of which were fertile—and both youngsters hatched, but one was deformed, so I killed it; the other is now on the perch. Would any of your readers inform me if this is a rare cross or not? The young bird resembles the Seed Eater in face markings.

A "Derby" for Norwich Plainhead Fanciers.

Sir,—A "Derby" for Norwich fanciers, as suggested by "Sunstar," in your issue of June 24th, would undoubtedly, if so managed as to keep the element of chance running very strongly, be of vast interest. I fear if "Sunstar's" idea is for unflighted birds to be nominated immediately prior to the event, that the result would be almost a foregone conclusion; thus diminishing interest and entries. If closed rings were issued by the Secretary of the Club, the birds nominated not later than July 31st, and the event held fairly early in the season, I venture an opinion the interest and entry would be enormous. From the sale of rings, subscriptions, and possibly a bird from some enterprising society to secure the event, the question of a substantial trophy should not long remain in doubt. Unfortunately the above suggestions are too late for this season.

The Hand-rearing of Young Starlings.

Sir,—Many may like to have a try to get a Starling to equal those two talented birds referred to by Mr. Ferrar in Cage Birds some time since. Anyone who essays to hand-rear Starlings will require a great deal of patience and perseverance. The following is a very simple method of hand-rearing these birds—one which I adopted last season in a hurry. I had not at that time brought up any Starlings by means of hand-rearing for some years, as I had no room to keep birds, and so gave them up some years ago, only now and then raising a nest for a friend. My birds, five in number, were brought to me by a boy who had got them from a hole in a tree, and they were then just at the right age for hand-rearing. I did not want them, but as he would leave them or kill them, I kept them. I put them in a basket with a lid on it in an old nest of a Blackbird's. I could not get them to feed for some hours, but at last they became hungry, and began to chirrup, which they could do well. I mixed up some barley meal with new boiled milk into a nice sop. And couldn't they enjoy it! They kept me going hourly until they could pick for themselves; even then they liked to be fed, and would follow me about the room for food. The birds never had anything except this food all the time I was hand-rearing them. Then when they could feed themselves they much preferred the barley meal mixture to the mixture usually given to commence with. They never had any insects of any kind—neither worms nor mealworms—and I must confess that I have had finer and stronger young birds. I had to clear the cages out in a hurry, as the "powers that be" were getting rather inquisitive, and I did not want to be "had," as I had been "given away" by a gentleman—but on this subject more later on. If I had not taken these birds in the first instance they would have been killed, as most young birds are when got by boys, as they soon get tired of them, and either kill them or get too idle or lazy to feed them. It is, I must admit, more human to kill them at once than starve them to death. As I found that these birds did so well on this common feed, I thought it would interest many of your numerous readers to tell them of it. There are many—or there used to be many—who firmly declare that there are two kinds of Starlings, one which builds in holes of trees and the other which builds in chimneys, roofs, etc.; but it is only the birds' matter of taste as to where they shall build, for they are the same species. Some still declare that those Starlings which build in tree holes make the best talkers, and that these birds would not require their tongues cut to make talkers, it being only the house-bred birds which required their tongues cut before they would talk or mimic! Both of these statements are fallacious. And it takes a lot to convince me that they are so. Only last year I had some Starlings and Jackdaws brought to me to have their tongues cut. I suggested that I had better try the tongues first of those who brought the birds. If it improved their speech, I suggested I would then act on the birds. This they declined to allow me to do, so the birds did not have to suffer. I still find it very hard every season to convince some that tongue-cutting is not necessary, not to say anything about its being cruel. If any one liked, in the hand-rearing of Starlings they could try another soft feed of barley meal and hard-boiled egg of equal parts, with three teaspoonfuls of ants' eggs soaked; but this is rather too good to give the birds when it is hardly necessary. After they can feed themselves, it is best to separate them at once in cages of a good size. These birds will have to be kept scrupulously clean both for their sake and yours if they are kept indoors. I don't know of any bird of the larger kinds which make more knowing, pleasant and interesting pets. The hens, when sexed, should be given their liberty except you wish to breed the species in a large outdoor aviary, for a pair of them would most readily do so and prove very interesting; but they would require plenty of insect food when rearing their young.

A Canary with Pure Pink Eyes.

Sir,—I have bred a Canary (yellow) with two pure pink eyes. Is this a rarity or a freak, and is it of any value on account of the same?

W. M. Morton.

[A Canary with pink eyes is of no special value (unless, of course, a good exhibition specimen of some particular breed). This pink eye is just the "outward visible sign" (so to speak) of the fact that cinnamon blood courses more or less strongly in the bird's veins, and also in the veins of its parents. If the latter possess but little cinnamon blood (the male parent in particular) then our correspondent's bird will turn out to be a hen. These clear birds with pink eyes are quite commonly bred, especially in the Yorkshire variety.—Editor.]

Which is the Strongest Society in Wales?

Sir,—In reading a report of the Swansea C.B.S., published in your last issue, I note the following statement: "By this amalgamation the Swansea C.B.S. has been greatly strengthened, and is now the strongest society in Wales, its membership being only a few short of 100." We have no means at our disposal of ascertaining the strength of other societies, but if a society with nearly 100 members claims to be the strongest in Wales, then the North Wales Cage Birds Society can claim the distinction of being stronger than the strongest society in Wales, for its members now number 102. Successful Operations Upon Birds.

Sir,—Some time ago one of my Chinese Quails flew up and cut the top of its head open very badly. I carefully bathed it and stitched up the wound. In about three weeks it was well, and sold, the customer writing to say how pleased she was with it. This is the second operation of the same kind I have performed. The other was on a Mandarin Duck, which caught its head on a nail, causing a gash about 3 inches long. This was rather a serious case, but with someone to hold the bird, I managed to put in four or five stitches. The operation turned out quite successful, and the bird was in the Birmingham Show a month later, although, of course, its chances of being noticed were gone. H. Lewis

The Cage Bird Fancy in Ireland.

Sir,—I expected the Assistant Secretary of the N.C. and Y.C.C. of Belfast to report the meeting held on June 3rd, and why he has not done so is best known to himself, as he was asked by the meeting to do so. "One in the Know" has let your readers know that such a meeting was held, but what he says about the business transacted is nothing but falsehood and slander from beginning to end. There is another meeting to be held on July 1st, when all members and friends are requested to attend (including "One in the Know"), and if he can prove that I, or anyone, moved a motion to expel members for writing to Cage Birds, or I or anyone withdrew such a motion, I will lay a pound (£1) to be given to any charity he may name. He refers to the good it has done some novices; but he himself is no novice in making false charges about members of the above society. The subject to be discussed at the next meeting is "The Use and Abuse of the Fancy Press," and other matters of interest to the Fancy at large. I hope "One in the Know" will be there, and he can no doubt get some of the information he is asking for. If he is a man he will do so. I will say no more at present, but I hope someone will give an authentic report of the meeting for the information of readers of Cage Birds.

W. Connell.

Sir,—Having read in past issues several allegations against the members of the Belfast N.C. and Y.C.C., I will not say they are made without some foundation, but I think in all fairness that whoever is writing should come to the next meeting. I will guarantee he will get a hearing, as the meeting is open to all (members or non-members). The membership has increased wonderfully this year, and there is a cup to be competed for at the annual show, together with several gold medals, and at the last meeting Mr. Walter Connell (the Hon. Treasurer) kindly promised a £1 special. So I can see nothing to complain of, and I am afraid "One in the know" is not writing to benefit the Fancy. His opinion of Mr. South I expected to see confuted, as it was nothing more than bluff. A Belfast Member.

An Appeal for the Family of a Manchester Fancier.

Sir,—The Manchester and Northern C.O.S. and Ardwick and District C.B.S. have opened jointly a subscription fund in aid of the late Mr. J. Coulson's widow and three little children, one of whom is an invalid. We might mention that Mr. Coulson was a prominent exhibitor of the Norwich Canary. He was connected with the M. and N.C.O.S. for a good number of years, and acted as treasurer; also at the same time was President of the Ardwick and District C.B.S. This is a very deserving case, and we appeal to those that are able to support us in this effort. Mr. Bladon (M. and N.C.O.S. President) is acting as treasurer for this fund. Any donations can be forwarded to Mr. Bladon (361, Eccles New Road, Weaste, Manchester), or to either of the secretaries, which will be handed over to Mr. Bladon, and duly acknowledged.

H. BOOTHMAN, Hon. Sec., M. and N.C.O.S., 8, Kettering Road, Levenshulme.

*A Curious Nesting Place.

A Linnet has built its nest in a narrow-necked can which is suspended from the wall at Biel North Lodge, a few miles from Dunbar. The bird is rearing a brood. It appears to be in no way disturbed by the presence of onlookers, and the quick and curious way in which it enters the can has proved a source of much interest.—Sent by Nettie Sharpe (age 11), Cora Linn, Union Street, Motherwell.

Saving a Nest of Young.

One day a number of years ago my grandma, to her great surprise, saw a nest containing some young birds fall down the chimney. She quickly snatched the nest from the fire, and saved the little ones from burning. Taking them outside, she placed them and the nest in a tree facing the back door. They were soon found by their parents, who could frequently be seen feeding them.—Sent by Ethel Bamford, 30, Moat Road, Walsall.

*The Goldie's Retu n.

Several years ago I kept a Goldfinch, as we have always had birds. I had him for a long time and then, one spring, let him out, thinking perhaps he would like to find a mate. Meanwhile I had often bought wild, unsatisfactory birds, which wanted to get out, and their wishes were nearly always granted. But one autumn morning, I came into the room and found a Goldfinch sitting on the curtain-pole, the window being open; after I had opened the cage door he flew in, and began eating seed, and made no attempt to escape, being my old favourite Goldie, who had returned age 18 months' absence.—Sent by J. L. A. Craven, age 14, Maer Down, Bude, Cornwall.

Wild-Bird Life.

Young Blue Tits and Thrushes.

It is not always the largest birds that make the most noise. Blue Tits are almost the smallest of our resident birds, yet a family of them, if located anywhere near or in one's garden, constantly remind him by their incessant chattering and call notes that they are about. Yet they are so full of life and vivacity that in spite of their being so common one is interested in their doings. As soon as the young ones get a few feathers they are anxious to see the outside world, and so scramble up the sides of their homes, and jostle each other at the entrance or sit in a bunch just outside. Their sharp eyes quickly detect the parent bird coming with food, and then the fluffy mites are all attention and excitement, and so noisy that one cannot but mark them. The old birds undoubtedly do no end of good at this stage. A tree in the writer's garden is being constantly visited by them. This is infested with fairly large caterpillars, which the birds are gradually clearing, but the young ones are now beginning to wander from the nesting site during the day, and can be seen occasionally seeking food for themselves. As the sun begins to sink they find their way back to the nest, and then commences a performance that makes one of the most interesting pictures in bird life; they flutter from branch to branch, in and out the nesting hole, clinging to the bark at the sides, and getting into the prettiest positions imaginable; at last, when they all crowd into the hole, one can hear a little contented chirping, for the little mites must be tired with their long day's outing and glad to get settled for the night. Although young birds instinctively learn to pick up food for themselves, they evidently seek their own sustenance earlier when the parent bird teaches them to look for it.

An old cock Thrush is now on the grass plot with one of his babies (which is quite as big as he is himself). He finds a worm or insect of some kind, and runs back to the young one; lays it down in front of him; and then proceeds to break it up. If the young one does not help himself, he quickly pops it into his beak, but it is astonishing how quickly they learn and soon begin to look round for food for themselves.

Of all birds, perhaps young Cuckoos are fed longest by their foster parents. They never attempt to seek for themselves until their feeders are quite worn out and sick of the work.

Young Ring Ouzels.

In many cases young birds differ greatly from their parents. As an instance, young Ring Ouzels have no white collar or gorget on the breast and their feathers are brownish black, edged with dirty white.

Encouraging Owls.

Where the common House Sparrow is numerous in America, every encouragement is given to Owls and other natural enemies of the Sparrow, as by this means the pest is kept within bounds more effectually than by any other.

BREEDING RESULTS OF THE 1911 SEASON.

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

Nearing the Century.

I have been very successful, having reared a total of 86 up to the present, viz., 64 Yorkshires, 14 Norwich, and eight Goldfinch Mules, with eleven hens due to hatch during next week. I hope soon to turn the century. I do not think that Portsmouth fanciers are having very good luck from what I can gather.—J. G. W. Chitson (Bedhampton).

A Great Start.

I have successfully hatched and reared four Canaries out of four eggs in the first nest, and six Canaries out of six eggs in the second nest, and the hen is now sitting again on four eggs. I am glad to say that all are very healthy and doing well, and are now on hard seed. This is my first experience in bird breeding.—(Miss) L. M. Nicholls (Mitcham).

Light Yellow Linnet Mules.

I have had my most successful breeding season in Mule breeding, and I have been at it this last seventeen years. From three pairs for Linnet Mules I have had the luck to get two splendid ticked yellow Linnet Mules. I have altogether seventeen, with fifteen to hatch next week. I have twelve Norwich also doing well, and twenty due to hatch out in a few days. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—Wm. McAteer (Belfast).

In the Courts.

Starved to Death.

For ill-treating a Canary at 4, Hooten St., between May 24 and 29, John Terry, furniture remover, of 60, Clarence Street, was recently fined 20s. by Mr. W. L. Hardstaff and Mr. W. Davis in the Nottingham Summons Court.

Charles Shorthouse, of 2, Hooten Street, said that on May 24 he saw the defendant bring a Canary in a cage to No. 4. The bird was all right then, and for the next two or three days witness heard it whistling in the yard. The last time he saw it alive was on May 27. On the Monday witness called in the inspector, and they went into No. 4, and in the back bedroom found the bird dead in the cage. There was no water or food of any description in the cage, and the bird had evidently been starved to death.

Inspector Theobold, of the R.S.P.C.A., supported this evidence. When he asked the defendant for an explanation, he said he must have neglected the bird; he had been busy.—"Nottingham Evening Post."

Alleged Frauds on Advertisers.

At the Liverpool Police Court on June 27, before Mr. Stuart Deacon, a man named Wm. Smith, alias Sinclair, Jones, and Ellis, was charged on five informations with obtaining by a trick Canaries from people in different parts of the country.

For some time prisoner has been in the habit of corresponding with advertisers in CAGE BIRDS; by this means he obtained a number of Canaries and sold them in different parts of the city. He procured the birds on the pretence that he would send musical instruments in exchange, but the advertisers did not afterwards hear from him. Prisoner, who was arrested by Detective Range, was remanded for eight days in order that the police might make further inquiries.—"Liverpool Evening Express."

Shooting a Snow Bunting in South Wales.

The shooting of a Snow Bunting on the Flat Holm formed the subject of a case at Cardiff on June 13, when Bert Ansaldo (King's Road) pleaded guilty before Dr. Treasure and Alderman Morgan Thomas to having been in possession of a Snow Bunting.

Mr. Ensor, who prosecuted, said that to be in possession of this rare bird was an offence under the Wild Birds' Protection Act. On May 20 some people were on the Flat Holm shooting. Afterwards a Snow Bunting was found in Mr. Ansaldo's possession, but who shot the bird they did not know. The bird was very rarely found lower down than the North of Scotland.

Mr. Ansaldo said that the bird was brought to him by an entire stranger, who asked him what it was. He told him that it was a Snow Bunting, and a rare bird, and that if they would give it him he would have it stuffed and presented to the National Museum. The man gave it to him, and on returning to Cardiff he sent it to be stuffed, with the intention of handing it over to Dr. Hoyle. Witness remarked at the time that it was a great shame the bird had been shot.

The case was dismissed, the magistrates remarking it was a pity that when people went out shooting they could not refrain from shooting rare birds.

Subsequently, on the application of Mr. Cox (who represented the Wild Birds' Protection Society), through the prosecuting solicitor, the magistrates made an order for the forfeiture of the bird, which will be presented to the Welsh National Museum.—"South Wales Echo."

Last but not least on the List.

The last, but not the least, bird I shall mention is the largest bird in the Finch family, and one for which I have the greatest admiration; that is the Hawfinch. My experience with this bird is that if you can possibly manage to get nestlings or hand-reared ones have them at all costs. I have found by practical experience that they moult far more freely than adult-caught birds. They develope quicker, and are more easily got used to captivity. If you are going in for nestlings, I must admit that you have not much of a guide to go by in selecting, as very often the roughest-looking birds turn out the best. They are like the Greypate and Goldfinch for body colour, and are also deficient of bib. Still, even with this handicap you can do worse than select the largest and tallest birds. If you cannot get nestlings, and have to rely on field-moulted birds, go in for the kindest dispositioned ones you can lay your hands on, combined with size, colour, and a bib of jet black, as broad and long as possible—not triangular, but thumb-shaped.

The menu for the Hawfinch is half sunflower, half hemp, eighth canary, eighth flax, with a sprinkling of beach mast and maple seeds. He is also very fond of the following delicacies in season: new peas, cores of apples and pears, hawthorn berries, Indian corn; and, of course, he must have some form of animal food. I give my birds five mealworms daily.

Treatment fresh-caught birds.

Although I have now singled out six or seven Finches, I should like to add more, but time is getting on, and, having finished the selection, now comes the management. If you desire to keep and successfully moult birds to perfection, you must undoubtedly resort to fresh air, plenty of exercise, and pure cold water. And it is necessary to be in possession of an outdoor aviary. Whenever I buy a freshly-caught bird. I always place him in a store cage for at least three weeks; then, when I find he is well on seed and fairly contented with his lot, I cage him up in a small schooling cage, there to be trained until the moult approaches. By this time he should be fairly steady. Then I turn him into a flight with other Finches, running him into a show cage twice a week during this period; otherwise I find he is nearly as wild as when first I obtained him.

I usually put the following species together in flights which are about 6ft. long, 2ft. high, and 2ft. deep: 1, Goldies and Linnets; 2, Siskins, Redpolls and Twites; 3, Chaffinches and Brambles; 4, Bullies, Greenfinches, and Hawfinches. My method is to let all these birds stop together all through the moult, unless something unforeseen happens, such as a bird turning sickly (which I liberate before it gets too bad), or one turning pugilist, and attacking the others. Of course, if you run birds together unwisely, such as two cock Chaffies and one hen Chaffie, and half a dozen Bullies together, then you are asking for trouble, and will require a pillow slip to gather the stray feathers; and perhaps, in the case of the former, it may be a matter of "matrimonial murder."

The Importance of fresh water.

The birds are supplied with fresh water in zinc baths three times daily, at 7 o'clock a.m., 1 o'clock p.m., and 5 o'clock p.m.; the baths measure 10ins. long and 8ins. wide. This is a very important item, especially the trouble, as some term it, of giving them it fresh each time; but you will be compensated by it threefold in return. Your birds will shine like a top-hat. There are many birds, especially Britishers, that as soon as fresh water is given them, will bathe at once: it is so with mine, and nearly all bathe at least three times daily, which accounts for the beautiful lustre and sheen on the feathers, so often described in the Fancy Press. Besides, it makes the birds as hard as nails, and able to withstand any strain or fatigue on long journeys to or from shows. Why, if anyone would only look back over last show season he will see that a noted little champion travelled all over the country, thousands of miles, during the season, and finished it as well as he started it. This, then, is what I call the very essence of condition, and you cannot get it without the aid of the beautiful bath. Take no notice of what other cranks say about giving the bath only on warm days. The bird is the best judge himself, and I have had them bathe when the thermometer has registered 28 degrees.

So much for the bath; next for the special feed during the moult. For all my Finches I always gather plenty of groundsel, chickweed, shepherd's purse, dandelion, thistle, cornflower, plantain, hardheads, milk or sow thistle, and knapweed. I pull the plants up by the roots, and throw it into the flights, roots as well, no matter if there is a quantity of mould attached to the roots, for amongst this mould and roots you will find, if you examine it carefully, there are thousands of minute insects; and let me assure you that these insects are as of much importance to your birds as the suckling seeds, in fact more so.

Just try the above, and I will guarantee you will see your Chaffie, Bramble, and Greenie, Redpolls, Linnets, in fact all the Finches, devour it, and treat it as a great luxury. Of course, I do not gather all the green foods every day, but usually three times a week, and I never let it remain in the flights more than one day; this is most important.

Concerning colour feeding.

As regards colour feeding, I only use it with a few of my Finches, and, as I have said before, owing to the severity of the competition that one has to meet nowadays, it is absolutely necessary to colour feed; it is folly for a man to think otherwise. Of course, there are some exceptions; a few Finches are not particularly improved to any great extent with the colour food, among which are the Goldfinch, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, and Siskin. I like to see these four Finches just in the simple colour in which Nature adorned them. As regards Linnets, Twites, Redpolls, Brambles, Hawfinches, Yellow Buntings, etc., however, I do not think it is necessary to colour feed.

After the moult comes the staging. If there is one valuable asset in a fancier's possession, it should be the knowing how to stage his birds to perfection. I assure you it goes a long way—well on the road, in fact—to the coveted and cherished award of first and special. You have repeatedly read in show reports where the critics describe the winning bird as being "put down by a master hand" or "staged to perfection"; and what is more flattering to the owner? Now, there are many points to be learnt by visiting the big shows, and I never fail to carry a rule with me, so that I can, if necessary, take a few measurements.

Systems of Staging.

It is very interesting to see the fads and fancies of some of the exhibitors. Some have their cages enamelled with very unsuitable colours; some painted; and some with no paint at all. The worst of all is that many cages sent to shows are not completely dry, and in consequence of this the bird may have a portion of green enamel or japan black on his leg, or one or two feathers sticking to the back of the cage, or when Mr. Judge comes up for his inspection and grabs hold of the cage he probably has some difficulty in removing his hand from the side of the cage. When he has released himself he looks at his hand, only to find it covered with Japan black, and he usually drops the cage like a hot cinder, leaving the bird in disgust; hence the penalty of sending your cage to a show in an unfit state. This statement, I am sure, many judges of repute will verify. It is not fair to the judge nor to a really good bird that would probably make a reputation for itself to be put down by the judge through the careless neglect of its owner. And to sum it up briefly, it all amounts to laziness.

My systems of staging birds for exhibition have been various. I have not stuck to one hard and fast rule, in the matter of either dimensions or shape of cage, or of the colours to suit the various birds.

I have given the bow-fronted cages a thorough trial, and I intend weeding them out when the chance occurs, as I find by actual experience that they are not an improvement on the straight-fronted ones. They have three great drawbacks. The first is, they invite a bird to fly up to the top of the bow front and perform the "back-head twirling," or the "somersault" tricks frequently resorted to by Goldies, Siskins, Redpolls, and Twites. Secondly, when sending my exhibits to shows in these bow-front cages I have always found my birds, when unpacked upon their return home, clinging to the top of the wires—a very dangerous position for the bird to be in; and I have often wondered that I have not had one or two hung up, by the careless way in which they have been returned. Thirdly, it is unnecessary for me to say that the cages get into a beastly dirty state when at shows by the dust, dirt, and other refuse dropping from the cages of other birds staged above them.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting held June 17th. Arcade Temperance Hotel, Mr. Jas. Simpson presiding. The estimate of Mr. Fraser Simpson was accepted for show printing. Mr. D. Low (Dundee) was appointed judge for the Scotch Fancy Section. Other judges are: Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso), Borders and Yorkshires; Mr. J. Adams (Dundee), Norwich and Crests; Mr. J. Goodfellow (Edinburgh), Mules and British. Hall report was submitted, when it was decided to leave this matter in the hands of the sub-committee. Codes of rules were next considered. Rules for membership were passed with a slight alteration. The show rules were adopted as read. The rules of the West Fife C.B. League were adopted with slight alterations, principal among which was Rule 4, and our delegates were instructed to move for equal representation. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought a splendid meeting to a close.—Joseph R. Reid, Sec.

Club Reports.

PENTRE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held June 17th. We decided to hold a half-annual show in September. We also passed a resolution that all members should pay up arrears in a month's time. Hope all members will attend next meeting on July 1st for us to have a good time.—J. Byard, Chairman.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Meeting held Miners' Hall, June 24. The classification for annual show was gone through, and three extra classes added. It was agreed that all members wishing to compete for young bird cup and novice medal must be clear on book by July 15; and new members wishing to compete for same must hand their names to secretary by July 1st. Young bird show fixed for July 29, classes and judges to be fixed at meeting on July 15. The members report a very unsatisfactory breeding season so far, but expect to make up a little in the last rounds. Will members please turn out a little better to meetings?—James Pollock, Sec.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.C.

Adjourned meeting held Village Schoolroom, Alexandria, June 20. President Hannah in the chair. Agreed, to have following classes for First Feather show: August 5: Norwich 2, (cock and hen), 1 Crest and Crestbred, 2 Borders (yellow and buff), 2 Scotch Fancy (cock and hen), 1 Yorkshire, 1 A.O.V. Entry money 3d.: 1 class British Goldfinch or Bullfinch, 1 A.O.S. British, 1 foreign Goldfinch or Bullfinch, 1 A.O.S. Foreign. For November show: Norwich 10, Crests 10, C.B. 2, Bord. 8, Scotch Fancies 8, Yorks. 2, A.O.V. 2, Selling 1, British 8, Foreign 3. Judges were voted for and will be duly announced. A committee was appointed to select a hall, get charges for same, and report at next meeting first Tuesday in July.—A. H. McLean, Hon. Sec.

CINNAMON-MARKED Y.C.C.

Committee meeting held Market Tavern, Bradford, June 24. Mr. R. Garnett presiding. Despite very unfavourable weather a very good number were present. The following resignations were accepted with regret: Messrs. T.Wood, F. Slater, F. Oldfield, T. Elsegood, F. Wordman, G. White, and A. Sykes, whilst the following were admitted as new members: Messrs. S. Wood (Heckmondwike), C. R. Bullen (Bromley, Kent), J. Thomas (Ambler Thorn), J. Elsworth (Laisterdyke). The granting of patronage for winter shows was proceeded with, but owing to some overlapping dates, and judges clashing, a complete list will have to be issued shortly. Prizes amounting to £12 11s. are offered for competition during coming season, together with a splendid cup from Mr. T. Sandiford (Preston), and two cruets presented by Mr. J. W. Ramsden (London). We can still offer our patronage for one show to be held November 18, or an alternative of December 16 or January 13. The secretaries will be pleased to hear from any society who are willing to make the requisite number of classes.—Grayshon and Allen, Secs., Wormald Street, Flush, Heckmondwike.

BELFAST N.C. AND Y.C.C.

Meeting held in Clarence Place Hall on June 3, the business being of a financial character. According to revised rules this year every member had to have his yearly subscription, viz., 6s., paid at this meeting, otherwise his name to be scored off the books. A few fell victims to this rule. An important question arose re new members who had joined this year, they being supplied with a copy of old rules when joining, as the new rules were not printed; consequently a resolution was passed to allow one month's grace to the said members; and their attention will be brought to same. A resolution was moved and carried that next meeting night be a summoned one, and that all fanciers in and around Belfast are invited to attend at 8 o'clock p.m. sharp to discuss "The Fancy in General," and have an exchange of opinions from fanciers outside the club as to its faults, and to suggest remedies, if any, besides having a full-dress debate on the pros. and cons. of certain criticisms published in the Press. All are invited, so crowd the hall, as a patient hearing will be given to each and everyone.—A. Smith, Assist. Sec.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

The 1911 Sub-committee's Recommendations.

That the support of the club be given to eight shows only for 1911-12, seven of which shall provide the following classes, viz.:—(1) Buff Crested Ck.; (2) ditto Hen; (3) ditto Crest-bred Ck.; (4) ditto Hen; (5) Yell. Crest Ck. or Hen, any age; (6) Yell. Crest-bred ditto; (7) Buff Crested Current Year Cock or Hen; (8) Buff Crest-bred ditto. The prize money per class to be not less than 20s. for an entry fee of 1s. 6d. and not less than 26s. for an entry fee of 2s., with four money prizes vhc, he, c. Each show management will be asked to provide an additional class, No. 9, for Cinnamon Crest or Crested-bred, and the C.C.C. members agree to accept prize-money on the sliding scale; i.e., half entry fees to first, two-thirds of remaining half to second, and remainder to third, with reserve as fourth, vhc, hc, c for the purpose of equalising the points. This will involve no loss on the management. The remaining show, which will be selected by the general committee, shall be considered the C.C.C. Club show, at which the following classes shall be provided, viz.: —(1) Cl. body any col. Crest Cock or Hen; (2) Buff Crested Ck. other than clear body; (3) Buff Crested Hen other than clear body; (4) Buff Crest-bred Cock, Green or Foul Green; (5) ditto clear, ticked or variegd.; (6) Yellow Crested Cock or hen; (7) Yell. Crest-bred ditto; (8) Yell. Crested Cock or Hen current year; (9) Yell. Crest bred ditto; (10) Buff Crest current year; (11) Buff Crest-bred ditto; (12) Clun. Crest or Crest-bred. Prize-money and entry fees as stated for the seven shows previously. The special prizes at each show will be: 5s. for the best Crest; 5s. ditto Crest-bred; 5s. ditto Buff Crest current year; 5s. ditto Crest-bred ditto; 5s. ditto clear body any colour Crest; 5s. ditto Yellow Crest or Crest-bred. There must not be less than four competitors for each and every special, and no member can take more than one cash special at any one show. There will also be a special value 10s. 6d. for most points at each show, only four birds of each exhibitor to count, viz.: 1 Crested cock, 1 ditto hen, 1 Crest-bred cock, 1 ditto hen. There will be no re-judging, but the points will be counted as the birds stand in their respective classes, and no member can win more than one during season. There will also be a handsome special, value 63s., consisting of a teapot, sugar, and cream jug to match for most points scored at one of the eight shows, only four birds of any exhibitor to count, viz.: 1 Crested cock, 1 ditto hen, 1 Crest-bred cock, 1 ditto hen. No re-judging; points to count as they stand in classes. The show at which this special is competed for will not be made known, but will be drawn for at the annual general meeting in the presence of the members then assembled. Th following novice classes must be provided at the shows receiving the champion support, viz.: 1 Crested A.V., 2 Crest-bred A.V. If less than eight entries in a class the novice members agree to accept prize-money in the sliding scale as set out for the Cinnamon champion classes. The specials for novice competitions will be: (1) Special, value 21s., for most points at the eight shows; (2) 10s. 6d. for second; (3) The C.C.C. diploma for best Crest at each show; (4) ditto Crest-bred, not the property of Crest winner. No member can take more than one diploma for each variety during the season.—John Tyson, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHEND & S. COUNTIES O.S.

General meeting held June 14th, there being a "full house." A satisfactory balance-sheet was presented by late secretary Franks, which showed a small deficit, but as we can see our way clear we keep smiling. We hold our first feather show at Blue Boar, Prittlewell, with a fine schedule to suit all members. There seems to be some fresh "feast" in the fanciers hereabouts, for they are all working well to bring success to the society. Messrs. Lonsdale and Tomblin were elected new members. The breeders have been fairly successful, one member mustering eighty youngsters, and some winners amongst them. Our British men have some good stuff to pull out at the shows.—Wm. C. Lockwood, Hon. Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting held Swan Hotel, Fountain-street, Manchester, June 24th, Mr. A. Foulds in chair. Decided to hold annual show Old Boar's Head Hotel, Withy Grove, Manchester. This is in the centre of the town, and an ideal spot for all to get to. All members are requested to attend next meeting, when important business is to be settled. After the business Mr. Foulds was called upon to give his lecture. Mr. Tom Routledge was appointed chairman. In opening his lecture, Mr. Foulds explained he would deal with scientific breeding. After ably taking us through this interesting subject he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The discussion was very keen. At our next meeting Mr. Kremner will give us a lecture on "The Roller Canary as it is bred and trained in Germany." All members earnestly requested to attend.—Tom Routledge.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

General meeting held June 17, at 6, Old Burlington Street, W., Mr. R. J. Pretty in the chair. Decided, to hold a young bird show on July 1, if a suitable venue could be found. A classification for Canaries and British birds was agreed upon. Mr. J. Coldaker was elected as judge. Several specials were given. The show is open to all old members. The election of a secretary was deferred, Mr. R. J. Pretty consenting to manage this show. The original rules were read with a few slight alterations. Mr. O. Heine was appointed official reporter, and Mr. E. Pretty as financial controller. Meetings to be held on the first and third Saturdays in each month; subscription 3s. per annum. Among those present were: Messrs. W. Gilbert, H. Bell, W. Salter, H. J. Pearce, O. Heine, A. Ransley, and E. Pretty. Letters were read from others, agreeing to support the society. Next meeting July 1, at The Earl Cathcart, Munster Square, N.W. (three minutes from Portland Road Station Metropolitan Railway), at 8 p.m.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Three Tuns, Eastwood, June 10th. Mr. Hickson made an admirable chairman. A fair number of members attended, but surely we should have better out of 63 members. The first feather show works out with a grand total of £2 7s. 9d., takings at the door and tickets sold by members previous to show. The points gained by members are: Canary section, Simpson and Vertigan 45, Martin and Mitchell 33, A. Kew 15; British section, Martin and Mitchell 38, Alton and Thompson 32, W. Henshaw 18, A. Smith 13. A lengthy discussion then took place with some heated exchanges (chairman having to pull them up) re young birds being stamped or registered to enable them to compete for the special prizes. No seconder came forward to a gand proposition of C. H. Martin that all young birds be stamped by a private stamp of the Society's (so as to make members show their own exhibits). Then came the same old song re partnership; Martin and Mitchell seem to be the target. I can say, without fear of contradiction, that Messrs. Martin and Mitchell have not joined hands as partners to win all before them at the Society's shows. Their partnership is to a business point of view; still they are open to dissolve showing as partners (if it will benefit the Society) after the next show, July 15th. We also arranged to give fixed prize money at members' show, viz., 5s., 3s., 2s., to try and get more members to show their birds. This concluded one of the most heated meetings this Society has held in my presence, and I hope that it may be the last of its kind if I am to still hold the reins. Now, members, turn up at the next general meeting, July 1st, at the Portland Arms; let's have the room full, and try and pull together.—J. M. Mitchell, Sec.

BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

Meeting held June 20th, Ablett's Cafe Room, Market Street, Mr. Burns in the chair. Owing no doubt to the Coronation festivities the attendance was not great. Arrangements were made to hold nest feather show on July 8th, in the Co-operative Hall, Catherine Street. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe is the appointed judge. Schedules are now in the hands of members, and as the hall is one of the best for light and comfort, it is to be hoped there will be a good number of birds staged. Mr. R. B. Wright, of the N.G.M.Y.C.C., was present at the request of the committee to put before the members his idea as to how his special for a pair of oil paintings, value £5 5s, should be competed for, namely, for most points counting upwards at the young bird show, old bird show, night show of Greens and night show of pairs and British. These conditions were adopted unanimously. He hopes every member will put forward every available bird, and endeavour in every respect to make the show worthy of the town of Birkenhead, and a credit to the Fancy. Members present reported a fairly good breeding season. Mules are plentiful. New members are rolling in, some from the locality of Ellesmere Port. Others are expected. This society is making great progress, and why shouldn't it? Mr. Burns is an ideal chairman, and in Mr. Lloyd the society is happy in their secretary; one and all agree he is the best man they have had in that most important post. Now, gentlemen, sink all differences and rally up to the shows. I hear that several of the members have booked orders for birds from South Africa and Petersham, Australia. Don't forget the nest feather show on July 8th, send in your entries early, and bring some friends with you, and make the show a success. Subscriptions due; and it is earnestly requested that members will make an early response; send in at once and save secretary trouble of looking you up. Will anyone wishing to join drop a post card to Mr. Lloyd, 84, Rodney Street, Birkenhead. The subscription is only 2s 6d, which entitles you to all benefits. Next meeting at show, July 8th. —"Reporter."

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE

Humorous Humanitarians.

"Hinc ille avium concentus."

A Trenchant Article in a Weekly Contemporary

Notes by the Secretary.

I am pleased to be in a position to announce that, although CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE has only been a few weeks in existence, its influence is already making itself felt. I think there can scarcely be in any part of Great Britain and Ireland a reader of CAGE BIRDS who has not seen in his local paper a reference to the League and its work, and these references have of course been read by untold thousands of newspaper readers. In our issue of June 3rd I had the pleasure of making a reply to the extraordinary pamphlet published by the Humanitarian League, and in the comments of the London "Daily Mirror" our readers have already had one example of the effect of this reply. It is not possible to find space for even the bare names of the papers which have published references to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, but I would like especially to mention the popular London weekly "Throne and Country." This widely read journal devotes a whole page to the question of whether it is cruel to keep a bird in a cage, and illustrates its remarks by a beautiful reproduction of the picture of the "Queen's Canary." The article is by Mr. Leonard Crocombe, and is an answer to a previous one by Mr. James Douglas taking the side of the Humanitarian League. It quotes freely from my own reply to the pamphlet of the faddists, and elaborates my arguments in such a forcible manner that I recommend all members, present or prospective, of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE—in other words, everyone who keeps a bird in a cage—to get this week's number of "Throne and Country," dated July 1, to peruse the same for himself, and to show it, and my own reply, upon which it is based, to any doubting friends.

I have space only for one quotation from Mr. Crocombe's article, but this will indicate the character of the whole, and emphasise my suggestion that all our friends should read it in its entirety.

"The Humanitarian League will have to confine itself to cold facts (of which very few exist for its purpose) if it wishes to obtain a hearing from sensible and calm-thinking people. Sensational verbiage after the manner of the American "yellow" journalism will never impress the British Public. And when a writer goes so far as to tell people that the fancy cages in which they keep their little pet Canaries are 'infernos of agony,' well—then the British Public begins to get amused. It is too farcical to be annoying. Surely such a widely-read writer as Mr. James Douglas must know that it is useless to try to work on people's feelings by the propagation of such farce."

Something for Nothing.

In the above paragraph I have indicated part of the effect of the work of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE in furtherance of one of our objects, "Defence and Protection." Now as to the fulfilment of the promise to disseminate useful literature. By arrangement with the world renowned firm "Spratt's Patent," I shall be able to send to the next one thousand members enrolled a copy either of an instructive pamphlet entitled "The Common-sense of Canary and Hybrid Canary Culture," or of a well written treatise on "British Bird Culture," with chapters on Hybrids, Doves and Foreign Birds. These two pamphlets are published at sixpence each, and are good value for the money, but CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE members will receive them absolutely without charge. Taking this in conjunction with the fact that every member is entitled to allocate half of his subscription to the benefit of his own society, I think it will be agreed that something for nothing is indeed what everyone will get from the commencement, independently of the sense of security in the pursuit of his hobby which will be always with him in the knowledge that he has CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE to defend him against the fanatical extremists who are fighting tooth and nail against bird keepers.

Existing Members Not Forgotten.

It would be unfair to exclude from participation in the above offer the large number of our readers who have been among the first to join the League, so I have reserved a sufficient number of copies to enable me to send a copy to each existing member. These will be forwarded on receipt of information as to which pamphlet would be preferred, if the request is accompanied by a halfpenny stamp for postage. This will leave me with one thousand copies only, and I may not be able to get a further supply, so those who would like to be certain of getting, gratis, one of these admirable pamphlets must hurry up to be in the next thousand members enrolled, and must say when entering which book they would prefer. I cannot supply more than one free copy to each member.

What We Are Striving At.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE wishes to improve the condition of birds in captivity from the moment they are taken, and to knock from under the feet of our opponents even the slight ground which may exist for their statements that all is not what it might be. It is proposed, therefore, to enlist the services of at least one voluntary worker in each town and district in which there are bird-catchers and bird-dealers. Catchers and dealers in birds who keep their birds in humane and sanitary conditions will not resent a friendly visit from a properly appointed representative of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and means will be found to bring to reason persons who show by any objection to such friendly call that they have something which will not bear the light of day. Of course, it is not suggested that every member of the League should take upon himself this office, or their visits would become nuisances, and if members who are willing to aid in this good work will send in their names we shall be able to make appointments that would not entail annoyance to anyone.

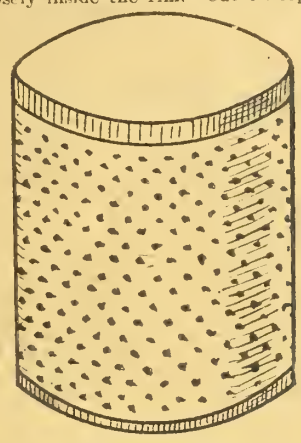
There are thousands of our readers yet to join, and the sooner they come in the sooner we can get to work with the many things we have to do. I hope that I have shown in the above notes that we have not been idle, and that I may in the future be able to report doings which will justify the confidence of all who have already helped the League with their support, and all those members yet to come.

Through extreme pressure on our space, a number of interesting letters from our members and replies to correspondents have been unavoidably crowded out. I hope to find space for these next week.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES.

Secretary, CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Recent Enrolments.



I am pleased to announce that our membership is increasing in a most satisfactory manner. Many societies are giving us valuable support in the way of membership, and one, Hetton-le-Hole, has joined us en bloc, in fulfilment of their promise announced some weeks ago. Among our recent members I am glad to count quite a number of ladies: Miss Knight (Martin), Miss Morris (Bridgwater), Miss Hughes (Wem), Mrs. Fielden-Richards (Llangollen), Mrs. Askham (Surbiton), Miss Chatto and Miss David-Davis (Wembley), Mrs. Dunsmore (Upper Norwood), and Miss Foster (Oxford), while the widespread membership of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is displayed by the names of the following among the recent male members: Messrs. Bousfield (Derby), Spence and Battison (Glasgow), Firth (Halifax), T. and W. Binns (Alne), Ball (Shaw), Hannah (Ponhill), Bardsley (Ashton-under-Lyne), Robertson (Darvel), Mulligan (Wigtown), Nisbet (Musselburgh), Roy (Auchterarder), Paterson (Lochfyne), Wilkinson (Colne), Fletcher (Seaton), Thompson (Hull), W. A. and R. W. Bennett, Rust, and Fletcher (Dartford), Styles and Tuthill (Bexley), Lindsay (Billingham), Allen (Woolwich), Douglas, Macdonald, and Youngson (Elgin), Aitken (Anniesland), A. and J. Sneddon (Coatbridge), Lewis (Highbridge), Carey (Clevedon), Leah (Ripley), Swaysland (Brighton), Watson (Rotherham), Simpson (Doncaster), White (Southall), Henderson and Barnes (Grangetown), Leavesley (Leicester), Pike (Upper Norwood), Charlesworth and Mosley (Huddersfield), Darnton and Gray (York), Downing and Twigg (Manchester), Booth and Watson (Ardwick), Long (Longsight), Swannell (Levenshulme), Criddeford (Honiton), Shaw and Hodgson, Miller, Riley, and Nicholson (Skipton), Allen, Bend, and Aspland (Grantham), Grant, Williams, Pounsett, and Hands (Cheltenham), Edmunds (Swindon), Arthurs (Guildford), Dickinson (Pontefract), Lashbrook (Sidmouth), Knutton (Honley), Shelton (Nottingham), Welland (Haslemere), Hargreaves (Bridlington), Dallow (Wolverhampton), Anderton (Wareham), Strickland (Sevenoaks), Snowden (Earley), Cooper (Scarborough), Clarke (Rothesay), Young (Shildon), and a number of London members too large to give in detail.

No. 520.
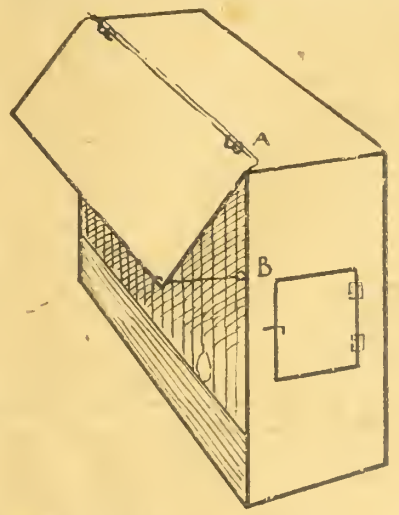
Sent by Mr. A. S. Page, 137a, Wellingborough Road, Northampton.



Herewith is a sketch of a home-made seed cleaner which answers the purpose most effectively. To make it, procure a 2lb. Scotch snuff tin and a stout piece of perforated zinc 14 inches by 7. The perforation should be just small enough to prevent canary seed passing through. Put the lid on the tin, and press it down as far as it will go. Mark the body of the tin all round the under edge of the lid, and cut the piece off cleanly. Cut off the bottom of tin in the same way, leaving a margin of about half-an-inch. Fit the zinc quite closely inside the rim. Cut off top of tin inside the rim. Leave on the bottom. Allow one edge of the zinc to overlap the other about a quarter of an inch. Solder the edge of zinc inside and out from end to end. A little solder round the edge of each rim will fasten them to body of cleaner. When using, do not fill it quite, leave a space to allow the seed to move freely. Give the cleaner a few vigorous shakes; the friction will rub the dust off the seed, and the rapid ingress and egress of air will blow it all away, leaving the seed as clean and bright as it would be if passed through a machine cleaner.—A. No. 521.

A Sun Blind.
Sent by Mr. E. Jordan, 38, Bevington Road, North Kensington.

I have enclosed a sketch of a sun blind, which would be useful to hang on front of cages when they are put outside in the heat of the sun. Get a piece of canvas or linen about 8in. wide, and cut it to the length of the cage. Cut a hole at each corner of the canvas; then screw two small hooks at the top of the front of cage. Get two screw eyes and screw them about halfway down the front of cage, as shown in sketch. Get two pieces of cage wire and fasten on to the screw eyes. Then just bend the other end of wire so that it will hook in to the hole at the corner of canvas. I think the sketch will explain itself.—E. Jordan.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous Issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

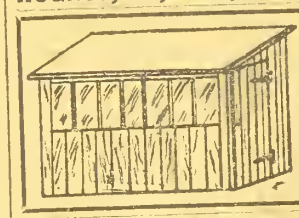
Mahogany stained outside, blue enamelled inside, with seed hoppers, nest boxes, sand trays, loose wire fronts, and sliding partitions, 18in. 2/-, 20in. 2/6, 33in. double 4/-, 36in. 4/6. Flight cages, made as above, 36in. 4/6, 40in. 5/3, 46in. 6/-; remember these are made from selected boards, not soap boxes: Morris, 112, Cape Hill, Birmingham.



THE NEW 'FILUP' FEEDER

A boon to all bird breeders. With my new feeder birds of any age can be brought up with ease. For two years I have reared three-parts of my young birds with this feeder. All fanciers should keep one by them. You never know when your hens will stop feeding. A whole nest of youngsters can be satisfied in one minute. You can save pounds for the small outlay of 1s., post free; sent per return with full instructions. No bird-room complete without one. Will last for years; only wants trying. G. L., Slough, writes: "Sir,—'Filup' safely to hand, and must say I think it a most useful thing. I should certainly have had one before had I known, as I have lost a lot of young birds this season owing to hens not feeding. Enclose P.O. value 1s. for another.": C. H. Goodman, 24, Bedford-rd., Kempston, Bedford.

SANDIFORD'S COLOUR FOODS.

Queen's Canary Coloured solely on my ROYAL RED, by G. Campling, Norwich.

Why use any other after you read below? Grand testimonials from Messrs. W. Vardy, E. Baker, H. Knight (big winner in Southern Yorkshire Canary Club), O'Reilly, Dublin (big Yorkshire winner in Ireland), all received this week. Mr. J. E. Davies, Stockport, May, 1911.—"Sir, I have much pleasure in saying that your colour food has during the past year given me every satisfaction, having secured over 50 firsts, also seconds, etc., besides N.P.C. Challenge Cup. This is second year in succession. Two firsts, fourth, and champion diploma Crystal Palace, 1911, and my birds were as bright a colour at Crystal Palace after being washed eleven times as they were at commencement of season. At Crystal Palace six out of the eight champion first prize Norwich." Never saw any colour food, only my Royal Red. Every winner in champion Cinnamon section bar one third. Never saw any but my colour food. Another big winner in Yorkshires, who won two firsts, seconds, etc. Mr. Ambler, Morecambe, writes: "April, 1911.—Sir, I can say I got a better colour from your feed than any I have ever tried." Scotland's greatest winner this last season. Mr. G. Mitchell, Brechin, writes: April, 1911.—"I have used your colour feed for years, and have found it to be all that you claim." Wales' greatest winner, Mr. D. H. Tedstone, Brecon: "Sir, I am pleased to inform you that I not only won the Welsh Cage Bird Cup. I won the solid silver Norwich Cup, the Leach Challenge Cup scores of firsts and specials, etc." I could fill this paper with testimonials like above; which should prove you need not try any other. Prices: Royal Red, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/6, 5 lbs. 7/6, 14 lbs. 17/-; Hot Natal, 2/- lb., 2 lbs. 3/8. Honey-made egg crumbs, in use by scores of Crystal Palace champions, 8d. lb., 7 lbs. 3/6. Grand for rearing youngsters and using to mix with my colour feeds. Send for samples and directions. Established 1879.

The British Bird Manual.

By H. NORMAN. The most thorough and practical work on British Birds ever produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth.

Part I.—Hardbills,—Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II.—Softbills.—With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing and will certainly not bring you success if you are beginning the hobby of Canary breeding. It is ever so much more pleasing to turn your hobby to practical benefit to yourself than to aimlessly dabble with and make a hash of it. Do the latter and you might just as well have flung away the money you laid out. Get a sound knowledge of the branch of the bird Fancy you are about to adopt, and you will profit by it. You can do so for 6d. A book specially written for the beginner is Claude St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners." It has many helpful illustrations. Post free 7d., cloth bound 1/2, from the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

SHETTLESTON & DIST. C.B.S.

First feather show, in Houston's Restaurant, Shettleston, on 1st July. There was a fair muster of young birds of nice average type. Mr. Renwick (Hamilton) judged. In the Nor. class Mr. Curly carried off the premier honours, winning the medal with a yell. hen, a real good one, in lovely condition, Secretary Berry coming a close second. The winners here were a nice lot. Borders were also a fair show. Mr. McKay cleared the boards here. Mr. Renwick's judgment gave entire satisfaction. Secretary Berry with President D. McFarlane have the satisfaction of knowing that the club is in a flourishing condition. The members have in most cases had a good breeding season. Mr. Semple had two forward in the Norwich class—both appeared soft, or might have done better. Mr. Curly heads the list for the season so far, by breeding no less than 61 youngsters (his second season only). Judging being past, the members and friends sat down to tea, which was served with good taste, under the chairmanship of President McFarlane, who toasted the judge, coupled with CAGE BIRDS representative, Mr. Joliffe, who replied. CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

Annual First Feather and British Bird Show on July 1st, in club room, at Sydney Arms Hotel. The somewhat erratic season was responsible for fewer entries in the Canary classes than would have been had the members had decent luck, but as it was, a very fine show of 80 birds faced the judge, Mr. J. H. Payne. The quality of the Norwich was excellent two or three real tip-toppers being staged, and the Border classes showed a marked improvement on previous years. British birds, as is usual in Cheltenham, were worth a journey to see. The special for most points in champion classes was won by Mr. Hiles, and medal for most points in novice section by Mr. H. Williams (Gloucester). During the evening a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Payne for judging.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Annual First Feather show held July 1st, in the large room above the White Lion Hotel. Despite the poor breeding season experienced by many of the members, there was a good entry, and between 70 and 80 birds faced the judge. Norwich were a grand lot, and were the feature of the show. Several good Yorkshires were also on view, and the Crestbrede were also a nice lot, while the Borders were very creditable considering that they are just beginning to take hold in the district. Special for best in show was won by Mr. H. Wilson, with a very nice buff Nor. of good type and quality, the runner-up being a grand yellow Nor. shown by Mr. H. Kilner. Mr. R. H. Dixon carried out the secretarial duties in his usual careful manner, everything being in perfect order. The show was well patronised by visitors during the day, and we understand that the receipts exceeded the anticipations of the committee and constitute a record for the F.F. shows. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged.

NOR. CL. YELL. (7): 1, Kilner, fine size, grand shape and col.; 2, M. Dixon, good shape, col. and quality, not so large as winner; 3, Leech, good size, nice col., not quite so chubby; vhc, Green; hc, Atkinson. BUFF (8): 1, spl, best in show, Wilson, grand shape, good head and neck, neat wings and tail, a trifle pale in col., but grand quality; 2, R. Allen, real good one, short and cobby, trimfull of col., tail not in good order, or would have probably won; 3, Leech, grand size, rare head and neck; vhc, Fenton; hc, M. Dixon; c, D. Hann. TKD. YELL. (7): 1, Atkinson, mkd. left wing, good shape and col., nice size, clean cut; 2, Kilner, thigh tkd., little to choose between them: 3 Lynn; vhc Leech; hc Leech; c M. Dixon. BUFF (8): 1, 2, R. Allen, two grand ones, nice size, lovely quality; 3, Wilson, good chest, nice wings and tail, beaten in quality; vhc, Kilner, jun.; hc, Leech. GREEN, ETC.: 1, 3, R. H. Dixon, leader grand shape, good head, neck, and chest 3rd very similar, but a trifle soft; 2, Leech, nice size, scarcely so deep in chest, neat wings and tail. BORD.: 1, 3, Fenton, apparently cl., nice shape, good col, clean cut; 2, Lynn, clear, nice shape, col, quality, not so tight feather; vhc, Lynn. CREST: 1, Hardy, self green, crest rather small, but very neat and shapely, nice centre and droop; 2, 3, Bisset, wing mkd. D.C., crest little larger than winners, but not so neat and shapely; vhc, Green. C.-B.: 1, 2, 3, Hardy, very nice team, good rise and turnover; vhc, Green. YORKS YELL.: 1, R. H. Dixon, good length, nice col. and quality, grand position; 2, Fenton, slightly heavier in build, nice length, good position; 3, Lynn, smaller, good col. and quality. BUFF: R. H. Dixon, rare length, straight as a rush, nice col.; 2, Fenton, scarcely so long, but good position and nice col.; 3, Lynn, good style and position. TKD. YELL.: 1, Lynn, mkd. left wing, grand col. and quality, nice length, good position; 2, 3, R. H. Dixon, cap and neck mkd., nice length and position, plenty of swagger, not so well up in col. BUFF: 1, 3, R. H. Dixon, tkd. right wing, good length, fine position, well drawn; 2, vhc, M. Dixon, mkd. head and neck, nice length, shade stouter body, good wings and tail. A.O.V. CAN. Dixon, both Silver Lizards, leader excelling in size and col., nicely rowed, may make out well; 3, Green, Greenie-Can. Mule, good col. and shape. LINNET: 1, Wilson, grand col., big bold bird, rare head and chest; 2, Brown, another good one, grand lacing; 3, Marshall; vhc, Allen. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, Brown, grand Mealy Redpoll, fine size, well pencilled; 2, Wilson, another good Mealy; 3, Leech, Lesser Redpoll, neat shape, nice col. and pencilling; vhc, Green. A.O.V. BRIT. (5): 1, Wilson, Goldfinch, good one, rare blaze, nice col, and polish; 2, R. H. Dixon, Hawfinch, nice shape, medium size, grand condition; 3, Lynn, Bullfinch, good col.

WESTERN COUNTIES O.S.

Second nest feather show held at Oddfellows' Hall, Plymouth, on June 26th. There was an entry of 90 cages, and the best attendance of members and friends that the society has ever had. Mr. Large judged Yorkshires, Mr. Pope Norwich, Mr. Dart Crests and C.B., Mr. Lugg Cinnamon, A.O.V. and Mules, and Mr. Clarke Brit. and For. YORKS. YELL.: 1, 2, Wordley. BUFF: 1, 2, Wordley, competition in the variety being conspicuous by its absence notwithstanding that many members keep Yorkshires. NOR. YELL.: 1, 3, Spielman, the former excelling in shape, latter very massive bird, but rather past his best; 2, 4, Tucker, correct in type; vhc, hc, Winnicott and Teague. BUFF: 1, 3, Spielman, two really grand birds, the latter the best, but somewhat soiled in feather; 2, Harvey, monster for its age; 4, vhc, c, Winnicott and Teague, the former a wing mark excelling in quality; hc, Tucker, cap mark, might have been higher up in list. CREST: 1, 2, Bavage, two promising crests; 3, 4, vhc, Coath, birds that will certainly be heard of later; hc, Parsons; c, Richards; this class was a great advancement on the May show. CREST BRED: 1, 3, Davey, winner grand Green, with exceptional head feather; 2, vhc, Bavage, former heavily varieg., running winner very close; 4, Coath, one of the best in appearance in class, but failed in head feather measurement. CINNAMON: 1, 2, Ryder; 3, 4, Dart, good in colour and feather. BORDER: 1, 4, Ryder, former a whole Cinnamon, beautiful quality of feather; 2, 3, Dart, a varieg., considered by many to be the best. FOR.: 1, Wills, Yellow Budgerigars.

BOOTLE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Nest Feather show held in St. Matthew's Parochial Hall, Thornton Road, Bootle. There was a good entry of 98 birds, some of which were very promising. Some grand birds were on view, staged by the following prominent exhibitors:—Messrs. McNulty, J. S. Young, J. Knight, R. B. Wright, R. Algie, J. McLean, F. E. Hawkes, L. Hamilton, W. Potter. Novice members, best birds by the following:—Messrs. J. Knight, R. Malone, R. Steinhart, J. W. Cooper, J. Tyler. The Norwich were more numerous than on any previous year. Mr. F. E. Hawkes put his team of greens out, and they were greatly admired. Mr. J. Taylor was also out with very promising birds. Mr. J. Thornton (Liecard) the judge, gave entire satisfaction. The secretary, as is usual with him, had everything in apple-pie order.

CL. YELL. YORKS. (7): 1, Young, grand bird, good colour and type; 2, Knight, novice, running winner very close; 3, Wright, grand type and colour; vhc, Algie; hc, Bracken; c, Potter. WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

First Feather Show held "Dartmouth Arms" Hotel, on June 20, and proved a great success in every way. The secretary and committee are to be congratulated on the management. Everything passed off well. There were 17 classes provided. The entry was not quite so large as last year, owing to most of the members having such a poor breeding season. The Norwich and Yorks. turned up well, some very nice birds being staged by Messrs. Bates, Taylor, and Andrews. Mrs. J. Jones (Dudley) judged, and gave every satisfaction.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

The City and Suburban A.C.B. held a grand young birds, etc., show on July 1, the entry totalling 205, constituting a record for the society, which continues to go ahead in first-rate style. The fine hall at headquartere (the Church Institute, Paddington Street, Marylebone) was profusely decorated with flowers and palms, and presented a charming appearance. There was an excellent attendance, and most of the notabilities of the metropolitan cage-bird world paid the exhibition a visit. The management reached the usual high standard, and congratulations are due to Mr. A. W. Curtis (who took over the secretarial position at short notice) upon the success achieved. He was backed up by the usual willing band of stewards, which included Mrs. Thynne and Messrs. A. W. Hart, Shepherd, Page, Offord, Thynne, Knight, Martin, Dickinson, Sanders, and others. The one disappointment was the absence of Mr. V. Wynn, than whom there can never have been a more popular and respected secretary. This gentleman has been compelled to resign his post (everyone hopes temporarily only), and widespread expressions of regret were heard that the society should have had to part with such a splendid man. The silver cup for best young Canary fell to Mr. F. A. Tebbs (an amateur member), a lovely necklicked Yorkie doing the needful. Its owner has not been many years in the Fancy, but promises to make things warm with his favorite variety. Mr. J. B. Lloyd scored most points towards the novice Yorks. teapot, Mr. W. Page towards Mrs. Weston's cup, and Mr. Curtis towards Mr. Wynn's cup. Mrs. Thynne won the special for most points scored by a lady, and Mrs. Weston that for the best bird, also taking the medal for best young Hybrid. Mr. T. H. Monger won Mr. Burton's cup for best vhc Yorkie. Mrs. Maher won the special for best foreign. The novice sections (Norwich, Yorks., and Borders) were a huge success, there being 21 entries in the clear or ticked Yorks. class alone. The Britishers were also a grand lot. Mr. J. Robson judged.

COVENTRY O.S.

34th Annual Nest Feather Show held July 1st, at headquarters, the Sydenham Palace. The entry was a fair one, taking into account the bad season some of the members are experiencing in breeding. The show was a great success, and had a good attendance owing to the fact that the Society for the first time made a venture to have admission free. Mr. Walton (Leicester) judged.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Young bird show held at the Broadway, Wimbledon, on July 3rd. There was a nice entry, composed chiefly of Yorkshires and Borders, the Norwich section being only fairly represented. Some good Yorkshires were put down by Messrs. Crisp, Warley, Wheeler, Smith, Mrs. Owen, and others in the Champion section. The chairman, Mr. Stoakley, staged the leaders in the clear novice class. The Borders were good, particularly Mr. Plank's two beauties. Mrs. Thynne and Mr. Owen both staged capital examples of this variety. The show was in the capable hands of Mr. H. Smith, the secretary, and passed off well. During the evening the room was well filled by fanciers and friends. Mr. J. Robson judged.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A

First Nest Feather show held at Red Lion Hotel, Stoke, June 22. The venture proved very successful. About 90 birds were staged. The Norwich classes contained some promising youngsters, which should be heard of again. The winning yellow was voted a good one, taking special for best young bird. Yorkshires were excellent, both in numbers and quality, and made a good display. Mules and British were a feature of the show, and attracted much attention. Many of the specimens staged could hold their own in the keenest competition. The show was well attended by visitors, who appeared to be well satisfied with the exhibition. The competition for the cup was very keen, several members running very close. The first eight were: J. Pitchford 17, J. Bowers 14, T. Walker 13, J. Butters 13, F. W. Alcock 13, J. Holland 10, W. H. Walton 10, W. Roberts 8. The awards were made by Mr. F. Bate, whose decisions appeared to give general satisfaction.

In the Courts.

Swindler Sentenced at Sheffield Quarter Sessions.

At the Sheffield Quarter Sessions on June 30 some long firm frauds of a particularly impudent character were investigated. The prisoner was Fred Middleton, a middle-aged miner, of Woodlands, Doncaster. He was charged with obtaining from George Whitton, John M. Finlayson, John W. Metcalfe, Walter J. Bobbett, and others, birds, etc., as per report of the preliminary proceedings given in our issue of June 24.

The circumstances disclosed a remarkable series of impudent frauds. As far back as two or three years ago the West Riding County Constabulary at Doncaster received complaints as to prisoner's trading transactions, principally from bird fanciers a long way off who had advertised their birds for sale in fanciers' papers. As a result the police warned him on three separate occasions. Notwithstanding, prisoner continued his frauds, and the police then took out a warrant at the end of May last. Prisoner's procedure was to write on note-paper headed "Fred Middleton, confectioner, cycle agent and repairer, taxidermist, agent for Hardy's Patent Pick Co., etc." He always asked for the birds to be sent on approval, and promised cash by return post. Deceived by the flash business memorandum the birds mentioned in the charges (as well as many others in cases where those who had been defrauded would not go to the trouble of prosecuting) were sent on to the prisoner. In not a single case was the money returned, all manner of excuses being invented to account for the delay and to put the prosecutors off. Prisoner appeared to be making a very good living by this modus operandi. He had no bona fide business, but, being a man of good education, was able to pen letters which successfully deceived.

To Mr. Whitton, of Tunbridge Wells, he wrote that cage birds were his hobby. A fine cock bird was sent him, and he then tried to negotiate for a hen. But Mr. Whitton was dubious, and asked for the settlement of one transaction at a time. Prisoner feigned illness and sent a doctor's certificate, and when prosecutor threatened proceedings he asked him for a few days' grace and begged that he would not "drag his name through the mire." The money was not forthcoming, and the prosecutor took proceedings.

Mr. W. J. Bobbett, of Bridgwater, was defrauded of sixteen birds, and had quite a lengthy correspondence with the prisoner. The latter wrote him that he was "starting an aviary." The birds, which were of the estimated value of 20s., were sent off on the promise of "cash by return." Prisoner then commenced shillyshallying about payment, and wrote that two of the birds were dead on arrival. When Mr. Bobbett agreed to allow 3s. off for this, the prisoner wrote that three more birds had died. He could not, he said, understand this, as they were being well looked after.

It was shown that there had been an incessant delivery from the Carcroft railway station of birds coming from all parts of the country consigned to the prisoner's house. He had kept a very small shop during the last 18 months, in which he sold sweets and bird cages. The Hardy Patent Pick Co., Ltd., knew nothing about him. A squirrel, a stuffed bird, and some bird seed were seen at his house on one occasion by the police, but a great number of live birds were found upstairs on another. There were also found in his house many letters from all over the country complaining of his business transactions, and in most cases threatening legal proceedings.

From Mr. Roberts, of Blackpool, he obtained birds valued at £2 in the New Year, and in the course of his letter wished that gentleman "a prosperous New Year." He never paid Mr. Roberts.

Prisoner signed himself "Capt." Middleton, though he had only been in the Fire Brigade. A fancier came from Wombwell, in Yorkshire, to see him about the non-payment of 30s. for two birds, and he made this man believe that he (the prisoner) had just that moment posted a postal order to him. That was untrue.

The prisoner put in a plea of guilty at the Sheffield Sessions to obtaining birds, etc., by false pretences, and the Court passed sentence of six months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Nicol, F.Z.S.; "Nesting Notes on the Blackbird," by Miss West; "Some Wild Pet Doves," by Miss Currey; and "The Keeping of Hawks and Owls," by J. L. Bonhote, M.A. There is the usual budget of correspondence and notes.

FIRST FEATHER SHOWS.

Important Offer: Secretaries, Note!

We have decided again this year to accept advertisements of First Feather (young bird) shows at the reduced charge of 3s. 6d. per single column inch (2s. the half inch). And we will present a special prize of a framed coloured plate to all societies spending not less than 10s. 6d. in advertising their Young Bird Show in our columns.

Secretaries taking advantage of this offer should state very clearly in their advertisements the date, time, and place of the show. These particulars put before our readers will, without doubt, result in a much greater attendance at these early fixtures, and the making of new members, while the "gate-money" (where a charge is made) will benefit, and the sale of catalogues, too. This special cheap rate, of course, only applies to First Feather shows.

Secretaries should note that we can print at very favourable rates, show schedules, posters in colours, and ornamental prize-cards. Send for samples and prices.

We are sorry we cannot see our way to hold an Open Show this season; we are having a local show only, writes Mr. W. T. Singleton, hon. sec., Darwen and Dist. C.B.S. I am pleased to report that I have just received a cheque from our president, Mr. F. G. Hindle, to purchase a cup, and I hope to get one or two more yet.

We have engaged Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) to judge the Border and Scotch Fancy Canaries along with the Mules and British and foreign birds at Ayr Open Show on October 28, writes Mr. James Sloan, the hon. sec. We have also been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. A. Watson (Kilmarnock) to judge the Norwich and Crests.

Mr. T. Smith, of Glasgow, writes: It is cheering to learn that Councillor James Hogg, of Oakley, Fife, who has been indisposed for a few weeks, is again moving about. It is to be hoped he will have a speedy recovery. He cannot be done without at our leading shows—they are not complete without his familiar personage.

The Brighton C.B.A. will hold their second young stock show with British and Foreign Birds on July 19th, in the large club-room, 2, Cheapside, writes Mr. Will H. Gibb, the Secretary. Mr. W. R. Miles (Chichester) will officiate. There is sure to be keen competition for the club specials presented by Messrs. C. Pearson and E. Cadman, for most points gained by nominated birds, as several members are close together with points gained in the June show. There is also a good list of other specials for best in class and show. The show will be open to the public after 5 o'clock.

OBITUARY.

The members of Dalkeith and Bonnyrigg express their sympathy with their esteemed member, Mr. Thos. Bickerstaff, of Eskbank, whose wife was laid to rest on July 3rd. The Fancy is poorer by the loss of such a woman, for to her counsel and assistance were due the measure of success achieved by her husband. We lay our wreath on the grave of one who looked well to the ways of the household, and ate not the bread of idleness.—J. Steel and G. Harper, secretaries, Dalkeith and Bonnyrigg societies.

In an aviary in our back garden we have four Goldfinches, two Bullfinches, one Linnet, one Siskin, and one Redpoll. One of the Bullies has laid five eggs, and is now sitting. If we get any Hybrids I will write and let you know.—Dorothy Badcock (Upper Tooting).

South-West London C.B.S. hold their 15th Young Bird Show, July 13, at the Plough Hotel, St. John's Hill, Clapham Junction, writes Mr. John Jeffrey, the hon. sec. The committee hope fanciers and friends will give them a look in (no charge for admission). All trams pass the door; two minutes' walk from Clapham Junction Station.

At the Queen's Park and Dist. C.B.A. First Feather Show the entries were only half the usual number, writes Mr. J. C. Birch, the hon. sec., no doubt owing to the date clashing with the Coronation festivities. The Yorkshire novice classes were the only section patronised almost, the others being very poor. The gate was most disappointing.

Will members and fanciers please note that entries for the Young Bird Show of the Admiral Duncan O.S. (Notts), to be held on July 15, close on Thursday, July 13? Also that we accept new members up to this date? Fanciers within a ten-mile radius of Nottingham Market Place are eligible to join.—J. Cowpertwait, sec. (22, Edwin Street, Nottingham).

I find I gave you the wrong date for the Clapham C.B.S. Young Bird Show, writes Mr. A. E. Priest. It is on Saturday, July 15th, at 3 o'clock. Judges, Mr. J. Robson Canaries, and Mr. J. Frostick, British, etc. As I am unable to get away from business on a Saturday afternoon, our late secretary, Mr. A. C. Askew, has kindly offered to act as show manager, so I hope the members will support him well.

Some weeks ago, at the instance of Mr. Priestman, sec. of Ilford F. and F.S., we published a warning against a Frederick Harris, of Ilford, whom we understood was obtaining birds and not paying for them. We hear now that this man has gone away and that his landlord, Mr. Cheeswas, has distrained for rent upon the birds, appliances, etc., upon the premises. Mr. H. Oliver, of Glossop, writes: He owes me £7 for birds, and I had him in the County Court to appear at Glossop on July 26, which cost me a further 10s. It has fairly upset me, as I am only a carpenter with six little children and could ill afford to lose it. I have written to Mr. Cheeswas to-night to see if he can do anything for me, but I suppose Harris will owe a lot of rent, which will take all he has left. [We understand that there is considerable stock on the premises, and that the rent owing is about £15.—Editor.]

Open Norwich F.C.

Will all members who have changed addresses kindly send corrections? Also secretary would be pleased to hear from intending members, so that their names may be included in year books.—O. Mitchell, hon. sec. (13, Lodge Terrace, Bowling, Bradford).

Cinnamon Canary Club.

Will societies wishing to have the above Club's patronage kindly apply, giving list of judges, prize-money, etc.? There is every prospect of the Cinnamon being a source of profit to any societies giving classes this year.—J. W. Metcalfe, hon. sec. (58, Brunswick Road, Liverpool).

A Protection Against Cats.

Sent by Mr. Rich, 24, Lysons Road, Aldershot.

The following idea I have found very useful in keeping cats from lying or prowling about on the roof of my outdoor aviary, so I am sending it along to help others. The sketch will explain where to cut through the wire netting. Then turn the sharp points up and nail wire flat on roof of aviary. The smaller mesh the netting the better. Cats have not worried me since covering my roof in this way. —M. Rich.

No. 523.
A Bottle Seed-hopper.

Sent by H. Mainprize, 181, Mersey Street, Holderness Road, Hull.

I trust this idea will prove useful to bird fanciers who have aviaries. It is a seed hopper made out of an ordinary tin and bottle. Cut the seed holes at the lid end of the tin, and then solder the lid on. Next cut a hole at the bottom of the tin, to insert the bottle through. Then place a rubber ring round the bottle in such a position that you can adjust the flow of seed to your requirements (see sketch). You can cut as many feeding holes in the tin as you may require. Keep the bottle just clear of the bottom to allow the seed to flow.—H. Mainprize.

Owls and Rats.

An unusual number of Owls have been seen in a village in Surrey much infested with rats, which are now becoming far less numerous.

Sitting Without Eggs.

As a rule, when wild birds are deprived of their eggs, they will at once desert the nest, but occasionally the sitting fever is so strong that they have been known to sit some time upon an empty nest.

To Supplant the Nightingale.

The Blackcap, one of our soberly plumaged summer warblers, is now to be seen at the park and in the woods round about, says a writer in the "East Grinstead Observer." The males may be heard all day long, and the song of this bird to my mind is quite as beautiful as the Nightingale's. If the Blackcap sang at night, when all sounds are hushed, I believe it would be appreciated just as much, if not more.

Blackbird's Remarkable Nest.

There has been a remarkable Blackbird's nest in Tain (North of Scotland), built on the top of a revolving band saw, so near to the saw that the carpenter had to put up a board to protect the bird's tail from being cut off. This is the third year that the same pair have built their nest in the same workshop. They hatched three birds. When the engine and all the machinery are in full swing the noise is deafening, but the birds pay no attention. The nest is in Mr. Nicol's workshop at Tain, and Mr. Andrew Ross, his foreman, can vouch for these statements. Last year the birds brought out two broods. They stay in the workshop all winter.

No. 8.—My Diamond Sparrows.

Whether ownership ecstasy is common to the human race I do not happen to know. One is very apt to suppose an experience peculiar to oneself, and then one day be surprised to find the very thing precisely stated in, say, Shakespeare, where it, at first sight, looks like an unblushing plagiarism. For myself I can at least certify that all possessions do not excite me to these pleasant feelings. I can own fine linen and encyclopædias, to give two random examples, without emotion. But my first box of soldiers produced a delicious throb of exaltation. Similarly, on the first occasion of owning a house, I had the sensation powerfully, and indeed prematurely—for on the autumn afternoon when the owner's spirit descended on me, the mortgage had not been fully paid off. But I attempted an adjustment of my own and the building society's rights by leaving the chimney-pots and roof—a liberal abatement for the balance due, outside the scope of my enduring thought.

Last year, I was up in London for my annual holiday, and while reading CAGE BIRDS, as in duty bound on Friday afternoon, my eye suddenly lit on an advertisement of Diamond Sparrows, privately imported, in the near neighbourhood of Regent's Park, where as most of my readers know the Zoo makes its headquarters.

Now Diamond Sparrows are never common at any time, as they always come over in very poor feather; for the little beggars seem to spend the whole of the voyage from Australia in denuding each other of feathers. I suppose there must be one or two special culprits; because there are always one or two in the consignment in perfect feather. These I take to be the ringleaders.

I hoped, therefore, as these were private importations, they might have experienced more gentle treatment than falls to the lot of trade imported specimens, and therefore might still be in possession of at any rate some feathers beyond those in tail, wings, and the crown of the head! I determined to lose no time, and to forego no chances, as I did not know how many eyes had caught that same advertisement; and how many motor-cars might be speeding Regent's Parkwards. Accordingly, I started off hot-foot, and found the address without much difficulty.

Unfounded Suspicions.

It was a paper shop, and at first I thought I had made a mistake, or that it was one of those places where letters may be left till called for. This happened to me once years ago when I saw some Turquoisines advertised. I rushed off, only to find that the place was a shop where letters might be left till called for; and that was the last I ever heard of my Turquoisines, though I left a communication saying I would take the lot. I concluded that they only existed in the imagination of the vendor, and in the columns of the newspaper in question; in other words that they were bait to catch the unwary.

In the present case, it was not so, for on enquiry for the foreign birds, I was told by the owner of the shop that they belonged to her son, who had been sent on a voyage to Australia for his health, and who had brought back the birds to help pay the expenses of the voyage. If I would not mind waiting, she would go and call him, as he was not yet up. If I liked to walk into the garden I should find the birds in the shed. I eagerly assented, and on going as directed I found a typical London back-garden, and in a big covered shed the cages containing the foreign birds.

There was a cageful of Pennants in nesting feather, wonderfully strong and healthy; and one odd hen Red Rosella; another cageful of Wood Swallows in two varieties; and a third cage containing the Diamond Sparrows.

Of these latter there were about fourteen; and I made a mental resolve that they should shortly be mine. They were in very fair condition considering; only about half being naked. The others were in nearly full feather. Most of them were birds of the year, and all were strong and healthy.

After waiting perhaps a quarter of an hour, the owner joined me in the garden, and I tentatively asked him the price of the Diamonds. He told me that two pairs were already bespoken by a lady, but that I could have the remainder and welcome. This I decided to do, with the proviso that I might leave them a week till I returned to Yorkshire.

The Pennants sorely tempted me, as they were so very fine, and the price moderate, but alas! I was full up, and even I have sense enough not to buy birds that I cannot possibly house. However, as I could not take them myself, I thought I would act the good Samaritan; so I wired to a friend and neighbour in Yorkshire that I had found some extra fine Pennants and Wood Swallows and that "if" he wanted them he must look particularly sharp. I had the satisfaction of finding on my next visit that my wire had led to a nice order, and that the Pennant and Wood Swallow cage was very considerably depleted.

This, I think, was one of those actions of the past that will one day

Contrariwise.

Many years ago the late Joseph Abrahams told me how to sex Diamond Sparrows. "If" he said, buttonholing me, as was his wont, "you want to tell the sex of Diamond Sparrows, this is the way. The hens are always the biggest birds and have the biggest and most spots on the sides." This is, of course, contrary to all experience, as usually, I might say almost invariably, the males are the brighter coloured in most species. In Diamond Finches the contrary is true.

I was irresistibly reminded of the celebrated Mr. Gotty—(if my readers don't understand the allusion, let them at once go and buy "Gotty and the Governor"). "That's a true word," exclaimed Mr. Gotty enthusiastically, when told that somebody knew more than he did. "Where I've bin before, I don't want nobody to show me the way. Where I ain't bin, I'm willin' to be took, and by them as 'ave. I ain't like some people, too ignorant to be larned what they don't know."

At the end of the week I had my consignment sent down to Yorkshire, on the night I myself arrived home, so that I should receive them the first thing the next morning, and be saved all the bother of having a lot of extra parcels to look after. They came to hand sure enough about 9 a.m., and in beautiful order. I at once put them out to their future home, but I did not let go at once, but caged them in the separate compartments of a large wicker Indian cage in which some seasons before I had received a consignment of Shamas. These cages are particularly useful for keeping birds apart, as they are provided with little earthenware pots and sliding doors, and as they are all made of bamboo, the droppings all fall through, and the birds are always sweet.

Into each compartment I popped a Diamond Sparrow, and then for a few weeks I left them,

"Each in his narrow cell to dwell apart."

I knew that this was the only way to get a new crop of feathers.

They were a bit of a nuisance, as generally once a day one of the prisoners would manage to squeeze through the prison bars and escape, and then I had to chase him till I once more secured him with a net; and it is no joke for a big man to hunt a vigorous and active Diamond Sparrow on a hot and boiling July day. No one who has not tried knows how a Diamond Sparrow can dodge the net. In seven weeks time I had seven as lovely Diamond Sparrows as you ever set eyes on. One by one I let them go and they soon mated up, and I found that I had three pairs and an odd bird; that had perpetually to play the game of odd man out.

A Curious Love Song.

The song of the Diamond Sparrow is, as Bret Harte would have said, "peculiar." It resembles nothing as much as the buzzing of a big bumble bee in a bottle, and while the bird is singing he rises on the tips of his toes and screws his neck to an angle of 45 degrees till you would think he would have a perpetual crick. He then snuggles up to the hen and diligently preens her neck, to her very evident enjoyment.

Nobody need have any difficulty about the feeding of Diamonds; all they require is a good supply of best Spanish Canary, at which, like Sairy Gamp, they can go when they feel "so dispoged." They are also very fond of fresh-growing grass, and eat it by passing the succulent shoots up and down lengthwise in their beaks. I generally supply their wants by having a few saucers of damp earth about in which I sow Canary seed till it sprouts; or better still, draw it up rapidly in a frame.

In my experience Diamond Sparrows like to build their own nests, and when a Diamond Sparrow begins building there is no mistake about it. They are true Sparrows in this sense, as they put together a great untidy structure big enough for a Sparrow Hawk. They always choose the most inaccessible part of the aviary for their domestic arrangements. They are particularly shy at nesting time, and will brook no interference with their affairs. They are also particularly spiteful at this time, and any poor and inoffensive bird that ventures near their domain will be attacked in the most savage and wanton manner.

Beautiful Bullies.

Knowing the character of my Diamonds, I always put them with strong birds that are able to stick up for themselves; for Master Diamond is, like most bullies, an arrant coward at bottom. What he loves is to bully little birds like Zosterops; he doesn't at all care to tackle a lusty Cut-throat. As I have warned my readers, they must not interfere with the nesting of the Diamond Sparrows; so that they will not be able to learn much till things are finished. The eggs are white and rather pointed, and usually about four in number.

The young leave the nest fully feathered, and differ but little in size from the old birds, but are of a decidedly rusty hue all over—the spots are small and indistinct. They can fly like lightning, and sometimes on leaving the nest unfortunately dash into the windows and kill themselves. I have had this happen with other youngsters; so that now I cover the glass with muslin tacked slackly on to the frame, and this breaks the force of the impact and saves many a valuable life.

There is no great difficulty in breeding Diamonds, given the following requisites: A quiet aviary, a non-inquisitive owner, a true pair (odd birds are the very devil in spoiling domestic happiness), and the requisite stock of patience. To breed Diamond Sparrows is a very profitable industry, as they will sell like "hot cakes" at 20s. the pair. The last time I advertised a pair I don't know how many anxious telegrams I received, all imploring me to reserve them for the distracted sender, but what could I do? I couldn't satisfy all: so I sent them to the man I knew, and I caused great joy in that city.

A Lady's Method of Rearing Canaries.

By Miss L. M. NICHOLLS.

In writing this article I must first state that I am quite a novice in Canary-breeding, but having had such good luck with my first attempt, I thought I would explain to CAGE BIRDS' readers how I reared my birds.

Hope Almost Gone.

I did not buy any birds for the purpose of breeding; both the cock (which is a splendid Crested bird) and the hen (a plain yellow) were presents to me, and were kept as pets, both now being two years old. However, I put them together this year, and they paired up; so I transferred them to a breeding cage, where the hen soon laid four eggs. During the time she was sitting I bought books, papers, etc., so as to go to work properly, but I found that they all had different methods of rearing Canaries to relate, and gave me the impression that they were so much trouble and so difficult to rear that I almost lost hope of rearing young Canaries, even if the eggs were hatched all right. Not knowing, therefore, which method to follow, I did, after a time, as I thought best, expecting to lose all.

Food During Incubation.

While the hen was sitting I gave the birds the best Spanish Canary seed, clean water, plenty of clean sand, and one tiny sprig of watercress every day; also a small quantity of egg-food made as follows: A small piece of a new-laid, hard-boiled egg (boiled for 15 minutes), both yolk and white equal parts, with about as much crushed Osborne biscuit as would go to the piece of egg, together with a little crushed hemp seed. I only make a very little of this at a time so that it may not go sour. Once a day I consider sufficient to give the hen egg-food while she is sitting; this, I believe, keeps her from becoming weak. The cock bird fed her with this all the time, so that she only left her nest once a day for water and a bath.

In thirteen days (viz., April 13th) a bird was hatched, and by the fourteenth day all four were hatched and well. They had egg-food (the same as above, but without the hemp seed), with a nice young piece of watercress on about the fourth day. I also gave the parents a bath on the fourth day.

When the birds were about six days old I found their nest was very dirty, so I took the risk of the hen deserting her young by giving them a new nest myself, taking great care how I handled them. Having changed the nest I coverod the cage up with a dark cloth so that she could not see so well; but when I took the cover off she was on again, and as happy and proud as ever.

The Secret of Success.

Seeing she did not mind this, I changed the nest every day until they were able to leave it altogether, which they did when about three weeks old. I really believe that herein lies the secret of my success. Had I followed the books, papers, etc., I should not have dared even to have looked at them, let alone touch and handle them, for some say it is a great mistake even to look at the young birds at all as they are so nervous. With this I disagree entirely, for by having so handled my birds they are as tame as possible, and will now stand on my hand and feed from my fingers. Of course, not all do this, but none are wild like some birds I have seen. I still continue the egg-food and green-food after they have left the nest, and leave them with their parents as long as they cry to be fed; then I part them off and keep them on the same food (until they are about six weeks old), with a little crushed hemp seed and canary seed. I wean them off the soft food entirely on to hard seed by giving them a little crushed Osborne biscuit dry; this, I find, makes a good substitute for the egg-food until the birds are on hard seed entirely.

I give my birds no water until they are eight weeks old, except a bath once a day when they drink what little they need.

I separated my first four Canaries into small cages by themselves when they were six weeks old, and am now about to do the same with my second lot. I give my birds a tiny piece of green-food every day all along; I find it does them no harm.

I cannot write on Canaries' ailments, as I know nothing of them, and I trust I never shall. Up to now my birds are all wonderfully healthy.

I reared all four from the first nest, and sold three for good prices. I am keeping a beautiful yellow cock bird for myself. By the time these were ready to go I had another nest of six hatched out of six eggs (on May 22nd). I treated them in exactly the same way, and I now have my hen sitting on four more eggs, expecting them to be hatched this week. I am told it is wonderful for ten birds to be hatched out of ten eggs, and all, moreover, alive and doing well; and I think myself for one pair of birds to do so well is very good.

I might add that when I transfer my young birds to a flight cage I give them a swing and four or five perches to get used to the new cage, afterwards taking out three and leaving a good space for exercise. I prefer the plain Spanish canary seed to the mixed, as I think it agrees with the birds better.

As I stated in the beginning, I am but a novice, and this is my first experience, but had I been an old breeder I could not have expected better results. I shall continue breeding Canaries, and go in for it more largely next year. I do not ask anyone to follow my method of rearing birds, but if there is a hint that may help anyone in regard to their Canaries I shall be most pleased at having had this opportunity of stating how I rear my Canaries.

The Young Naturalist.

*A Kind Linnet.

I have two Linnets, and two Greenfinches. The latter are very tame; I let them out every day. The other day I saw the cock Greenfinch was hungry, and went for the seed, but when I came back he was clinging to the wires of the Linnets' cage and a Linnet was taking seeds out of its hopper and giving them to the Greenfinch.—Sent by W. Clements (age 15), 99, Dempsey Street, Stepney, E.

*Two Artful Cardinals.

I know a lady who has two Cardinals which play an artful trick. When she puts her hand into the cage to catch them they fall down at the bottom of the cage as if dead, and when she removes her hand from the cage they quietly fly up again. Another trick they have is, one hangs on the perch with his feet and the other holds it while it tries to get up again.—Edith Reynolds (age 10), 17, Thoro'-fare, Halesworth, Suffolk.

"Into the Jaws of Death."

One day during my holidays an exciting little incident occurred. I was sitting quietly reading, when my mother suddenly exclaimed: "Whatever shall I do? A bird has hopped from its cage and the cat has it." Now, the cat had got a corner covered in where he used to sleep. My mother continued: "And he has taken it under his corner." On hearing this I sprang up and went to the cat's corner; there I found the cat with its teeth round the bird's neck ready to eat it. I hit the cat and took the bird. I walked up and down with the bird; afterwards I put it back into the cage. It is true it panted when it was first put into the cage, but it is quite well now. We have had eggs from it since then, and it is tamer than it was.—Sent by Winnie Watson (age 11), 92, Fircroft Road, Upper Tooting, London, S.W.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Becoming Bare.

W. H. (Gateshead).—Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean, and examine it well for the presence of red mites, and if any of these pests are found, overhaul the cage and exterminate them. Allow the bird to bathe freely, and reserve one particular bath for this bird until you are quite satisfied there is no fear of contagion. Feed on a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Every third day for a month give a morsel of bread and milk, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and finally sprinkled with soft sugar. Three times a week on the intervening days give a quarter teaspoonful of maw seed, and on two other days a half teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, linseed, millet, and broken groats. Give a little green food daily. If available a mealworm a day for a time would also prove very beneficial. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and half as much chlorate of potash three times a week. In the following week give 20 drops of Chemical Food, and then repeat the two weeks again in the same order. Do not keep the skin daubed with greasy masses, but if feathers do not show signs of coming now, slightly smear the bare place with carbolised vaseline, or lanocyllin, twice a week for a month.

Panting and Ruffled.

N. J. Munro.—It is quite likely a chill such as you suggest might have given rise to the symptoms, but if you had been treating it correctly in a general way, and it was healthy and strong, such a thing should have been of but a temporary nature. See that you are not keeping it in a draughty position, nor in a window, or near over a burning light in the evening. Keep in a bright, airy, and healthy position, not high up against the ceiling, and remember that intermittent cold draughts are quite as harmful as those which are more insistent and apparent, and frequently far more dangerous from being little suspected. For the next month give a staple diet of plain canary only. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, black rape, summer rape, teazle, and millet; on two other days a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a little green food daily. Limit the diet solely to this for the month. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, every second day for a week, and in the following week give 20 drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight in the water. See that cage and perches are kept scrupulously clean.

Norwich Puffy and Moulting.

T. B.—Has the loss of feathers to which you refer only recently commenced? If this is so, I should say the whole condition of the bird is simply due to a normal moulting process, and in that case no special treatment would be necessary, beyond the ordinary care during moult to avoid colds and draughts, and keep up the general health of the bird. On the other hand, if this condition has been going on some time, you are probably keeping it too near the kitchen fire, where it is subjected to extreme fluctuations of heat, or otherwise it is exposed to draught in some way. The first step is to remedy this and see the bird is kept in a regular temperature, not too near a fire, or burning light in the evening, nor too high up near the ceiling, quite free from draughts, and in a bright and healthy position generally. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a month give half a teaspoonful of egg-food or crushed sponge cake with a pinch of maw added to it, and twice a week on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, linseed, black rape, and millet. Give green food daily, and allow it to bathe freely. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. If not well by the end of this course of treatment, let me know, and I will advise your further.

A Mixed Lot.

Mrs. E. C. (I. of M.).—I'm afraid your losses are chiefly due to the indiscriminate mixing up of so many varieties in such a small space, and also to some extent to overcrowding. I do not quite follow the dimensions of cage which you give, 5ft. 6in. long, 2ft. wide and 3ft. broad. I suppose one of these measures is meant for the height. In any case the cage would be fully stocked with 12 to 15 birds, and even then you would need to pay strict attention to cleanliness of floor and perches. In such a confined space you can scarcely hope to succeed with a mixture of Canaries, British and Foreign birds materially differing in food and habits. It would be far better to limit yourself to a few species of similar food and habits, and to keep as close as possible to the above named limit number. To go on with the group you now have you should add about as much white millet to the seed mixture as it contains canary seed. If most of your losses have occurred among the small foreign birds it is quite probable this is due to them being starved, as the mixture of seeds is very unsuitable for these birds. A few small mealworms, aphides, or soaked ants' cocoons should also be added occasionally. The sea sand, provided it comes from a place where the sea or river is unpolluted, is very good, and will do quite well for your birds. The sample of sifted river sand is far too dusty to be of any real service. Please note that your letter was misdirected. If there is any particular point on which you desire further information I shall be pleased to assist you.

Hemp Seed (A. W. H.).—Most emphatically the hemp seed, of which a large percentage of the kernels are of a brown colour when crushed or broken open, is bad, and totally unfit for food for birds. The dealer who studiously told you this brown coloured seed was not bad is, to draw it mild, not quite a George Washington. My advice is to transfer your custom elsewhere, and give this dealer a chance to feed birds of his own on this kind of seed if he chooses to do so. Glad you have had a fair amount of success since adopting previous advice.

Sample of Sand (M.F.C.).—Your second letter with small packet marked "Field Sand" has come to hand, but as there was scarcely a trace of sand in the paper and none in envelope when it reached me, I am sorry I cannot express any opinion about it. Samples should always be very carefully packed to avoid risk of leakage in transit, as they have to pass through several hands before reaching me.

Hemp and Young (K.S.).—(1) I should consider the hemp, as per sample, too risky for use. Some of it is very good, but something like half the bulk is more or less bad, and some of it very bad. I suspect it is a mixture of different qualities. (2) See reply to "George Turner" in last issue for method of feeding young Crests. Stop the linseed for the present. You may give a little of this seed during the latter part of moult, but at ordinary times it is best left alone. Also be very careful that the soaked rape does not become sour. You might drop this now, and give a few green plantain stalks instead three or four times a week.

Cross for Songsters. (R. L.).—If you really desire a cross instead of the pure Roller, which, of course, is quite the best for singing, pure and simple, you should mate a Roller cock with a Border Fancy hen. This will give you the nearest approach to the pure Roller song, but a small bird like the Roller, and of only a little better colour. If you want a larger, better coloured, and smarter bird, use a Yorkshire hen with the Roller cock. You must know that it is very late to begin now, and you would only be able to get one brood this season. Altogether you would do better to devote your attention to making ready to start at the proper time next year.

Hemp Seed. (Young Cinnamon).—You have clearly got mixed in your numbers as you say; No. 2 is what you have used for some time, that No. 2. is a new arrival, and that No. 2 is what many fanciers are using freely. In fact you mention no number but No. 2. The sample marked No. 1 is a very good all round seed, of first rate quality. No. 2 is very good in the main, but it contains a small proportion of stale and rancid seeds, which in themselves, or if present in very large quantity, would be totally unfit for feeding. I can understand this sample being used without ill results, because the great bulk is of good quality, and the birds would probably reject the grains that are not good. As both samples are the same price by all means use No. 1 which is quite the best.

What to Do (S. Newson).—No, the fact of your bird not having commenced moulting does not necessarily mean that he is less than seven weeks old. He will probably begin moulting towards the middle or end of this month. He should begin to sing a little as soon as the moult is finished, and gradually get stronger in song until January, when he should be in quite full swing. A piece of cuttle-fish bone, or occasionally a cube of lump sugar, stuck firmly in the wires for him to nibble will do no harm, and be all that is really necessary as exercise for his beak. Some birds are rather shy of a bath placed in the cage until they have grown accustomed to it. If you persevere in putting it in regularly he will soon learn to use it. To help to "break the ice" for him, remove his drinking water for an hour or two, then put the bath in, and drop in the bath a few grains of hemp and a tiny scrap of green stuff. Let this remain in for an hour or so before returning the drinking vessel. Repeat this each day for a few days, and you will soon find him ready enough to bathe. It depends entirely upon how the bird has been brought up whether you should hang the cage in the open air. If reared under quite normal conditions it could not possibly do any harm, provided it was not placed in an exposed, draughty place, but if brought up under enervating conditions I would not guarantee it standing such treatment without winking.

Place for Aviary (Dud do).—If the yard is fairly bright and well lighted with diffused light the absence of direct sunlight will not be of very great importance, and I see no reason at all why an aviary should not prove quite successful, and flourish well there. But unless you intend to make one large fixture in which a group of birds may fly around just for pleasure, I would not advise you to depend solely upon the wall for the back of the aviary, as it is too attractive a place for insects to harbour, and a properly made structure with a back of its own which could be moved for thorough cleaning would be far preferable. Having the benefit of the oven referred to you could keep almost anything, except the most delicate of foreign species. Any breed of Canaries would thrive, and our Messrs. Weston and Page would tell you suitable gronps of British and foreign birds respectively, if you send a query to them. I assume you have means of ventilating the yard in hot weather.

Loss of Feathers (E. C.).—I cannot be certain of the cause of the condition of your bird from the meagre particulars you give. I would suggest that you first of all thoroughly examine the cage, especially about the joints and corners, and ends of perches, for the presence of red mites, and, if any are found, overhaul the cage and exterminate them. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. Every second day for a fortnight give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on two other days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, teazle, linseed, and millet. Give a spray of green food daily, and allow bird to bathe as freely as it likes. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and 20 drops of Chemical Food daily in the following week. Do not put oil on the bird. Dissolve as much boracic acid as will cover a shilling in a tablespoonful of rose water and slightly moisten the bare parts with this daily until the irritation ceases.

Antiseptic Saline (A. T. M. E.).—If you look up the last few issues you will find in one (I have no note of the date) in the correspondence columns the lecturer stated definitely what he meant by this term. He was simply recommending a proprietary article, which, whatever its merits, it would be eminently unfair to mention here. As regards your object, absolute cleanliness, purity and freshness of all food and water supplies, and freedom from contagion are the best and only really prudent preventives of septic fever. Neglect these laws of health, or introduce the contagious element, and all the antiseptics, saline or otherwise, will not prevent this fell disease playing havoc sooner or later. For all ordinary usage to maintain a generally healthy condition which will enable birds to offer a stronger resistance to disease, or other unwholesome conditions, an occasional mild aperient, such as a small crystal of sulphate of soda dissolved in the water, is as good as anything.

Seed Samples (E. S. P.).—The canary is rather small in size, but otherwise a first-rate sample all round. The rape is a very good sample of summer rape. The maw is very fair, but better is to be had. Still it is quite up to a usable standard. The bulk of the hemp is very good, but a small proportion consists of the inferior objectionable seed I recently wrote about. The bulk being very good seed it may be quite safe to use, as the birds would probably reject the unsound grains when plenty of good ones were to be had. Sorry you are not doing well this season. You should have given some particulars of your treatment, when I might have been able to suggest something to help you. The seeds are in no way to blame. Why not get the Parts of "Our Canaries," that are now ready, or "Canary Breeding for Beginners," and see if you can detect anything wrong with your general management.

Gas Poisoning (A.W.F.).—The effect of the gas has evidently lowered the vitality of the birds considerably, and as they show no signs yet of coming into condition for breeding, I doubt whether they will do so this season. You might try the effect of continuing on the diet previously advised, but add to the egg-food each time two drops of cod liver oil emulsion, and in the drinking water add 20 drops of chemical food every second day. If this shows no better result in, say, a fortnight, I would advise you to turn the birds into flights for the winter, and revert to the normal diet, except that you should continue giving the chemical food twice a week, and the egg-food as above twice a week, or egg-food and a little bread and milk with the oil, each once a week for two or three months to come. Let them have plenty of fresh air without draughts, exercise, free bathing, and generally keep under conditions calculated to promote high condition and health.

Young Roller Thick (W. Bevan).—If you had the presence of mind to put the young Roller on the dietary and general treatment advised to "George Turner" in last issue, it should be well on the way to recovery now. If you did not, then look up that reply and adopt that course of treatment at once, beginning by giving the bird a staple of canary seed with a little summer rape on top daily, and get it on to the adult diet in the course of a fortnight or three weeks. It ought to have been well on the adult dietary, as staple, by now, but it will not be wise to drop off the soft food too suddenly. Make the change gradual at first, but give it free access to good sound canary and rape from the third day of commencing the change. On the first and second day give about a small teaspoonful of mixed canary and rape in addition to the soft food, and then go on as advised in the reply referred to. For one day give a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea in the drinking water, and for one-half of each of the next three days give a small teaspoonful of lime water in the drinking water.

Abnormal Droppings (Stultus).—It is due to a little liver derangement, which might have arisen from a slight chill, due perhaps to too vigorous bathing. The following treatment should soon set matters right. Give a staple diet of plain canary only for a fortnight. Every second day for a week—or fortnight, if necessary—give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, and a third of a teaspoonful of maw on the alternate days. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two consecutive days. After this, every second day for a week, dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and a crystal of sulphate of iron half as big, in two tablespoonfuls of water, add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid, and give in place of drinking water.

Gone Off Song (Gadnum).—It is impossible to say the cause of the bird suddenly going off song, and neither moulting nor appearing at all unwell without full particulars as to conditions under which it is kept. It is not at all unusual for birds, after a long period of song, to cease about the time breeding gets in full swing, and take a brief rest, but they should open out in the course of a few weeks. If yours is simply taking a prolonged rest of this kind, as I am inclined to think is the case, he will probably now very soon begin to moult, and resume singing about the end of October, that is, assuming the moult goes on well, which you can materially assist by keeping free from cold draughts and fluctuations, and, if the weather becomes cold, keep him still rather on the warm side, until the moult is quite finished. Let him have plenty of opportunities for bathing. A fortnight's treatment as advised to "N. J. Munro," might do him good after a long course of dieting on the mixed packet seeds, which is not always conducive to health. Did you introduce another bird about the time this one stopped singing? If so, that might have had something to do with it.

Which Does It? (Breeding).—Both the yolk and the white of an egg naturally play a certain part in the building up of the young bird, but, strictly speaking, neither the white nor the yolk can be said to "form" the bird. The "germ" (a combination—fusion—of the ovum of the hen with the sperm of the male) is the part which actually forms the embryo of the future bird. In a small bird's egg, the disc of matter containing this "germ," is just visible to the naked eye, and is found floating on the upper surface of the yolk. During incubation, as the germ develops into an embryo, the white of the egg is drawn upon as a food supply to sustain and support the growth during the embryonic stage, the yolk being held in reserve until a few hours prior to the hatching of the chick, when it is absorbed within the abdominal sac, and serves to support the chick during hatching and for a few hours afterwards. Therefore you will see that both the white and yolk of the egg provide the necessary food supply for the developing chick at different stages of growth, but beyond this indirect means neither can be said to "form" the chick.

Two Questions (C. Treadway).—(1) I suspect this bird is either in an overfed condition, or is becoming wheezy through, perhaps, being kept in a draughty position. See reply to "H. J. Munro," and treat the bird as therein advised with these slight variations: that you give the sponge cake with the additions three times a week for the first fortnight, and the buckthorn and soda aperient in the water for two consecutive days only, and then go on with the eucalyptus mixture. (2) The breeding season may be regarded as quite near the end now. Indeed, as fast as young broods are able to be separated from the parents the pairs should be broken up and turned into flights to recuperate a little before starting to moult. I certainly do not advise you to start now. You would probably only meet with disappointment. Far better devote your energies now to making efficient preparations to start well next season. As a preliminary you cannot do better than take up the parts of "Our Canaries," and get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our manager will send you post free for 7d. If you meet with any difficulty, then I shall be only too pleased to help you if you will make your wants known.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Green Singing Finches (E. V. C. D.).—The diet for this pretty and interesting species should be a mixture of canary and white millet in equal parts, with an occasional millet spray as a change. One or two live insects or mealworms daily will also be greatly appreciated—smooth caterpillars, spiders or a spray of rose or fruit tree that is covered with green fly. If the birds will take them a few dried ants' eggs (slightly moistened for preference) can certainly be given. You must also supply greenfood, grit, and water for drinking and bathing. If they should nest you must supply a little of some good soft food mixture just before the young are due to to hatch. A "Nutshell" has not yet been published on this species.

An Ailing Grey Parrot (H. J. S.).—Many Greys live considerably longer than your bird, but on the other hand some break up much earlier than others, and the symptoms you describe are certainly those of old age. Every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery-loose, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water and on the intermediate days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. As regards the weak leg, foment this with hot water (not hot enough for discomfort), wipe dry with a cloth, and then paint (use a camel hair brush) with neat whiskey, several times a week, or daily. Seed mixture: Two parts each canary and white millet and one part each hemp, dari, paddy rice, oats and sunflower seeds—well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage—also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts. A pinch of grit (not sand) should be added to the daily supply of seed and a piece of clean cuttlebone kept hanging in the cage. The "Nutshell" booklet, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post-free from our Manager, should assist you.

Nesting of Cardinals (Grimston).—I see no reason why the Cardinals should not rear the Bullbuls if the eggs hatch out. In addition to the soft food, seed, fruit, green food and mealworms I should supply as many live insects as I could, such as smooth caterpillars, beetles, spiders, gentles, live ants' eggs and wasp grub—the three latter kinds are all procurable from advertisers in our pages, while the former any garden should supply in small quantity at least. Leave the birds severely alone, and the probability is the young will be duly reared. Shall be pleased to hear result.

Can I Keep Them Together? (Rita).—This is a point you can only solve by experiments. With most species of seed-eaters two bachelors may be kept together, so long as there is no hen; in the latter case the stronger would kill the weaker. Even two pairs would not agree together in the same aviary unless it were a huge one. I should certainly put them in a roomy cage together, and note the result. I think in any case they will agree. You will soon gather whether they are amiably disposed to each other; there is usually some sign of combativeness before they proceed to extremities.

Fond of Wood (Vadnum).—I should not attempt to check its liking for wood, or it may turn its attention to feathers! Get a perch made of either box or oak, also get a bundle of bean sticks and keep these by you, push a piece of same across cage as a second perch, and replace this when destroyed. The bird is not accustomed to you yet, it still fears you; be as still and quiet in your movements as possible when attending to its wants—avoid scaring it. Some Greys, though tame, will not suffer their owners to handle them; and the probability is yours will talk as soon as it is thoroughly accustomed to its new home—keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation and it will soon respond, but till it is accustomed to you all avoid anything likely to scare it. I advise mixing your own seed. For food and treatment see our reply to "H. J. S." in this issue, but you do not need to use the drugs advised to that correspondent. Our "Nutshell" booklet, "The Grey Parrot" (2½d. post free), will help you. It is not dear at the price given.

Paradise and Pintail Whydah (Avis).—The various species of Whydahs are very similar in plumage when out of colour, though some vary in size and a little darker or lighter in colour, and much resemble our Corn Bunting. In colour the Paradise Whydah is mostly velvety black above, with white rump and long black plumes (10 to 13in.); neck and breast ruddy mahogany, rest of underparts buffish white. The Pintail Whydah is mostly greenish-black above and white below with various buffish and black bands or markings; the long tail plumes—about 10in.—are greenish black; beak coral red. The Pintail is very quarrelsome in a mixed series, the Paradise is amiable. The capacity of your aviary is 20 to 24 birds, not larger than a Norwich Canary. All Whydahs have short tails when out of colour.

Budgerigars and Bantam (Yadnum).—Remove the Bantams, and the Budgerigars and Cockatiels will ultimately settle down and nest. Occasional desertion of eggs and young is not uncommon, but leave your birds as undisturbed as possible and they will ultimately rear their young. At this season supply them with almost unlimited flowering (seeding) grass, also lettuce. Supply a seed mixture of millet and canary in equal parts—a hopper of crushed oats and millet sprays. These birds do not bathe in the ordinary way, supply a sod or two of grass, well water them, and the birds will roll about and take their bath that way. If part of your aviary is open roofed, sow this portion with grass, wheat, canary, oats, barley, etc. Get our "Nutshell" booklet, "Budgerigars," 2½d. post free from our Manager, it will tell you more than space permits here.

Budgerigars and Love Birds (H. T. Bishop).—All the birds you name will agree together, and you have accommodation for them in your aviary. You could include two pairs of Budgerigars. Young birds must be removed elsewhere as soon as they are able to fend for themselves. You must supply branches with the bark on, also a small heap of dried leaves when the Lovebirds show signs of going to nest, as they use the bark and leaves to line their nest receptacle with. The nest husks and logs should be at least 18in. apart, and you should put up at least a dozen; the Cockatiels will, of course, require a larger receptacle than the Budgerigars, preferably a log or small barrel, hung up longitudinally. Our "Nutshell" booklet, "Budgerigars," 2½d. post free from our Manager, will tell you all about this species.

Turning Birds out of Doors (Aviculturist).—(1) All the birds you name can be kept out of doors all the year round, but they should go out soon to get acclimatised, or you will have to bring them in for the first winter. Green Singing Finches, B. H. Mannikins, Bib Finches and Bengalese are all probable breeders. (2) Yes, take them in at the end of October, afterwards they may be left out all the year round. (3) Yes, they are frequently bred under similar conditions. (4) Weavers and Whydahs are very shy breeders in captivity—certainly not impossible to breed, but very few have succeeded with them. (5) Ribbon grass, iris (flags), euonymus, box, laurel, privet, hops, wild clematis, rambler roses everlasting peas (Lathyrus), fir, dock, cow-parsley, and any coarse wild grasses. (6) Chinese Painted, or a pair of Harlequin Quails would answer admirably; the former are perhaps the brightest coloured, and are very small. Except during periods of very severe weather it will not be necessary to confine them to the shelter shed.

Parrot with Swollen Nostril (Goodall).—You give me no idea of the character of the swelling or growth. I certainly advise your letting a vet. see it, he could possibly promptly remove or cauterise it and save the bird needless suffering. With the details before me I can only advise bathing two or three times daily with quite warm water, the gentle pressing out of any pus, and a light anointing with some healing and antiseptic ointment. The bowels must be kept freely moving by occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (as required), one teaspoonful in the drinking water. On intermediate days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Omit the bone from your dietary, give ripe fruit daily, also keep a tin of white millet and canary seed (mixed) in the cage as well as the hemp, a few nuts occasionally, also a piece of plain biscuit. A pinch of grit (not sand) to each tin of seed. A piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Our "Nutshell" booklet, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free from our Manager, would assist as to general treatment.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

Is it too Late? (R. Stewart).—It is somewhat late now to commence Mule breeding; but if you have a hen anxious to go to nest and your cock Greenie is also anxious to breed, you can certainly run the two together. Some cock Greenies are very mischievous, and it is safer to remove them as the eggs are being laid (each evening) and to let the hen sit "all on her lonesome."

About a Jay (G. P.).—I suppose you know that the excrement of soft-bill birds is normally more loose and watery in character than that of seed-eating birds? This applies with force to such birds as Jays, Magpies, and the like. It often happens that a bird when moulting will cast its plumage so freely and quickly as to come bare in places. There is no harm in this (rather the contrary, for a quick moult is usually a very good moult), and no medicine is called for. These big birds are liable to attacks of red-mite. All the joints and crevices of the cage should periodically be painted over with petrol; use it freely, so that it penetrates, removing the bird for an hour or so, of course. You need never fear red-mites then. A bird which neglects to bathe must be sprayed frequently.

Live Food (British).—Live food is not absolutely essential for either hen Bullies or Greenies when rearing young in an aviary. But if they relish mealworms, I should by all means give just a few daily. It is of much greater importance, however, to see that they have a constant supply of flowering and seeding shepherds purse, chickweed, and groundsel. I find that all my hen Bullies and Greenies develop a fondness for egg-food, they only want it in any quantity, however, when feeding young.

A Redstart (Novice).—The Redstart is an insectivorous bird, and needs good food and a liberal dietary if it is to thrive. You will find it cheaper (if you have only one bird) to buy a good insectile mixture designed for the small softbills (note our advertisement columns), than to bother mixing your own. Prepare it according to the directions accompanying the food, never omitting a little of some vegetable ingredient, such as grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, or cold boiled potato (mashed), etc. Live foods are essential, such as flies, grubs from the garden, smooth caterpillars, well-scoured gentles, live ants' eggs, mealworms (according to season).

Tail-less Thrushes (Falconbridge).—It is quite a common thing for Thrushes and Blackbirds to smash their tails when captive in cages, especially if the latter are not really large. There is no "cure" (except, of course, the providing of a very big cage). New tails will grow at the moult, now close at hand. It is, by the way, a common saying amongst bird dealers and fanciers of the "old school," that a Thrush which does not smash its tail is never a first-class songster. Possibly this may afford you consolation.

A Trio (R. A).—(1) Send to our publisher for the "Nutshell" booklet on the Linnet (post free 2½d.), and then you will have by you a mine of information on the feeding and management (including hand-rearing) of the Linnet. It is too lengthy a subject for this column. There is a "Nutshell," too, on the Redpoll. (2) I have had no practical experience of hand-rearing Doves, but I should use a mixture of stale bread and finely-minced hard-boiled egg, made into a creamy consistency by adding new milk when about to feed the youngsters. See that the food is always fresh and sweet. When the young birds are getting fairly well feathered, give them also small grains (such as wheat, coarse oatmeal, or groats, split peas, and the like), which have been thoroughly softened by soaking in hot water. (3) There is no need to colour-feed a Starling. It would not help it on the show-bench. Towards the end of the moult, add a little fresh linseed meal to its food daily (about a large teaspoonful).

Young Mules (W. M., Horwich).—You really cannot expect to successfully rear every Mule that hatches out, no matter what system of feeding you adopt. I consider that your eight Mules out of ten good eggs is very excellent indeed. There are scores, I am sure, who would be glad to have the same good fortune. I never think that it is of much use to try to cure young birds which are ailing seriously; sometimes the result is satisfactory, but more often than not the youngsters fail to develop into strong, healthy adults. "Paralysed" young birds are certainly very unlikely to recover under treatment. Put the weakly youngster by itself, and in addition to cracked seeds, give a dish of milk-sop (squeezed fairly dry and sweetened with fine sugar) with which has been mixed a half-teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. Remove the seed, if necessary, until the sop is eaten up. See that it is always fresh and sweet (in sultry weather, it may turn sour quickly).

A Thrush Problem (E. A.).—You should certainly give your birds ripe fruit and berries, according to season. You can try any kind that seems suitable. It is not at all certain that red-mites are not at the root of the trouble. The dusting of the cage with insect powder would not destroy them, or even worry them much, as they hide in cracks, and crevices, wire-holes, etc., into which the powder could not penetrate. Go over the cages thoroughly with a brush dipped in petrol, letting the latter run freely into every crevice; then you can rest assured that no mites of any kind are there. Do this occasionally throughout the year, but more especially during the hot weather. It is only necessary to remove the birds for an hour or so, when doing it. Into a pint of water stir a large teaspoonful of sulphuretted potash (from a chemist) and let the birds bathe in this. Give it two or three times, at intervals.

Concerning a Jay (Ignoramus).—(1) The cage of a Jay is best if wired at front only. A length of 3ft. is just moderate; I prefer 4ft., at least. (2) As regards the food, use a good quality dog meal (such as "Melox" or Spratt's), thoroughly softened with hot water, and mixed with such table scraps (meat, potatoes, greens, gravy, etc.) as are from time to time available. This is the staple, and should be varied with dead mice, Sparrows, acorns, cracked nuts, berries, fruit, eggs, etc., according to season and circumstance. A Jay has a very accommodating appetite some flesh food is essential. (3) Outdoor, in a sheltered position, is the best place for a Jay. Unless kept scrupulously clean the cage is apt to smell strongly. (4) Young Jays are easily taught to speak; repeat to them at every possible opportunity one or two short, catchy phrases, extending the list from time to time, according to their proficiency.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

Yellow Feed (Plymonth).—You can obtain a yellow feed from any of the advertisers of colour-foods using our columns.

An Article (T.R.).—Many thanks. Shall hope to publish your contribution next week.

Club Notices (W. Elliott, J. Lewis, etc.).—Your club notices arrived too late for insertion. We have repeatedly given notice that during the summer months CAGE BIRDS goes to press on Wednesdays.

Newspaper Cuttings (E. Thorne, J. H. Jowett, and others).—Many thanks for your kindness.

A Magpie (A.M.).—Photograph safely received, and we will utilise it at an early date.

A Letter (J. Turner).—Your letter has been forwarded to the North London C.B.A. Secretary.

Coloured Plates (E. Jones).—We are afraid if we carried out your suggestion of giving every week a coloured plate of foreign birds, and charging twopence per issue regularly, that we should land ourselves into very hot water with a very great number of our readers. And we can't stand hot water. We have already depicted a large number of foreign species on our plates.

A Photograph (Joe. Brown).—We received the photograph safely and shall be reproducing it in the near future; possibly in one of our double numbers.

No Result (R. W. Yearsley).—Having got judgment, you can obtain a committal order from the County Court judge to imprison the defendant for default (i.e., in satisfying the judgment). We do not think that you can now take any proceedings in the criminal courts.

A Record in Mule Breeding (C. H. Webb).—Your communication is too much in the nature of an advertisement. Why not send it to the breeder in question? He might like to utilise it as a testimonial in our advertisement columns.

Wagtail's Nest in a Coal Wagon.

Sir,—In a wagon of coal which had come from some considerable distance to the wharf here (Mountsorrel Leicestershire) was found a Wagtail's nest, containing five eggs. It is supposed that while the wagon was on its way here it was stopped for repairs, the Wagtails built their nest, and laid their eggs. Although the wagon had been shunted about a great deal, the eggs were unharmed. I wish continued success to Cage Birds and to Cage Birds League.

An Improved Front for Roller Canary Contest Cages.

Sir,—Allow me to thank Mr. Pattison for bringing before Roller fanciers his idea of an improved cage front, and I cannot understand why the B.R.C. will not adopt it, as the covers for seed and water tins could be made a standard size, and supplied to fanciers either by the club itself or the maker. It would be an easy matter for fanciers to solder them on to their own cage fronts; or the cost of having it done would be triffling. I should like to point out that these covers would have to fit flush with the top of water or seed tin, because if otherwise birds would waste both seed and water between the space of tin and cover. Don't despair, Mr. P., because if this idea meets with the approval of the majority of the two hundred, and the minority which attend the monthly meeting will not adopt it, we'll make 'em at the next issue of voting papers for the annual meeting! But we shall probably see more on this subject before then.

Newcastle C.B.S. Nest Feather Show.

Sir,—Seeing the report of Newcastle C.B.S. first feather show, about one exhibitor having hard lines in not winning the cup for best bird in show, in the person of Mr. Holden, I had the pleasure of being at the show, and I think, to be fair to every exhibitor, a little praise should be given to the person who belongs to the bird which was 1st in the buff class in the Norwich class. I was informed the bird belongs to Mr. Crass, and is only 4 weeks old. It was a fine, typical bird. To take the show on the whole, it was as fine a show as I have seen for some years, and great credit should be given to every exhibitor—not only one or two. If we want our shows to be a success we want to encourage every fancier, either in young or old shows, to come and turn up in large numbers. You never know your luck until the judges have done their work what sort of birds you have. My advice to all fanciers is to turn up in large numbers to make our shows a success.

Fixed Prize Money at Sheffield Shows.

Sir,—I was greatly surprised to find Mr. Woolhouse again replying. He asked me to prove my statements, and I did so up to the hilt. The most amusing thing about it is that he does not dwell upon the point at issue, viz., fixed prize money. He states that I have only been in Sheffield something like a year. It is under a year since I came to Sheffield, so that this statement is the nearest correct of any Mr. W. has made throughout this correspondence. But I have not had to get my information second-hand, as he states. I was one of the promoters of the S.O.S., and I think I am in a position to know all that has transpired, without getting it second-hand. I have absolutely proved that the S.O.S. is the only society in Sheffield district that is paying fixed prize money at nest feather and back-end shows. Perhaps next time Mr. Woolhouse flies to the Press he will make sure that he can substantiate his statements; then he will be able to come out on top.

John A. T. Woodall.

Sir,—Yet another letter from friend Woolhouse, who says this shall be the last. Had his letter of June 2 been his last I would have excused him for his mistake. In his letter of that date he said he merely wished to point out the fact that the Walkley C.B.S. paid fixed prize money as well as the S.O.S., for as he read our report it seemed to him to infer the S.O.S. was the only society that did so. In the issue of June 9th I told him as clearly as I could that the Walkley C.B.S. was not paying fixed prize money, but paying on the sliding scale at their Nest Feather Show on June 24, which proved there was only one society (the S.O.S. out of the four in Sheffield paying fixed prize money. Seeing I had made Mr. W.'s letter false, I said I thought the argument at an end, and closed by saying as far as I was concerned this controversy ceased. On June 16 Mr. W. treats us to another half-column, and has the impudence to say he did not say the Walkley C.B.S. was paying fixed prize money, but had done so. Had I not replied, would not the Fancy have been deceived? Would not the Faucy at large have been under the impression that Mr. W.'s letter was correct and I was wrong? I repeat again, Mr. W., that when fixing the S.O.S. show dates the S.C.B.S. was considered. You say you thought I was a man of my word; take that home to yourself. Like Mr. W., I am quite content to leave the issue in the hands of the fanciers of Sheffield or the County of Broad Acres. In closing, I should like to point out to Mr. W. that should he at any future date require proof of any statement I have at any time made during this correspondence, I shall be pleased to furnish same (without a grain of salt or the assistance of second-hand tales).

Non Colour-fed Classes.

Sir,—Now is the time for those who would like to see a few non-fed classes introduced during the coming show season to write to the various secretaries asking them to induce their committees to insert such classes in their schedules, at the same time promising to support them; or, better still, offering to guarantee one or more classes if inserted. Personally, I should like to see non-fed classes in all our schedules, as the system of colour-feeding is far too expensive for many working men, consequently, if they are fortunate enough to breed a few good ones they often have to sell them to someone with a longer purse, as they cannot afford to buy new laid eggs and pepper, the result being that the purchaser gets the greater benefit. I should very much like to see a "Non-fed Club" started; such club would then be able to guarantee classes at a number of shows. Now then, you non-fed men, what do you think about it?

Insuring Birds when Sending by Rail.

Sir,—I regret that I have been unable to reply to Mr. J. M. Williams before on the cost of carriage of exhibition birds. I have been waiting for a definite reply from railway headquarters. I find that Mr Williams is correct, although at the time my article was written I gave the facts as they had occurred to me, and quite believed them to apply generally. I have been in the habit of dispatching from a small country station, and the station-master has never charged me the 50 per cent. extra when I have insured my birds. I drew his attention to Mr. William's experience, and asked him to write his headquarters for definite information, and also, if in case the 50 per cent. is compulsory, whether the Railway Co. would pay the five shillings they allow for this, in addition to the amount insured for. The reply to this is rather amusing, if not consoling. It says that 50 per cent. is charged on all fragile consignments, whether insured or not, and live cage birds are classed as such, and the 5s. would not be paid in addition to the amount insured for in case of a claim being made for loss or damage to an insured consignment. Perhaps your readers will think that I am now indebted to the Railway Co., but when I consider the damage to cages, etc., and the inconvenience they have caused me, my conscience says that I owe them nothing.

The Proposed Union for Lancashire and Cheshire.

Sir,—The meeting arranged by Mr. Hopkins was held at the Deansgate Hotel, Manchester, on June 24, when the following societies sent representatives:—Rochdale O.S., Liverpool O.S., Preston, Bolton, Lancashire and Lizard Association, South Manchester, Leigh and District, Walkden, and Wigan. Mr. A. Raynes and another gentleman were also present. The Preston representative was voted to the chair, and the Wigan representative was asked to act as secretary pro tem. It was the unanimous opinion of all present that such a Union was necessary, and that it would be a great benefit in many ways both to societies and fanciers. The chairman read a letter from the convener of the meeting explaining the cause of his absence. The rules of the Yorkshire Union were also read by the Chairman. The following regulations were suggested:—That if a Union is formed its members be allowed to show anywhere, only that when showing at shows outside the Union they should not be under the protection of the Union. That societies select their own judges and that a neutral representative of the Union be sent to all Union shows at the shows' expense. That there should be one delegate to the Union from each society. That the subscription be 2s. 6d., entrance, and 3d. levy per member per annum, if necessary. Or that societies with less than 50 members pay 2s. 6d. and have one delegate; under 100, pay 5s. and have two delegates; over 100, pay 7s. 6d. and have three delegates; and no levy on members. Much interesting and, I think, profitable conversation took place, and finally the meeting was adjourned to July 15 at the Old Boar's Head Hotel, Withy Grove, Manchester, at 3.30 p.m., to which all societies and fanciers interested are cordially invited.

How to Identify Young Canaries in an Aviary.

Sir,—I have adopted this season what is, I consider, a most useful and interesting method of marking off the young Canaries in my aviary. On the outer cover of your valuable monthly publication, "Our Canaries," readers will notice a small print of a good shaped Norwich (the variety I keep). This I traced on paper and mounted on thin zinc, then cutting out to shape with shears and filing up the edge (see sketch). It is a simple matter to run a fine-pointed pencil round this zinc pattern when filling up your breeding register. You can then, besides desoribing the markings, fill them in (note examples depicted), and by reversing the pattern can sketch, if necessary, both right and left markings. Readers will readily see how handy it is to be able to so easily identify any bird and learn the parentage of it. I have up to now got eighteen young flying and know every bird by referring to my register without resorting to my net to examine rings, or cuts in the wing feathers, after catching up the bird. The above does not apply to clears. It is surprising, however, if you are breeding for colour, what a small percentage of these you breed; but by describing them minutely they can be detected without the use of sketch.

Two Sketches showing the markings of the birds, and one of the zinc pattern used when drawing the outline.

A Bird Catcher Speaks Out.

Sir,—I am writing you in reference to, "Is it cruel to keep birds in cages?" I venture to say that it is not, and at the same time, to put in a word for the poor bird catcher. I am a house painter by trade, but when things are slack I catch birds, as I find it helps to feed my children and to keep a roof over my head. I have plied my calling as a bird-catcher for ten years or more, and up to the present have no fault to find in the way the catcher keeps and tends his birds. I am able to say that I know dozens of men who would sooner go without their food than their birds should go without. My own birds are kept in an outdoor aviary all the year round, and I venture to state that, although kept by a bird catcher, they are far better kept and looked after and cared for than some of these faddists know how to look after their children. We (that is the catchers) have a very bad name—in fact, hanging is too good for us, we know—but at the same time we are humane, because it stands to reason that we as a whole are not going to neglect the very thing that helps to keep us. Another thing is, will the faddist keep my wife and two children later on, or any other catchers' families, if we give up catching birds? Not they. I want to know if the following is in any way out of the ordinary. I have in this aviary (or shed) two Linnets, which paired up, built a nest, and laid five eggs, which I put under a hen Canary. Four young came, and these are now on the perch, two cocks and two hens. Have also a pair of Goldfinches nesting. Now, sir, if it is "cruel," why do they breed? I have in this aviary the following birds: cocks, 2 Goldfinches, 2 Bullfinches, 2 Chaffinches, 1 Linnet, 1 Twite, 1 Bramble Finch, 1 Greenfinch, 1 Yellowhammer. Hens: 2 Goldfinches, 1 Linnet, 1 Chaffinch, and 1 Siskin. I enclose photograph, which I hope you will try to reproduce. Size of yard 15 x 15 feet. Size of aviary, 15 x 3 feet.

How Fortune Telling Birds Are Trained.

Sir,—There are not many fortune-telling birds to be met with in London nowadays, though the writer is acquainted with two pitches where the credulous may seek a solution of any problem that perplexes them, through the aid, in one case, of a Canary, in the other of a Linnet. One of these is within a stone's throw of the Art Gallery in the Whitechapel Road, the other is near St. George's Circus, Blackfriars Road, and no doubt there are others. The Italians—and this particular calling seems to be entirely in the hands of these people—find organ grinding and the selling of ice cream or chestnuts, according to the season, more remunerative, though they still train birds for this purpose, and these are purchased by itinerant showmen who travel the country, attending the local fairs. The method of training the birds is idyllic in its simplicity. The cards are in small sections in a box, and answer such important questions as: "When shall I be married?" "Shall I be happy in married life?" and the like. In training the bird the teacher dips his finger into a cup containing moistened sugar, and, holding the bird in his left hand, rubs a small quantity on the beak, and then holding the bird over the cards, rubs more of the sugar on a card, and the bird, when held down, pecks at the card for the sweet. This is simple enough, but it is not all. It is necessary that the card should be drawn out, and for this reason some sticky substance is rubbed on the cards so that when the bird pecks at it, it adheres to its beak. This is the explanation. If anyone should be passing either of the spots mentioned, and will hand the woman in charge a penny, and keep a watchful eye, he will notice that the woman rubs her hands over a card, and that the card itself is not drawn out in the bird's beak, but adheres to it. But one must keep a sharp look out to notice this, as the woman takes the card from the bird at once.

Quality Notes in Linnet Singing.

Good Song and Bad Song.

Sir,—In answer to Mr. B. Wharton, re quality Linnet singing, nothing gives me greater pleasure than replying, seeing that I was the promoter of the correspondence on Quality Linnet Singing, which appeared in your Cage Birds during 1906. I have been a constant Linnet singing and trainer now for about 30 years, and the promoter of several contest clubs. Now there is only one way of judging quality Linnet singing notes, that is, the best and clearest bird, length, turns, and form. Suppose a Linnet breaks with chattering at a contest, and he runs it into reeing, then into peeing. He has put three notes together and left them clean. Now, to beat this Linnet, another bird will have to put three notes together and make a turn in one of the notes (or more), and leave it clean also. I am putting this short so that you will understand it. Of course, Linnets do not always break with chattering. Now I will give you a list of the original quality notes of a first-class Linnet, as follows: Chattering, Reeing, Peeing, Whinneying, and Scraping. These are five principal notes. Now, there are four or five ways to a note. Chattering: Plain Chattering, Hammering Chatter, Heater Chatter, Chattering Ree, Rolling Chatter, and Locking Chatter. Now in Reeing, there are light, Hollow, Trumpet, Curling, Blubbering, and Rolling Reeing. Now in Peeing, there are Plain Peeing, Pheeing Pee, Bell, Whistling, and Pying Pee, and Phooing Pee. In Whinnying there are Light Whinney, Whinney Tittering, Filly Whinnying Blackbird Whinnying, Huffing Whinney, and Laughing Whinney. Now Scraping is the king of notes. There are sharp, broad kind, cowing, barking, and draker-hen scraping, and quaking scrape. Now here are a few more good notes that should be counted in contests as well as the above, provided they are sung clean and they sound immense when done. Cuckoo Pithering, Bell Pithering, Woodlark Woodling, Nightingale Jugging, and heavy Chowing, Tittering and Jingling Titter. These notes can be turned also. Now here is bad Linnet singing: Spinking, Tweeting, Song singing, Whin-tapping, nasty shouts, clicks, and jars, Scotting and Donkey Wrought. Now the best of these bad notes is Spinking. There is Gigging Spink, oxhide spinking, clinking spink (this is a favourite note of the Nightingale), and Bell Spinking. Now these four ways of spinking should be counted if run with any length and they sound well, if any of them are turned. Now the two worst ways of Spinking are Yollering Spinking and Bull Spinking, and they should never be counted, as it is the worst of singing. Now the Linnet can turn any of these notes lighter or deeper, but the Linnet that turns the deepest is the best. Always go for the heaviest voiced bird. Supposing you get a Linnet with only three notes, and it can turn two out of three, do not part with him until you can get a bird that can beat him. Of course, it is not much of a bird that has only three notes. What you have to try for is to get a Linnet with four or five notes, and to get as many turns in a note as possible, without the above bad singing. I have won all the English championships with the above strain of singing. There is no difference between Lancashire quality singing and Yorkshire singing. We both sing alike. In my younger days, however, a gentleman from Lancashire used to visit me; he was a great judge of Linnet singing, and he used to call Reeing "recking," Pecing "whigging," and Scraping "scriking." Now 80 Linnets out of 100 will sing two ways, that is, you will put a bird up in a contest, when he will sing five minutes all clean, and everybody will be delighted with him; but a quarter of an hour after you can put him in the same window with a fresh bird and he will sing bad all the five minutes, and make you ashamed of yourself sometimes. That is known as two ways of singing, and it is caused by one of the birds leading off with a bad note, and the other follows. They are always lucky if they get a bird to suit each other. Now the following is a list of places where they all sing alike: Wigan, Blackburn, Leigh, Pendleton, Preston, Hull, Skinning Grove, Beverley, York, London, Cumberland, and Co. Durham. If you travel to any of the above you will find they all sing quality Linnet song. I have sung at contests myself among the leading contest singers of Lancashire, and at Bradford and Leeds, and was always judged alike. I have always been judged the same wherever I have been. I hope this will meet the requirements of Mr. B. Wharton, and all others interested in quality Linnet singing.

Where is the Leek and District Cage Bird Society?

Sir,—Would you kindly allow me to ask through CAGE BIRDS what has become of the Leek and Dis. Cage Birds Society?

A MEMBER.

Bradford National Show.

In Aid of Cinderella Club Funds.

Sir,—The committee of the above show desire to place on record their high appreciation of the courtesy extended to them by the numerous judges who have been appealed to for their help. In each case they have sent replies, and where they have not been able to accept the position as judge, they have given the management great encouragement by their kind expressions and good wishes for the success of the show. Each and all seem to greatly appreciate the efforts which the committee are putting forward, and a large percentage of them have accepted the offer to judge. As yet the committee are not in a position to deal with the offers sent in, as the classification will not be made until the patronage of the various Specialist Clubs has been allotted. We have already obtained the patronage of the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S., Yorkshire C.C., Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., National Green Marked Y.C.C., and the Open Norwich P.C.; and others are expected in due course. The committee are prepared to give the classes required by the Specialist Clubs for each variety and will conform to the conditions as laid down by these clubs in the hope of obtaining patronage.

The Cage Bird Fancy in Ireland.

Sir,—A meeting of the Belfast N.C. and Y.C.C. was held on July 1, the subject for discussion being "The Use and Abuse of the Fancy Press." Mr. Connell seems annoyed that I should let readers of CAGE BIRDS know he proposed that members writing letters to CAGE BIRDS be expelled the society. He now denies this and asks for proof. Mr. South's (the assistant secretary) letter will prove it in your issue of May 27. The last sentence reads: "With regard to the notice of motion to expel a member who is writing letters to CAGE BIRDS, a more coercive motion could not be tabled, especially from a member who prides himself as being an apostle of free speech and honesty of purpose." If the assistant secretary and the hon. treasurer are both correct, what will I do with Mr. Connell's £1? Readers, judge for yourselves! A member of the society who is also on the provincial committee of the Y.C. and C.B.S. of I. was, in his absence, accused of being the party who was writing anonymous letters to CAGE BIRDS. The person who made this accusation I challenge to prove it through CAGE BIRDS, and I will deposit £5 to go to any charity he names provided he forfeits £5 if he fails. He would have been better employed had he explained to the meeting why he left the society a few years ago. My own opinion is that he is only a catspaw for a certain Yorkshire fancier. The question raised by Mr. South as to why the Ligoniel members left the society, if answered, would have been a revelation. I do not see why Mr. Bamford (the secretary) had occasion to use such strong terms in connection with these members who had left the society. I hope to see this meeting reported in detail and the names of members who have been accused of slandering the society.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

A Ramble Through the Dukeries.

On Sunday, June 18th, when we awoke from our slumbers, the overcast sky was anything but promising of the weather we desired for a ramble through such lovely country. Our meeting place was the Great Central Station, and we had not proceeded far on our train journey when the heavens above seemed to get brighter, and the sun shone with power. Worksop was reached, not a long journey, and our friend Tom Bishop and others kept us alive with little "Ditties." Our old friend, Alf. Summerfield, who had gone over the previous day to see that all was in order for our reception, met us, and conducted us to our headquarters, the Greyhound Hotel. Then we went forth into the lovely bracing air to look up that old and enthusiastic fancier, Mr. Simpson, who was acting as our guide. He has been an exhibitor for the last 30 years, and I don't think any one of us had ever seen such a collection of prize cards as Mr. S. was able to show. There were hundreds and hundreds, and in addition, a number of cups, medals and specials. He gave us a right good hearty welcome; of course, his better half might comb his hair afterwards for taking such a crowd of fellows upstairs. He has a nice variety of birds, and has done fairly well this breeding season. What took our eye most was an evenly marked Goldfinch mule, so tame that it would sing when perched on his finger. After about a four-miles stroll, we returned for dinner, and did ample justice to it. At 2.10 we met the second contingent, amongst the party several ladies. Imagine our surprise when they told us it had been pouring with rain all the morning in Sheffield! They were jolly glad they had decided to come, as the weather was lovely; we could not have had it more to our liking. During our morning stroll the first bird to greet us was a Tree Pipit, which was followed by the discovery of a Jay's nest containing young. When gazing at the Jay carrying out its domestic duties, we observed quite close to us the Lesser Whitethroat, Greater Whitethroat, Willow Warbler, etc. A keeper we met in the woods took a great interest in us and our society. We noticed a fine Redstart, which he told us had a nest in a hole in a tree trunk near by. There also came on the scene a pair of Hawfinches, with their four offspring, the keeper shooting the hen bird before our eyes; he also accounted for a couple of fine Jays. They are "dead on" these birds in this district. Near by is a small pond, or rather should have been, but owing to the drought it was nearly dry. This, he told us, was the only place birds could drink for two miles round. Knowing this, we sat under the trees to watch the arrival of the feathered creatures that came to refresh their thirst. These included Yellow Buntings, Chaffinches, Redstarts, Blue Tits, Greater Spotted Woodpeckers, Blackbirds, Thrushes, etc. Then we adjourned to our headquarters for dinner.

Afterwards the ladies went for a drive, as we thought that a ten-mile walk would be rather too much for them. Friend Simpson took us down Slack Walk. We soon came across bird life, and some lovely scenery. We came across a hay rick, and soon found one or two nests, one with four young. Some said a Pied Wagtail, others a Hedge Sparrow. But I won't pass an opinion. Proceeding, we came into the Duke of Portland's estate, and the famous tunnel which was made by a late Duke. We here kept to our left, leaving the Deer Park to our right. This is an expanse of greensward, and contains both red and white deer. We came into Drinking Pit Lane. I don't know why it is called this, unless it is to annoy the users of it, as there is absolutely no chance of imbibing even a bottle of soda water. However, we strolled on through the woods, continually coming across nests of various species, old birds carrying food for their young, etc. We continued on down Border Side, then over footpaths by St. Cuthbert's College down Sparkin Hill to Worksop, and then straight to headquarters.

After we had refreshed and had a good wash, etc., tea was ready. What a tea! I believe our host, friend Worth, has been on these rambles himself, and knows how the inner man feels when you return. At any rate, he catered as though he did, and everyone appreciated his efforts. A vote of thanks was proposed to our friend Mr. Simpson for the excellent ramble he had taken us. He suitably responded. A vote of thanks was also passed to our host and hostess. If any fanciers ever think of paying a visit to Worksop or the Dukeries, they cannot do better than consult friend Worth, at the Greyhound Hotel. We indulged in a sacred concert until train time, 8.36, which arrived far too soon. After a short journey home the majority of us adjourned to our headquarters, where we finished one of the most enjoyable days ever spent on a ramble after bird life.—J. A. T. Woodall, Press Correspondent.

Wild-Bird Life.

Along the Hedgerows.

The country side is now in its full beauty, the trees are well clothed with leaves, and the hedgerows, with their clusters of wild roses and climbing clematis, form thick shelter for the numerous young birds now so plentiful everywhere. A good tall hedge bordering fields, or meadow land, makes a capital position to take up on a fine day to note the doings of the feathered world generally. From such a point one will be able, in a few hours, to see almost all the species haunting the open. At first the flocks of young Sparrows force themselves upon the attention, they are so numerous that for a time their presence dominates all others, and they are so fidgety and flighty that they are for ever on the move, either moving from point to point in the field or alighting in a mass upon the hedge. Neither the green bird nor the Linnet have finished their breeding season. In securing a sheltered spot we have unknowingly taken up a position within a few feet of a cluster of wild woodbine containing a nest of the former. The anxious note of the bird tells us plainly that our presence is none too welcome, and that we are but a short distance from his treasures. The overhanging vine shelters the nest completely from sun, wind and rain, and the too close attention of inquisitive bipeds. The young ones are just beginning to open their eyes, and crouch down in the nest as though they would gladly sink through the bottom to get out of sight, strong lusty-looking youngsters they are, and well they may be, for no better parents exist in bird land than healthy Green Finches. Although we took up the position with the express purpose of watching the going and coming of the birds in the field and along the hedgerow, our attention is so taken up with the immediate surroundings that for the time the birds in the open are neglected. A scolding Whitethroat resents our presence as much as the Greenbird, and we know from experience that although his young ones may be hungry and waiting for food he will refuse to visit them unless we move further away. In this spot which is seldom visited, wild birds are keenly alive to the dangers of betraying their young ones' hiding-place; and yet, on the other hand, a pair of Whitethroats are constantly feeding their nestlings in a bush on the bank by the side of a country road, where traffic of all kinds is pretty frequently passing, and the writer sat on the opposite side and watched the old birds tending the babies, and they took no more notice of him, than an old cock Canary would in the bird room. Evidently in bird land "Familiarity breeds contempt."

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects. Harmless to everything.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE

Great Demand for Our Pamphlets, Booklets and Badges: Apply To-day for Yours.

Notes by the Secretary.

It was not long before readers began to take advantage of the offer of sixpenny pamphlets for nothing, and, to make sure of being in "the next thousand," callers dropped in at the office on Friday morning. Amongst them I had the pleasure of enrolling a member of the Metropolitan Police force, Mr. Henderson, of Westminster, who, I believe is the first policeman to join our ranks. Besides the main body of fanciers, our membership now embraces bird-catchers, bird-dealers, and policemen. Notwithstanding the vapourings of the sentimentalists, there are bird-catchers and bird-dealers who are entirely in sympathy with the objects of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and now we have at least one police officer, who as a member will keep an eye on some of those, if there are any, who keep the bird shops stigmatised by one of our hysterical opponents as "infernos of agony."

Our Badges.

The rolled-gold badges, in two forms, one for coat lapel or bicycling cap, or as a brooch for ladies, and the other as a pendant for watch-chain, are now ready. They have been sent to all old members who have returned their old badges together with seven stamps for the exchange. If any have been omitted I should be glad to hear, so that the omissions, if any, may be rectified. The price of these rolled-gold badges is one shilling each, and they form an ornament which any one would be pleased to wear. The original badges, at sixpence each, are in three forms, one as a button for coat-lapel, one as a brooch, and the other as a pendant. New members joining should distinctly specify which badge they require, a sixpenny badge in either of three forms, or a shilling badge in either of two forms, sending, of course, with their application for membership, eighteenpence or two shillings as the case may be; one shilling for membership for one year, and the balance for badge.

Our Aims and Objects.

Neat pamphlets setting forth in concise form the aims and objects of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE are now in the hands of the printers, and will be ready in a day or two. Many members have expressed a wish to have a supply of these for distribution, and a parcel of any number will be sent, post free, to anyone who will let me know how many he would like. I hope these pamphlets will be of great use in making known the purposes of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and I shall be pleased to send any number, large or small, to members applying for them.

I am continually getting letters from old members introducing new members to the LEAGUE, but without any intimation that the introductions are to be registered in our competitions for cash prizes. In order to save complications when the prizes in these competitions come to be awarded, I shall be glad if members making introductions will say if they are to be entered to their own individual credit or to that of any cage bird society to which they may belong.

Local Hon. Secs. Wanted.

In a day or two I shall be sending out a special invitation to the Hon. Sec. of each Society in the kingdom asking if he will accept office as Local Hon. Sec. to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE for his own town or district. Gentlemen so acting will be supplied with as many copies as they may desire of our circulars, setting forth the Aims and Objects of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and for their especial use badges have been prepared bearing the words "Local Hon. Sec." in addition to the legend "Cage Birds League." These are in button form, specially well finished, and will be supplied at the ordinary price of sixpence each. Members of the LEAGUE other than secretaries of Bird Societies may act in the capacity of Local Hon. Sec., one for each town or district, providing that the office has not been filled by the Hon Sec. of the Society for such a town or district, and will be provided with copies of the "Aims and Objects" for distribution. They may also have the special buttonhole badge at the same price, sixpence each.

MORE VIEWS OF MEMBERS.

Sir,—Please enrol me as a member of the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE. I am a very enthusiastic bird-lover, and have always kept birds in cages and aviaries, and should like to do my best to protect myself and fellow bird-lovers against faddists. I have a large garden aviary and I am sure my little captives feel as free and as happy as any wild bird; as a matter of fact, I have several times had my aviary broken into, and the birds let loose, but (with the exception of two Zebra Waxbills, which were probably drowned by the rain or eaten by cats) all my birds have returned to me each time. Wishing every success to the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

Wembley Park. GLADYS CHATTO.

A Wholehearted Response.

Sir,—My society is likely to join CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE en bloc. The members all speak highly of the League. Will let you know after next meeting.

A. H. C. LEGG, hon. sec.,
Mid-Rhondda and Dist. C.B.S.

REPLY: Glad to hear it.—H. J. F.

Otley Will Support Us.

SIR,—Kindly enter me as a member of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE. You may devote half my subscription to whatever you think fit, as I am perfectly confident that it will be used to the best interests of the Fancy. I am the hon. Secretary of the Otley O.S., and shall be pleased to get all our members to join, which I think will be easy when they see the badge.

J. THOMAS.

A Splendid Example.

Sir,—It is with pleasure that we, as a society, fulfil our late promise to support CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE by sending on our subscriptions for same. We fully believe that it will exceed the expectations of any one when it has fairly got a start, and I hope we shall soon be able to say to the bigots who go about the country interfering with our hobby, "Hands Off, seek fresh fields and pastures new, where your services may be more required." A. J. NOTLEY, Sec.

Hetton-le-Hole and Dist. C.B.S.

Useful Little Labels.

SIR,—I should like to make a suggestion which I think would help to get some money for the League, viz.: to have some gummed labels printed the same as the badge, and sold by the dozen; they could be used for several purposes—for sealing envelopes, etc.; it would also be a means of advertising the league.

Studley. P. J. JOHNSON.

Reply.—An order for a large number of such labels is in hand with the colour-printers. They will be in exact facsimile of the badge, and will be offered, when ready, at sixpence for fifty, or one shilling per hundred, post free. I anticipate that these pretty seals will be in great demand among our members, as the uses to which they may be put are manifold.—H. J. F.

A Catcher's Views.

Sir,—I wish to become a member of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and to introduce my father as another member. There was room for this League years ago before these people got so strong. In putting their foot on the bird-catcher, and trying to keep it there, they are tarring everyone with the same brush. I myself am a bird-catcher, breeder and keeper, and I think the world of my birds. I would not ill-use them myself, and should do my best to prevent any other man from doing so. I am sure that any other decent catcher would do the same.

I hope CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE will become a great power, and be known all over the world.

Leyton. W. MUDD.

Our Leaflets.

Sir,—I am very pleased to read that you have in preparation leaflets explaining the objects of the League. This is just the thing that is wanted, and will be very useful in getting members. I shall be glad to have some as soon as ready; if they are to be sold I will forward the amount as soon as I know. I think many are realising the value of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and I have several promises to join later.

Ramsgate. F. THOMAS.

REPLY: Copies of the leaflets shall be sent you in a day or two; there will be no charge. Please see reference to this matter in my notes of this week.—H. J. F.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. H. PECK.—CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE could scarcely undertake the defence of bird-dealers who "got into trouble for selling young British birds." People who take and sell young British birds must in most cases break a very salutary law which prohibits the taking of birds during the close season. Every bird-lover must be in sympathy with this law, and the LEAGUE would rather help to prosecute than defend those who ignore its provisions. It is pleasant to hear that the two bird-dealers you have introduced as members are "most fair in their business transactions," but if I were to give them a free advertisement by mentioning their names I should be inundated with similar requests. There are, fortunately, thousands of bird-dealers of whom the same might be truly said. I shall send you the literature as soon as it comes from the printers in whose hands it is at the time.

C. H. WHARAM.—Pamphlets setting forth the Objects and Aims of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE are in the hands of the printers, and some copies shall be sent you when ready. Thanks for your kind offers of assistance; please see my note above.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
Secretary, CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, 15[illegible] STREET, LONDON, E.C.

British Softbills:

Notes on the habits of some popular species.

. . By . .
A. LEES.

The Pet of the Nursery.

I pass now to the Robin, undoubtedly the most popular of all the feathered tribe. He is closely associated in one's earliest childhood with many of those nursery rhymes which strike so deeply into the childish mind. He is par excellence, the pet of the nursery; and as years grow on us, who does not look on the Robin as an old friend? Even the school boy hesitates before he takes the nest, thinking there is something uncanny about the bird.

When the winter comes, and our summer visitants have taken their departure to other climes, and our own songsters have become mute, Robin shows his individuality, and with a sure instinct approaches the habitation of man, certain of getting a share of the crumbs that fall from the table. He will sometimes tap at the window until he has attracted attention, and has been known fearlessly to enter the room, if the window be opened. He is, as it were, a connecting link between the happy family seated around the yule log fire, and birds which are doomed to be the sport of every bleak wind that whistle through the trees.

A story is told of one that had taken a partiality to a house; it had become so tame that it would pick from the very plates from which the inmates were eating. "Bob," as this bird was called, resented any intruders, and was so exceedingly jealous that on one occasion, having observed his reflection in a looking glass, he flew at it in a most furious rage, and beat himself quite out of breath against it; for with all his virtues he is a most pugnacious bird, and a very dangerous gentleman to keep along with other birds. My own experience is that if you put two Robins in an aviary, they will soon be reduced to one. I have also had Canaries and other birds done to death by the Robin. So that any one wanting to keep a Robin had better keep him in a cage by himself.

They are not much kept in captivity as a popular idea against keeping Robins obtains even the present day. Formerly the superstition that Robins brought ill-luck to a house was very great. Any cage will do for a Robin, and in feeding him it must be remembered that it is an insect eater.

The Thrushes and their Habits.

The Song Thrush or Mavis (sometimes called Throstle) remains with us, some specimens at least, all the year. In hard winters many die through want of food. The species nest early, and as you all know they breed in this country. The male bird assists in hatching. The bird is a very fine spring songster. But being so well known I don't think it necessary to discuss it further.

The Missel Thrush is the largest example of this genus. It nests early in the year, the nests being frequently in the fork of a tree, and frequently also in a very exposed position on a foundation of mud; being lined with dry grasses and composed externally of bents and lichens; and although such nests are the colour of the tree, there is little attempt at concealment. From its habit of singing in rough weather the bird is also known as the "Storm cock."

The Fieldfare, also called the Felt, Blue [illegible], or Felter, I am afraid some people are in the habit of confusing with the Missel Thrush. Some time ago the late Mr. Doncly, the artist, who lived at Milton, had a great many letters in the "Glasgow Evening Times," and, amongst other things, he said he could see from his window the nest of the Feltie on a cherry tree which at that time was in bloom. On the hillside above Bowling there are a lot of these trees, and they look fine when in bloom. But my belief is that the nest he saw was that of the Missel Thrush, and I am of opinion that that is how the mistake occurs—some people are in the habit of calling the Missel Thrush the Feltie.

The Fieldfare does not breed in this country, but, like the Redwing, in Norway, where it is considered a very common bird. The nest may there be found in spruce firs.

A cage suitable for the Missel Thrush would be suitable for the Fieldfare; and the food when the bird is wild is similar to that of the Redwing.

A Regular Town Pet.

The Skylark is entitled to a prominent position in the foremost rank of our songsters, whether we contemplate its movement whilst soaring high amidst the clouds, its song mellowed by distance into delicious cadences, or as the pet of some family cramped in bedroom, the walls of narrow streets in the midst of densely populated towns, for even these adverse conditions a Lark will enliven the whole neighbourhood by its clear and lively song, which is to be esteemed for its power and brilliancy. Perhaps there is no other British bird so much kept by town people; certainly no other bird puts forward his claims with such sturdy eloquence. Even when in his narrow cage, the Lark seems constrained to use muscular exercise during singing, for it flutters its wings and tramples the turf as if it were once more free. Excepting perhaps the Nightingale, no bird would seem to have exercised the quaint conceits of the poets with more felicity than the Skylark, yet, as with most of our sweetest songsters, its plumage is most unpretending.

It is very difficult to distinguish the sexes. The female is slightly smaller than the male, and its plumage is a little darker. The nest is very simply constructed of dry bents of grass, and the eggs are from three to six in number.

The young are easily reared if properly attended to, though they are inexorable in their demands to be fed early. They should be fed as early in the morning as possible—not later than six o'clock. A little given often is better than a cramming. Their food consists of soaked bread, mixed with crushed hemp seed and a little grated beef and egg. The adult birds may be fed on bread crumbs and crushed hemp seed, varied with morsels of cheese, or potatoes, or any table scraps.

The Lark is never seen near a stream or pond, as, when wild, it drinks from the dew on the grass. It is fond of dusting, and should always be provided with plenty of gravel and sand, such as may be found in the gutters after a heavy shower of rain. No perches are required, but a piece of turf should be kept in the bow-front of the cage. These birds are not always of one colour, as I have here one with white wings.

A Marvellous Bird.

The Water Ousel, or Dipper, I would like to deal with next. It is a marvellous bird. You may see it almost any day between here and Bullock Bridge on the Levey. It is seldom mentioned as a songster, but I can assure you it does sing, and sings well, too. I have stood opposite Lennox Bank House when the Dipper was perched on the late Sir A. Orr-Ewing's boat, and it was singing loudly for all it was worth. The bird's mode of getting a living is most peculiar. It feeds on molluscs and other slimy, snake-like creatures that you may see on stones and rocks that are completely covered with water. I have seen the bird in the winter time on the Clyde above Carmyle when the river was completely frozen over all but a small piece like a slide in the centre kept open with the run of the stream. He would come to the side, plunge in, and in a short time appear again and fly off, repeating the same thing many times over. He had been at the bottom of the river in search of food. You can see him fly half way across the Leven, plunge in and appear shortly after. In these deep rivers you cannot see what he is doing, but I remember a friend and I were standing on the Knevin Bridge, Banachra; the water was beautifully clear, and we could quite plainly see the bird go under the water and walk about the large stones, eating the slimy like worms that are to be found on them, showing the wise arrangements made by Providence for the different birds.

The nest is large and oval, full of moss or leaves, with an entrance low down on the side, lined with dry moss and green leaves. It is placed in a recess under a bridge, in the wall of a mill-dam, in a bank, or a ledge of rock: often behind a cascade of water, and sometimes in a bough of a tree overhanging the water. The eggs, four to six in number, are of a dull white colour.

They get the blame of being guilty of eating the spawn of fish, so that fish watchers are very keen on them.

Just one word on wild Hybrids. That they exist I am quite satisfied. I mean the offspring of wild birds of two different species. I cannot say I have seen this in the case of the smaller birds, but in museums I have seen a cross from the Black Game and the Red Grouse; and I have also seen a cross between the Capercailzie and the Pheasant, which was shot at Arden, and is now in Mr. Lumsden's house at Arden. When I saw this specimen Mr. Lumsden told me that one of the Rothschilds had a similar bird at one of their shootings.

Mr. Lees exhibited specimens from his well-known collection, the most prominent being a Lark with white wings, a piebald or black and white Blackbird, also a pure white Blackbird.

Under the White Rose.

THE last week has been a very busy one for the fanciers of Bradford and district. All the specialist clubs have been fixing up their prizes and competitions, and allotting their patronages; also the Cinderella Show has progressed a step further; and meetings have been numerous. The Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. had a very good meeting, and some good prizes are to be put up for competition. The patronage has been distributed so as to push forward the bird the club caters for, and to benefit the club in all directions possible. I hear, too, that the prize list has been augmented by friends of the variety to the extent of £1, and that a few new members are coming forward. All who intend joining and wish their names to be included in the year book must send in their names at once.

CINDERELLA Show Committee have been fortunate enough to secure the Central Baths Hall, near the centre of Bradford, a delightful place for a show of this description, and calculated to hold without any trouble some 1,500 to 1,600 birds; while it is splendidly lighted, and has every convenience for visitors. I think it will be acknowledged to be the best room in the North for a large show. Now it only remains for the work to be well carried out, to make this (as it is intended to be) the largest show ever held in the Bradford district: and the names at the head are a guarantee that the management will leave nothing to be desired, as they are true workers, and have the knowledge essential for the proper carrying out of the arrangements.

YORKSHIRE Canary Club had a large and representative meeting. All specials were got into order, and the patronage allotted for the two sets of competitions. Those societies applying which did not receive the patronage will be disappointed, but in consequence of dates and judges clashing, the committee had no option in many cases. This club make a practice each year to give all that they possibly can in prizes; this year is no exception, close on thirty pounds having been allocated to prizes, and every one, whether champion, amateur, or novice, has a chance to win something. I would specially point out that the junior novice is especially catered for; he has a good chance to pick up a valuable special, and at the same time he is competing for his Union medal.

OPEN Norwich Plainhead Club got through their business in just one hour. Everything worked out nicely. Specials were arranged and the patronage given out, and the year book printing and other work put in apple-pie order so that everything will be in readiness for the beginning of the season. All that is now wanted is that the members will do their part in the general working of the club.

NATIONAL Green Marked Y.C.C. is making steady progress, and the meeting had nearly the full committee in attendance. A good response to the call for applications for patronage had been received, and all met with due consideration. Then the prize list was gone through and the several competitions fixed up, and I think when the members see what has been arranged they will have no cause to grumble.

YORKSHIRE County B.B. and M.C. were the last on the list, and here, in consequence of clashing of dates, they have still a few shows open that could have the patronage; also the prize list was left open for a future meeting, as time was getting late, and those who had been there some five hours were getting uneasy and wanting to be off. Several new members were made, and the prospects are much brighter; this time the club begins with a clean sheet, and no doubt things will "hum a bit" in this section.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

Northern Yorkshire C.C.

The following are some of the breeding results of members:—Dix, 32; Atkinson, 45; Hutler, 50; Tomlinson, 68; Smith, 14; Witherley, 12; Deighton, 40; Wigglesworth, 27; Kent, 60; Leach, 20; F. Johnson, 12; H. Johnson, 12; Mirley, 20; Bryden, 10; Scott, 15; Hedley, 20; Cattell, 20; Tindale, 90.—R. Tindale, hon. sec.

Some Scottish Results.

There is no accounting for the varied lot of fanciers seemingly working under almost the same conditions. To be successful one, or a number of years, and then not to be able to rear a single bird for a season, however, is the common fact. The long spell of dry weather was against breeding operations. Many hens have not laid a single egg. Mr. Brown (East Kilbride), so far as I have been able to learn, tops the list in the Scotch Fancy section, the aggregate of young being close upon 40. He should be able to give an excellent account of himself in the coming show season. He merits success. Mr. McClure (Mount Florida) always gives a good account of himself. He has close upon 30 youngsters, so that he is almost certain to reappear at the Canary exhibitions beaming with satisfaction. No one has been more devoted to the Scotch Fancy Canary. Mr. McIlwaine (Mount Florida) follows well, the total being somewhere in the region of 30. In such a quantity he has a chance to do winning. Mr. McFarlane (Crossmyloof), the well-known Norwich breeder, has a grand selection of young birds, both in quantity and quality. Mr. J. A. Stewart (Coatbridge) has about 20 young birds, and he has got into a splendid strain. Mr. Dalgleish (Leith), who won the medals and cups at Derby and other shows last year, has a dozen on the perch. Mr. Martin (Edinburgh) has half a dozen, and Mr. Paterson (Edinburgh) 10 young birds. Mr. McLennan is reported to have a dozen, all said to be of excellent quality. Mr. Thornton (Blackhall) has a dozen, a couple of which promise well. Mr. John Muir (Glasgow) is doing well, both as regards quantity and quality. Mr. Taylor (Alexandria) has two pair Goldfinch and Bullfinch breeding. The last account was that he had one hybrid, and a nest of fertile eggs from each pair. Mr. W. D. Hogg (Oakley) bids fair to again figure with the Greenie-Bullfinch hybrid, he having a youngster batch on June 30th. Hybrids are only commencing, and we wish the foregoing, and other breeders, every success. The season so far has not been too prolific, but the best may yet come; at any rate, let hope reign supreme.—"Scottish Fancy."

NORTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

First annual ramble, on Sunday, June 18, when ten members turned up at the Central Station. We took train for Hale, where we should have met Mr. Tom Harrison. But no guide turned up, so we were in "Queer Street," until Mr. Slater thought of Mr. Aaron Taylor, the president of the Altrincham C.B.S., who lives very near. We prevailed upon him to act as guide, and a right good one he made. We kept to the roads to the nursery garden, then we branched off through the Golf Links, where we soon saw Nature at its best. Mr. Odell found a nest of Wrens just on a twig (near the nest) preparing for flight. We found a lot of nests, but most of them were empty. Mr. Self gave a sample of his vocal powers. After we rambled through the grass we saw a lot of young plovers. Some of the boys found them hard to find once they took their eyes off them. At last we came to the Chapel House Inn, Mobberley, on which there was a raid. We had tea, after which we took train for Manchester, which we reached at 9 o'clock, after a splendid half-day's outing.—John Davey, Hon. Sec.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO SECRETARIES, &c.

"Cage Birds" goes to press on Wednesday during the summer months, therefore club notices, reports, etc., should reach us on Tuesday to secure publication in our issue of the same week. Will society officials kindly make a note of this?

Club Reports.

CUMNOCK AND DIST. C.B.S.

A meeting is to be held in the Co-operative Hall, Auchinleck, on July 8th, at 7 p.m., to see if we will have a challenge cup to be competed for at our show, for most points. We hope to see a full turn-out of members and all intending new members to give their views on the subject.—Jos. Nutt, Sec.

NORTHERN B.B., M., AND F.B.C.

Monthly meeting, held 28 June, in Lockhart's Cafe, Newcastle. Table Show: British, class 1: 1, J. Shepherd. Class 2: 1, C. J. Petterson; 2, J. Shepherd; 3, T. Robson. Class 3: 1, J. McKenzie; 2, A Young; 3, J. Scott. Mr. T. Robson then gave his experiences with British Softbill feeding and rearing, etc., and the members present were treated to a very enjoyable and interesting lecture.—Geo. Taylor, Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting, fair turn out of members. The members decided to have a first feather show in the Bisley Hotel, on July 15th, for which there will be sixteen classes; C. Vallans, Esq., of Summerhill House, to judge the same. The secretary then read a paper by J. Robson, Esq., on the Norwich Plainhead Canary, which provoked a good discussion. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Robson for his kindness. We made one new member. —Geo. Harver, Hon. Sec.

HANLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Albion Hotel, June 28th, Mr. C. J. Robinson in the chair. A good attendance of members, and a considerable amount of business was discussed arising from the minutes. Classification for nest feather show; we decided to add three more classes, Yorks. A.V. old bird, Norwich A.V. old bird, and British. Mr. Dunn has kindly consented to give special for most entries in show. Mr. Evans kindly gave 3 specials, one for best Yorks. (young bird), for best Norwich or Lizard, and for best British. Mr. Robinson gives special for most entries in Norwich, Mr. T. Bates for most entries in Yorks., and Mr. G. Lawton for most entries in British. Any member who has not given me his order for colour food must do so not later than Saturday, July 8th, at show room, Albion Hotel, 3 p.m.—G. Lawton, Sec.

YORKSHIRE COUNTY B.B. & M.C.

Meeting held in the Market Tavern, Bradford, July 1st, Mr. W. Cowgill presiding, owing to the absence of Mr. Archer through a cold. There was only a moderate turn up, owing no doubt to the meeting of several other clubs at the same time and place. The following were admitted as new members: Messrs. E. Clegg (Dewsbury), W. Lea (Doncaster), G. Bescoby (Doncaster), H. Allen (Leeds), B. Simpson (Leeds), T. Bisbop (Sheffield). The granting of patronage for winter shows was proceeded with, but owing to some dates clashing and judges' names not being given, a complete list will have to be issued shortly. The committee for the Bradford district was next gone into, and the following gentlemen were carried: Messrs. S. Dean, C. Ross, J. Hudson, and Parkin. As time was getting late, it was decided to leave the particulars of the competitions, classifications and other matter over till the next meeting, which will be shortly. Will secretaries please note that we have open dates for five more shows; will those wanting patronage please send in applications at once? Members please note that subcriptions are now due.—Lane and Jowett, Hon. Secs.

MID-RHONDDA AND DIST. C.B.S.

General meeting held June 29th, at the White Heart Hotel, Tonypandy (our new headquarters). Mr. Hy. Jelby (chairman) presided over a good attendance. The chairman said it was the wish of one of the most respected gentlemen at Tonypandy, Ivor Morgan, Esq., to give to the society a bit of gold, so as to help it along, and so that he may become a vice-president, and have the privilege of attending meetings. As the chairman was speaking in comes Mr. Morgan, and he was received by a hearty shake of the hand by every member. We soon found that he was a good sportsman. Mr. Morgan asked if we thought of having an open show this year, and we told him we intend to have one if the strike is finished, and he promised to get a few pounds towards a challenge trophy. He hoped that every member would do his best and collect as much as he possibly could. The secretary said he wished to call the attention of the members who have not paid anything of their annual subscription this year, and he hoped they would not stay away from any of the meetings, because we cannot expect the members who are on strike to pay, as they have sufficient to do to keep the home going. Therefore I trust those members will turn up in good force at our next meeting an important one, at headquarters on July 27th. Anyone desirous of joining our society and residing within the both Rhondda Valleys (Gilfach-Goch included) may have full particulars from me.—A. H. C. Legg, Hon. Secretary, 7, Primrose Terrace, Llwynoelyn, Porth, Glam.

YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

Committee meeting held Market Tavern, Bradford, July 1st, Mr. Sunderland in the chair and 17 members attended. The minutes of general meeting were passed. A letter from the open Norwich Plainhead Club was read, inviting the Y.C.C. to come to some working arrangement (in connection with the other specialist clubs), in reference to each other's suspensions, etc., and was unanimously agreed to. Decided to continue advert. in Yorkshire Union Handbook. Next the conditions to govern the competition for the challenge cup, value six guineas, presented by Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the donor only stipulating that the cup should be won three times before becoming the property of a member. It was decided that the cup be given for most points gained by a member (feeding solely on Ramsden's peppers) to be won three times before becoming the property of any exhibitor. This brought forward the cup presented by Mr. T. Sandiford, and offered as second prize in the Bailey trophy competition, decided that this also should be won by a member (feeding solely on Sandiford's colour foods), and that the secretary convey to both Mr. J. W. Ramsden and Mr. T. Sandiford the committee's gratitude for their continued support. The competitions offered for season 1911-12 are as follows: The Bailey trophy and Sandiford cup, the Ramsden cup and money specials, the open and junior novice competitions, along with Ramsden's colour food specials as for last season, making a total value of £47. I beg to call the attention of all York- to the advantages to be gained Burdekin Bros. and membership. The then gone sful societies: competition: Bolton O.S., Manchester, Liverpool O.S., L.C.B.A., Crystal Palace, Laisterdyke, Huddersfield, Great Horton, Halifax, and Bradford Cinderella show; the Ramsden cup, money specials, and open novice competitions: Newcastle, Cheltenham, Swansea, Crystal Palace, Bradford (West), Windhill, Brighouse, Queensbury, Cinderella show, and Bradford (City). The junior novice competition at all Yorkshire Union shows (novice section), Yorkshire classes.—John Greaves, Secretary.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Monthly meeting held June 24th, Mr. J. Muir in the chair. Business was enrolling some new members and deciding final arrangements for first feather show. A table show was held of any variety British birds, the following being the result: 1, W. Clubb, Greenfinch; 2, J. Muir, Greenfinch; 3, W. Clubb, Redpoll; 4, A. Gillespie, Goldfinch; 5, J. Hunter.—W. Clubb, Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE AND DIST. C.B.S.

At meeting, July 13th, we held a table show for nest-feather birds, also British birds, it being the first of three table shows at which points gained will count for specials at the end of season. Classes Nor. 2, Yorks. 2, for champions, and the same for novices. The British will be classified when entered, and we hope there will be a good muster. Will members and friends note it is our ramble on Sunday, July 9th. We meet at our headquarters at one o'clock, and go to Rotherham to start our ramble with the Parkgate fanciers, who will be our guides for the day.—W. Richinson, Sec.

NORTH WALES C.B.S.

Meeting held June 19, headquarters, Mr. R. E. Griffith presiding. The secretary submitted his balance sheet, showing a balance of £4 1s. 9d., which is highly satisfactory. It was resolved to send a copy to each member. The committee expressed their appreciation of the very able and efficient manner in which the hon. sec., Mr. J. W. Jones, has conducted the business of the society; also the treasurer, chairman, vice-chairman, and other members of the committee have done their very best since the formation of the society, which now has a membership of 102. Messrs. R. Angel and W. Roberts kindly promised to present the society with a cup; and it was resolved to buy two other cups. Mr. W. Griffiths was elected assist. sec. Decided, to have a Christmas draw, and it is hoped each member will make an effort to sell at least one book.—J. L. Sweeney.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

General meeting held July 1st at the new headquarters, The Earl Cathecart, Munster Square, Osnaburgh Street, N.W., with Mr. Barns in the chair. Decided to hold the young bird and British bird show, fixed for the 1st inst., on the 15th inst., Mr. J. Oldaker to judge; the show to be open for all old members, entry fee to be 6d. per cage; judging to start at 4 o'clock; the show to be open to the general public at 5 o'clock at the above headquarters entirely free of charge. A lengthy discussion took place on alterations of show rules; the novice rule was amended limiting the novice time to 3 years in addition to the standing rule, so as to clip the wings of the old-fashioned novices of 12 to 15 years' standing. Among those present were: Messrs. E. Pretty, H. J. Pearce, R. J. Pretty, W. Shakespeare, W. Salter, H. Bell, A. Austin, H. Harrison, etc. I appeal to the old members to support this coming show, and make it a success. Let others come and see for themselves what we can do.—O. Heine, Official Reporter.

OPEN NORWICH P.C.

Meeting of committee held July 1st, Market Tavern, Bradford. Decided to again give four prizes in each (champion and novice) section, also three prizes in junior novice section, value 1st 10s., 2nd 7/6, 3rd 5/-, and money prizes to be given at each show, viz., 2/- most points 4th birds, 2/- most points vhc birds. Vote of condolence passed to Mr. A. Spencer's family on the death of Mr. A. Spencer, of Doncaster (late member of the O.N.P.C.). Patronage allotted to shows as follows:—Date—October 6 and 7th, show—Burnley, judge—J. C. Barnes; Oct. 14th, Bradford West; Oct. 21st, Huddersfield; Nov. 4th, York, A. Hirst; Nov. 10th and 11th, Barnsley, H. W. Battye; Nov. 17th and 18th, Hull, J. Robson; Nov. 25th, Brigbouse, H. W. Battye; Dec. 1st & 2nd, Halifax, A. Wellings; Dec. 8th and 9th, Cinderella; Jan. 20th, 1912, Bradford City, J. Robson. Decided to leave calling of next meeting with secretary.—O. Mitchell, Hon. Sec.

EAST HAM C.B.S.

General meeting, June 29th, at Headquarters, when the report of the first feather show was read and greatly applauded, showing as it did a balance on the right side. The vice-chairman, Mr. H. B. Rout, then distributed the prize money and specials. A special prize money fund to aid the moneys obtained by the ordinary entrance fee was created and received great support from the members. The titbit of the evening was given by the secretary, when he announced that two cups had been given to the society. The members received this with loud applause, and a further offer of four cups added to the exuberance of all present. That six cups should at one meeting be given to the society speaks well for the support and interest displayed by all connected. Arrangements are in hand to have the objects of the society displayed at the local music hall at show time, Mr. H. B. Rout kindly offering the expenses. It may appear necessary to add that any new members are eligible to compete for the six cups now in the society's possession. The secretary, Mr. F. Fox, 12, Sherrard Road, Forest Gate, invites correspondence from likely members.—B. C. Smith (Reporter).

DALKEITH C.C.

A good muster of members and friends rallied at The Ship, where mine host had the glass room nicely laid out. The torrential rain doubtless deterred the outlying members from coming, but the talent was there, and those members who were present were rewarded with a feast of melody which never flagged; in fact, we only managed to get through one-third of the programme, and it was unanimously agreed to meet again on July 22nd and get the rest of it through. Each item received hearty applause. Songs were sung by Messrs. C. Hamilton, A. Rowe, G. Davidson, Jas. Shirling, W. Smith, Parnell, W. Musterton, Jas. Hamilton, J. Hogg, J. Haig, Richardson, Ferguson, Stevenson, J. Currie. A duet was sung by Messrs. Hamilton and Smith. Gramaphone selections were given by Mr. P. Kinney, cornet solos by Mr. W. Heaps and violin solos by Mr. Kinney. A hearty vote of thanks to the contributors, and to Mr. Steel for promoting the concert, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the company, terminated a really enjoyable night. Secretaries who are desirous of waking up interest among their members, or of gathering the funds for a trophy will do well to "go and do likewise."—Ewing and Steel, Secs.

STIRLING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held Douglas Hotel, June 3rd, Mr. Wm. Summers in chair. Classification for annual club show was gone over; we agreed to add two classes in the Norwich section, two classes for Yorkshires, and one for young Mule or Hybrid. Otherwise the classification is the same as last year. Members are reminded that subscriptions are now due, and should be sent in early. Will any fancier within a 15-mile radius, wishing to become a member, please communicate with me?—Wm. Bishop, Secretary, 140, Main-street, St. Ninians, Stirling.

HIRST (Universal) C.B.S

Meeting held June 23, Mr. King presiding. After the F.F. Show business, we decided to hold our annual show November 11. We have a good classification for same—25 classes. One class is specially set aside for those members who have never shown a bird before. We also had several offers of specials from various tradesmen in the district; this is very gratifying considering they were unsolicited. I may state that we are still accepting new members. We have 85 on our books, but we still have room for more, and if bird fanciers will rally round us, we will endeavour to make our society worthy of such a large and prosperous district.—R. Middleton, Sec.

NORTHERN LIZARD CLUB.

Meeting held June 24th, Fawcett-street Cafe. The silver rose bowl, the gift of Mr. P. Hunter, Bombay, was on view, and notwithstanding the pouring rain there was a good turn-out to see it. This is the second occasion on which this gentleman has honoured the club with a gift in 12 months. The members were delighted at the magnificent gift, which is a splendid specimen of the native craft, and is mounted on an ebony plinth. Altogether it is a prize which any fancier would be proud to win. The members passed a vote of thanks with acclamation, and instructed the secretary to convey their appreciation of the superb gift. Will members note that subs. are now due? New members join now, and be in time to compete for club specials.—G. C. Davidson, Sec.

DUNFERMLINE AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held Co-operative Hall, June 24. A meagre attendance of members was accounted for no doubt by the inclemency of the weather, and by the fact that the West Fife A.S. were holding their annual exhibition and competition in town that day. Mr. J. Rankine presided. The rules of the West Fife C.B. League were then read over, and the delegates were instructed to move a few alterations, and to see about the addition of an extra rule. The date of the third annual show was fixed for November 4 next. The classification was gone over, and finally agreed upon. Much satisfaction was felt in the meeting when it became known how well the members were going with their cup subscription lists, which the members absent might note, are due next meeting, July 29. Mr. Rankine thanked Mr. J. Sneddon for his collection of £1 3s. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the business.—Robert T. Campbell, Sec.

CREWE AND DISTRICT O.S.

At a "convivial" held Hop Pole Hotel on June 21st, under the supervision of Host Edwards (who is kindliness personified) a presentation was made to Mr. F. Harding, who is leaving Crewe for Western Australia. In the absence of Mr. F. E. Cooper, Mr. J. W. Lawton, one of the oldest members, was deputed to make the presentation, which took the shape of a valuable handbag for use on the voyage. Mr. Lawton said it gave him great pleasure to hand over this handsome present. It showed the kind of feeling the society wished to foster among the members. He had always found Mr. Harding one of the most courteous and obliging members, and testified to his ability as a fancier. Mr. H. Latham also spoke, and wished him a pleasant voyage. Mr. Harding, in reply, said it was a great surprise to him to be the recipient of such a handsome present; he would always treasure it in remembrance of the happy time he had spent among them. He would still remain a member. This brought to a close a meeting long to be remembered.—E. Jaycott.

WALLSEND C.B.S.

Meeting held Station Hotel, June 21, when a large number of members turned up. Mr. Macdonald occupied the chair. A report had gone round that the secretary had resigned, which had put all the fanciers into quite a flutter. A deputation was despatched to interview the secretary. They brought back books and a letter stating the reasons why he was compelled to give up the position, which was very regretfully accepted. It was at once moved and seconded that the chairman take the secretary's place. No other nomination could be induced by the Chairman, and the motion was declared carried amidst a storm of applause. The new secretary replied, stating that if he could get the whole-hearted support of the members, and if by hard work it was possible to build up the society again, he would make all his efforts to that end. Mr. Johnston, a well-known Border fancier, was voted in the chair, and he stated that he would try his best to fill the honourable position well. The annual show was settled to be this year a members' confined show, for November 11th, in the Cafre Hall. If possible, we shall secure the services of Mr. A. Hay (Tweedsmouth) for the Canary section, and Mr. J. Maddison (Newcastle) for the British and foreign. Several new members joined and many paid their subscriptions; and several since have posted their's for the year, which is a great encouragement. What we now hope is that all our other friends will rally round to assist. All letters should be sent to me, at 10, Laburnum Avenue.—John M. Macdonald, Sec.

Kippax F. and F.S. held weekly contest July 1st at the Swan Inn before a good company, and 13 birds competed for three good prizes. 1, O. Potter; 2, J. Wallis; 3, R. Plows. Now, you Linnet fanciers, come forward and make it a success. Open contest every Saturday.—J. Henshaw, Sec.

SALFORD.

Open contest July 8th; special prize for the winner of time, also for the first club member. Prize cards will be given to the 1st and second in each class. We hope fanciers from surrounding districts will come. Linnet singers from all parts of England, and the Yorkshire Linnet men especially, are invited to visit us. They can be assured of return visits. It is also being considered to promote an International contest among all the clubs.—B. Wharton, Hon. Sec.

LEIGH.

Open contest for Linnets at the Elephant and Castle Inn, Atherton, on July 1st. Entry of 41 birds, and some very good singing was done for quality, but the time singing was not up to standard. The winners were: Quality: W. Barns, 1; P. C. Neil, 2; Mrs. Brown 3; J. Statham 4. Time: P. Owen, 112, 1; Seddon, 78, 2; Banks, 70, 3; J. Aldrid and J. Harrison tied for 4th prize, with 54 each. The judges were, for quality, P. O'Neil, F. Gibbins, and W. Barnes; for time, J. Gore, and J. Woodward. Timekeepers, J. Whittle; birdman, W. Boote. I may say that as regards the new members, we are doing well, as we have enrolled about 60 up to date, and some more to come, which speaks well for the Globe Inn Linnet club.—J. McAlister, Sec.
